

INDIANA UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF LAW

Alumni Magazine

Spring 2004

REACHING OUT:

LAW STUDENTS OFFER ON-SITE ASSISTANCE FOR VICTIMS OF DOMESTIC VIOLENCE

Editor: Jonna MacDougall

Design: Amy Kirchner

Printing: St. Clair Press

Photography: All photos by Sam Scott Photography
unless otherwise indicated.

On The Cover:

Left to right, Courtney Foster, '04, Marcia Yoder, '04 and Grant Goshorn (2L) pose in front of the Julian Center where they have been working through the law school clinic.

Cover photos by Sam Scott and IUPUI Office of Visual Media.

DEAN'S MESSAGE

In this issue of our alumni magazine, we are introducing four new tracks in our Master of Laws Program—and we also announce the establishment of the Center for Intellectual Property Law and Innovation. These initiatives are designed to take advantage of the inherent strengths within our institution and will enhance our ability to forge linkages with other institutions throughout the world.

We are now accepting student applications for LL.M. tracks in Intellectual Property Law; Health Law, Policy and Bioethics; International and Comparative Law; and International Human Rights Law. Given our school's location, in the heart of Indiana government and commerce, and on the same campus as the IU School of Medicine, which educates the second-largest medical student body in the country, we are able to develop valuable partnerships in support of our state's life science and other initiatives.

By offering programs that will bring to Indiana significant numbers of well-qualified attorneys from around the globe, we can have a substantial and positive impact upon the state's economy, as those individuals return to their countries with first-hand knowledge of the exciting developments that are taking place in the Hoosier state. I know, personally, that this can happen. Any reading of the alumni publications of my alma mater, the University of Cambridge, verifies that idea. Over centuries, alumni from that university have made valuable commercial and cultural connections with the United Kingdom. We can create that same synergy here in Indiana.

This type of growth, however, cannot be accomplished without the support of our alumni—not just through monetary support—but through ideas and action, to keep the momentum alive for these types of projects. Whether you offer input regarding our Intellectual Property Center or offer your service and expertise in supervising students in internships, we need you to be a part of this new era at the law school.

You will read in this magazine how our students are contributing to the community through their efforts—and we hope that you, as alumni, will in turn give back to your school.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink that reads "Tony Tarr". The signature is written in a cursive, slightly stylized font.

Tony Tarr
Dean and Professor of Law

CONTENTS

3

Reaching Out

9

Pro Bono Program Honors Students

10

Law School Expands LL.M. Program

11

Center for Intellectual Property Law and Innovation

12

James P. White Lecture

16

IU Alumni Weekend Bigger and Better Than Ever

21

2003 Employment Survey

22

Faculty News

30

Class Notes

36

Indiana University Installs 17th President

37

In Memoriam

INDIANA UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF LAW

DEAN

Anthony A. Tarr

ASSOCIATE DEAN FOR ACADEMIC AFFAIRS

Susanah Mead, '76

ASSOCIATE DEAN FOR GRADUATE STUDIES

Jeffrey W. Grove

ASSOCIATE DEAN FOR TECHNOLOGY

Thomas Allington

ASSISTANT DEAN FOR ADMISSIONS

Angela M. Espada

ASSISTANT DEAN FOR EXTERNAL AFFAIRS

Jonna M. Kane MacDougall, '86

ASSISTANT DEAN FOR STUDENT AFFAIRS

Elizabeth DeCoux

DIRECTOR OF DEVELOPMENT

Carol Neary

DIRECTOR OF PROFESSIONAL

DEVELOPMENT AND PRO BONO PROGRAMS

Shannon L. Williams

SCHOOL OF LAW ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

2002-2003

PRESIDENT

Adam Arceneaux '93

VICE PRESIDENT

Robert W. Wright '90

SECRETARY

Mary F. Panzi '88

TREASURER

Claude M. Warren, Jr. '71

EXECUTIVE COUNCIL REPRESENTATIVE

The Honorable Gerald Zore '68

PAST PRESIDENT

Tammy J. Meyer '89

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

2004-2007

John Maley '88

Jerome Withered '80

Mariana Richmond '91

Richard N. Bell '75

Tandra Johnson '98

Hon. Robert H. Staton '55

Victor Ippoliti '99

Sally Zweig '86

Hon. Gary L. Miller '80

Nathan Feltman '94

Hon. Cynthia Ayers '82

James Hernandez '85

2002 – 2005

Craig Borowski '00

Carolyn Coleman '97

James Gilday '86

Amy E. Hamilton '89

Marc A. Hetzner '83

Mary F. Panszi '88

Scott D. Yonover '89

2003- 2006

Hon. Margaret G. Robb '78

Page Gifford '75

Eric A. Riegner '88

Charles A. Walton, Jr. '89

Patrick J. Schauer '79

Donald L. Simkin '74

Gilbert L. Holmes '99

Hon. G. Michael Witte '82

Linda L. Meier '87

HOW TO REACH US ONLINE

Anthony Tarr

Susanah Mead

Thomas Allington

Jeffrey Grove

Angela Espada

Jonna MacDougall

Elizabeth DeCoux

Carol Neary

Shannon Williams

On the Web

antarr@iupui.edu

smead@iupui.edu

tallingt@iupui.edu

jgrove@iupui.edu

amespada@iupui.edu

jkane1@iupui.edu

edecoux@iupui.edu

cneary@iupui.edu

shlewill@iupui.edu

www.indylaw.indiana.edu

REACHING OUT

LAW STUDENTS OFFER ON-SITE ASSISTANCE FOR VICTIMS OF DOMESTIC VIOLENCE

by Alicia Dean Carlson

When most people need legal help, they usually go to see an attorney.

But when a victim of domestic abuse needs legal help, it may not be that simple. Her life may be in danger, because her abuser may be stalking her. She may not have transportation. She may not have money. She may be so traumatized from abuse that she doesn't recognize that help is available to her.

Recognizing the unique problems of women caught in the web of domestic abuse, The Julian Center, an Indianapolis-based agency offering a 24-hour shelter and counseling services for abused women and their children, and the law school's Civil Practice Clinic are working together to make legal services more accessible to women who use the shelter.

Beginning with the spring 2004 semester, students participating in the Civil Practice Clinic have the option of spending part of their clinical experience at The Julian Center, conducting intake interviews twice a week to listen to women's legal concerns, review documents, and evaluate whether the women can be helped with the clinic's resources.

"It's been a very positive experience," says Courtney Foster, a third-year law student who spends Thursday afternoons at The Julian Center. "At times it is frustrating, and at times it is heartbreaking, because I see women with a world of problems. On a personal level, it's a humbling experience that makes me feel gratitude for what I have. On a professional level, it makes me more committed to the idea of someday practicing public interest law."

Third-year law student, Melanie Rasmussen, spends five hours a week—Monday evenings and Thursday mornings—doing intake interviews at The Julian Center.

"Meeting with women at the shelter has reminded me of how important this type of work is. Victims and survivors of domestic violence deal with so many layers of issues and have to overcome a number of hurdles in their lives; legal support may not always seem as accessible and the women may not know their legal rights and their ability to stand up and confront those issues," says Rasmussen. "By meeting with the women they have been able to recognize many of their legal needs and learn that there are services available to them in meeting those needs."

Rasmussen hopes to practice family law and continue working with victims of domestic violence when she graduates.

"I am so grateful to have had access to the law school's legal clinic and be paired up with them in my experience at the Julian Center," she says. "It has been an incredible benefit for the women and has allowed me to be a liaison and work with the Clinic and the Julian Center in meeting goals of offering legal assistance to survivors of domestic violence. This experience has reminded me that this is where I need to be; this is the community I am supposed to serve."

Melanie Rasmussen, '04, confers with Professor Mary Therese Wolf, about the work being done at the Julian Center.

TAKING CLINIC SERVICES TO CLIENTS

The students see clients with a wide variety of problems, from family law issues to challenging administrative decisions of state and federal agencies, according to Mary Therese Wolf, clinical professor of law and director of Clinical Programs at the law school.

The types of cases are not so different from what students normally encounter at the law school's Civil Clinic. At the law school clinic, students represent clients in a variety of civil matters, including dissolution of marriage, custody, support, paternity, housing controversies, consumer problems and even domestic violence cases, referred to the clinic by the Indiana Legal Services, Inc.

And the goal for students is the same, too, Wolf says. "All clinic experiences provide students with an opportunity to use their skills in a controlled environment, to help them see what they can do with what they are learning in the classroom," she says.

"It tells you what you don't know," says second-year law student Grant Goshorn, who is working at The Julian Center as part of his Civil Clinic course. "It's different from a tax class where you know the questions you'll have to answer will be about taxes. Here, you don't know what you're going to be asked about. It could be anything.

"It also puts a human face on the law. You see the person beyond the case," Goshorn says. On a recent sunny afternoon, Wolf, Foster and Goshorn, met with clients in the second-floor Homework Room, a generously-sized room that offers clients and students a little privacy in the busy shelter.

Women—several with children in tow—waited for their turn to speak to the clinic students. After their appointments, as the students sat talking, a shelter staff member came into the room to ask them to respond to a phone call inquiry about child custody enforcement over state lines. A woman wants to know if her daughter could leave Kentucky with her children, although the children's father had legal custody.

Those kinds of questions come with the territory, according to both Foster and Goshorn, who have heard a lot of complicated family sagas in their month or so of work at The Julian Center.

The students received training from The Julian Center before starting their stints at the shelter. The training helped them better understand the dynamics of domestic violence and the elements of psychological control exerted by abusers on their victims.

Goshorn has helped Julian Center clients understand legal lingo on tax returns, custody agreements, disability application denials and food stamp forms.

"It's confusing to me sometimes, let alone for someone who hasn't been to law school," Goshorn says of the paperwork some clients face. "You begin to be excited just about the little successes. A question gets answered, a document gets filed—these are all little successes for people who are in such a hard place. Any small step is a success."

"YOU BEGIN TO BE EXCITED JUST ABOUT THE LITTLE SUCCESSES. A QUESTION GETS ANSWERED, A DOCUMENT GETS FILED—THESE ARE ALL LITTLE SUCCESSES FOR PEOPLE WHO ARE IN SUCH A HARD PLACE. ANY SMALL STEP IS A SUCCESS."

- 2ND YEAR STUDENT,
GRANT GOSHORN

STATE-OF-THE ART SHELTER

From The Julian Center's perspective, the presence of the law school clinic students makes a huge difference for the shelter's clientele, according to Wendy Noe, community relations coordinator for The Julian Center.

© Rob Day, 1988

DOMESTIC VIOLENCE FACTS

During 2003, 7 people died in Marion County as a result of domestic violence.

Each year in Marion County, approximately 21,000 women are physically abused in domestic relationships.

In 2003, the Indianapolis Police Department investigated 3,387 domestic violence cases and made 2,378 arrests related to domestic violence.

So far in 2004, IPD detectives have investigated 1,136 cases of domestic violence, up 49 from last year at this time.

In 2003, approximately 1,100 domestic violence victims found refuge at the Julian Center Shelter.

During 2003, the Julian Center provided 5,629 counseling sessions for victims of domestic violence.

Marcia Yoder, '04, Courtney Foster, '04, second-year student Grant Goshorn and Professor Mary Therese Wolf stand near the "Donation Recognition Quilt" at the Julian Center. The "Quilt" honors individuals and entities that have supported the Julian Center. The law school is recognized for its support of the center.

HAVING ON-SITE LEGAL ASSISTANCE IS ANOTHER WAY THE JULIAN CENTER CAN MEET ITS GOAL OF OFFERING ALL KINDS OF SUPPORT SERVICES TO SURVIVORS OF DOMESTIC VIOLENCE.

*-WENDY NOE
COMMUNITY RELATIONS COORDINATOR FOR THE JULIAN CENTER*

"A lot of the women who utilize our services may actually be at the poverty level in terms of their resources, but legally, because they're married to their abusers, they don't qualify for legal services [provided by Indiana Legal Services, Inc.] because their household income is too high," Noe says.

"Or they don't have transportation to get to an attorney's office, because they've left their abuser and their car. Or they need to stay in the shelter to stay safe, so having an attorney here protects them, makes it safe for them to see someone to get the advice they need. Having an attorney onsite makes it less likely that a woman will skip an appointment because it's too hard—for whatever reason—to keep her appointment."

Having on-site legal assistance is another way The Julian Center can meet its goal of offering all kinds of support services to survivors of domestic violence, Noe adds. Approximately 130 women and children live at the shelter at any one time, and the shelter provides a safe place to stay for approximately 1,200 women each year.

The 30,000-square-foot, state-of-the-art shelter was completed in 2001, allowing the agency to move from its formerly secret location on the city's near Westside to a very public location on north Meridian Street near Downtown. The Indianapolis Police Department located its newly created

Domestic Violence Branch at The Julian Center, and the Marion County Prosecutor assigned an on-site deputy prosecutor to work with domestic violence victims.

