Observations

Do you cast a shadow?

In his essay "Self Reliance," Ralph Waldo Emerson opines that an institution is the lengthened shadow of one man. Arguably, a university represents the collective reflection of the heterogeneous mixture of its molding influences, including the student body. The student body of IUPUI is content to play a very passive role in determining the shadow that will be cast by the university.

Widespread evidence demonstrates campus apathy. Extremely low voter turnout in student elections, total student disinterest in the IUPUI basketball games, and dismal student participation in campus-wide events like the recent Reno Night all indicate incredible indifference to these activities. Even though these events were widely advertised and university sanctioned, the fate of these and other activities is rightfully questioned especially if the events do not financially sustain themselves.

We do not doubt that many individual students would unashamedly proclaim pride in their university. We believe, also, that the brief existence of IUPUI as an academic and cultural center justifies the pride of the students and alumni. Yet the facts of nonparticipation cut through individual notions of pride, and one must evaluate the future prospects.

If the university is to remain a great institution, apathy cannot be perpetuated, and the student body is uniquely obligated to actively participate in all phases of campus life. The present student body has the opportunity to serve those who will follow at this institution by providing a positive example. If we create a luminous beacon through demonstrated interest and participation in all facets of campus undertakings, then together we can cast a shadow that will smother the notions of individual apathy.

Full discount not allowed

To the Editor:

A few weeks ago I went to the Pizza Hut Restaurant located on Southport Road just west of Madison Avenue. I took with me the "$2.00-off-a-large-$1.00-off-a-medium" advertisement (Found in your illustrious tabloid again this week) and my student ID card.

However, I was given only 70% of the value of the coupon (in my case, 70¢). Additionally, the manager was not around. Knowing that I couldn't blame the two workers (and there were only two, and at the height of the dinner hour on Sunday, no less) for following their instructions, I left in a huff, vowing never to return. Next time your ad salesperson talks to a Pizza Hut Representative, could they throw in a few cuss words for me?

John S. Goebes

To John S. Goebes:

We are currently checking into the incident at Pizza Hut. They will inform us of their policy concerning students using coupons from our paper. There seems to be some conflict in the amount of discount allowed students at this school. The question seems to be whether the Pizza Huts in Indianapolis are all participating in the discount offer.

Cheerleaders keep spirits high

by Bob Mowery

The IUPUI cheerleaders became part of Metro basketball history in supporting the team to its first winning season. Not only did the team achieve a goal but the cheerleaders came one step closer to theirs: More publicity and support.

Behind the spirit of the Metros this season were seven women and two men: Jackie McCall, Sheri Leach, Pam Hadley, Kay Steinberg, Sherri Allenson, Beth Hockemeyer, and Becky Jo Lynch. The two male helpers were Kenny Miller and David Gidden. Physical Education instructor Mary Kimball, in her sixteenth year at IUPUI, sponsored the team.

In the past, the Metro team recieved little support outside the cheerleaders. But since the final few home games, more were cheering.

"The crowds are better than before," Hockemeyer explained. "They aren't really noisy, except for a few boisterous people, but they back the team well."

"The winning season really helped," Kimball said. "It should help the following years." Nevertheless, only small crowds dotted the huge Market Square Arena to watch the Metros play prior to Pacer games.

"Tickets to Metro and Pacer games may be reasonable in price," Kimball explains, "but many students can't go to both games because of night classes or work. "Lack of communication and being a commuter college are other possible reasons for low attendance.

The cheerleading squad traveled to most of the Metro road games this season. The more memorable away games were in Angola, Franklin, Anderson and Chicago.

The loss to Marion College at the Feb. 18 homecoming proved to be the biggest game of the season for all concerned Metros because it eliminated them from NAIA tourney bid. Highlighted games for the cheerleaders were the final games of the season when attendance improved.

There were some minor difficulties within the cheerleading squad this season. Only eight girls tried out for positions on the squad. One member resigned early in the season leaving an odd number of cheerleaders that made some cheers difficult.

And for next year? All but senior Jackie McCall are expected to return to what should be a better season. Kimball adds that more male help would improve the squad. She also sees next year as a better but still struggling season.

"Things should pick up in 1982," Kimball stated, "when the Physical Education facilities move to the downtown campus."

Free throws beat ladies

by Matt Shrum
The IUPUI womens basketball team lost to St. Josephs in the first round of the District 21 play-offs. Even though the score was tied at 66 with :16 seconds to play, the Metros could not hang on to clinch a victory. St. Josephs scored the last five points of the game to win 71-66.

Coach Kathy Tucker blamed the Metro loss on poor free throw shooting. IUPUI connected on only eight out of twenty-one free throws while St. Josephs hit 13 of 14. Despite the loss, Tucker felt the lady Metros gain consistency as the season progressed.

