HOW TO USE THIS GUIDE

Check out the New Horizons scavenger hunt activity located in this guide. The scavenger hunt asks students to search throughout the entire issue; discovering new chapter or community service ideas, gaining new knowledge about FFA events and leadership opportunities, and learning more about the diverse group of FFA members from across the country.

Use the scavenger hunt as:

- a classroom activity
- homework assignment
- a fun competition

Teachings of the TribeMontana's American Indian members embrace their culture

Six percent of Montana's FFA membership is made up of the six FFA chapters that reside on American Indian reservations. For these FFA members it means not only taking a lot of the same classes and projects as other FFA members, but it also means exposure to other subject areas that are out of the ordinary for many members across the country. To connect the culture of the American Indian to the FFA mission, the American Indian CDE was created. Jimmerson says, "And the benefits are two-fold. The school children learn about Montana history and culture, and the FFA members become better presenters and leaders."

DISCUSSION QUESTIONS

- Create a list of unique cultural or family traditions that you or your family follow.
- Where did your traditions originate (country, grandparents, etc.)?
- What part of those traditions do you hope to carry on in the future? What part(s), if any, do you plan to modify?

ACTIVITY

Different or similar? Each of us has different cultural or family traditions that we follow, but at the same time we are all similar in the fact that we all have traditions—regardless of what they are. From the list of traditions that you created, select your favorite one and write it on a sticky note. Create a group of four in which you will share your selected tradition. As a group, develop a list of similarities among your traditions and write them in the center of a sheet of paper. Additionally, each person will pick a corner of the same sheet of paper and draw an image that depicts your tradition. Be prepared to share the pictures and similarities with the large group.

TEACHER TIP

CHECK OUT THE "COOL CAREERS" SECTION FOCUSED ON ANIMAL SCIENCE

Agricultural educators are known for doing their part in preparing students for their future career goals. Whether it is through encouragement to participate in a leadership conference or the day-to-day basics of common etiquette and respect for others, ag educators are getting the job done. Wouldn't you like to have a little help? National FFA has created a series of eight student-centered modules on careers. The module series walks students through a variety of ag careers available, as well as helping them to fully understand the skills needed to be successful after graduation.

Check out the student page on ffa.org for a sneak peek at Module 1 in the eight-module series.

STAY CONNECTED WITH FFA

Whether it's FFA Nation, Facebook, Twitter, news feeds, or on your phone, we've got great ways you can stay in-the-know. View details on our Get Connected page. You can even sign up for FFA e-publications and e-newsletters and get monthly e-updates from FFA, Making a Difference online, LifeKnowledge at Work and more. Also, check out the FFA Video Feed or receive podcasts via iTunes. Watch more stores on the FFA Video page!

Going the DistanceDarryl Blakely and Roy Bowser run marathons, promote healthy living

Running a marathon is no easy task. At 26 miles, they're long, and require so much focus and commitment that many of those who start one fail to finish.

The resolve it takes to be a runner, Roy says, is similar to what it takes to succeed in FFA.

HS.20 My decisions and the opinions of others HS.81 Decision making in groups

DISCUSSION QUESTIONS

"To be in FFA, and to be a leader, you pretty much have to learn to make your own decisions," Roy explains.

- What decisions do you make on a daily basis?
- Which decisions do you make by yourself?
- Which decisions require contributions outside of yourself to make the decision?

ACTIVITY

Close your eyes, and think quietly as we set the following scene in our mind. Imagine you are the student body president. You are working with a group of peers to plan the theme for the annual homecoming dance. Some students on the committee want the theme to be tropical; others are interested in a western-inspired theme. The committee has voted and arrived at a tie. Each member is convinced their choice for the theme is the best, and no one is willing to use the other. The final decision rests with you. Take a moment to mentally design how to arrive at that decision.

Let's put our mental decision-making design down on paper. Take the next five minutes to create a mind map in your notebooks on how you would work through the decisionmaking process to solve the homecoming dilemma.

For the next five minutes, we will compare and contrast our decision-making process with the person sitting next to us. Then we will share our process and findings with the class.