In addition to providing a safe physical haven, shelter residents of all ages can take advantage of the counseling, educational, and advocacy services available during their stay, including tutors and a kindergarten-through-grade-eight school for the children of domestic violence. Women can receive counseling to help them plan for their future, cope with the trauma of leaving their homes, obtain medical and dental assistance, and pursue employment or job-training opportunities. Transitional housing also is available for women who have left their abusers.

The Julian Center's on-site, comprehensive services have won it recognition by the federal government as an example of "best practices" in the field of domestic abuse, Noe says.

Often, legal problems seem insurmountable to women whose abusers control the family finances and can threaten them with taking custody of their children.

"Offering legal services is something we desperately needed to do," she says. "Women need these services to help build back their sense of control, to validate who they are for the safety and security of themselves and their families, so they can protect themselves and their kids."

WOMEN'S CAUCUS AUCTION GARNERS NEARLY $15,000 FOR PROTECTIVE ORDER PRO BONO PROJECT

The annual Women's Caucus auction took place in the Conour Atrium on Thursday, April 8. The auction raised approximately $15,000. Proceeds benefit the Protective Order Pro Bono Project. Photo courtesy of Women's Caucus.

Organizers of the Women's Caucus Auction are shown here with Kerri Blomquist, '91, director of the Protective Order Pro Bono Project. From left, Page Prentice, Elizabeth Mallov, Blomquist, Anna Onaitis, and Jordyn Katzman McAfee. Photo courtesy of Women's Caucus.

LAW STUDENT RECEIVES NATIONAL AWARD FOR PUBLIC SERVICE

Emily Benfer is shown with former United States Attorney General, Janet Reno, who was in attendance at the Equal Justice Works Annual Awards Dinner in October, where Benfer won the Equal Justice Works/Martindale-Hubbell Exemplary Public Service Award. Photo courtesy of Emily Benfer.

Second-year law student Emily Benfer was the recipient of the 2003 Equal Justice Works/Martindale-Hubbell Exemplary Public Service Award. Equal Justice Works, formerly the National Association for Public Interest Law (NAPIL), leads the country in organizing, training and supporting public service-minded law students and in creating summer and postgraduate public interest jobs.

Benfer was honored for her work at the Washington Legal Clinic for the Homeless. During a summer 2003 externship, Benfer learned that in the District of Columbia (where the number of homeless people rose 11.1% between 2001 and 2003) many homeless families now prefer living on the streets, in condemned buildings and even in crack houses, to staying in one of the many overcrowded, squalid and disease-ridden emergency shelters. Horrified by this reality, Benfer launched a three-part project that addressed the dilemma in a market now ranked as #3 nationwide in "least affordable" housing. She developed and conducted a workshop that guided homeless families through the difficult process of locating and obtaining housing; systematically surveyed the experiences of families in DC shelters to augment the anecdotal information collected at the workshops; and compiled the survey findings and analysis in "The Family Struggle to Survive Shelter," a report now being used to create legislative change.

The audience of more than 900 lawyers, law students, law school administrators and other friends of equal justice was visibly moved when Benfer described how a five-year-old client at the Washington Legal Clinic, Tysha, asked her "Are you really going to help us?" Benfer said, "Tysha's question echoed as I listened to the needs of impoverished individuals. In shelters, I witnessed teenagers playing with guns and families living in squalid, overcrowded conditions; on the street, I watched people who are homeless be ignored and abused. My experience at the Washington Legal Clinic for the Homeless took me to the most destitute, neglected, and dangerous places in Washington, D.C. There, in that setting of despair, I learned my most valuable contribution to society is to be of service as an advocate."

Benfer was presented with the award at the Equal Justice Works Annual Awards Dinner held October 23rd in Washington, DC. Dean Tony Tarr; Professor María Pabón López; Shannon Williams, Director of Professional Development and Pro Bono Programs; and LaWanda Ward '02, Assistant Director of Pro Bono Programs, as well as members of Benfer's family were on hand to see her accept the award.

THE THIRD ANNUAL NORMAN AMAKER PUBLIC INTEREST LAW RETREAT

The Third Annual Norman Amaker Public Interest Law Retreat was held on March 26 - 28, 2004, at Bradford Woods. This year the theme of the retreat was "Access to Justice." Prof. Florence Wagman Roisman gave the keynote speech on judicial nominations and the importance of this issue to those interested in working for social justice. Prof. Robert Lancaster led a plenary session on "Equality for Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual, and Transgendered People" and Fran Quigley, '87, Executive Director of the Indiana Civil Liberties Union, spoke about the current Indiana same-sex marriage case pending appeal. Other law school faculty participating in the retreat included Dean Emeritus and Professor, Norman Lefstein, who spoke on access to effective assistance of counsel for indigent defendants, and Prof. María Pabón López who led a discussion on the immigration, employment, poverty and access to justice issues faced by Mexican immigrants.

The Public Interest Law Retreat brings together law students, law professors and practitioners for an informative and challenging (yet relaxing) weekend in the country where they share their knowledge and interests on various topics. The retreat focuses on creative public interest initiatives and energetic practitioners working in Mid-America and throughout the United States. The goal is to forge a coalition of students, professors, and practitioners that will support social justice-oriented law students interested in pursuing careers in the public interest field. The Retreat is named in honor of the late Professor Norman Amaker of Loyola University of Chicago School of Law. Professor Amaker lived his life working for social justice and embodied the ideals of public service in his mentoring of law students and faculty.

Prof. Robert Lancaster (right), one of the organizers of the retreat, is pictured with Fran Quigley, '87, Executive Director of the Indiana Civil Liberties Union.

CHANGING OF THE GUARD

Professor Susanah M. Mead, '76, is stepping down from her position as Associate Dean for Academic Affairs, which she has held for the past seven years. Mead has been at the law school since 1978 and teaches first-year and advanced torts courses, as well as products liability. She says she is looking forward to resuming full-time teaching duties, although she will also spend the Spring 2005 semester teaching in Australia at the University of Adelaide School of Law.

Professor Andrew R. Klein, Paul E. Beam Professor of Law, will be taking over for Mead on July 1, 2004. Klein, who also teaches torts, as well as environmental and toxic torts and hazardous waste regulation, joined the law school in 2000. He is co-author of a casebook, Torts: Cases, Problems and Exercises (Anderson Publishing Co. 2003). Klein is also a dedicated classroom teacher who received the prestigious Black Cane Award from the student body in March.

PRO BONO PROGRAM HONORS STUDENT PARTICIPANTS

The Pro Bono Reception honored students who contributed 50 or more hours of pro bono service while in law school. Included among the 55 students who reached this goal were those shown at left. First row: Ruth Rivera, LaWanda Ward, Assistant Director, Pro Bono & Public Interest; Shannon Williams, Director, Office of Professional Development; Lawren Mills, Jaime Cole and Anthony Green. Second row: Lisa Koop, Ryan Snyder, Tae Sture, Adedamola Durojaiye. Third row: Christina Ori, Marie Christmon, Polly Dobbs, Glenda Murphree, Mary Ann Fleetwood. Fourth row: Nate Hacker, Michael Wilhelm, Arlene Kline, Adriana Salcedo, Julia Passwater. Fifth row: Katie Pinter, Courtney Foster, Neesha Patel, Angela Iza and Christy Lay.

Justice Ian Callinan of the High Court of Australia gave the keynote address. Justice Callinan was the International Jurist in Residence for Spring 2004.

Lisa Koop received the 2004 John Paul Berlon Award for her Pro Bono contributions during her law school career. Additionally, Lisa received the WRTV-Channel 6 Leadership Award for her work on the Street Law Project. She was one of two law students who taught local high school students about basic legal principles. Lisa was also the recipient of the Faculty Prize at Commencement. Lisa is shown here with John Paul Berlon, '00.

LAW SCHOOL ANNOUNCES NEW TRACKS IN MASTER OF LAWS PROGRAM

Four new specialty areas of study are now available in the law school's Master of Laws (LL.M.) Program. Now, in addition to the LL.M. in American Law for Foreign Lawyers, the school is offering tracks in International and Comparative Law; Health Law, Policy and Bioethics; Intellectual Property Law and International Human Rights Law.

These new tracks are designed for attorneys who want to gain both theoretical and practical knowledge in one of these four fields of study. IU Law-Indianapolis is the only law school in Indiana to offer an LL.M. in these areas of specialty.

"Our new LL.M. concentrations build upon well-established areas of expertise within our law faculty and will offer important opportunities for lawyers to further enhance their professional credentials and shape their legal careers," said Professor Jeffrey W. Grove, Associate Dean for Graduate Studies.

Because the programs are just recently approved, applications for the four new tracks for the fall 2004 semester will be accepted until July 15—an extension of the customary deadline which is July 1. Each track consists of 24 credit hours and may be taken on a full-time or part-time basis. All coursework must be completed within three calendar years. Applicants must hold a J.D. from a U.S. law school, a law degree from a university outside the U.S. or must be an international applicant licensed to practice law in a jurisdiction outside of the United States. The four new specialty areas are described below.

LL.M. TRACK IN INTERNATIONAL AND COMPARATIVE LAW

This LL.M. specialty provides opportunities for domestic and foreign lawyers to obtain a solid foundation for work on an international level and in different national legal systems. The program is a natural outgrowth of the law school's Center for International and Comparative Law. Professor Frank Emmert, who serves as Executive Director of the Center is the faculty administrator of this LL.M. track.

LL.M. TRACK IN HEALTH LAW, POLICY AND BIOETHICS

The William S. and Christine S. Hall Center for Law and Health consistently ranks among the top ten health law programs nationwide by U.S. News & World Report. The LL.M. in Health Law, Policy and Bioethics benefits from the expertise of the Center's co-directors, Professor Eleanor DeArman Kinney and Professor David Orentlicher, both of whom are nationally renowned. This concentration will cover the institutions and structures of healthcare and how they affect the ethical issues that arise in medical and legal practices.

LL.M. TRACK IN INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY LAW

This LL.M. specialty is a component of the law school's new Center for Intellectual Property Law and Innovation. The Interim Director of the Center, Professor Kenneth Crews, is also on the faculty at The Munich Intellectual Property Law Center in Germany, and will serve as the faculty administrator of the LL.M. Intellectual Property Law concentration. This track is open to attorneys who are beginning their study of intellectual property law as well as those who have prior study and work experience in the area and are seeking to expand their understanding of the law of copyright, patents, trademarks and related issues. The program has strong connections to the growth of biotechnology and life science industries in the Indianapolis region and beyond. No similar program exists in Indiana—and very few programs of this type are available in the United States.

LL.M. TRACK IN INTERNATIONAL HUMAN RIGHTS LAW

Because of the breadth of international human rights law and the scope of its impact and reach, the LL.M. track in International Human Rights Law prepares attorneys for practice with a wide range of international and domestic entities. This track is offered in conjunction with the law school's well-established Program in International Human Rights Law, directed by Professor George Edwards, who is known throughout the world for his contributions to international human rights law and serves as the faculty administrator for this LL.M. concentration.

---

To learn more about these programs, contact the Director of LL.M. Programs at 317-278-4783, or visit the school's website: www.indylaw.indiana.edu

LAW SCHOOL ESTABLISHES CENTER FOR INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY LAW AND INNOVATION

The law school is poised to become a significant force in the revitalization of the Indiana economy through the establishment of the Center for Intellectual Property Law and Innovation. The Center, which will emphasize the life sciences and the nurturing of intellectual property in a business context, was approved in early May by the IU Board of Trustees.

Goals of the Center include serving as a resource for government, business, law firms and the newly-developed BioCrossroads initiative; taking a leadership role in graduate education designed to enhance opportunities for intellectual property professionals, and producing J.D. graduates with strong knowledge in the area of intellectual property law. Additionally, the Center will assist across a broad spectrum of applied research initiatives, collaborating with partners in the IU system as well as with other U.S. and international intellectual property institutes and centers.

"Two distinctive qualities of the Center will be an emphasis on the issues of the life sciences and related industries, as well as a practical and transactional application of IP law in the business context," said Professor Kenneth Crews, interim director of the Center. Crews, the Samuel R. Rosen II Professor of Law, brings to his duties a background in business and IP law, a decade as director of the university's Copyright Management Center, and research and teaching experience in domestic and international IP law.

While the Center will focus much of its efforts on issues surrounding the life sciences, it will encompass other aspects of intellectual property law as well. The future work of the center will undoubtedly expand, according to law school dean, Tony Tarr, because of the dynamic nature of intellectual property issues and the diverse needs of the community.

One of the first facets of the Center to be set in motion will be the addition of a new track in the school's LL.M. Program that will focus on intellectual property law. This track will enroll its first students in August of this year and promises to attract faculty of national stature. To support both the LL.M. and the J.D. programs, the law school is greatly expanding the IP curriculum, and through the Center many of these developments will be made available to the law and business communities. The Center's Board of Advisors includes leaders in medicine, science, law and education. Additional Center programs will be underway later in the year.

NOT GETTING THE LAW SCHOOL'S ELECTRONIC NEWSLETTER?

It's the best way to stay informed about the latest law school news. To sign up, visit

<http://indylaw.indiana.edu/alum.signup.htm>

To ensure that our newsletter does not get caught in your spam filter, add iulaw@iupui.edu to your address book or list of "good" senders.