Judy Cummings led the Metro scoring with 30 points. Tina Masengale was the only other Metro in double figures with 14 points. Chyrell Saunders had 9, Judy Pluckebaum 6, Barb Spears 4, and Kim Galyan 3 to round out the Metro scoring.

Local butcher, Tim Vrana, complains about police visits.

by Larry Goldsberry

In the last of winter's gloom, there is a brilliant light shining inside the Union Building, warming and fascinating all who are reflected in its brilliance. The origin of the illumination is provided by director Dr. J. Edgar Webb and the cast of the IUPUI University Theatre in their production of Lucille Fletcher's "Night Watch."

The play is an exciting mystery with characters straight out of a mystery lover's heart. Aided by such able cast members as John Sarno and Diane Charles who play John and Elaine Wheeler, the plot quickly becomes a tension producing, convoluted scenario that builds to such intensity that it almost forces a gasp from the audience at its surprise ending.

Other cast members include Mark Dessauer, Mary Foley, Bridget Giles, Barbara McKinney, Tim Vrana, Don DeWeese and Pat Richardson. Each player gives a polished, professional portrayal in their respective roles.

"Night Watch" will have its final performances March 13 and 14. Dinner starts at 7 p.m. in the Union Building Cafeteria. The play begins at 8 p.m. If you enjoy a mystery or just enjoy a particularly well acted and produced play, see "Night Watch."

Catholic center plans for future

by JoAnn Shanks

The Catholic Student Center, located at 1309 W. Michigan St. directly across from the Student Union, is dedicated to serving the estimated 3,000 Catholics connected with IUPUI.

Chaplain of Bellarmine House, Father Charles Noll and the Center's staff currently sponsor several activities and are now making plans for the future.

The Center offers Mass at 5:30 p.m. every Sunday. Early morning week-day Masses will also be celebrated in order to allow more students to attend. Following this early Mass, the Center will serve a free breakfast to those who wish to participate.

On Wednesdays from 4:30 p.m. to 6 p.m., the Center sponsors a "mid-week menu."

This is a supper, served by students, which costs 75¢. With a usual attendance of 15 to 20 people, this meal, according to Father Noll, is open to anyone.

Shortly after spring recess, the Center hopes to sponsor a round-table discussion entitled "War and the Christian Conscience." According to Father Noll, "the topic targets on the real issues of draft resistance." This discussion will be the third in a series of roundtable talks which began before Christmas and deal with topics chosen by students.

The Center is currently attempting to organize a Newman Club. Founded in Philadelphia during the 1890's, the Newman Club is an organization connected with state colleges and universities and dedicated to the support of Catholic students. The Club will offer both religious and counseling services.

2 metros in all-star game

by Ann Miller

IUPUI senior forward Mike Herr and sophomore guard Ron Angevine were named last week to the NAIA District 21 All-Star team. This is the first time any of the Metros have reaped such post-season honors.

Sixteen outstanding players from the district member schools were chosen as All-Stars. The sixteen participated in the All-Star game last Wednesday at Anderson College prior to the District's championship game between Tri-State and Hanover.

Angevine notched 16 points and Herr scored 17 and both Metros termed their experience a lot of fun. "It was fun playing with the people you've been playing against all year,"

Angevine commented. "At first it was a little confusing because you didn't know what your other teammates were going to do, so we got to freelance a lot." The 6'2" Herr agreed, "I even got to play center for a while."

A native of Kokomo, Herr transferred to IUPUI from Daytona Beach Junior College before his junior year. Herr led the Metros in both scoring and rebounding during the '79-'80 campaign. This season he finished second in both categories.

The only sophomore picked to the All-Star squad was Angevine. Angevine played high school ball at Evansville Harrison under present Metro coach Mel Garland. He was IUPUI's leading point producer this season averaging 16 points per game.

Work-study program goes broke—students will be unemployed May 9 $$$

by Jim Beever

Work-study students will be unemployed as of May 9, when the program ends for the academic year of 1980-81. Suspension of the summer program will effect approximately 400 students and 250 departments within IUPUI, with the larger departments such as the library and financial aids experiencing heavy reductions in staffing as a result.

Commenting on an earlier editorial by the Sagamore, financial aids director Shirley Boardman stated "We are not going to do anything about commitments for work-study this year through May 9. We will borrow $100,000 for next year's funds to finish the year."

To operate a summer program, financial aids would need $500,000 for work-study; however, it is already operating at a deficit of $129,000.

Although Boardman assured that there will be a program for the next school year, she said "There will probably never be another summer program."

