HOLIDAYS CLOSE BUILDINGS, ALTER PAYDAY, HURRY DEADLINES, LIMIT LIBRARIES

BUILDINGS CLOSINGS, OPENINGS--Some buildings on campus will be closed, with access limited in others, for the holiday season--5 p.m., Dec. 24 through Jan. 3. This includes the administration building, but representatives from Vice President Gerald Bepko's office will be on call. Other buildings that will close include Bus/SPEA, Mary Cable, the Counseling Center, E/S, E/T, Herron, Lecture Hall, Nursing, and C and D buildings at 38th Street. Thermostats in these buildings will be lowered and mail service will be stopped. Buildings open on a limited basis include Administration at 38th Street, Cavanaugh, Dentistry, Law, PE/Natatorium, Physical Plant, University Library, Coleman, Union--north wing, and Oral Health Research Institute. All others, including hospitals and other essential services, will be open. With the exception of Dec. 25 and Jan. 1, student services such as the bursar, admissions, financial aid and the registrar offices will be open.

PAY- HOLI- BONUS DAYS--Monthly paychecks will be distributed the morning of Jan. 4. Biweekly pay day is Dec. 24. Payroll will be sending out instructions about biweekly time sheets and pay dates. Compensation during the holiday season is determined by many factors, and the person responsible for payroll in your department can assist you with any questions, or call Personnel. Generally, Dec. 25-Jan. 1 will be H or holiday days; all others will be charged to bonus days, accumulated vacations days or paid time off hours for PA classification. Hourly employees receive no compensation during the holiday break.

LIBRARY HOURS--Libraries on IUPUI campuses have special hours for the holidays. Herron will close completely. Others will be open on a limited basis. University Library hours are Dec. 21-23, open 'til 5 p.m.; Dec. 24, open 'til 1 p.m., Dec. 25-27, closed; Dec. 28-31, open 8 a.m.-5 p.m.; Jan. 1-3, closed, and Jan. 4-8, open 8 a.m.-5 p.m.

GRANT PROPOSALS DUE EARLY--If the grant or award you are applying for has a proposal deadline between Dec. 24 and Jan. 4, the deadline for submitting them to Research and Sponsored Programs is Dec. 14--no later because the office will be closed during the holidays and proposals cannot be processed. If you anticipate any problems with that early deadline, call Pam McKeough, 4-8285, "immediately."

ONLY ONE GREEN SHEET MORE THIS YEAR

The Green Sheet will have only one more issue before the News Bureau offices are vacated for the holidays, Dec. 25-Jan. 3. Deadline for the Dec. 13 issue is at 5 p.m. on Tuesday, Dec. 8. The first Green Sheet for 1988 will be Jan. 10, with a deadline of 5 p.m. on Tuesday, Jan. 5.

NEWS 'N' NOTES FROM HERE 'N' THERE

The Basics--Thursday (Dec. 10) marks the 39th birthday of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights Day, first declared in the U.S. in 1948.

New Year Fitness--If you plan to get fit next year, you can sign up now for many swim/fitness courses at the natatorium and track and field. There is swimming for every age and level, there are total fitness programs, aerobic conditioning programs, jogging, running and for the really serious--triathlon training. The aqua fitness program for adults is a great gift for older people, those who are physically limited or those who want to tone without the groan. Swimming is not required. Call 4-3517 for fees and dates.

Tell Students--Advanced undergrads and graduating seniors can apply now for the preprofessional research/professional aide traineeships offered at the Institute of Clinical Training and Research of The Devereux Foundation. The Foundation is a group of multidisciplinary residential and day treatment/special ed and rehab centers in suburban Philadelphia. Stipends range from $0 to $750 a month. For more, call 215-964-3000.

Nice--IUPUI students who represented Bulgaria in the recent Indiana Collegiate Model United Nations did very well and brought home honors as best delegates and other laurels. Team members are Mike Waddell, Kurt Williams, Andy Noble and Dallas Boschen. Working with the Model UN was Dick Fredland, professor in political science.