CLE

PUBLIC POLICY MEDIATION: A CIVIL MEDIATION TRAINING AND CONTINUING LEGAL EDUCATION COURSE FOR ATTORNEYS

Co-sponsored by the Indiana Municipal Lawyers Association

AUGUST 16-20, 2004

40-hour civil mediation training and 24 CLE hours.
For more information, call 317-274-1914

ARCHER DELIVERS JAMES P. WHITE LECTURE ON LEGAL EDUCATION

ABA President Dennis W. Archer and James P. White prior to the White Lecture.

Dennis W. Archer, the current president of the American Bar Association and the first African-American to hold that post, gave the third annual James P. White Lecture at Inlow Hall on October 27th. Archer addressed a diverse audience of students, judges, faculty and distinguished alumni in the Wynne Courtroom when he delivered his speech entitled “Legal Education and the Profession.” The former Justice of the Michigan Supreme Court and former two-term Mayor of the city of Detroit touched on the topics of both racial equality in the legal profession and the importance of pro bono work.

While praising the recent U.S. Supreme Court decision upholding the University of Michigan’s “flexible affirmative action admissions policy” as a step in the right direction, he said there is still an imbalance in the legal profession. Statistically, people of color make up almost 30% of the population in general, but only around 10% of the legal profession. However, he concurred with Justice Sandra Day O’Connor when she stated in the majority opinion for the Michigan case that “The court expects that twenty-five years from now the use of racial preferences will no longer be necessary...”

Archer emphasized that “We need more judicial law clerks [of color] for judges and justices.” He singled out Indiana Supreme Court Justice Frank Sullivan, who was in the audience that night, for his service in heading the ABA Minority Judicial Clerkship Program which seeks to help correct the under-representation of minorities in the judicial body.

The ABA president also underlined the importance of lawyers giving back to the community by doing much needed pro bono work. Lawyers are “ministers of justice...who represent those who cannot represent themselves,” he said. A large part of helping students to pursue pro bono work after they graduate involves easing their debt burden by making more scholarships available. He touted the ABA loan forgiveness program for its efforts.

Archer concluded by emphasizing the importance of lawyers in maintaining a democratic society. “We need more lawyers to promote the rule of law,” he said, “and America will be so much greater.”

The James P. White Lecture honors Professor Emeritus James P. White, who has served on the faculty of the law school since 1966 as the ABA Consultant on Legal Education from 1974 to 2000. Upon the occasion of his retirement from the ABA, members of the ABA’s Section on Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar and other friends contributed to the establishment of an annual lecture at the law school in Professor White’s honor.

Dr. John Brademas discussed past achievements and future endeavors.

BRADEMAS PROUD OF HOOSIER ROOTS

Dr. John Brademas, President Emeritus of New York University (NYU), delivered his address “Hoosier in the Big Apple” in the Wynne Courtroom before a crowd of students, faculty, and old friends such as former Congressman Andrew Jacobs, Jr., ’58, and Indiana Supreme Court Justice Frank Sullivan, Jr.

He spoke proudly of his Hoosier roots. Born and raised in South Bend, Brademas spent 22 years in Congress as U.S. Representative from Indiana’s Third District (1959-1981). He served for seven years as Chairman on both President Clinton’s Committee on the Arts and the Humanities, as well as the National Endowment for Democracy. In 1981, he moved to New York City to become the head of what is now, according to Brademas, “the largest private university in the world.” Brademas shared stories of his years in Congress and discussed his experiences presiding over the transformation of NYU from “a regional commuter institution” into “a national and international, residential research university.”

Currently, the 77-year-old Brademas is president of the King Juan Carlos I of Spain Center of New York University Foundation. In recent years he has turned his attention to establishing at NYU a Center for the Study of Congress, which would bring together current and former members of Congress, as well as representatives from the executive and judicial branches of government, along with “journalists, students, parliamentarians from other countries, and scholars to discuss the processes, the ways, by which our national legislature influences and shapes policy as well as to discuss significant issues of public policy.”

Eva Clarke, Education Officer at the Holocaust Educational Trust, based in London, gave her first U.S. lecture at the law school on April 13. Here she shows audience members the yellow star that Jews were forced to wear under Nazi occupation.

EVA CLARKE’S HOLOCAUST STORY IS ONE OF SURVIVAL

Eva Clarke was born on April 29th, 1945 in Mauthausen concentration camp in Austria—three days before it was liberated by American soldiers. Ms. Clarke, an Education Officer at the Holocaust Educational Trust based in London, England, spoke at the law school on April 13, telling the story of her family’s experience under the Nazi occupation of Europe. She shared accounts of what it was like to live under the laws that forbade Jews to own pets or to go to the cinema and that mandated the wearing of the yellow star. The eventual imprisonment and death of most of her family members is a very personal and moving story which she tells to school children all over Great Britain, as part of the mission of the Holocaust Educational Trust. She says her goals in communicating her family’s experiences are “to preserve the memory of all who died, not least my own family, to counteract holocaust denial and mainly to counteract racism.” This lecture, which was her first in the United States, was co-sponsored by The International School of Indiana.

The Hon. Larry J. McKinney, Chief Judge, U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Indiana and Hon. Randall T. Shepard, Chief Justice of the Indiana Supreme Court, attended Justice Sullivan's lecture.

Justice Frank Sullivan's lecture was based on his LL.M. thesis, "A Separation of Powers Perspective on Pinochet."

INTERNATIONAL LAW LECTURE ADDRESSES PINOCHET AND GUANTANAMO BAY

The Honorable Frank Sullivan, Jr. spoke at the law school on April 15 at the invitation of the Indiana International and Comparative Law Review (II&CLR). His lecture, "Pinochet and Guantanamo Bay: The Role of Courts in Resolving Disputes with Foreign Policy Implications," addressed whether courts should decide cases with foreign policy implications, and how this impacts the roles and responsibilities of the executive and judicial branches of government.

Justice Sullivan holds an LL.M. from the University of Virginia School of Law and his talk, which took place in the Wynne Courtroom at the law school, was based on his LL.M. thesis, "A Separation of Powers Perspective on Pinochet." The article is being published by the II&CLR in an upcoming issue.

Justice Sullivan was appointed to the Indiana Supreme Court in 1992 by then-Governor Evan Bayh. Prior to his appointment, he was Indiana State Budget Director (1989-92), practiced law in Indianapolis (1982-89), and worked on the staff of U.S. Representative John Brademas (1974-79).

Established in 1991, the II&CLR is devoted to the study and analysis of current international legal issues and problems and is published semi-annually by the law school. Its faculty board of advisers is chaired by Professor Jeffrey W. Grove, Associate Dean for Graduate Studies.

Justice Sullivan's lecture, in a nearly-packed Wynne Courtroom, was followed by an in-depth discussion with audience members.

LAW SCHOOL HAPPENINGS

Judge Cynthia Ayers spoke about Diversity in the Legal Profession at the invitation of the student Committee on Diversity Initiatives.

Rubin "Hurricane" Carter spoke at the law school during the spring semester. A boxer wrongly imprisoned for murder, Carter was the subject of a 1999 film, The Hurricane, starring Denzel Washington.

Professor Margaret Ross of the University of Aberdeen, spoke on alternative dispute resolution in Scotland.

Mark Katz, former President Clinton's humor writer and Professor Rob Katz' brother, spoke to students about his new book, Clinton and Me at an event sponsored by the Democratic Law Society.

Students at the annual Activity Fair find out more about the Program in International Human Rights Law.

All photos on this page by IUPUI Visual Media.

ALUMNI WEEKEND BIGGER AND BETTER THAN EVER!

Spring Alumni Weekend was an action-packed occasion this year, featuring receptions, a picnic and free CLE. The festivities began on Friday, April 16 with a reception for health law alumni in the Conour Atrium at the law school. On Saturday, April 17, clinic alumni participated in their first-ever picnic in the school's courtyard and the class of 1979 held a reunion luncheon.

The afternoon featured two free "Classes Without Quizzes" CLE presentations in the Wynne Courtroom, one presented by Professor Jennifer Drobac on the topic, "Sex and the Workplace: 'Consenting' Adolescents and a Conflict of Laws," and the other by Professor Lawrence A. Jegen III, on "The Current Status of the Tax Laws and of the Economy." Approximately 170 alumni attended the CLE lectures, both of which presented timely and important information.

The CLE program was followed by an all-class reception in the atrium, where nearly 300 alumni honored Distinguished Alumni Award recipient Dennis Bland, '92, and Honorary Alumnus Award recipient, Chancellor Emeritus and Trustee Professor Gerald L. Bepko. At the conclusion of the reception, many classes that were celebrating reunions met for their reunion dinners at various locations in Indianapolis.

For the second consecutive year, Professor Jennifer Drobac spoke to alumni as part of the "Classes Without Quizzes" Program.

"What do you mean, you didn't bring your Code to the CLE?"

Professor Lawrence A. Jegen III gave a significant lecture on "The Current Status of the Tax Laws and the Economy."

APRIL 16 & 17, 2004

Dennis Bland, '92 is presented with the Distinguished Alumni Service Award by Alumni Association President, Adam Arceneaux, '93. Bland, president of the Center for Leadership Development, delivered an inspiring speech following the presentation.

DENNIS E. BLAND, '92 PRESIDENT, CENTER FOR LEADERSHIP DEVELOPMENT

Dennis E. Bland, '92 is the 2004 recipient of the Distinguished Alumni Service Award. Bland has served as president of the nonprofit Center for Leadership Development (CLD) since March 2000. Prior to his appointment as president of the organization devoted to empowering African-American youth to excel, Bland had served as a volunteer and program facilitator with CLD for 13 years. His volunteer work with the organization earned him the law school's Community Service Award in 1992. Earlier this spring, he received the inaugural Henry J. Richardson, Jr., '28 Award from the Black Law Students' Association (BLSA).

Bland says of his work, "I believe that youth, properly nurtured and developed, can be empowered to overcome life's challenges and thrive in education and career." He credits his faith as well as his legal education with preparing him to help others in his work. "As I look back over my life and think back over my different experiences at CLD, I can see how I was being groomed all along," says Bland. "All along, I have been helped so that I could in turn help somebody else." Of his time at the law school he says, "My legal education has helped me immensely. I am convinced that there really is something substantive and meaningful to being able to 'think like a lawyer.' The ability to formulate and analyze issues, conduct research, and thoroughly think through issues from varying sides has been extremely helpful to me. I often joke that we have to be one of the smallest non-profits in existence that has in-house counsel. My law degree continues to pay handsome returns." During his speech to alumni he summed up his attitude toward his mission in life by citing a traditional gospel song, a song often quoted by the late Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

*"If I can help somebody as I pass along
If I can cheer somebody with a word or a song
If I can show somebody he's traveling wrong
Then my living will not be in vain..."*

Adam Arceneaux presents an Honorary Alumnus Award to Chancellor Emeritus Gerald L. Bepko. Dean Emeritus Norman Lefstein (right) introduced Chancellor Bepko.

Bland serves on the boards of the Indiana Black Expo Economic Development Corporation and the Indianapolis Arts Council. His many accomplishments include receiving a Mayor's Community Volunteerism Award in 1998; being honored in 2003 by the Indianapolis Star as part of the "New Generation of Black Leadership;" and being chosen as one of the "Top Forty Under 40" by the Indianapolis Business Journal in February, 2004.

GERALD L. BEPKO IUPUI CHANCELLOR EMERITUS, IU TRUSTEE PROFESSOR AND PROFESSOR OF LAW

The Alumni Association honored Gerald L. Bepko on April 17th by making him an "Honorary Alumnus" of the law school where he was dean from 1981-1986 and where he has taught since 1972. Bepko is also Chancellor Emeritus of IUPUI (having served as Chancellor from 1986 to 2002, during which time he was also IU Vice President for Long-Range Planning). Before returning to the law school to teach commercial law full-time, he served as interim President of Indiana University for seven months.

Bepko joked that he was "flattered to be made an honorary alumnus," but that it did not seem unreasonable to be made a member of the alumni body, "since I have spent 32 years studying law in the school while the other alumni had spent only three or four years." On a serious note, Bepko says the award is very meaningful to him not only because he has been a part of the law school for so many years, but also because he has worked to support it even while working in the university administration. He commented that the law school is important to both the university as a whole and to the State of Indiana. "Its location makes it a symbolic and actual gateway to the university and it enrolls many of our best who are from or have earned undergraduate degrees in Indiana," says Bepko. "It is the most prominent example of why we say, 'The future is here.'"

APRIL 16 & 17, 2004

Ed Bayliff, '54 and Jim Burns, '75 chat at the Health Law Alumni Reception on Friday, April 16 at the law school.

Chancellor Emeritus Gerald L. Bepko and his wife, Jean Bepko, chat with Dennis Bland at the all-class alumni reception.

