Soviets will not invade

by Shirley A. Coats

A high ranking official of the Polish government, speaking at the Student Union last praised the new leadership in his country and said the Soviet Union will not invade Poland.

Witold Kiezun addressed a group sponsored by the Office of the International Programs and Services World Forum Series. Kiezun, a member of the Liberal Democratic Party, explained that several members of the government ranks are not party members.

A former classmate of Pope John Paul II, Kiezun is in the states as a visiting professor at Temple University. He is Chairman of the Department of Public Administration in the Institute of Management Organization for the Council of Ministers, an attorney, author and university professor.

Kiezun said Solidarity, the militant labor movement, has been successful and praised its leader Lech Walesa for being an honest man. He explained that Solidarity is not against socialism, but against the rampant corruption in the centralized government.

"Poland," said Kiezun "is moving away from totalitarianism and toward a just and efficient society." "There is a move toward democratization," Kiezun said, "but Poland will remain a socialist country."

"The new white collar worker is under the age of 25 and is better educated than his parents. 'The open door to the west' has influenced the young Polish workers a great deal and there is much opportunistic thinking. The easiest way to obtain goods is the black market," explained Kiezun. "The structure of government and development of resources present a complex dicotomy in Poland."

While they produce much of the world's steel, through the highest technological means—Poland depends on foreign grain. The infrastructure of the country is weak, and there is drastic contrast between rich and poor. Kiezun is optimistic about the new leadership of Deputy Prime Minister Mieczyslaw Rakowsky, head of labor affairs, whom he says is highly respected for his integrity.

His appointment is a sign that the corruption of the centralized government—who promised equal sharing of the wealth but lived extravagantly—is a thing of the past.

Kiezun said the Soviet Union will not invade Poland and their differences can be negotiated. "Historically, Russia has only attacked weak, under-developed nations. If they should come into Poland the war would be short—three or four days—and bloody. It would be followed by a permanent guerilla war," he stated.

Chilly Willy's Wild Kingdom

Any similarities in this publication between fictional characters and real people, living or dead, is a heck of a coincidence.

April Fool! April Fool! April Fool!

Dear Willy,

I am a 20-year-old sophomore at IUPUI. My problem is that I've never "done it" with a girl. I have tried everything to get my current girlfriend Pam to "do it" with me. I just can't seem to have any luck. Do you have any suggestions?

Luckless Larry

Dear Larry,

You say that you are 20 years old and have never "done it!" My God: I can't believe it. I certainly hope that Larry is not your real name. I would be embarrassed to admit to your particular malady. Just the same, I have your solution. Take your girlfriend out on a picnic. Make it's some out-of-the-way spot where nobody will disturb you. Then get her drunk! You will be amazed at how agreeable your girl will be with a couple of bottles of Jack Daniels in her! I have used this technique many times.

Dear Willy,

I have a terrible problem. My boyfriend, Larry, keeps pressuring me to "do it" with him. I tell him that I'll have to have both rings before that will happen. He doesn't seem to understand my feelings on the subject. He tells me that a man has to "do it" a lot or he will turn "funny." What should I do? I love him and don't want to lose him. Please help me!

Pressured Pam

Dear Pam,

I am very proud of you! It takes a girl of very rare and incredible moral fortitude to maintain her beliefs in today's "loose" society. Your boyfriend is obviously not sensitive to your moral strength. I suggest that the two of you go off together for an afternoon alone. You could both present your views without the complications of city life. Perhaps a picnic would be nice. The two of you could have lunch and maybe a bottle of Jack Daniels or two would make things easier. Write and tell me how things work out. I care.

Dear Willy,

I am a normal, well-adjusted male homosexual. I have been at IUPUI for two years, having transferred here from San Francisco State. My problem is that I cannot find any male friends who are similarly inclined. What can I do?

Brucie-Woocie

Dear Bruce,

I would suggest suicide. You are a sick person. Perhaps with counseling you could become normal, but I doubt it. Scientists have proved that homosexuality is a genetic defect. It is caused by warped DNA molecules. The DNA molecules tend to chase the RNA molecules in the body! This accounts for your disgusting behavior. (Did you know that the Eskimos put their homosexuals on ice floats and set them adrift in the Artic Ocean?) So there is no hope for you. I have a gun you could borrow or perhaps you could proposition a policeman or something.

