UNIVERSITY'S ROLE: REPORT FROM PITT

The University of Pittsburgh alumni organization has published results of a poll taken from 452 alumni on what the university ought to be doing and ought to stop doing. These are the returns on some of the questions which may indicate what alumni may think about the appropriate roles of a university:

	Agree	Disagree
There should be a greater emphasis on faculty research and research training	23.0	64.8
There should be more emphasis on improving undergraduate teaching	82.3	8.8
The faculty should be more active in local affairs and in the community	39.6	51.5
The students should be more active in local affairs and in the community	39.2	53.5
There should be a special admissions policy for applicants who do not meet normal admissions standards	29.4	67.3
Students should have a larger voice in university affairs	31.6	60.8
There is a need for stronger university discipline of student demonstrators	64.6	30.3
The university should play a larger role in alleviating social ills in urban areas	39.8	55.1
There should be a special admissions policy for students from disadvantaged backgrounds (i.e., Blacks and the poor)	31.0	65.7
There is a need for more courses reflecting concern with urban problems	55.8	37.8

The Pitt alumni seem to indicate a belief that the university's concern with the world should be reflected academically, with new courses and new curricula, and the university should not become involved as a social institution working actively for change and reform within its environment.

OCCUPATIONAL THERAPISTS TO MEET

The occupational therapy school will be host to a two-day meeting Friday and Saturday, according to Miss Carol Nathan, director and assistant professor of OT in the Division of Allied Health Sciences. An all-day seminar will be held jointly by the I.U. OT Clinical Affiliation Directors and the I.U. OT Advisory Committee in Ball Annex, Room 15, on Friday.

The advisory committee is composed of some 20 faculty members at the Medical Center. The affiliation directors represent some 40 occupational therapy departments in private, state, Federal, or rehabilitation clinics throughout the country which are psycho-social and physical dysfunction types of OT centers where the I.U. OT students intern during their fourth semester of I.U.'s four-year course.

The morning meeting on Friday will convey the philosophy and concepts of the educational program in occupational therapy at I.U. The afternoon will be devoted to tours and lectures in the clinical facilities.

Saturday, the seminar will be held in the lecture hall of IUPUI at the Downtown Campus auditorium building. Its theme will be "Community Involvement and the Role of Occupational Therapy in the Health Care Delivery System." Robert O. Yoho, H.S.D., assistant commissioner for administration, Indiana State Board of Health, will keynote the session.

TALBOT STREET ART FAIR--Y'ALL COME DEPT.

Nearly 170 booths will be full of colorful wares Saturday when the 16th annual Talbot Street Art Fair opens at 10 a.m. The two-day fair, sponsored by the Indiana Artist-Craftsmen, Inc., will be the largest and most varied in its history, according to Joseph Lehman, general chairman for the event. (Lehman is editor for the IUPUI News Bureau.)

The fair will continue on Sunday. Times for both days are 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. And the fair has returned to its former location between 14th and 15th streets on Talbot, between Delaware and Pennsylvania streets. (Last year the fair was held a few blocks north.)

More than 160 artists and craftsmen from throughout Indiana and points as far away as Texas and Quebec will be on hand with their work, exhibiting paintings, sculpture, prints, watercolors, pottery, drawings, jewelry, wood carvings, and other arts and crafts. Judges will award prizes for the best outdoor displays among the booths set up by the artists. The public is invited to examine original works of art that are for sale. There is no charge to the public.

Jim Gerard, WFBM-TV personality, will open the festivities Saturday morning. On the entertainment agenda are the Roses and Thorns, popular vocal trio who are IUPUI students. They are Mark Curto, Ann Burkett and Doug Benge. Miss Blanche Hutto, popular Fort Wayne artist and teacher, will come with her handmade puppets to delight the young and not-so-young. Other entertainment will include two twosomes: Miss Jo Ann Spencer and Jim Martz and a duo called The NPA Experience composed of Bryan Boroughs and Robert Biggs, both of Indiana Central College.

MORE ART

Students at the Herron School of Art will have a sale of their own art work Saturday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Sunday from noon till 6 p.m. The showings will be exhibited on the front lawn of the old museum building at the school, 1701 North Pennsylvania Street.

NEWS 'N' NOTES FROM HERE 'N' THERE

About 50 youngsters on northeast side Indianapolis have signed up to play Little League baseball this summer. There's only one catch: No coaches and no umpires. This would be a great chance for high-school or college-age kids (or their elders) with spare time on their hands to fill it with fun and erase an existing need. If interested, please call Mrs. Betsy McWilliams at the Volunteer Bureau, 634-4311.

The IUPUI Co-operative Pre-School has places available for two children between 2 1/2 and 4 years of age in a summer school which is planned for June 7 through August 6. (They also are receiving applications for the fall). The person to call is Jennifer Anderson at 639-1612.

English classes for the foreign born will be held June 14 to August 4 at Arsenal Technical High School, 1500 East Michigan Street. Registration will be June 7-10 from 5:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. in the Tech cafeteria. There is no fee for these classes.

THINGS, THEY ARE A'CHANGIN'

The Occupational Therapy Department of Riley Hospital is moving this week to its new location on the fourth floor of the new wing. During the move (Tuesday through Thursday), OT service will be cut to a minimum. The department's new "address" is A421; the phone number remains the same (Ext. 8211) and there will be a new one, Ext. 4819. Full service is expected to be resumed Monday, June 7.

There's a new phone number for the Union Building director, assistant director, and reservations. It's Ext. 4738. The old number, Ext. 7358, is the one to call for Catering Service.