APRIL 16 & 17, 2004

2003 EMPLOYMENT SURVEY

(Students graduated in December 2002, May and August 2003)

Employed	217	88.6%
Unemployed, Seeking Work	17	6.9%
Studying for Bar Full Time	7	2.9%
Enrolled in Degree Program	4	1.6%
Total Class of 2003	245	100%

EMPLOYMENT CATEGORIES

Private Practice	111	51.2%
Law Firms	106	48.9%
Started Own Practice	5	2.3%
Business	42	19.4%
In-House Legal Management	11	5.1%
Other Business	25	11.5%
Government	35	16.1%
Judicial Clerkships	6	2.7%
Public Interest	9	4.2%
Military	3	1.3%
Academic	6	2.8%
Unknown Type	5	2.3%

EMPLOYMENT LOCATIONS

Employed Out of State	32	14.7%
Employed in Indiana (outside Indianapolis)	49	22.6%
Employed in Indianapolis	134	61.8%
Unknown Military Location	2	0.9%

AVERAGE STARTING SALARY

Of the 217 employed graduates, 112 reported salary (52%).
The median starting salary for these graduates is $55,000.

Law Firms

2-10 lawyers	$45,000
11-25 lawyers	$55,000
26-50 lawyers	$78,000
51-100 lawyers	$80,000
101-250 lawyers	$80,000
251-500 lawyers	$85,000
501 and up lawyers	$100,000

Business

In-House Legal Management	$52,500
Other Business	$65,000

Government

Federal	$40,044
State	$37,900
Local	$35,000

Judicial Clerks

Public Interest

Indianapolis

Indiana (outside Indianapolis)

Out of State

$70,000

$55,000

$38,000

$51,050

$37,500

$59,000

$51,000

$70,000

EMPLOYMENT STATUS

LAW FIRM SIZE

JOB OFFER SOURCES

The above figures are reported starting salaries or estimates by new practitioners for their first year income. These figures do not include bonuses, fringe benefits, raises, fees for special cases, revenue from bringing in new clients, etc.

BLACK LAW STUDENT ASSOCIATION HONORS HENRY J. RICHARDSON, JR., '28

BLSA President Emile Smith is shown with Rodney C. Richardson and Henry J. Richardson III.

The Hon. Julia Carson, U.S. Representative from Indiana's 7th Congressional District and former Congressman Andrew Jacobs, Jr., '58, attended the Black Law Student Association's (BLSA) event to honor Henry J. Richardson, Jr. (1902-1983), a 1928 graduate of the Indiana Law School, the first predecessor school to the IU School of Law-Indianapolis.

During the ceremony on February 27, 2004, a portrait of Richardson was displayed, a copy of which will be given to the law school. Richardson was a lawyer and leader in the civil rights movement in Indiana. He served in many prominent positions including State Representative and Marion County Judge. He actively fought for school and housing desegregation, and was a moving force in organizing the Urban League of Indianapolis. BLSA also honored Richardson by naming a special award after him, and BLSA President Emile Smith presented it for the first time to Dennis Bland, Class of 1992.

Richardson's two sons, Henry J. Richardson III, a professor of International Human Rights Law at Temple University, and Rodney C. Richardson, a partner in the Indianapolis firm of Richardson & Richardson, spoke in tribute to their late father and his many achievements. A crowd of current students, faculty, alumni and community leaders, including Joe Slash, President of the Indianapolis Urban League, were on hand to pay tribute to Richardson and Bland.

The Black Law Student Association welcomed Marion Superior Court Judge David Shaheed, '84 for its first lecture celebrating Black History Month in February. Judge Shaheed spoke about Thurgood Marshall's commitment to ending the injustices of the death penalty. Photo by IUPUI Visual Media.

In March, BLSA sponsored "A Panel of African-American Women Legal Professionals," featuring Kimberly Brown, '91, Washington Township Small Claims Court Judge; Linda Brown, '91, Marion Superior Court Judge; Heather Bolejack, '99, Ice Miller Litigation Group; Angela M. McDonald, '95, Ingersoll-Rand, Security & Safety Sector. Front row: Kimberly Brown, '91; Linda Brown, '91; Heather Bolejack, '99; Angela M. McDonald, '95. Second row: 3L Kamelah Shaheed; 3L Amber Ying; 2L Cedric P'hue; 3L Emile Smith, BLSA President; 3L Jackie Ayers. Photo by IUPUI Visual Media.

SPEAKERS SHARE THEIR EXPERTISE

Indiana Congressman Mike Pence, '86, (right) spoke to students about his recent trip to Iraq at an event co-sponsored by the National Security Law Society and the Republican Law Coalition.

The Hon. Scott David Bates, Policy Advisor for the U.S. House of Representatives Select Committee on Homeland Security visited with students on November 14 as a guest of Professor George Edwards and the Program in International Human Rights Law. Shown from left: Oka Bau (LL.M., '04), Aver Oliver (JD, '04), Justin Glon (2L), Joseph Park (2L), Ryan Gardner (JD, '04), Gouda Ali (LL.M., '04), Professor George Edwards, Scott Bates, Varsha Dhumale (3L), Wen Chen (LL.M., '04), Gordon Wiru (LL.M., '04), Andrea R. Schmidt (prospective student), Adedamola Durojaiye (LL.M., '04), Natalia Camacho (LL.M., '04).

State Representative Brian Bosma, '84, (below) spoke to students at the law school during the spring semester.

All photos on this page by IUPUI Visual Media.

Gary Cohen, Executive V.P. and General Counsel of the Finish Line, spoke to the members of the Business Law Association in the spring.

FACULTY NEWS

Thomas Allington serves as the reporter for a committee of the Bankruptcy and Creditors' Rights Section of the Indiana State Bar Association. In that capacity, he has assisted the committee in drafting proposed amendments to Indiana's statutes dealing with debtor's property exemptions in bankruptcy and in collection actions outside of bankruptcy. He also made presentations concerning the proposed amendments and related exemption issues at the Indiana State Bar Association meeting in October, 2003, ICLEF's "Annual Bankruptcy Institute" in December, 2003, ICLEF's seminar on "Basic Bankruptcy: Chapters 7 and 13" in March of 2004, and at a meeting of the Indiana Association of Corporate Renewal in April of 2004.

■ Judith Anspach served on an ABA Site Evaluation Team visiting John Marshall School of Law in Atlanta, March 28-31.

■ On September 23, Frank Bowman testified before the U.S. Sentencing Commission in Washington, D.C. on sentencing departures and the implementation of the PROTECT Act of 2003. He was recently appointed Reporter to the American Bar Association's "Justice Kennedy Commission" on sentencing in America. On April 15, he moderated a symposium on the federal organization sentencing guidelines sponsored by the Wake Forest Law Review at Wake Forest University.

■ William C. Bradford has published "The Duty to Defend Them: A Natural Legal Justification for the Bush Doctrine of Preventive War," 79 NOTRE DAME L. REV. 119 (2004). (Also available at http://papers.ssrn.com/sol3/papers.cfm?abstract\_id=483762) and Rice v. Cayetano, in Oxford Companion to the Supreme Court of the United States (2nd Ed. 2004)

---

Professor Judith Anspach, Director of the Ruth Lilly Law Library, is the proud owner of "Gavin" (registered name: Kirkwood Brazen Overture), who won the Best of Breed (Welsh Terrier) category at the prestigious Westminster Kennel Club dog show in February, 2004. Gavin, who was not yet two years old when he won, is the great-great-great-grandson of her first Welsh Terrier. Anspach co-owns several show dogs with a friend in Virginia. Pictured with Gavin: Show judge Peggy Beisel-McIlwaine and handler R.C. Carusi. Photo courtesy of Judith Anspach.

Professor Bradford was a panelist for a discussion entitled "Indian Religion and Self-Determination: Law, Land, and Native American Spirituality," as part of the Spirit and Place Festival in Indianapolis in November. He also offered the law school's first course on federal Indian law during the spring semester. In December, he presented "While Dangers Gather: Harmonizing the Lex Aeterna, The Presidential Duty to Defend, and the Doctrine of Preventive War," at a symposium at Notre Dame Law School entitled "The Changing Laws of War: Do We Need a New Legal Regime After 9/11?"

Professor Bradford's media interviews include FOX National News, The Big Story with John Gibson, (on the interrogation of Saddam Hussein) on December 16, 2003 and WISH-TV 8, Indianapolis, an interview in response to the capture of Saddam Hussein, which aired December 15, 2003.

Additionally, Professor Bradford has done consulting work on behalf of the defense on the case of U.S. v. Samir Al-Hussayen, a criminal case brought under the material support of terrorists statute, 18 U.S.C. 2339. The defendant, a Saudi student, was accused of using his web sites to provide "material support" to terrorists.

Professor Bradford has been named a Dean's Fellow and a Grimes Fellow for the 2004-05 academic year.

■ Kenneth Chestek presented a portion of his paper "Reality Programming Meets LRW: The Moot Case Approach to Teaching in the First Year," at the Central States Legal Writing Conference in September of 2003 at Washington University, St. Louis, Missouri. He was a member of a panel discussing "The Theatrical Classroom: Tips on Using Drama Students in LRW Simulations."

■
Dan Cole has published "Taking Coase Seriously: Neil Komesar on Law's Limits," 28 LAW & SOCIAL INQUIRY 261 (2004). During the past six months, he has given presentations at Lewis & Clark Law School, Florida State University College of Law, and the Bren School of Environmental Science and Management at the University of California at Santa Barbara. Additionally, Professor Cole continues to serve on the Board of Electors to select the next Professor of Land Economy at the University of Cambridge

■
Recent publications by Robin Kundis Craig include the following: "Beyond SWANCC: The New Federalism and the Clean Water Act," 25:1 ENVIRONMENTAL LAW 113-149 (Winter 2003); "Taking Steps Toward Marine Wilderness Protection? Fishing and Coral Reef Marine Reserves in Florida and Hawaii," 34 MCGEORGE L. REV. 155-266 (Winter 2003) (lead article); "The Bush Administration and the Environment: An Overview and Introduction," 25:1 WESTERN NEW ENGLAND L. REV. 1 (2003) (lead article); "Taking the Long View of Ocean Ecosystems: Historical Science, Marine Restoration, and the Oceans Act of 2000," 29:4 ELQ: ECOLOGY LAW QUARTERLY 649 (Fall 2002); "The Bush Administration's Use and Abuse of Rulemaking, Part I: The Rise of OIRA," 28:4 Administrative Law & Regulatory News 8 (Summer 2003); "The Bush Administration's Use and Abuse of Rulemaking, Part II: Manipulating the Federal Register," 29:1 Administrative & Regulatory Law News 5 (Fall 2003) and "No Comment on Deep Ripping: Wetlands and the Clean Water Act After Borden Ranch," 34:1 ENVIRONMENTAL LAW REPORTER 10028 (Jan. 2004).

She also published "No Comment on Deep Ripping: Wetlands and the Clean Water Act After Borden Ranch," 25:6 National Wetlands Newsletter 2 (Winter 2003-2004); "Marine Mammal Protection Act," in Marine Resources Annual Report, in Section on Environment, Energy, and Resources, American Bar Association, 2004 Year in Review (March 2004) and "Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act," in Marine Resources Annual Report, in Section on Environment, Energy, and Resources, American Bar Association, 2004 Year in Review (March 2004).

Professor Craig was a presenter for "Recent Developments in Environmental Law: Implications for Compliance," as part of Doing It Right: Corporate Responsibility, Ethics and the Environment, sponsored by the law school and Eli Lilly & Company in Indianapolis in October. She also spoke at the Species At Risk 2004: Pathways to Recovery Conference, in Victoria, B.C., Canada. in March. Her topic was "Valuing Marine Wilderness: Representative Marine Protected Areas and the Perceived Value of Biodiversity Restoration."

In August of 2003, Professor Craig became the Vice Chair for Programs of the Marine Resources Committee of the American Bar Association and in October she attended the 2003 Annual Fall Meeting of the Section on Environment, Energy, and Resources of the American Bar Association as the Marine Resource Committee's Vice Chair for Programs, October 2003. Additionally, Professor Craig has been named a Dean's Fellow for the 2004-05 academic year.

■
Kenneth Crews, the Samuel R. Rosen II Professor of Law, has delivered presentations on copyright issues at several recent conferences and workshops in the U.S. and in Europe. He was one of the organizers and presenters at a multinational conference in the Netherlands, and he spoke at a publishers' conference in London, England. His domestic conference destinations have included New York, Chicago, and the University of Missouri. Crews is the author of "Copyright and Distance Education: Making Sense of the TEACH Act," an article published in the November-December 2003 issue of Change magazine, the leading journal of the American Association for Higher Education, and his article was selected for recognition by the Chronicle of Higher Education. Prof. Crews has led efforts to expand the law school's curriculum and other opportunities to study intellectual property law in both the J.D. and LL.M. programs.

■
In September 2003, James Dimitri presented his article, "Brutal Choices in Curricular Design — Reusing Writing Assignments," at the Central States Legal Writing Conference at Washington University School of Law in St. Louis, Missouri. The article was published in the Fall 2003 edition of Perspectives — Teaching Legal Research & Writing, at 12 PERSP. 27 (2003). In November, he served on the faculty for a continuing legal education workshop called Developing Appellate Skills. The workshop was an interactive learning session designed to give new lawyers experience in appellate brief writing and appellate oral advocacy. He drafted a record of proceedings that was used by the workshop participants to write portions of an appellate brief. He was also part of a panel of appellate practitioners and judges that discussed oral argument techniques with the workshop participants.