Dear Willy,

I am truly heartbroken. I have found out that my fiancée is not as innocent as I originally thought. At my bachelor party the other night we showed a "stag" film. The female star was my fiancée!! I was shocked and deeply hurt. To top it off, all of the guys were asking me for her phone number! What can I do?

Deflated Dan

Dear Dan,

This one really threw me for a loop! I assume that you have not talked to her about it yet. I would do so immediately. Then the two of you should come to see me. I am a qualified counselor on matters like this. Send your fiancée to see me alone for the first few visits. Perhaps the first 10 or 20 sessions alone with me will solve your problems. Send her soon because my girlfriend is out of town and I am lonely. Hurry. I care.

To the Editor:

I would personally like to thank the people that put rocking chairs in the classrooms for the 21,000 of us that are over 65. It was such a nice touch. Now I can knit and rock while listening to my marketing lectures. I would also like to commend the new 15-minute nap policy. Those 15 minutes I get to nod off in the middle of the lecture refresh me for the last half of the period. I'm glad everyone gets to take a nap and the instructor stops lecturing while we're sleeping. Always before I would miss part of the lecture because I dozed off. Keep up the good work.

Granny

To the Editor:

Personally, I am sick and tired of IUPUI. There is nothing to do here, the traditional college age is well past 25 and this newspaper sucks rocks. I wouldn't be so bad, but I'm only 19 and all my classes look like geriatric wards. Really, those senior citizens have got to go. As far as something to do, why aren't there any bars or liquor stores within walking distance? Don't these people know there's more to college life than getting an education. And this rag is the poorest excuse for a newspaper I've ever seen; you don't even cover the IU basketball games.

Assistance Available

by JoAnn Shanks

IUPUI students may now seek free legal assistance through the Law School and Dr. Mannan, Dean of Student Services. Staffed by Dr. Frandsen and senior year law students, the Legal Referral System will be available on Fridays from 1:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. in Room 202 of the Law School and will, according to Frandsen, either confirm the existence of a legal problem or tell the student it's not worth pursuing, and why.

The organization, however, does not handle litigation, but rather refers students to proper legal counsel. Those students needing an attorney's services but unable to afford it may contact the Legal Services Organization or the Legal Aid Society of Indianapolis. The Indianapolis Bar Association also provides referral services.

Initiated in the Student Assembly during December, the Legal Referral System will hear landlord-tenant disputes, automobile accidents, and other problems normal to student's daily living. Because many students sign contracts, Dr. Mannan encourages students to seek advice before signing contracts. If enough students utilize the referral system, at the end of this semester some other alternatives might be explored for the future. As Mannan states "it's up to the students and Student Assembly to make it work."

Blistering Balls Recruited

by Ann Filler
The IUPUI Athletic Department has announced that Bob "Blistering Balls" Bunnell has become the baseball team's first-ever blue-chip recruit.
Bunnell boasts the best record ever compiled in New York high school annals.

When told of his full-ride scholarship, Bunnell sobbed.
"basaboll hab bin bedy, bedy gud do me." Bunnell's blazing speed on the ball mutilates catcher's mitts, while his bulky frame wears potholes in the mound. "I be bedy bedy bad on da rubbers," he admits. Blessed with bionic biceps, "Bunny," said to be quite a playboy off the field, once hurled a 54-inning marathon game.

IUPUI waged a bitter recruiting battle with East Shroudsburg Lying in State College of Mortuary Science over Bunnell's Talents. After signing with IUPUI, Bunnell said he came here because their program was "dead" while IUPUI's was resurrecting itself.

Tucker swallows basketball

by Ann Filler
Yes, she did it again!
Women's basketball coach,
Kathy Tucker swallowed another basketball during halftime of last week's game. After the stunt proved to be very popular last year, Tucker was approached to repeat the feat this season for documentation by Ripley's "Believe It or Not."
The Guinness Book of World Records is said to be interested in talking with Tucker, who swallows the ball just like a snake eats a mouse.

Once again, the ball will have to be surgically removed at a later date. Tucker insists she can wait awhile, and that all the excess weight and inches aren't too much of a hassle. "No, it doesn't really bother me," she insists, "but I keep myself off roller coasters and sea-going ships though."

It is uncertain whether Tucker will try for three in a row next year.

presently touring the United States.