Medical TV--Continuing Education credits can be earned by participating in Medical Television Network presentations that are shown at various sites on campus. Anyone is welcome to see upcoming presentations that are aired during the day, Monday-Thursday. Topics for the coming weeks include an update on cholesterol, nursing substance abuse, nursing research: intervention and pain management, stress and women physicians, women and health, the Indiana AIDS experience and more. For a detailed schedule, call 4-7212.

A Miracle Waits--It's a miracle that sick kids can think happy thoughts and draw Christmas cards that exude joy and fun. It's a miracle also that you can buy the cards for friends and family and every penny goes back to the Riley Hospital, where the miracle began. To order your cards, call 4-2273.

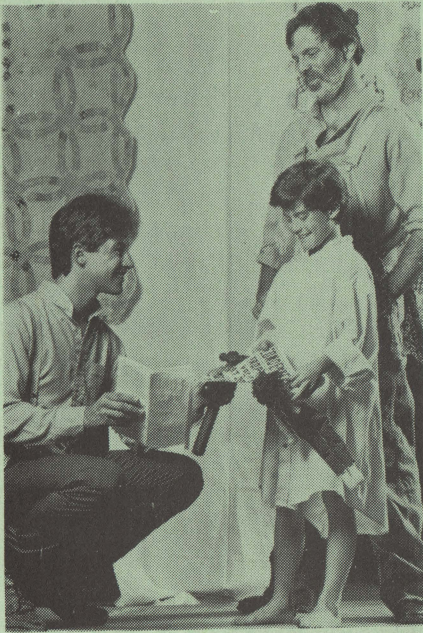

Special at IUB--The Chimes of Christmas, "Nutcracker," and a lot of other special holiday musical and artistic presentations are offered at IU Bloomington, now through mid-December. Many are free. Call 5-3911 for a complete culture calendar.

More Fun--Civic Theatre's "Wizard of Oz" begins the day after Christmas and runs through Jan. 3. For times and tickets, call 923-4597.

The Women--The IUPUI Women's basketball team plays home games with Bellarmine College on Dec. 15 and Butler on Dec. 30--both at 7 p.m.

The Men--The next home games for the IUPUI Men's basketball team are Dec. 8 with Transylvania and Dec. 14 with Earlham--both at 7:30 p.m.

Code Revisions--Hospital Data Systems will revise Medical Service and Doctor Service codes, effect Jan. 1. This will provide both pediatric and adult service codes. If you expect your department to be affected by the revision, and you have not received the complete revised code-table listing, call Linda Crafton or Mary Curl, 4-2091.

UNIVERSITY THEATRE ADDS MATINEE TO "THE BRIDGE"

A Sunday matinee on Dec. 6 at 2:30 p.m. has been added to the production schedule of "The Bridge," an original play by Madge Dishman. Other performances are set for Dec. 11-12 at 8 p.m. Already a winner of the annual national David Library Award for her play "Family Sunrise" that was produced last year at IUPUI, Dishman has entered "The Bridge" for this year's competition. Noted radio and TV personality, Ezra Pound, director of the David Library, will adjudicate the play during the Dec. 11 performance. "The Bridge" is based on an actual group of Appalachian people who lived along the White River where the Medical Center now stands. Several sociological studies have been made of "the famous tribe of Ishmael" or the "Ishmaelites," as they were called. The play tells of Granny's story, revealing her struggle to span the gap between her family's world and modern society's. Tickets are $3.50 for students and older people, $4.50 for faculty and staff, $6 for others. Call 4-2095.

