SYMPOSIUM PRECEDES 'A RAISIN IN THE SUN'

Tony Award-winning producer and playwright Robert Nemiroff will lead a symposium Feb. 22, the opening day of "A Raisin in the Sun," being produced by University Theater at IUPUI. The symposium will focus on the works of the playwright, Lorraine Hansberry, the first black woman to produce a play for Broadway. Productions are also set for Feb. 23 and March 1-2. Director is Prof. J. Edgar Webb.

The symposium begins at 2 p.m. in the Madame Walker Urban Life Center, with papers being presented by two scholars on black art and history, Dr. Margaret B. Wilkerson associate professor, Dept. of Afro-American Studies, U. of California at Berkeley and Dr. Robert Grant, associate professor of English, University of Southern California. At 3 p.m., Nemiroff, Hansberry's literary executor, will lead an open discussion and response session. He shared a working relationship with Hansberry from the time of their marriage in 1953. Since her death in 1965 he has adapted and published her works. A reception is at 5 p.m. The symposium is free and open to everyone. The play opens at 8 p.m. Tickets are $2.50 for students and senior citizens, $3.50 for faculty and staff, and $5 for others. For tickets, call Ext. 2094.

Supporters are: The Black Student Union, the Center for American Studies and the Afro-American Studies Program, all at IUPUI. Also, the Madame Walker Urban Life Center, Indiana Black Expo and the IU President's Council on the Humanities.

Faculty interested in improving teaching methods should plan to attend the Annual Learning Resources Committee Symposium on March 1. The program will focus on classroom and laboratory teaching and affords an opportunity to interact with faculty from a variety of IUPUI disciplines. Presentations by our faculty will follow a keynote speech on effective communication. For more, call Ext. 7442.

FEE COURTESY FORMS DEADLINES NEAR

Full-time employees planning to take classes or whose dependents are enrolled must submit Employee Fee Courtesy and other forms to Personnel before set deadlines if fee remissions are to be processed at fee payment. A separate form must be submitted for the summer sessions and the academic year. Deadlines are: March 1 for Summer Session I, April 1 for Summer Session II, June 1 for Fall and Oct. 1 for Spring '86.