The eight member band will introduce the New Song Movement Friday, April 3 at 8 p.m. in the cafeteria of the Union Building. The concert will be sponsored by the Indiana Arts Commission and the Universitarios Hispanos. "The New Song," a term adopted throughout Latin America for a certain kind of modern music, is a blend of traditional melodies and rhythms and modern musical technology. The movement, which avoids vulgarity, centers around contemporary problems and concerns of today's societies.

"Haciendo Punto En Otro Son" performs regularly in Puerto Rico and has traveled to several Latin American countries as well as many cities in the U.S. This will be their first Indianapolis appearance.
Although there is no director or musical arranger, the group collectively arranges their music and has already released six Lp's which will be available only at their concerts.

Tickets for Friday's concert are $3.50 per student and $5 per

Wanna catch women? Read on

In order to be outrageously successful with women, one must analyze all the torment and torture this activity will involve. Anyone can date a member of the opposite sex or even have an affair, but in order to be outrageously successful there are several pseudo-norms one must abide by.

Male-female relationships are becoming more complicated as women are becoming more educated. Men must always be one step ahead. In order for the male to understand the female, he must first play mature psychologist. He has to anticipate every action a woman takes. Let's face it, most women have a small piece of brain lodged somewhere in their skulls.

Another dominating factor in male-female relationships is arguments. Arguments are healthy and are bound to happen. Women are blessed with the talent of being extremely confident. No matter what the disagreement is about, she always the supreme authority. When she shows signs of stubbornness, don't give an inch. Never concede to a woman or she will win every time. Even if you feel like crawling into a hole and dying: Don't. Just keep smiling and repeat the chorus to "I Want a Girl Just Like the Girl That Married Dear Old Dad."

If the female supports the Equal Rights Amendment, make her open her own doors, light her own cigarettes, pay her own movie admission. If the opportunity to be a gentleman is non-existent then save your strength for more important events such as Sunday afternoon football. However, if you believe in equality, let her watch the games with you, but make it clear that she must bring the beer.

Candy, flowers, Hallmark cards, and other gifts are surprises that women go nuts over. If you are trying to win a woman's heart but are not sure how to do it, "say it with a Hallmark." For fifty cents you can express your feelings through the words written by a 60's left-over that still lives in Greenwich Village. Flower giving is a cute little ritual that goes along with the dating territory. Don't make a habit of giving such gifts, or she will expect them regularly.

Being outrageously successful with women can be very complicated. Outlined above are a few basic do's and don'ts of courtships. Live by these hints as if they were your Bible. Sleep with a copy of them under your pillow. Make several photocopies and wallpaper your bathroom with them and then maybe you too can become outrageously successful with women.

IUPUI MVP majored in a sport for every letter in alphabet

by Ann Filler

P.K. Nellum was chosen IUPUI MVP of the year at the recent athletic banquet. The senior all-star, a native of Plainfield, is the most active athlete in the school's history, earning letters in archery, badminton, rowing, bob-sled, baseball, basketball, cycling, curling, chess, cross-country, croquet, crew, darts, diving, decathlon, equestrian arts, epee, football, fencing, figure skating, foosball, fishing, golf, gymnastics, ice hockey, jogging, jai alai, karate, kickball, luge, lacrosse, marathoning, mountain climbing, nerfball, olympic torch carrying, ping pong, pentathlon, polo, quarter-midget racing, racquetball, riflery, soccer, sailing, speed skating, skiing, swimming, softball, tennis, track and field, underwater sex, volleyball, wrestling, x-tra pointing, yachting, and zig-zag zippering.

Around IUPUI, Nellum is known as "the Flash," but it is not clear whether he got this nickname for his speed on the basepaths or for his recent arrest outside Ball Residence Hall.

Officer Dork spills dope

The Eromagas recognizes its responsibility to bring the university administration and students closer together. This time the Gas interviews Dave Dork of the Campus Cops Dept. Officer Dork has been with the department for four years and was picked for this interview by Campus Cops Chief N.S. Ertion. Chief Ertion picked Officer Dork because he represented the average campus cop. Roving reporter Bill Williams caught up with Officer Dork just after his duty shift.

Gas: Hello, Officer Dork. Or can I call you Dave?

DD: Call me Officer Dork or Your Excellency, or Extremely High Omnipotent Dork!

Gas: Okay! Well Officer Dork, what is your favorite duty assignment?

