SOUTHEAST ASIA, PODUNK U. AND ADMISSIONS

America's increased military activity in Southeast Asia is expected by some to revivify the anti-war movement; others expect the current numbness to continue. It does seem certain that some of the apathy presently attributed to our campuses will give way as the war continues, but few observers or participants expect antiwar demonstrations to equal the fury attained during the years of the Johnson administration. One sign that a certain degree of respectability has been accorded what was seen originally as an aberrant phenomenon is the fact that various reliable indicators--election primary results, for example--are now routinely interpreted as tokens of anti-establishmentarian sentiment... Private colleges, most of them are in trouble. Conservative columnist Russell Kirk says that the salvation of private colleges lies "in offering something very different from the mediocrity that passes nowadays for 'higher education' in America." If he were offered the presidency of a small private college, Kirk says, he would "convert it into a genuine school of semispecialized studies," abolishing "all boondoggle courses and curricula. . .I might make the college into Podunk College of Political Economy; or Dismal Swamp College of Human Letters; or Our Lady of the Sorrows College of Natural Science; or Weinberg Institute of Mathematics and Philosophy." . . .The National Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges reports that admissions applications continue to grow, but the rate of growth has slowed considerable. As of March 1, applications for 1972 had risen only 1.37 per cent from the previous year--the smallest growth rate in a decade. (From University Today Newsletter)

TRUSTEES NOTES

The University trustees have approved an "austere but balanced" operating budget of $135,993,776 for the eight-campus system during the 1972-73 fiscal year. The budget approved by the trustees is $11 million or 8.8 per cent more than the current fiscal year budget.

Included in the approved budget is a $32,481,348 IUPUI allocation, up 10.9 per cent from this year. The trustees approved $20,274,397 -- up 11.5 per cent -- for the six regional campuses and $83,238,031 -- up 7.3 per cent -- for the Bloomington campus.

The budget as passed includes funds for a 3.6 per cent increase in faculty and professional staff salaries and a 4.5 per cent increase in wages for clerical and service staffs.

*

The trustees approved two major appointments for the administration of IUPUI, Dr. Marvin J. Ebbert, formerly vice-president for education at Anacomp Inc., has been appointed director of educational resources and campus planning for IUPUI. Dr. Ebbert, a native of Markleville who holds a doctorate from Purdue University, has served as a member of the faculty and administration of the 38th Street Campus. Dr. Monte E. Juillerat, IUPUI professor of agricultural economics, has been appointed assistant dean of the IUPUI faculties. Dr. Juillerat also holds a doctorate from Purdue.

PROPOSAL TO ABOLISH MANDATORY STUDENT ACTIVITY FEES

Deans have endorsed a proposal by Chancellor Maynard K. Hine to abolish mandatory, system-wide student activity fees at all IUPUI units, beginning with the fall semester.

The proposal came after long study by the administration and a conclusion that mandatory collection of fees was not desirable at this stage in the development of IUPUI. Chancellor Hine said that all student activities will not be eliminated as he will attempt to find non-tax, non-student-derived funds to support or help support certain all-university student extra-curricular activities.

HONORS & ACCOLADES DEPT.

Dr. S. Miles Standish, professor and chairman of the Division of Clinical Oral Pathology and assistant dean for graduate and postgraduate education in the School of Dentistry, took office as president of the American Academy of Oral Pathology at the organization's annual meeting in Colorado Springs last month. Besides being elected president of the 628-member group, Dr. Standish was elected to serve as director, American Board of Oral Pathology. Elevated to fellowship in the academy were Dr. Dean K. White and Dr. Richard K. Wesley, second-year residents in the Department of Oral Pathology.

Dr. Alexander T. Ross, former chairman of the Department of Neurology of the School of Medicine, was honored this weekend by physicians from all over the country. Among events scheduled were presentation of medical papers for the Alex T. Ross Award Saturday at the Medical Center and a dinner that evening at the Hilton Hotel. That event included presentation of an oil portrait of Dr. Ross to the medical school and a speech by Dr. Charles Bonsett, past president of the Indiana Neurological Society.

Dr. Jerry Royer, director of the Student-Employee Health Service, has been elected to the Society for Health and Human Values, a group of 100 educators in medicine and the humanities. One activity of the society is the Institute on Human Values in Medicine, which met last week in Williamsburg, Virginia.

Timothy King, a combined-degree (M.D. and Ph.D.) student in biochemistry, has won the annual Sigma Xi contest for excellence in research. His paper was called "Stabilization of a Lipid Bilayer Membrane by Polylysine."

Mrs. Marjorie Schoberg, nutrition and dietetics, was presented with the Honored Dietitian Award at the annual meeting of the Indiana Dietetic Association last month at Stouffer's Indianapolis Inn.

Dr. Diane Brashear, assistant professor of social service, chaired and participated on a panel about "Changing Roles of Women: Implications for Social Work" for the April meeting of the Central Indiana Chapter of the National Association of Social Workers.

Dr. Henry N. Wellman, director of nuclear medicine, received a commendation medal from the U.S. Public Health Service Food and Drug Administration from Dr. Charles Edwards, commissioner, for his work in developing nuclear medicine research and development laboratories for food and drugs. The award was presented Friday on the campus of the University of Cincinnati.