■
In October, Jennifer A. Drobac was a presenter for a conference

Doing It Right: Corporate Responsibility, Ethics, and the Environment, co-sponsored by the law school and Eli Lilly & Company. Her topic was “Coming Attractions (?) In Professional Responsibility.” Additionally, Professor Drobac continues to serve as a trustee on The Henry J. Kaiser Family Foundation Board of Trustees, Menlo Park, California.

Indiana University presented George Edwards with the George W. Pinnell Award for Outstanding Service (February, 2004). The Award was presented at the IU Founders Day ceremony held on the IU campus at Bloomington. Professor Edwards has been elected Co-chair of the American Society of International Law’s International Organizations Interest Group and also was elected to the executive committee of the American Association of Law Schools’ International Human Rights Law Section. He is also Vice-chair of the International Law Section of the National Bar Association.

Professor Edwards continues to serve as a member of the Indianapolis Fire Merit Board, having been re-appointed in 2004 by Mayor Bart Peterson, to a term ending December 31, 2006. Recently, he was elected secretary of that board.

Professor Edwards was a delegate (NGO), to the United Nations International Criminal Court Assembly Of States Parties Meeting in 2003 in New York. Professor Edwards has published “The International Criminal Court: Justice v. Human Rights Protections in an Age of Terrorism,” in International Organizations Bulletin, Spring, 2003.

Professor Edwards presented a lecture titled “International Law, International Human Rights Law and The International Criminal Court: United States and the Republic of Korea—Compliance Challenges of the 21st Century,” at Seoul National University, in Seoul Korea, in the Human Rights, NGO and Global Civil Society Class taught by Professor Sang-Jin Han in December. In September, Professor Edwards served as a panel chair at the law school for a discussion on “Promotion of Civil Society and Democratic Institutions in Latin America and in the United States,” for the U.S. Department of State Latin American Visitors Forum, sponsored by the State Department Office of International Visitors, Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs. Visitors to the law school were lawyers, government officials, human rights workers, academics, and others from Argentina, Bolivia, Chile, Colombia, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, Mexico, Nicaragua, and Venezuela. In October, he was a guest lecturer in Professor Sherry Ricchiardi-Folwell’s International Human Rights and Media

PROFESSOR GEORGE E. EDWARDS RECEIVES PINNELL AWARD

IU President Adam W. Herbert presented Professor George E. Edwards with the 2004 George W. Pinnell Award for Outstanding Service in recognition of his many contributions to the university, the state of Indiana and the international community. Edwards is Professor of Law and Director of the law school's Program in International Human Rights Law. The award ceremony took place during the Founders Day celebration on February 28 in Bloomington, Indiana.

Professor Edwards drew on his own education when he created the IU School of Law’s Program in International Human Rights Law. At Harvard Law School, he was a professor’s assistant, editor of the Harvard Law Review, a member of the Black Law Students Association and the Harvard Human Rights Program, and associate editor of the International Law Journal. But the summer months brought him his most valued experience.

Between semesters, Edwards held law internships in Switzerland, Ethiopia, Sudan and Thailand. While working for a law firm in Bangkok, he explored refugee camps just beyond the city limits. What Edwards saw there made a lasting impression. “It was more than an eye-opening experience,” recalled Edwards. “That was my first real look at the world of human rights and the devastating effects of human rights violations of that sort.”

Professor George E. Edwards received the George W. Pinnell Award for Outstanding Service at IU Founders Day ceremonies in February. He is shown with IUPUI Chancellor Charles Bantz and IU Board of Trustees President Frederick F. Eichhorn, Jr. Photo courtesy of Indiana University.

Edwards’ efforts have earned him honors and international acclaim, including the IU Trustees Teaching Award in 2002, a 2001 Fulbright Award to teach in Peru and a 2001 Visiting Fellowship in the United Kingdom at the University of Cambridge Faculty of Law. An accredited representative to the United Nations, Edwards is a regular international delegate and speaker on human rights issues, having recently delivered lectures in such diverse places as Kuwait, Peru, Lithuania, Switzerland, France and the Republic of Korea.

class for the IU School of Journalism. His topic was, "Journalism, the Media and Freedom of Expression: The Relevance of International Human Rights Law."

In November, Professor Edwards made a presentation at the John Marshall School of Law in the International Criminal Law Seminar conducted by Professor Mark Wojcik on the topic, "The International Criminal Court: The Relevance of United States Opposition." Also in November, he made a presentation in conjunction with the 14th consecutive study trip on United Nations Human Rights Treaty Procedures in Geneva for members of Birkbeck College, University of London, at the UN European headquarters. His topic was "Contemporary Issues in International Human Rights Law: States Obligations Under the Torture Convention and the Economic Covenant; The United States and the International Criminal Court; and, United Nations Advocacy From Within the Academy."

In February, Professor Edwards spoke at an International Human Rights Law Seminar conducted by Professor Dorothea Beane at Stetson University College of Law on the topic, "The International Criminal Court: Prospects for the Quest to Eradicate Impunity." He also participated in a faculty colloquium at Stetson, speaking on "International Human Rights Law and the Convergence of Private and Public International Law: Pedagogy, Principles and Practice."

On behalf of the Center for International and Comparative Law, Executive Director Frank Emmert developed the concept for a new track in the school's Master of Laws Program, the Master of Laws in International and Comparative Law. The program, which can be completed in one year of full-time or up to three years of part-time study, will enroll its first students in the fall of 2004. The new program is open both to foreign and American lawyers who seek to broaden their legal education and obtain a solid foundation for work in the international law area. In December 2003, Professor Emmert visited Germany, Switzerland, France, and the Netherlands, to promote this and the other study opportunities at the post-graduate level at the law school.

In the spring of 2004, Prof. Emmert held a fellowship and gave a series of lectures at the Centre for International, Comparative and European Law at Sheffield University School of Law in the United Kingdom. He also wrote the case for the annual European Union Law Moot Court Competition and served as a judge in the oral rounds in Madrid, Spain. This summer, Prof. Emmert will be the Program Director and Professor in Residence for the law school's European Law Summer Program in Strasbourg, France. Subsequently, he will travel to Croatia to prepare another summer study abroad program to be implemented in collaboration with the law school at the University of Zagreb in the Mediterranean resort town of Dubrovnik, Croatia, as of 2005.

In November 2003, Jeffrey W. Grove, delivered a presentation, "Adversary Adjudication" at the Academic Conference held in connection with the dedication of the Frank Wang Law Building, Soochow University School of Law, Suzhou, China. He also presented a lecture, "The Third Branch of American Government," to students and faculty of Renmin University School of Law, Beijing, China. While in Beijing, Professor Grove discussed the law school's China initiatives with the Secretary-General of the Beijing Lawyers Association and the Editor-in-Chief of China Legal Daily, the official publication of the All China Lawyers Association. In Taiwan (ROC), Professor Grove recruited LL.M. students in Taipei, visited with the Dean and senior students at the National Taiwan University College of Law, and introduced the school's Foreign Lawyers LL.M. Program to officials at the Taipei Bar Association. He also attended a reception and dinner hosted by the Indiana Society of Taiwan. An article by Professor Grove, "Worthy Lawyers: Integrity, Reason and Faith," originally published by China University of Political Science & Law Press, was reprinted in the inaugural issue of a new legal periodical in China, LAWYERS DIGEST.

In October Henry C. Karlson was a panel member for the National Association of Social Workers - Indiana Chapter, Town Hall Meeting. He presented on the rights of children and the need to reform our juvenile justice system. In October he also presented as a panel member at a program entitled "The Morality of The Death Penalty," jointly sponsored by the law school and the School of Liberal Arts. In December, he presented a CLE lecture and paper to the Law Club of Indianapolis. The lecture and materials reviewed important developments in Indiana law during the year 2003.

Robert A. Katz made a presentation on whether an injury victim's compensation award should be reduced by the charitable gifts she has received for the same harm, at the 2003 Annual Meeting of the Midwestern Law and Economics Association, which was held at the Indiana University School of Law - Indianapolis, October 10-11, 2003. In November, he participated on a panel on "Respecting Donors' Intentions and Privacy," at the 2003 Conference of the Association of Voluntary Action Scholars, the Association for Research on Nonprofit Organizations and Voluntary Action (ARNOVA), in Denver, Colorado. Throughout the fall, he participated in an interdisciplinary, university-wide study group on health-related philanthropy, which meets twice a month to discuss issues related to organ and tissue donation.

On February 27, he moderated a discussion with Mark Katz, a humorist and speechwriter (and also his brother) about Mark's experience as a humor writer for President Clinton, which he also recounts in his newly-published book Clinton and Me. The event drew over 100 people, and featured fresh bagels flown in overnight from New York City. In March, he was the keynote speaker at a meeting of the Board of Governors of the Center on Philanthropy at Indiana University, where he discussed the aftermath of September 11 giving and its legal implications. Additionally, at the beginning of the spring semester, he helped a group of students found a chapter of the American Constitution Society for Law and Policy, a liberal alternative and rejoinder to the Federalist Society, and now serves as its faculty advisor.

■ Eleanor D. Kinney's recent publications include "The New Medicare Coverage Decision-Making and Appeal Procedures: Can Process Meet the Challenge of New Medical Technology?" 60 WASHINGTON & LEE L. REV. 1461 (2003) and "Would A Single Payer System Provide Universal Health Coverage In The United States?" 3(2) Law and Bioethics Report 4 (Winter 2003- 2003). In September, Professor Kinney spoke on "The Patient Safety Movement: Medical Liability Reform that Finally Makes Sense," to the Health & Life Sciences Society at the IU Kelley School of Business in Indianapolis. In November, she served as a speaker on "Tort Reform, The Medical Liability Insurance Crisis and its Resolution," a part of the Lecture Series on Medical Malpractice, sponsored by the law school and the Indiana University School of Medicine.

Professor Kinney continues to serve as Chair of the Subcommittee on Safety for the Indiana Legislative Commission on Health Care, and as Vice Chair of the American Bar Association Section on Administrative Law and Regulatory Practice.

Professor Kinney has also played a significant role in designing three new programs at the law school: The Latin American Law Program with the National University of La Plata in La Plata Argentina. Law students will be attending the first session of this program this summer, which is funded in part by a grant from the Fulbright Program in the U.S. Department of State. Professor Kinney has also been involved in establishing a new LL.M. Program in Health Law, Policy and Bioethics, and finally, she is collaborating with Professor John Hill in the creation of a joint degree in Law and Bioethics with the Department of Philosophy in the IUPUI School of Liberal Arts.

■ Robert Lancaster coordinated the third annual Norman Amaker Midwest Public Interest Law Retreat at Bradford Woods in February. Additionally, he has been named a Dean's Fellow for the 2004-05 academic year.

NOVELLA NEDEFF RETURNS AS PROFESSOR

When Novella L. Nedeff graduated from the law school in 1983, the Clinic program was just beginning. "It is heartening to return to my alma mater and find that our clinical programs have evolved from a crowded area in the basement of the old law school building, to a large and modern space prominently located on the main floor of Inlow Hall," said Nedeff. "Our clinic programs offer students practical learning experiences and provide important legal services to disadvantaged members our community." Nedeff joined the Clinic faculty in 2002 as a visitor and became a Clinical Associate Professor of Law in 2003. This former Associate Editor of the Indiana Law Review has a wealth of experience in the area of lawyering skills and the supervision of attorneys working for low income clients. She worked for the Marion County Public Defender Agency and most recently was assigned to major felony cases. She also served as a supervisor of public defenders and as director of the agency's training program. Earlier in her career, she served on the staff of the Indiana Public Defender, during which time she litigated post-conviction cases at trial and on appeal. She serves on the board of directors of the Marion County Public Defender Agency and frequently presents CLE programs for that agency. Nedeff now coaches the law school's teams for the National Trial Competition. Her areas of teaching include the Criminal Defense Clinic and Lawyering Practice. According to Professor Mary Wolf, Director of Clinical Programs at the law school, "Novella is a wonderful addition to the faculty. She brings a great deal of experience to her position and is a joy to work with."

In Seattle in November 2003, Norman Lefstein presented testimony at an American Bar Association hearing on the status of defense services for the poor in the U.S. Also, in November he participated in the New York State Indigent Defense Summit in White Plains, New York, and addressed organizational structures for providing effective representation.

■
María Pabón López presented papers at the following conferences in October: "Immigration Law Basics," in "Representing Non-U.S. Citizens in Criminal and Family Court." October 30, 2003, for the Indiana Continuing Legal Education Forum in Indianapolis; "State Driver's License Regulations as a Form of Immigration Control," Midwest People of Color Conference, Cleveland-Marshall School of Law, Cleveland, Ohio, and "La situación precaria del trabajador indocumentado en los Estados Unidos luego de Hoffman Plastic Compounds, la perspectiva desde el derecho internacional público," presented at the Conference on Latin American Economic Integration, Florianópolis, Brazil. In February, she spoke about immigrants' rights at the third annual Norman Amaker Midwest Public Interest Law Retreat at Bradford Woods.

