ACCREDITATION TEAM VISITS THIS WEEK

A team of 11 examiners from the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools will be on campus from Tuesday through Friday this week for the first IUPUI accreditation visit.

The examiners will investigate the academic and support programs and personnel of all schools and divisions which offer degrees through the doctoral level. This is the first time that programs other than those at the undergraduate level have been examined for accreditation as operationally separate units of the "main" campuses. If favorably reviewed, institutional accreditation may be granted by about mid-March.

Dr. James R. East, associate dean of the School of Liberal Arts, has spearheaded efforts to organize information, material and arrangements for the NCA visit. He edited a 298-page manual, the IUPUI Self-Study, which is probably the most comprehensive collection of information about all units located at IUPUI.

He has arranged for the NCA team to be headquartered in the Dean's Conference Room in Cavanaugh Hall. However, the team members will look into every corner of the five campuses of IUPUI, visit classes, talk with students, staff and faculty and attempt to evaluate what we are doing as an institution and how well. Chancellor Hine will host the team at a dinner at his home one night of their visit, but team members mostly will informally go their own way.

Dr. East asks that any who are contacted by team members extend co-operation for their requests. The team members are: Dr. Paul L. Dressel, assistant provost and director of institutional research, Michigan State University, team chairman; Dr. William T. Brazelton, associate dean, Technological Institute, Northwestern University; Dr. Paul H. Cashman, vice-president for student affairs, University of Minnesota; Dr. J. B. Wilson, chairman of the Department of Bacteriology, University of Wisconsin--Madison; Dr. William Martin, associate professor of microbiology, University of Chicago.

Also Dr. John E. Chapman, associate dean, School of Medicine, Vanderbilt University; Dr. Mario Santangelo, associate secretary, Council on Dental Education, American Dental Association; Dr. Alfred S. Guthmann, chairman, Department of Chemistry, Roosevelt University, Chicago; Dr. Paige E. Mulhollan, associate dean, College of Arts and Sciences, Kansas State University; Dr. Gene M. Nordby, vice-president for administration and finance, University of Oklahoma, and Dr. Alfred W. Swinyard, associate dean, Graduate School of Business Administration, University of Michigan.

NEWS 'N' NOTES FROM HERE 'N' THERE

Inaugural -- Chancellor Maynard K. Hine gave the invocation at the prayer breakfast last Monday which began the day-long inauguration ceremonies for Governor Otis R. Bowen.

Vacancies -- Vice-Chancellor and Dean of the Faculties John C. Buhner has called attention to the fact that notices of position vacancies (primarily administrative) will be published from time to time in the Faculty Newsletter. This newsletter is published by the Office of the Vice-President and Dean for Academic Affairs and is distributed monthly to individual faculty members. Dr. Buhner says his office usually will have additional information about the announced vacancies.

Additions and Corrections Dept. -- All changes for the 1972 Campus Telephone Directory addendum should be sent in writing to Telephone Services, University Hospital, Room A22, no later than February 1.

Move -- The Medical Educational Resources Program's projection service has moved to Room B51 in the Medical Science Building. Future School of Medicine requests for audio-visual equipment should be directed to that office, Ext. 8857.

International Relations -- Foreign-born university student would like to exchange baby-sitting or light housekeeping duties, during evenings, for board and room. She will be available from May 11 to August 21. For more information, call International Affairs Office, Ext. 7294.