DD: I like parking lot duty the most. I get to walk around the parking lots and look at all the great cars the students drive. I also carry an over/under car break-in tool with me that can open any car in less than 10 seconds.

Gas: That's a good idea. I bet students that get locked out of their cars appreciate your helping them.

DD: Well, Bill, I carry it around so that if I see any good stuff in the cars I can break in in less than 10 seconds and get it!

Gas: But, Officer Dork, isn't breaking into student's cars like that against the law?

DD: No! Taking the stuff from the cars might be illegal, but the campus police can break into any car they want to.

Gas: Now, Officer Dork, regular police can't do that. They can't even search your car when they stop you without your consent. How do you guys rate special privileges?

DD: Well, Bill, it's a Campus Cops rule that allow us to do that. We don't need owner permission or search warrants.

All we need is just cause. That means if we are just slightly suspicious we can break into a car.

Gas: What makes you "slightly suspicious?"

DD: Well, I get suspicious when I see a lot of good cassette tapes in a car. You can never tell when someone might hide marijuana in a tape. I usually take several and test them in my own car stereo to see if they are real cassettes. If they are I keep them for further testing at home.

Gas: Have you ever found marijuana in a cassette?

DD: No, but I hope to! On my salary I can't afford many frills in life. If I found a lot of dope in a car I could give it to some people who would give me money for it.

Gas: Officer Dork, we are getting away from the question concerning breaking into cars. How many students are aware of this rule that allows you to break into their cars?

DD: I'd say that about 99.999 percent of the students don't know about this rule. If they did, they would not be too thrilled.

Gas: I am not too thrilled. I don't think that other students will be either.

DD: Well, Bill, the University doesn't care about what students think. You should know that by now.

Gas: Uh-humm, yes. Let's talk about parking tickets and towing cars now. Why do you give out parking tickets?

DD: I give them out mainly to harass students. I don't get any commission on them, so I give them out as my mood dictates. If I'm in a bad mood or the Chief chews me out, I give tickets to everyone. Sometimes I put them on cars that are not breaking any rules at all! If the students don't like it they can appeal it. Of course the appeal process is rigged! Only one in 10,000 cases will win an appeal. Even if they have dozens of witnesses or photos! It just can't be done.

Gas: Have you or any of the other officers given any other kinds of incorrect tickets?

DD: Sure! All the time! Most of us don't know all of the parking regulations so that happens a lot. Why just last week I gave a lady a ticket for parking in front a building with a green permit. She also had a "loading permit," whatever that is. She came out and said her "loading permit" allowed her to park there. She wanted me to take back her ticket!

Gas: What did you do?

DD: I said "Tough Tacos, Toots! Appeal it!"

Gas: That's a pretty rough answer to give to a lady. There have been other charges of brutality against the students. Do you think that they are justified?

DD: No, Bill, I don't think so. Being a policeman is a hard job. We are under a lot of pressure on the job. Beating up an occasional student is a great way to release our own tensions. Even roughing them up a little helps a lot!

Gas: Gosh, Officer Dork that doesn't sound right to me. What would you do to me if I received a parking ticket or got caught jaywalking?

DD: I'd pull you out of your car, throw you up against it real hard, make you "assume the position" and slap you down to make sure that you weren't carrying any weapons or drugs. Then I'd search your wallet for illegal substances. If I didn't find any, I'd confiscate any money or credit cards you might be carrying to keep them safe.

Gas: I see. I suppose I would get my money and credit cards back then?

DD: Well, if they didn't get "lost" you would.

Gas: That's very interesting. Can you tell me about the radar gun the department recently acquired?

DD: It's the greatest thing to hit this campus since coeds! I sit down on Bright Street hiding behind the houses clocking the cars on Michigan St. Whenever someone drives by at 31 miles-per-hour I pull him over to give him a ticket.

Gas: You certainly don't allow much room for error. The speed limit is 30 miles per hour. Why such a small margin?

Gas: That's an admirable attitude. Do the officers receive any revenue from these tickets?

DD: No, Bill, we don't. But people have been known to slip us a few bucks to not give them a ticket. If you gave me $5, $10, or $20, depending on the kind of car you drive, I might just let you go scot-free. Of course a Volkswagen might get by on $5 or $10. Unless it was a Rabbit diesel or a Jeda. Now a continental or Mercedes Benz owner might give me a hundred bucks to forget the incident.