In March, Professor López made a presentation on "S.B. 2010, Senator Daschle's Immigration Reform Bill" at a panel of "Recent Immigration Reform Proposals" during International Human Rights Fair at our law school. She also gave a talk as part of the Great Women in the Law speaker series on "Judge Sonia Sotomayor: A Life of Hard Work." Also in March, she received an award from the law school's Hispanic Law Society for Outstanding Service.

Gerard N. Magliocca has published "From Ashes to Fire: Trademark and Copyright in Transition," 82 UNC L. REV. 101 (2004). He also received the Outstanding New Faculty Member Award, presented in March at the Barrister's Ball, and has been named a Dean's Fellow for the 2004-05 academic year.

■
Mary Mitchell organized the Great Women in Law speaker series during March in keeping with Women's History Month. Members of the faculty and administration spoke about women who were leaders in the legal profession. Professor Mitchell spoke on Pauli Murray, a writer, attorney, and the first black woman in the U.S. to become an Episcopalian priest.

■
James P. Nehf is a visiting professor at the University of Georgia this year, and will extend his visit through the 2004-05 academic year. He recently published two reports in the online newsletter of the International Consumer Law Association: Privacy of Medical Information: Federal Court Quashes Justice Department Subpoena for Hospital Abortion Records, International Association of Consumer Law/Association Internationale de Droit de la Consommation, Newsletter (New Series) 1:2 March 2004, available at <http://www.iacl.ca/newsletter.htm#Privacy>, and Tail Wagging the Dog: State Privacy Initiatives Push Washington on FCRA Reforms, International Association of Consumer Law/Association Internationale de Droit de la Consommation, Newsletter (New Series) 1:1 October 2003, available at <http://www.iacl.ca/newsletter.htm#tailwag>. In March, Professor Nehf delivered a lecture at the Mercer

LAW SCHOOL RECEIVES GRANT TO DEVELOP PROGRAM IN CHINA

Herbert D. Bowman, adjunct professor and fellow at the law school's Center for International and Comparative Law, has recently embarked on an 18-month assignment to create a Model Advocacy Courthouse Program at Renmin University in the Peoples Republic of China. In November 2003, the law school received a $330,000 grant from the U.S. Department of State to train Chinese legal professionals in U.S. courtroom skills.

Professor Bowman will partner with professors at Renmin University in a model program that could potentially accelerate reform within the Chinese legal system. As a visiting professor, Bowman will teach Chinese attorneys, arbitrators, judges, and mediators the oral advocacy skills necessary to examine witnesses and to challenge courtroom evidence. Designed to address the lack of meaningful legal representation for those facing prosecution in China, the program will help Chinese attorneys exercise prerogatives granted under a 1990's criminal code. Traditionally, in Chinese courtrooms, only judges have exercised such rights as questioning a prosecution's evidence.

Professor Bowman, who teaches Advanced Criminal Procedure at the law school, possesses a unique background of law practice, law teaching, and international legal development. During 2001-2002, Professor Bowman lived in Ulaanbaatar, Mongolia and served as the Legal Training Advisor for the USAID-sponsored Mongolian Judicial Reform Project. He also orchestrated the creation of a multi-donor education program that trained Mongolian judges and lawyers on recent changes made to the Civil, Criminal, and Administrative Codes, as well as on the subjects of Ethics and Advocacy skills.

Before becoming involved in legal development and teaching, Professor Bowman worked as a prosecutor in San Diego, California. He is a graduate of the Defense Language Institute in Monterey, California and speaks conversational Mandarin Chinese.

University School of Law entitled “Words Matter: Lessons in Contract Drafting from Landmark Cases.”

■ David Orentlicher spoke on “Physicians’ Conflicts of Interest: Preserving Patient Trust,” at a Memorial Hospital—South Bend Seminar in Chicago on October 3. Later that week, he discussed “Informed Consent and the Law,” at the Fellows Seminar of the NIH’s Department of Clinical Bioethics, in Bethesda, Maryland. On October 16, he presented “To Kill or Not to Kill: Is that the Question?: Physician-Assisted Suicide and the Law,” to the Philosophy Department, at DePauw University in Greencastle, and on February 28, he participated on a panel about “Creating a Government Ethics Commission” at the 13th Annual Meeting of the Association of Practical and Professional Ethics in Cincinnati. He also delivered continuing legal education lectures in Indianapolis on “Legislative Update: Health Care Issues” (October 29) and “Doctors and Lawyers: Similarities and Differences in Ethical Rules” (December 9).

On October 16, he appeared as a guest expert on NPR’s Talk of the Nation for a discussion of “Living Wills & Advance Directives.”

Additionally, Professor Orentlicher, who is a member of the Indiana General Assembly, reports that three of his proposals to prevent child abuse were signed into law by Governor Kernan on March 18. The legislation establishes a statewide child fatality review committee to investigate deaths of children from abuse (or other non-natural causes) and identify measures to prevent future deaths. It also permits public access to child protective service records in the event of a child’s death from abuse so independent reviews can help determine what went wrong and what can be done better in the future. Third, once a court decides that an adult has sexually abused one child in a household, other children in the household will be assumed at risk so they can be protected immediately.

■ In March, Professor Florence Wagman Roisman was the keynote speaker for the Norman Amaker Midwest Public Interest Law Retreat at Bradford Woods. Her topic was “The Judge-Making Power: The Struggle for ‘Integrity and Moderation.’” Later that month, she made a presentation about the Honorable Constance Baker Motley as part of the Great Women in Law speaker series at the law school. In April, at the first annual Public Service Benefit Dinner at Northwestern University School of Law, she introduced William P. Wilen, an honoree at the dinner.

In the Spring 2004 semester, Professor Roisman introduced a new course at the law school: Law and Social Change: Aspects of the Civil Rights Movement, 1948-1968. The class studied the background to and highlights of the civil rights movement of those two decades, among them the NAACP’s petition to the United Nations; Brown v. Board of Education and other significant Supreme Court decisions; the Montgomery Bus Boycott, Selma-to-Montgomery March, Poor People’s Campaign, and other forms of direct action. The course focused upon the relationships among direct action of various kinds, litigation, legislation, and executive action, considering the roles of law and lawyers in making social change.

A new book about landmark property law cases includes an essay about a case in which Professor Roisman was co-counsel. The case is Javins v. First National Realty Corporation, a 1970 decision in which the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit established an implied warranty of habitability for residential leases and influenced what has been called a “revolution” in landlord-tenant law. The essay about the case is by Professor Richard H. Chused of Georgetown University Law Center. It appears in the book Property Stories, edited by Gerald Korngold and Andrew P. Morriss and published by Foundation Press.

■ Joel M. Schumm, presented a paper, “Using PowerPoint to Organize your Class and Focus Student Attention” at the New England Legal Writing Consortium at Harvard University School of Law, Cambridge, Massachusetts on December 12. He also presented “Rethinking How We Grade: Names, Numbers, or Not?” at the Rocky Mountain Legal Writing Conference at the University of Nevada Las Vegas, March 5-6 of this year.

Professor Schumm participated in two continuing legal education programs last fall. He was on the faculty for the Indiana Continuing Legal Education Forum (ICLEF) Developing Appellate Skills seminar and designed the criminal appeal problem for the seminar that took place in November in Indianapolis, and in December, he was a Faculty/Small-Group Facilitator for the National Legal Aid & Defender Association (NLADA) Appellate Defender Training in New Orleans, Louisiana.

Effective December 1, 2003, he was appointed Co-Chair of the Written Publications Committee of the Indiana State Bar Association. He continues to write the Criminal Justice Notes column bimonthly for Res Gestae, the magazine of the Indiana State Bar Association, and his article, “[Not Just] for New Teachers: Making Technology Work for You and Your Students,” appears in The Second Draft: Bulletin of the Legal Writing Institute, Dec. 2003, at 20.

Anthony A. Tarr was appointed Vice-President of the Indianapolis Bar Association in January and joined the Board of Directors of the Indianapolis Legal Aid Society in April.

■

James P. White (Professor Emeritus) was appointed a member of the International Advisory Committee for an executive LL.M. in United States Law and Practice offered in London by a consortium of American Law Schools. In October he attended California Western Law School Council of Visitors-San Diego, California. In November, Professor White attended the CEELI Advisory Committee meeting and in December he was in attendance at the Butler University Board of Trustees meeting and the Trustee meeting of the John Marshall Law School in Atlanta. In January, he attended the AALS annual meeting, serving as chair of the ABA Law School Graduate Committee. In February, he attended the ABA Midyear meeting in San Antonio and the AALS/China Law Deans Conference Planning Committee in Beijing, Peoples Republic of China. Also in February, he participated in the CEELI Advisory Board meeting in Washington, D.C. and the Butler University Board of Trustees meeting. In March, he gave the dinner address celebrating the first decade of the Appalachian Law School in Grundy, Virginia and also attended the Trustees meeting of John Marshall Law School in Atlanta.

■

On February 13th at the University of Louisville Brandeis School of Law, Lawrence P. Wilkins attended the organizational meeting of CALI (CODEC), a consortium of American law schools for distance education. The consortium is being formed for the purpose of creating a marketplace and central resource pool for distance education, conducted with the cooperation of the Center for Computer Assisted Legal Instruction (CALI).

■

On December 18, Lloyd T. (Tom) Wilson, Jr. participated in a conference on Predatory Lending in the Hispanic Community. This conference brought together leaders from the Hispanic community in Indianapolis, including the Mexican Consul to Indiana, consumer protection organizations, and legal service organizations, including Indiana Legal Services and Neighborhood Christian Legal Clinic. The purpose of the conference was to identify predatory lending practices targeted at Hispanics and to develop networked responses. Professor Wilson was elected to the executive committee of the new AALS section on real estate law at the annual meeting in Atlanta in January. This section focuses on issues relating to land use and regulation, including smart growth responses to urban sprawl, revitalization of brownfields, mixed-use developments, affordable housing, the effects of gentrification, tax increment financing, securitization of mortgages, predatory lending and mass transit-based development. During the period of March 22 to April 2, he taught in the MBA program at the International Graduate Business School in Zagreb, Croatia.

Photo courtesy of Tom Wilson.

WILSON STRENGTHENS TIES WITH EASTERN EUROPE

Professor Tom Wilson was invited to be the featured guest lecturer in the Law, Ethics & Business module at the International Graduate Business School in Zagreb, Croatia, on March 29 and 30. The IGBS was established in January of 2004 as the result of a partnership between the Kelley School of Business, where Wilson serves as an adjunct professor, and the Institute of Economics in Zagreb.

Professor Wilson's presentation was entitled, Enforcing Promises and Resolving Disputes: Implications of the Legal Environment for Business Managers. Part of this presentation addressed the impact of tort liability on business decision making. This topic allowed Professor Wilson to draw upon new consumer protection statutes that had taken effect in Croatia within the past month.

While in Zagreb, Professor Wilson also met with the dean and several professors at the University of Zagreb School of Law. The product of those meetings was a Cooperation Agreement between the University of Zagreb School of Law and the Indiana University School of Law – Indianapolis calling for a summer law study program to be held near Dubrovnik, Croatia, beginning in the summer of 2005. Future cooperation initiatives may include exchanges of students and faculty and joint research and publication projects. Professor Wilson (second from left) is pictured with Branko Smerdel, Dean of the University of Zagreb School of Law, Vice Dean Marko Petrak, and Professor Sinisa Petrovic. Professor Wilson is the Director of the law school's Central & Eastern European Law Program.

CLASS NOTES

1950s

H. B. (Hank) Blackwell, '56, was recently honored by the French government with the rank of chevalier dans l'Ordre des Palmes Académiques (Academic Knight). The award was presented by Consul General DeCherf for Blackwell's work as founding president, and now Chairman of the Board, of the International School of Indiana. Hank is married to Nancy Blackwell, '56.

1970s

Jon Bailey, '75, at attorney with Bose McKinney & Evans, LLP, spoke at the National Business Institute in Indianapolis, discussing "Legal Issues Involving Indiana Local Governments," in January. Bailey is a member of the Indiana State, Indianapolis and American Bar Associations.

Randall Craig, '75, was recently elected president of Southwestern Indiana Regional Council on Aging, Inc. He is also the current vice president and former president of Vanderburgh County Council on Aging, Inc. and a member of the board of directors of Southwestern Indiana Regional Council on Aging Foundation, Inc. Craig is a sole practitioner in Evansville, Indiana whose areas of practice emphasize corporate and business law, trusts, estates and estate planning, real estate, elder law, and taxation.

John L. Krauss, '76, assumed the directorship of the Center of Urban Policy and the Environment at IUPUI. He is also an adjunct professor at the IU School of Law - Indianapolis, where he directs the Public Policy Mediation Course. Additionally, he has been appointed a member of the National Roster of the Environmental Dispute Resolution and Consensus Building Professionals. Krauss is the only professional mediator from Indiana on the roster, which includes 233 professionals from 40 states. Additionally, Krauss led a workshop on "Why are Public Meetings a Disaster?" at the annual meeting of the Dispute Resolution Section of the American Bar Association in New York City in April.

