SUMMER STUDENTS--SYSTEM-WIDE VIEW

Indiana University's first session summer enrollment is higher than the enrollment for the similar period last year. Two regular summer sessions and five two-week sessions are scheduled.

✓ According to Registrar M.D. Scherer, preliminary figures show total enrollment for the first sessions this summer is 18,624, an increase of 15 per cent. The tabulation includes students from the Bloomington-Indianapolis core, and the South Bend, Gary, Richmond and New Albany regional campuses. (Summer sessions at I.U. campuses in Fort Wayne and Kokomo do not begin until Wednesday, June 4.)

The IUB enrollment is 5,753, up 12.3 per cent over last year (631 students). IUPUI reports a figure of 7,277, up 21 per cent (1,264 students). Largest percentage increase is reported at New Albany which has 1,549 students, a jump of 27.6 per cent (335 students).

Reports from other campuses show South Bend up 5 per cent with an increase of 111 students, Northwest up 5 per cent with an increase of 82 students and East up four students (no percentage increase).

TEACHING TEACHERS ABOUT JUSTICE

A summer institute on the administration of justice will be presented for junior and senior high school teachers at the Indianapolis Law School.

Planned by the Indiana Center for Law-Related Education, the institute is sponsored by the Law School, the Indianapolis Bar Foundation and the Metropolitan School District of Washington Township. It is financed by a grant from the Indiana Criminal Justice Planning Agency.

✓ William F. Harvey, dean of the Indianapolis Law School, said the institute has been designed to help teachers understand the law as it relates to subjects such as social studies, civics, history and political science. According to Dean Harvey, many educators think that traditional approaches to the subjects fail to teach respect for law or understanding of the American legal system. The institute will cover constitutional, consumer, criminal and juvenile law.

About 100 teachers of grades 7 through 12 are expected to attend the institute from July 28 to August 8. The seminar staff of attorneys, law professors and senior law students will use lectures, films, mock trials and simulations.

Three hours of university graduate school credit will be available tuition free for teachers who are Indiana residents.

A week following (August 11-15) the center will present a workshop for teachers who have participated in earlier institutes. "Called Justice in Action: the Anatomy of the System," the workshop will include visits to Federal District Court, Indiana Supreme and Appeals Courts, Marion County Criminal and Superior Courts and the Marion County Probation Department. Workshop participants will also have an opportunity to accompany an Indianapolis Police Department patrolman on a regular evening beat.

Enrollment in the workshop will be limited to 50 to insure small groups for visiting the courts.

PROJECT BRINGING SCIENCE TEACHERS TO IUPUI

Forty junior high and middle school science teachers will learn the latest techniques for individualized instruction in a six-week concentrated workshop at IUPUI this summer under a $46,000 grant from the National Science Foundation.

Dr. Wendell F. McBurney, director of the Intermediate Science Curriculum Study summer program, said that the course work will be divided between the basic physical science content pertinent to the curriculum and the philosophical, pedagogic, and methodological aspects as prescribed by the 13 Intermediate Science Curriculum Study teaching modules.

The teachers will have a chance to attend follow-up seminars in several locations during the next school year to evaluate, with the program staff, both successes and problems which arise in putting the methods learned into practice.

Six hours of graduate credit will be awarded upon successful completion of the course.

This is one of only a few such programs in the country, Dr. McBurney said. Mrs. Sandy Clidence, science teacher at Clay Junior High School, Carmel, will be associate director.

DEPT. OF HONORS & ACCOLADES

Dr. Charles M. Clark, Jr., associate professor of medicine and pharmacology and associate chief of staff for education at the Veterans Administration Hospital, has been selected to receive one of six Robert Wood Johnson Health Policy Fellowships for a year's study and congressional work assignments in Washington, D.C. The recipients were chosen on a competitive basis from nominations by academic health centers and other U.S. institutions with medical schools. The program, conducted in co-operation with the American Political Science Association, is designed to provide a better understanding of major issues in health policy and a knowledge of how Federal health programs are established.

Dr. Tali A. Conine, professor of physical therapy, has been appointed by Governor Otis R. Bowen to the advisory committee of the Silvercrest Disability and Chronic Disease Facility, a research and demonstration center for multi-handicapped children. Dr. Conine also serves as a governor's appointee on the Indiana Commission for the Handicapped.

IUPUI faculty members hold posts in the Indiana Psychological Association. Elected at the group's recent meeting in Kokomo were Dr. Kathleen Fitzhugh-Bell, associate professor of psychology, president-elect, and Dr. Robert Fortier, associate professor of psychology, and Dr. Richard Lawlor, assistant professor of clinical psychology, members-at-large of the executive committee.

Dr. James E. Bennett, professor and director of plastic surgery, has been made a member of the American Surgical Association and the Plastic Surgery Residency Review Committee.

Dr. Angenieta A. Biegel, associate professor of medicine, has been elected chairman of the steering committee of the American Association for Clinical Histocompatibility Testing.

Elton T. Ridley, associate professor of hospital administration and director of health resources development, has been elected chairman of the board of Indiana Health Careers, Inc.

Phyllis J. Scherle, assistant professor of English, has taken over the duties of secretary-treasurer of the Indiana College English Association. At the group's annual meeting she also was re-elected editor of The Associator.

An article by Paul J. Galanti, professor of law, has been awarded a bar association Citation of Merit. The article, "Some Observations on the Sherman Antitrust Act and Minimum Fee Schedules," was selected as last year's outstanding contribution to Res Gestae, journal of the Indiana State Bar Association.