Boardman attributed the loss of the summer program to two factors. In the first, because Indiana is second in the nation in unemployment, more students took advantage of the work-study offers during the school year, using up the program's money which was commonly over-awarded to compensate for those who did not take up the offer. In the second, the minimum wage has increased over the years, while funding for the program has not. Also, because of inflation and increasing enrollment of students eligible for work-study, money allocated for the program has not gone as far as in previous years. In other words, there are more students who need it and less money to go around.

The summer program is usually operated from leftover funds from the academic year, plus reallocations from other schools within the state that did not use up their funds.

According to Dr. Mannan, dean of student services, any surplus of federal funds has been designated for use in the national disaster sites of the nation, most notably the Mt. St. Helens area, but, schools and universities are allowed to keep 10% of their surplus funds for use in the next academic year.

These factors, coupled with the general economic situation, have made federal work-study money to be earned by students very scarce. Mannan commented on the loss of the summer program, saying "It's bleak. It happened because of the economic situation."

The program has enough funds to operate for the next academic year, but for the summer, Boardman suggested that students check with their present employers to find out if they can be absorbed into a regular payroll position until next fall. Also, financial aids has the job-locator program, with listings from the community and across the nation of employers who need summer help. Boardman encourages students to seek non-federally funded jobs and to get out early to find employment for the summer, before spring break when other college and university students come home searching for summer work.

In a related aspect, other forms of financial aid are in danger of drying up due to the proposed cuts in President Reagan's budget. According to Mannan, if the proposals are passed by congress, the next five years will see a gradual phase out of the National Direct Student Loan program (NDSL).

Social Security benefits for students are also threatened, as well as the Pell Grant (formerly BEOG), which will receive no increase in funds through 1985. In fact, Reagan plans to cut $150 million from the Carter budget of $2,712,000 for the Pell Grant.

These cuts will force students to rely more heavily on State Student Assistance and the Guaranteed Student Loan; however, both programs could also experience changes as a result of the current economic situation and the Reagan budget.

Let's Recognize the Best!

All around this University, students, faculty and administrators have been working hard to improve IUPUI, both as an academic experience and a social one. Through large and small projects, at campus-wide and departmental levels, IUPUI is growing, and becoming a better place to get an education, largely because of the efforts of these people. Each year, the Student Assembly sets aside one night to recognize the activities and achievements of these people at the Student Activities Honors Banquet. The Honors Day Committee is now searching for people who deserve this recognition. Nominees for the Lola L. Lohs and Outstanding Educator Awards for faculty, the William L. Garrett Award for students and the Outstanding Administrator Award. Nomination Information is available from the Student Assembly and Student Activities Offices, and at all Student Affairs Dean's Offices around the University. Nominations must be turned into the Honors Day Committee before 5:00 p.m., April 7.

Credit Union relocated

by JoAnn Shanks

The I.U. Federal Credit Union has recently moved its cashiering operations into new facilities located across from the bookstore at the IUPUI Student Union Building. Formerly housed in the University Services Building, the Credit Union's move has been in the planning stages for the past four years and has cost in excess of $100,000.

Lack of space, caused by a rapidly increasing business volume, necessitated the move. Since the Credit Union opened for business in 1974, their assets have quadrupled, increasing from $6 million to a current figure of $24.7 million. The new facilities provide ample room for expansion and are twice the size of the old location. But the move will not be completed until May, when the loan facilities are also housed in new quarters on the Mezzanine Floor of the Student Union.

The Credit Union offers full banking services and has a membership of 20,000. In addition, every major medical facility in Indianapolis, with the exception of Methodist Hospital, is with the Union. At IUPUI, only faculty members and University staff may join the Credit Union; however, once a person becomes a member, they may be member for life. Students are not eligible to join.

The Union, with nine employees working in the new facilities, is open for business on Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m.

New IUPUI drill team

by Tim Hampton

Another IUPUI first originated last semester with the formation of The Royalettes. The Royalettes is a dance/drill team that was independently formed by Cindy McWilliams.

McWilliams presented the idea to the Student Activities Board for their endorsement. The board approve the idea but The Royalettes found themselves without any type of funding. It was clear that if The Royalettes were to exist, their funding must be obtained from somewhere other than IUPUI.

After auditioning twenty-eight girls, the eight member squad was chosen. The talented young ladies are: Lisa Ahearn, Debbie Baysinger, Cathy Brown, Karen Hubble, Robin Shew, Sue Spanton, Sharon Achelpohl, and McWilliams.

Along with the many donated hours of rehearsals, each member of the Royalettes were obligated to purchase their own uniform. Each uniform cost approximately $200. The team not only performed at several Metro home games, but they also performed at several benefits.

McWilliams hopes that next season will bring several changes including a faculty sponsor. She also hopes that the team will be able to expand their personnel.