Gloria Samuels, '77, was selected as the winner of the 2003 Public Service Award by the Tennessee Bar Association.

David E. Wright, '77, will be joining the firm of Kroger, Gardis & Regas, LLP. Formerly of League Chandler & Millard, Wright will continue to focus his practice in the areas of litigation, arbitration, as well as professional liability and fiduciary issues.

Gary Klotz, '78, an attorney with Bingham McHale in Indianapolis, has been named president of the Indianapolis Bar Association. He also serves as president of the Day Nursery Foundation.

1980s

Martha T. Starkey, '80, has been selected to serve a second term as Division Chair by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform Laws. She was the first woman selected as a Division Chair in the 105-year history of the Conference, when she first served in 1997-99.

John C. Trimble, '81, was recently appointed to the board of directors of DRI-The Voice of the Defense Bar. He is a partner at the firm of Lewis & Wagner in Indianapolis.

Hon. Cynthia J. Ayers, '82, is currently serving her third term as a Superior Court Judge. She serves in Civil Division Room 4 and is the past Presiding Judge of the Marion Superior Court. Prior to her judicial career, she worked as a deputy prosecutor, as well as in private legal practice. She has taught Business Law and Family Law at Indiana Vocational Technical College. Currently she is first vice-president of the Indianapolis Bar Association, treasurer of the Indiana State Bar Association, and chair of the Indiana State Bar Association's Client Assistance Fund. She serves on the Committee for Character and Fitness for the Indiana Supreme Court, the Indiana Judges Association, the Indiana Supreme Court Technology Committee, and the Indianapolis Bar Association Justice Center Task Force. She is a member of the Indianapolis American Inn of Courts, the National Bar Association Judicial Council, the National Council of Negro Women, the Indianapolis Urban League and the NAACP. She has served as a mentor and is currently an advisory board member in the I-CLEO program. Judge Ayers was elected to the Alumni Board of Directors in 2003-2004. She was also the inaugural speaker for the law school's newest student group, the Committee on Diversity Initiatives (CODI), which began in the spring of 2004.

Greg Meyer, '82, is a partner in the Evansville law firm of Meyer Stone & Stratman, LLP.

Anne Slaughter Andrew, '83, has joined the Indianapolis-based firm Bingham-McHale.

Marci A. Reddick, '84, has joined the firm of Sommer Barnard Ackerson, PC as Of Counsel. She is a member of the firm's Business Law Practice Group. She is also a member of the board of directors of Outrun the Sun, Inc., a nonprofit organization dedicated to increasing awareness of the risk factors of melanoma and to raising funds for melanoma medical research. Additionally, she was also appointed to the Corporate Law Survey Commission by Indiana Governor Joe Kernan and was re-appointed to the Marion County Metropolitan Board of Zoning Appeals, Board II, by Indianapolis Mayor Bart Peterson. She also serves as chair of that board.

James H. Hernandez, '85, is a Senior Vice President of Estate Administration at FirstTrust Indiana, a division of First Indiana Bank in Indianapolis. He holds a B.S. in Business Administration from Valparaiso University. He worked for over four years with a national CPA firm where he received his CPA certification. He began his banking career in 1989 with INB. He is a member of the ABA, the Indiana State Bar Association and the Indianapolis Bar Association (current Finance Committee Board Member and Past Chair of the Estate Planning and Administration Section). He is a past president of the estate planning Council of Indianapolis and is currently the treasurer for the Indianapolis Legal Aid Society. He is also very active in the Indianapolis community, particularly in youth athletics, where he provides leadership roles. He and his spouse live in Indianapolis with their five children. Hernandez was elected to the Alumni Board of Directors in 2003-2004.

Jonna Kane MacDougall, '86 is a founding member and secretary/treasurer of the board of directors of Outrun the Sun, Inc., a nonprofit organization dedicated to increasing awareness of the risk factors of melanoma and to raising funds for melanoma medical research.

Fran Quigley, '87, has left his post as the news editor for NUVO Newsweekly to take over as the Executive Director of the Indiana Civil Liberties Union.

Mary Feldhake, '89, has been named a partner at Locke Reynolds in Indianapolis.

Laura K. Taylor, '89, has joined the firm of Riley Bennett & Egloff, LLP as an associate.

Scott Yonover, '89, has joined Indianapolis-based Lewis & Kappes as Of Counsel in the firm's Chicago office.

THE TORCH IS PASSED

Student Bar Association President ('03-'04) Ryan Gardner, passes the gavel to new SBA President, Dana Eden. Shown from left, Katie Pinter, ('03-'04) Vice President, Gardner; Eden; David Nguyen, Secretary ('04-'05) and Jessica Sperath, Treasurer ('04-'05).

SOON-TO-BE PILOT LANDS DREAM JOB

By Michael Schug

Since she was in pigtails, Caroline Kennedy – yes, she was named after the former president's daughter – has been in and around airplanes. Now as a young woman, Kennedy '03 mixes her love of flying with a law career, in part, because of staying in touch with the Office of Professional Development at the law school.

This past February, Kennedy was searching through the job listings on the Office of Professional Development's Web site and saw an ad for an attorney/pilot with Indianapolis-based Advocate Consulting.

"That evening I drove my resume down to the post office, and they received it the next day," Kennedy said.

Things moved quickly from there. Advocate Consulting called her the next afternoon, she interviewed with them the following day, landing a job offer 24 hours later. She enthusiastically accepted.

Now an attorney, Kennedy helps people acquire airplanes in a tax-efficient manner. For her, it's a dream job. "I would definitely say it's the perfect job," Kennedy said. Kennedy credits the Office of Professional Development with helping her with her search. "I couldn't imagine not having had their help, from the drafting of a resume to ultimately putting me in touch with one of the coolest jobs there is," she said.

Raised by parents who are both pilots, Kennedy herself decided to take up flying lessons while in law school. She currently flies the single-engine Piper Warrior as much as the weather permits. She expects to earn her pilot's license this summer.

1990s

David D. Robinson, '91, recently became a shareholder in the firm of Scopelitis, Garvin, Light & Hanson in Indianapolis. His practice focuses upon labor and employment law. He joined the firm as Of Counsel in 2001.

J. Brent McCauley, '93, recently was elected to partnership at the Chicago firm of Ungaretti & Harris in the Financial Services Department. He advises financial institution clients on a wide range of issues, including mergers, acquisitions, corporate finance, joint ventures and strategic alliances, as well as specialized matters affecting securities broker-dealers, commodities firms, insurance companies, banks and bank holding companies, hedge funds and investment companies.

Don McGuire, '93, is Assistant General Counsel of Pharmacists Mutual Insurance Co. & Pharmacists Life Insurance Co. in Algona, Iowa. He continues to be General Counsel of Pharmacists National Insurance Corp., Pro Advantage Services, Inc. and PMC Quality Commitment Inc.

Jan Michelsen, '94, has become a shareholder with the firm of Ogletree, Deakins, Nash, Smoak & Stewart, P.C.

David L. Pippen, '94, has joined the Indianapolis-based law firm of Plews Shadley Racher & Braun as an Associate. He concentrates his practice on a variety of litigation, administrative law, and transactional issues with significant experience in Indiana real property taxation matters. Previously, David was a sole practitioner in Indianapolis, Indiana. He was honored with the American Jurisprudence Award in Contracts. He serves on the Board of Directors for the Indianapolis Association of Wabash Men, and is a participating attorney for Westminster Legal Services.

Scott Stratman, '94, is a partner in the law firm of Meyer Stone & Stratman, LLP, in Evansville, IN.

Nathan J. Feltman, '95, recently moved to Indianapolis from Chicago to become a Partner at Ice Miller. He received his B.S. in Business from IU in 1992 and a Master's (LL.M.) degree in Russian Law from the Institute of State and Law at the Russian Academy of Sciences, Moscow, Russia in 1996. He spent over three years in Moscow, Russia where he worked for a major international law firm in the general corporate and commercial law fields. He speaks Russian and has written and spoken extensively concerning the Russian legal system and various business law topics. In addition, he served as a faculty advisor for a Russian international legal program at the Northwestern University School of law. He currently works on domestic and international mergers and acquisitions, as well as domestic finance, shareholder and general corporate representation on behalf of private equity funds, private individuals, start-up companies and publicly and privately held companies. Feltman was elected to the Alumni Board of Directors in 2003-2004.

Terry Slywka, '96, is currently working in Osh, Kyrgyzstan and has recently been named the Ferghana Valley Program Director responsible for managing activities directed at regulatory reform and enhancement of the business environment for entrepreneurs in the Ferghana Valley region of Uzbekistan, the Kyrgyz Republic, and Tajikistan.

Alexandra S. Sylvia, '96, has been named a partner at the Indianapolis-based law firm of Plews Shadley Racher & Braun, where she has been an associate since 1997. She concentrates her practice on commercial real estate transactions, underground storage tank regulatory compliance, environmental insurance coverage, and business-entity formation. In addition to her J.D., she holds a B.A. in Chemistry and Psychology from IU. Sylvia served as an intern for Judge Linda Chezem of the Indiana Court of Appeals before entering private practice. She has participated in the Indianapolis Bar Association Leadership Series 2003-2004 and is also a member and treasurer of that bar association's environmental law section. She serves on the environmental law section of the Indiana Bar Association and on the association's standing committee for women in the law. She is also a member of the Kentucky Bar Association. Her community service activities include the Junior League of Indianapolis where she serves on the board of the Next to New Shop, and being a member of the board of directors of Heritage Place.

Jeffrey S. Toole, '96, recently became a shareholder in the firm of Scopelitis, Garvin, Light & Hanson in Indianapolis. His practice areas include insurance law and employee benefits. He joined the firm as an associate in 1997.

Kathleen J. Turpin, '96, has been promoted to the position of Vice president for Human Resources at Brotherhood Mutual Insurance Company in Fort Wayne, Indiana.

David J. Remondini, '97 was selected by the Indiana Pro Bono Commission as the 2003 winner of the Randall T. Shepard Pro Bono Award. Remondini, who serves as Counsel to Indiana Supreme Court Chief Justice Randall T. Shepard, was given the award named for his employer in recognition of his years of work in developing Indiana's effort to encourage the state's lawyers to provide free legal work to needy clients.

Laurence S. Roach, '97, has joined the Rochester, New York law firm of Hiscock & Barclay, LLP as Of Counsel. He practices Intellectual Property Law with the advantage of substantial engineering experience in the semiconductor, electronic component and automotive industries. He focuses on Patent Law, including the preparation and prosecution of patent applications, drafting patentability and non-infringement opinions, and litigation support.

2003 GRADUATE ACES FLORIDA BAR EXAM

Tishia A. Green, '03 knew that she must have scored very well on the Florida bar exam when she received an invitation to speak at the official induction of new lawyers ceremony for the Fifth District Court of Appeals. Traditionally, the people with the top five scores on the bar exam are invited to speak at this prestigious event. During the ceremony, Chief Judge Thomas D. Sawaya of the Forth District announced that she was, in fact, the top scorer. When asked how she accomplished such a feat, Green modestly replies that her classes at IU Law – Indianapolis were especially helpful.

She says, "All I had to do was review my notes from Professor Wilkins' Torts class," and she also mentions Professor Jeff Cooper's Evidence class as beneficial. She remains in touch with friends and professors here in Indianapolis, including Assistant Dean for Admissions, Angela Espada, and Professors Florence Roisman and Debby McGregor. Dean Espada says of Green, "She approached law school and life with a positive attitude and a smile that sometimes hid how hard she worked."

Professor Roisman remembers her as an excellent student. "Tishia's written and oral contributions to the class showed diligent preparation, careful legal analysis, keen reasoning, and warm sensitivity to the needs and concerns of the people involved in the legal and social problems we addressed," Roisman says. "She's a great credit to our law school."

Green is a Florida native who had moved to Indianapolis with her husband, then a player for the Colts. Although she and her husband moved back to Florida, and she completed her course work at Stetson University, her degree is from IU where she earned the majority of her credits. Green says she is very happy to be working in the area of labor and employment law at the Jacksonville firm of Coffman, Coleman, Andrews & Grogan, where she has been an associate since August of 2003.

Kathryn Kuehn, '99, has been made a partner at the firm of Lee, Burns & Cossell (now Lee, Burns, Cossell & Kuehn, LLP). She serves as the firm's Litigation Manager and concentrates her practice in tort law, probate and corporations.

Jeff Papa, '99 founded a not-for-profit organization in 2003 to construct an orphanage in Nepal and assist underprivileged children in Indiana. Five IU-Indianapolis School of Law Alumni serve on the nine-member board of directors; Zach Stock, Sarah Dillinger, Jim Owen, Ann Thrasher Papa and Jeff Papa. More information is available at www.ibccn.org/yeti. Papa was also sworn in to practice before the U.S. Court of International Trade and the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit in April, 2004.