Gas: That's real interesting. Do you guys need any help on speed patrol?

DD: No, Bill. We've been signed up for that for two years in advance! We all know about the extra money we can earn on that job! And you never can tell when an extra hundred bucks could come in handy. During "rush hour" you can pull over five, ten, maybe even twenty cars with a potential profit of around $10 a car. That's big money to me.

Gas: Tell us, Officer Dork, what is it really like to be a campus cop? What do you guys do other than give out parking tickets and harass students?

DD: Most people think we don't do anything around here. Why, I sit around here watching coeds go by and I conduct routine searches of their bodies. I usually search one out of every 10 coeds that walk by me unless they are ugly. The ugly ones I let go, the well-endowed ones are all searched. A lady with big ones can take five minutes to pat down. You can't be too sure they're not hiding something.

Gas: I would be glad to help you do that. I could squeeze in a couple of hours a day for the department.

DD: No thanks, Bill. We have to practically fight each other for this duty. We call it coed patrol and it is usually booked up six months in advance! Sometimes we have to bribe the assignments officer to do it during registration. Especially during Fall Registration when the coeds wear halter tops and hot pants. We make them remove the tops to check for plastic explosives. You can't be too sure now a days.

Gas: Are there any other duties that you like to be assigned?

DD: We like the night patrol because we get to hunt stray dogs. Those little buggers are really crafty! Sometimes it takes two or three bullets to kill 'em. That is real fun. Of course they are not as smart as man, but we don't get to shoot people very often.

Gas: Officer Dork, thank you for your time. This has been an enlightening experience for me.

DD: Well, thank you Bill. By the way, how much do I get paid for this?

Gas: We don't pay for interviews.

DD: Well, then could I interest you in some hubcaps for your car?

Gas: I don't need any hubcaps.

DD: You will in about five minutes!

Gas: ...Officer Dork!... Come back here!...

SIAMESE TWINS TO JOIN Metros

by Ann Filler

In a startling announcement, IUPUI Athletics has announced that controversial high school All-American basketball players Lem and Garl Land have signed a national letter of intent to play for the Metros.

Land, Siamese twins joined at the posterior, has caused rampant disagreement in the high school ranks for the past three years. In an unprecedented case, the U.S. Supreme Court two years ago ruled that Land is a "single entity" as far as athletics are concerned. The Supreme Court decision overturned rulings by the Indiana High School Athletic Association (IHSAA), Marion County Circuit Court, Indiana State Appeals Court, the 10th District Federal Court, and the U.S. Court of Appeals, all of which determined Land to be two players.

Words like "unstoppable" have been used to describe this Indiana All-Star center, who guided his Indianapolis Technical Foul prep team to the state finals the past two years.

In 1980, Tech lost the title to Kewanna High after Land fouled out. But this past spring, the "Land of the titans" cameback to lead his undefeated squad to the 1981 state championship.

"He is a gigantic talent - what the pros call a 'franchise maker,'" raves elated IUPUI coach K.J. Underhanded, who is already predicting future NAIA titles. His resence on the team will encourage other all-stars to come to IUPUI, and he will really draw the crowds in to our games. Everywhere he goes, people flock in droves to see him play."

Last season the 6'11" (Lem's side) and 6'10 1/2" (Garl's side) 290 lb. Land scored an average of 74.6 ppg on a variety of one-two-three-and four-handed shots. Although he usually works underneath, where he has been known to pass the ball over his head to his other side, he is an excellent perimeter shooter as well. He is almost sure-fire on offense therefore connecting on over 82 percent of his attempts from the field. Land also converted on 84 percent of his tries at the free throw line. He went to the charity stripe a record-shattering number of times last year. "He's fouled all the time," says Underhanded. "Because even if Garl has the ball, Lem can be fouled. And if Garl was in the act of shooting, it would still be a two-shot foul."

The versatile, and surprisingly mobile, Land also hauled down nearly 38 rebounds a game in his senior year. "He's pretty unbeatable on the offensive board, because there's twice as many hands in there fighting for tip-ins," explains his high school mentor, Rick "Rooting" Violations, coach of Indianapolis Technical Foul. "And if one of his sides misses a layup, the other side is right there to tap it in."