GOLDEN STATE HIRES HARRIS

Robert Harris, director of the IUPUI Center for Economic Education, is packing his bags and getting ready to move with his wife Bonnie to California, where he has been hired as a two-year consultant to the California Dept. of Education. During his leave of absence from IUPUI, the associate professor of economics will develop a statewide curriculum plan, so that California can comply with a new law that requires one year of economics as a high school graduation requirement. Indiana is not one of half the states that require economics in high school, but Harris believes it eventually will. He said that school-teachers here take economics workshops so that they can teach students--even those in kindergarten--about economics. Also, last year IPS was one of 14 school systems nationwide to be cited for excellence in economic education.--J. Grim

DOCTOR/HISTORIAN HELPS CELEBRATE 40-YEAR PARTNERSHIP

The 40th anniversary of the affiliation between the VA Hospital and the IU Medical Center was celebrated on campus last week and included a special lecture by Dr. Kenneth Ludmerer, author of the book, "Learning to Heal: The Development of American Medical Education," that was hailed in a recent review in The New York Times. Dr. Ludmerer is an associate professor of history and medicine at Washington University at St. Louis. His book reveals that if you were ill in the mid-19th century, there was a good chance your doctor could not read. In the then predominant faculty-owned medical schools, enough money could waive the literacy requirement, and med students who never saw a patient could graduate from a 32-week course and hang out their shingle--if they could find a literate sign painter. While on campus, he lectured on the subject, "American Medical Education: Past, Present and Future," in which he assessed the impact of recent developments in medical practice on medical education, which he said "can have a potentially devastating effect on our system of medical education."--N. Hoffman

Reminder: The Green Sheet has only one more issue before the holiday break, Dec. 25-Jan.3. Items for the next issue should be sent to the News Bureau, AO 139, before 5 p.m. on Tuesday, Dec. 7.

SCIENCE SEES HOW YOUR GARDEN GROWS

Research that could affect the design of agricultural products for bigger crop yields is being funded at the School of Science by the National Science Foundation. Charles Schauf, professor and chairman of the Dept. of Biology, and collaborators William Stillwell, associate professor of biology, Kathryn J. Wilson, both associate professors of biology, and Stephen Wassall, assistant professor of physics, received the three-year, $210,000 grant for their work in "Biophysical Studies of Vicia faba (the common bean) Ion Channels." Schauf and his team will use a new research technique, patch-clamping, that examines the movement of ion channels--the microscopic "gates" through which flow chemicals/nutrients from nerve to nerve. The technique allows electrical measurements of cells less than 1/10,000 of an inch in diameter. Schauf is noted for his research on ion channels that is aimed at unlocking the key to multiple sclerosis.--S. Rogers.

ALUMNI OFFERS PEACH BOWL BY LAND AND BY AIR

Single tickets sales and package tours to the Peach Bowl Game with IU and the University of Tennessee Volunteers in Atlanta Jan. 2 are coming up roses. Tickets-only are available through the IU Athletic Ticket Office, 5-4006. Tours that include air fare and overland arrangements are being offered by the IU Alumni Association. They include a three-night air package, and three- and four-night land packages for alumni and fans. There is also a three-night IU student land package. A New Year's Eve buffet, a giant pep rally with both schools, a pre-game brunch, all at the Hyatt Regency-Atlanta, are planned. Also, there will be a Hoosier Happening on New Year's Day, featuring the viewing of the Rose Bowl game and a special IU halftime show. For tour info, call 5-5920.

ROTC SCHOLARSHIPS GENEROUS The Dept. of Military Science asks that you remind students that applications are being accepted now for two-year and three-year Reserve Officers Training Corps (ROTC) scholarships in all undergraduate disciplines. ROTC scholarships pay all tuition, lab fees, graduation fees, $195 each semester for books, and a $1,000 grant each year of the scholarship. Applicants must enroll in military science classes, but need not be enrolled at the time of application. Application deadlines are Feb. 1 for the two-year and Mar. 18 for the three-year. For more, call 4-0071.

KING DINNER TICKETS SELLING FAST

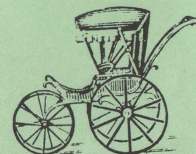

Tickets for the Jan. 18 Martin Luther King Dinner, sponsored by the IUPUI Black Student Union, are selling well. The BSU hopes University faculty and staff will reserve their tickets as soon as possible. The dinner is in the ballroom of the Madame Walker Urban Life Center where seating is limited. Tickets are $12 for students, $15 for others. Reservations are due by Dec. 18. Call 4-2279, weekdays, 8 a.m.-noon.