2000s

J. David Gardiner, '00, was recently commissioned as a JAG officer in the U.S. Army Reserve. Formerly a trademark examining attorney with the U.S. Patent & Trademark Office, he is now in private practice specializing in Intellectual Property matters dealing with the development, promotion, and licensing of trademarks, copyrights, and computer gaming software.

Kari H. Halbrook, '00, has recently become an associate with Riley Bennett & Egloff, LLP.

Eduardo Fontanez, Jr. '01, was employed by the Lake County Prosecutor's Office as a Deputy Prosecutor from May of 2002 until March of 2003. Subsequently, he was appointed by the Governor of the State of Indiana to serve as Interim East Chicago City Court Judge from March of 2003 until December of 2003. At the same time he opened his own law office in Hammond, Indiana, where he handles criminal defense, personal injury, family law and bankruptcy. In January 2004, after serving as Interim Judge, he was hired by the City of East Chicago as Assistant City Attorney; while at the same time maintaining his private practice. In addition, he serves as a Public Defender at the Whiting City Court in Whiting, Indiana and is an instructor of American Government & Political Science at Purdue University Calumet.

Cheryl D. Finchum, '01, recently became an associate with the firm of Riley Bennett & Egloff, LLP.

SARABIA '03, LEADS COMMISSION ON HISPANIC/LATINO AFFAIRS

Governor Joe Kernan recently announced the appointment of IU School of Law-Indianapolis graduate Jenny Sarabia, '03 as executive director of the Indiana Commission on Hispanic/Latino Affairs. She says it is "a great honor to be an advocate for the Latino community in Indiana."

As head of the commission, Sarabia, formerly an attorney with Ramirez Law Office in Indianapolis, is in charge of identifying and researching issues that affect the Hispanic/Latino communities, and reporting findings to the governor and the Indiana General Assembly. The commission is staffed by and housed in the Indiana Department of Workforce Development.

Sarabia says she is a resource for all Hoosiers, not just the Latino community, and deals with issues dealing with health, education, business, basic services and many others. Her efforts now are focused on outreach activities, as well as connecting the Latino media to government agencies, such as the Bureau of Motor Vehicles (BMV) which is currently undergoing many changes.

Although she does not have any full-time staff helping her, she is not alone in her efforts. She currently has four law students doing pro bono service, as well as two high school students and two college students who work part time with her. A graduate of the law school's Public Policy Mediation Course, part of the school's Program on Law and State Government (PLSG), she hopes to have a PLSG intern from IU Law – Indianapolis to assist her next semester.

"I loved law school," she says. "I participated in as many activities as I could while a student." A Fellow with the Indiana-CLEO program, she also participated in two human rights law internships, as well as two local internships, and countless other committees and student organizations. She says that the mediation training she received through the PLSG is something she uses on a daily basis in her current position.

Sarabia says that her internships through the Program in International Human Rights Law, exposed her not only to the issues of undocumented immigrants, but also to extreme poverty. She hopes to be able to help immigrants, as well as established Hoosiers of Hispanic origin, to avoid the extreme conditions and human rights abuses she saw overseas.

"We are pleased and proud that Ms. Jenny Sarabia and other former participants of the law school's Program in International Human Rights Law are undertaking challenges in the public service arena," said Professor George E. Edwards, the program's director.

During the summers of 2000 and 2001, Sarabia worked in Mexico City, Mexico; San Jose, Costa Rica; and Managua Nicaragua as an intern with Casa Alianza, an organization that worked for children's rights and the rehabilitation of street children. She also volunteered in Castries, St. Lucia, with Aldet Center, which deals with domestic violence and racism.

William P. Means, '01, has become an associate with Riley Bennett & Egloff, LLP.

Captain Amber E. Hair, '02, passed the July 2002 bar exam in Indiana before accepting a direct commission appointment from the United States Air Force. She is currently serving as an Assistant Staff Judge Advocate at Nellis Air Force Base in Las Vegas, Nevada. She contributes in areas of Civil Law, Military Justice (criminal), and a broad range of other areas. This experience affords her hands-on counseling sessions with First Term Airmen in order to share current legal information with those in the military community who need it most. Capt. Hair plans to spend the next year and a half at her current base before moving to another location, hopefully overseas.

Jaime L. Meyer, '02, joined the law firm of Riley Bennett & Egloff as an associate.

Candace Brugger Spomar, '02, has joined the firm of Heyl Royster Voelker & Allen in Peoria, Illinois as an associate.

Brett M. Haworth, '03, has joined the Indianapolis firm of Stevens & Associates, P.C. as an associate. He will practice in the areas of estate, elder & corporate law.

Lori Schein, '03, recently became an associate at the Indianapolis office of Scopelitis, Garvin, Light & Hanson.

Indiana Lieutenant Governor Katherine Davis delivered the commencement address to the Class of 2004 on Sunday, May 9. The senior speaker was Ryan Gardner and the text of his address can be found on the school's website, www.indylaw.indiana.edu.

LL.M. PROGRAM '03 CLASS NOTES

Ms. Liliana Jakubielski is living in Indianapolis and has accepted a position with Ice Miller working in their business litigation division. Liliana and her husband Doug's oldest child Stephanie is four-years-old and baby Hunter is six-months-old.

Ms. Janetha Kancharla is living in Rochester, New York. She has been working at a Rochester law firm and is studying for the July 2004 New York Bar. Janetha and her husband welcomed the newest member to their household, a baby girl, in January.

Ms. Aurelie Kasprzak has returned to France and is living in Clermont-Ferrand. She has recently completed her first semester of a Masters in Diplomatic Careers.

Ms. Ivana Mroz is living in San Francisco and last fall was married to Mr. Erik Mroz (JD - Class of 2003)

Mr. Jong Kwan Park and his family continue to live in Indianapolis where his two children have been attending Carmel Public Schools. Mr. Park recently took the New York Bar Exam.

Mr. Pengcheng (Simon) Si is working for the China Information Center in Washington D.C. and is applying for Ph.D. programs in American Studies or Public Administration in the Washington Metropolitan area for the 2004-2005 academic year.

Mr. Thomas Vandenabeele is living in New York City. He is working as an intern in the Treaty Section of the Office of Legal Affairs at the United Nations. He is planning to take the July 2004 New York Bar.

Mr. Yang Yang is living in San Francisco. He is working at a downtown firm in the areas of business litigation and personal injury.

The law school's Chancellor's Scholar, Stephen Worth, is shown here with his father, John Worth, '70, and Dean Tony Tarr. Photo courtesy of Stephen Worth.

University Grand Marshal Edwin C. Marshall and Trustee President Frederick F. Eichhorn Jr. place the Jewel and Chain of Office on IU President Adam W. Herbert. The Jewel has been worn by eight IU presidents. Photo by Tyagan Miller

INDIANA UNIVERSITY INSTALLS 17TH PRESIDENT

Adam W. Herbert was installed as the 17th president of Indiana University at inauguration ceremonies in Bloomington on April 15. In his inaugural speech, President Herbert honored the history of Indiana University, reaffirmed its commitments, recognized new challenges and presented a vision for the future. He acknowledged the unique identity of Indiana University.

"Ours is a community characterized by personal warmth reflective of Hoosier hospitality," he said, "a lack of pretentiousness, a focus on the individual, a genuine concern for the students we teach, a commitment to the life of the mind, a profound dedication to deepening our understanding of the human condition, and a determination to be of service to the citizens who support our enterprise."

President Herbert received his undergraduate degree from the University of Southern California, Los Angeles in 1966, and his M.P.A. from the same institution in 1968. In 1971, he earned a Ph.D. from the University of Pittsburgh. Prior to his appointment as the President of Indiana University, he served as Chancellor of the State University System of Florida. From 1989 until 1998, he was the President of the University of North Florida. In the mid-1970s, he served as a White House Fellow and special assistant to the U.S. Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

BANTZ IS CHANCELLOR OF IUPUI

IU President Adam Herbert presided over the ceremony and Purdue University President Martin Jischke gave congratulatory remarks when Charles R. Bantz was officially installed as Chancellor of IUPUI in December, 2003. Bantz assumed duties at the helm of Indiana's urban research campus on June 1st, replacing Gerald Bepko who retired after 16 years as chancellor. Bantz was appointed chancellor of IUPUI on January 31, 2003, by the Trustees of Indiana University. He assumed his duties as the fourth chancellor of IUPUI on June 1, 2003.

A native of South Dakota, Bantz is an organizational communication expert, having published on organizational behavior, culture, and change. He developed an international dimension to his scholarship and teaching through a multinational research project known as the Salzburg Seminar's Universities Project, which was created to help promote higher education reform in Central and East Europe and in the Russian Federation.

From August 2000 to May 2003, Bantz served as provost and senior vice president for academic affairs and professor of communication at Wayne State University. Prior to his appointment at Wayne State, Bantz served as vice provost at Arizona State University from 1995 to 2000. From 1989 to 1995 Bantz was chair of the ASU Department of Communication (now the Hugh Downs School of Human Communication). He has also been on the faculties of Arizona State, the University of Minnesota (Twin Cities), and the University of Colorado at Boulder.

Bantz earned a bachelor's degree in English education at the University of Minnesota, a master's degree in speech-communication from the University of Minnesota and a Ph.D. degree from Ohio State University in communication. (Photo courtesy of IUPUI.)

IN MEMORIAM

Clarence M. Allen, '46, May, 1968
Raymond H. Bohlson, '24 (Benjamin Harrison), July, 1986
Sue Ann Pyle Bradley, '88, August 17, 2003
Robert Frank Campbell, '71, March 25, 2004
John Hugh Caress, '61, February 23, 2004
Robert K. Dalrymple, '65, February 24, 2004
Denver Earl Davis, '49, November 2, 2003
Conrad H. Dawson, '31 (Benjamin Harrison), February 1, 1993
Howard Jay DeTrude, '60, February 27, 2004
Scott Lee Goodroad, '99, October 29, 2003
Robert Austin Greenway, '63, December 22, 2003
Frank Isgrigg Hamilton, '51, August 17, 2003
John Vernon Hampton, '60, December 7, 1997
Michael Francis Hofer, '78, March 14, 2004
Marjorie Ann Weil Ingram, '49, August 30, 2001
Carole Jean Fields Johnson, '80, March 28, 2004
Bruce Alan Jones, '76, November 3, 2002
Patrick Joseph Kirby, '66, March 21, 2001
Karl J. Kolger, '57, December 27, 2003
Nathan R. Kughen, '03, January 27, 2004
Paul David Lawson, '44, April 8, 2004
John G. Life, '48, February 24, 2004
Melvin Ray Lind, '57, February 18, 2004
Susan Louise Wilson Luthra, '84, December 22, 2003
William Salvatore Mercuri, '52, March 26, 2004
John Matthew Moore, '00, November 7, 2003
Owen Michael Mullin, '50, March 3, 2004
Joseph Patrick Murdock, '72, October 6, 2003
Verl L. Myers, '76, January 7, 2004
William E. Qualkinbush, '61, November 24, 2003
Melvin Ambrose Richards, '66, September 2, 2003
James Wilbur Stilwell, '62, November 12, 2003
Elizabeth Mary Tepfer, '63, September 1, 2003
Harry Allan Wilson, '58, January 8, 2004
Matthew Ray Wyn, '94, January 9, 2003

SCOTT GOODROAD, '99

The law school was sad to learn of the untimely death of one of its recent graduates, Scott Goodroad, '99. He passed away on October 29, 2003 after a battle with melanoma. Goodroad was committed to international human rights law and public service, working as an intern for the East Timor Human Rights Centre for the Program in International Human Rights Law and serving as Editor-in-Chief of the Indiana International & Comparative Law Review. He founded and directed the Cancer Fraud Action Network while working at Maslon, Edelman, Borman and Brand, a major corporate law firm in Minneapolis. He served in the U.S. Army Reserve for 10 years.

OWEN M. MULLIN, '50

Owen M. Mullin, '50, passed away on March 3, 2004. He served in the U.S. Army in World War II, attaining the rank of Captain in the 87th Infantry Division. He was twice decorated with the Purple Heart and received the Bronze Star.

While practicing as a criminal defense attorney, he became involved with politics. He served as Chair of the Marion County Democratic party and was Campaign Manager for John F. Kennedy's presidential campaign and assisted with Robert F. Kennedy's presidential campaign. Mr. Mullin was a member of numerous organizations and received many awards in his lifetime, including a Sagamore of the Wabash.

TWO ALUMNI KILLED IN ACCIDENTS

The law school is saddened to report that automobile accidents claimed the lives of two recent graduates. John Matthew Moore, '00, Santa Claus, Indiana, passed away on November 7, 2003 and Nathan R. Kughen, '03, Bedford, Indiana, passed away on January 27, 2004.

INDIANA UNIVERSITY PURDUE UNIVERSITY INDIANAPOLIS

IU SCHOOL OF LAW-INDIANAPOLIS
LAWRENCE W. INLOW HALL
530 WEST NEW YORK STREET
INDIANAPOLIS, INDIANA 46202

First Class
US Postage Paid
Indianapolis, IN
Permit No. 4245