His off-ball movements are stunning. He sets a mean screen, and opposing players claim that Land "picks like a Kenworth." With all his own offensive prowess, he is still unselfish. He will draw the defense, then feed the ball in unbelievable ways to open teammates.

Defensively, Land has been labeled a "monster." "you simply can't get the ball inbounds against him, you can't see with all those arms waving at you," an ex-opponent wails. "He ties you up in knots," cries another, "and when he does, well, you just don't know what frustration is until you've been in a jump ball situation that fr-er, Lem and Garl Land."

"When he positions himself underneath the defensive board, he takes up the whole lane," fumes a coach at an Indianapolis high school. "With that kind of body to block out, he grabs those rebounds every time."

Although opponents like these have been screaming "unfair" for the past several years, the humble Land is more than a bit embarrassed over all the hoopla that surrounds him. He especially resents the media calling him the "perfect" or "ultimate" player. "I'm not perfect," Land insists. "I make my share of turnovers. I really have to be careful when I inbound the ball so one of my feet doesn't step on the line."

"We think we slow down a fast break a little too much," both chime in, "and we have to work on co-ordinating our dribbling. We don't do all that bad at bring the ball up court for as big as we are, but we think we can do better."

According to one coach, whose team fell to Land in the tournament the Lem-Garl combination is practically impossible to defend against. Said the disgruntled coach, "You just can't defend him man-to-man - you don't have enough men on your own team to do that. And sooner or later, he eats up a zone, even a sagging box-on-one won't work. If you try to concentrate solely on him, his teammates will be open at all times and that can rip you apart too."

Land has had a foul problem, particularly in his junior prep campaign. But he did improve his senior year. After his foul plagued junior year, his coach petitioned the IHSAA to allow Lem and Garl 8 fouls before disqualification. The IHSAA denied the request, but IUPUI coach Underhanded reveals that the National Intercollegiate Athletic Association (NAIA) may permit Land to have the 8 fouls due to "the peculiar circumstances."

Off-court, Land is a model student-leader - "two heads are better than one," quips Garl. He (they) have not yet decided on a major, but is (are) leaning toward a career in genetic research.

When queried about a future in professional basketball, Land just smiled. "I've been approached to turn pro right now, but I intend to stay all four years at IUPUI."

Are you being ripped off by high prices?

The Eromagas presents another article in the series of interviews with campus administration. These articles are a means for students and administration to understand each other. This interview is with Matthew Mark, head of campus food service. He is responsible for all of the delicious meals available in the cafeterias and delicatessens here at IUPUI.

Gas: Mr. Mark, you have an interesting name. Both your first and last names come from Biblical characters. I imagine most people would automatically assume you to be a righteous, totally honest man with a Biblical-type past.

MM: That's very true. Most people do trust me. It has been very helpful to my career.

Gas: How is that?

MM: Well, I have been able to overcharge people in business. Just look at the prices you pay for food in the delicatessens on campus. Where else can you get food at three to four times the current price of stores or other restaurants? Most people do not see our signs that "all prices are by the half pound." The idiots are paying $9.50 a pound for roast beef, $5 for bologna and $4-$5 for cheese. And the prices in the cafeteria lines are just as high.

Gas: How can you get away with this rape of the students' pocketbooks? Can't we do anything about it?

MM: Hell no! We have a legal monopoly here. We can stick it to you until you bleed. We always have, we always will. Most of the students are so stupid that they would pay any price before they bring their lunch. Besides, what are their alternatives? Modern Vending's food is a joke! It's cheap. But then so is arsenic! They could take the shuttle downtown to eat, but most students don't have time between classes. We know that. It's one of the reasons our prices are so outrageously high. I bet you would never guess who is behind the push to raise the shuttle's fare or stop the service altogether. I'll give two guesses. We lose hundreds of dollars a day to McDonald's downtown because the office workers on campus go there. We are currently negotiating with the administration to reduce employees' lunch breaks to 20 minutes. A donation of only $10,000 to the right person would be recouped in less than a month.

Gas: I cannot believe you would do that! You could use that $10,000 to improve the quality of the food you serve.

MM: What? Spend money on you jerks? No way! You'll eat trash and like it! You do not have a choice and it would pay you to remember that. Any more outbursts like that and I'll raise prices another fifty percent then you will really have something to complain about! Some of the other morons might even notice how bad we are taking them too!

Gas: I am terribly sorry, Your Omnipotence.

MM: That's more like it! Do you have any other questions before I go count our incredible profits?

Gas: Yes, sir. Speaking of profits, would you give us a hint of last years' net income for campus food service?

MM: You are certainly a nosy little brat. But since you asked me so politely, I will. Our "bottom line" last year was well over eight figures. That is more money than most of you slobs will every even dream about. Of course, I personally get an extremely hefty commission of that figure. You can see why I like to see the prices so high. Even the idiots that read this article should be able to understand this. Though I doubt that they will ever grasp the idea of how bad we rip them off.

Gas: One last question and we will be done. Do you eat here at one of the campus food service outlets?

MM: Are you crazy? I have a wife and three kids. What would they do if something happened to me? Two of them are in college. Of course they go to Bloomington where all the profits "up here" go to. It costs a lot to send them there. I can't afford to eat here!

Gas: Thank you Mr. Matthew Mark, head of campus food services. We appreciate your volunteering your time for this interview.

MM: Volunteering? You mean I don't get paid? Prices will go up 10 percent because of this Williams. You are gonna' pay and pay and pay and pay....

Busing discussed by Judge M. V. Villain

Occasionally the Eromagas likes to tell you about community affairs. This article concerns a topic of major importance to our readers: Busing. The most prominent figure in the Indianapolis desegregation plan is Judge My View Villain. As a service to our readers we sent roving reporter Bill Williams to interview Judge Villain.

Gas: Good morning your honor. I'm Bill Williams with the Eromagas.

MVV: Could you come back in a few minutes? My secretary is taking dictation right now.

Gas: But I don't see her.

MVV: She is under the desk right now. She dropped her notebook.

Gas: I'll be back later.

Later that day

Gas: Judge Villain I think everyone is interested in busing to achieve racially-integrated schools today. Can you give us your views on that subject?

MVV: Well, Bill, I don't give a damn one way or the other about it. But what I don't like is when these school board people think that they don't have to abide by my decisions. Who do they think they are? In this town I am like God! You know? I have been thinking about throwing these jerks in the slammer for a few decades. That would teach them who is boss in this town.

Gas: It sure would. Why has it taken so long to achieve racial integration here in Indianapolis?

MVV: One of the reasons is that the school boards outside of Indianapolis have fought me in court for so long. Of course I could "fix" it so that I would win. You see we judges stick together and a lot of judges "owe me one."

Gas: Well, why don't you do that?

MVV: Because then I would never get any press here in this town. The more newspaper coverage that I get, the more powerful I become. The ladies just love to be seen with someone like me. And corporations and businesses alike all do "favors" for me. Things like that add up to a substantial amount of savings for me. If they buy me lunch, I save a few bucks. Do you catch my drift?

Gas: Of course! Do you see this dispute over busing being resolved anytime in the near future?

MVV: No way, Bill! I'm having too much fun and I love to see my name in print. If I'm lucky this could take another 10 years. It could really help my career.

Gas: How could this help your career?

MVV: It could possibly catapult me into one of the Chief Justice positions in the Supreme Court. If people complain enough about my action here in Indianapolis, Senator Lugar might get me nominated for a spot. Those guys have really got it made. They can be senile, mentally disabled or incompetent and still have a job. A man has to think of his retirement years you know. I'd be taken care of for life.

Gas: I can understand that. Thank you for your time, Judge Villain.

MVV: How much do I get paid for this? Is it an honorarium or just a free lunch?

Gas: We can't afford to pay you. However, you have our gratitude.

MVV: How would you like to spend the rest of your life in jail? I could arrange that.

Gas: Would the Teller's Cage be acceptable to you?

MVV: Sure! Let's go.

OUTSTANDING ACHIEVEMENT DESERVES SPECIAL RECOGNITION

Annually, the Student Assembly sponsors an Honors Banquet where recognition is given to those students, faculty and administrators who have worked hard to make IUPUI a better place to get an education.

The Student Assembly Honors Day Committee is seeking nominations for the William Garrett Awards for students, the Lola Lohse Award for faculty, and the Top Administrator and Outstanding Educator Award. Nomination forms and criteria are available in the Student Assembly Office, CA 001C, the Student Activities Office, CA 322, and in the Student Affairs Offices of schools and divisions.

Keynote speaker for this year's banquet is John Kraus, Director of Development for the City of Indianapolis.
