COME SATURDAY MORNINGS, KIDS CAN TURN OFF CARTOONS, COME TO IUPUI

Two programs at IUPUI -- one a venerable institution reaching back to the century's start, the other a veritable four-year-old "upstart" -- attract youngsters to explore their creativity in the visual and performing arts. The Saturday School of the Herron School of Art, established in 1902 when Herron was a private art school, attracts junior high and senior high school students for 10 Saturdays from 9 a.m. to noon. The Saturday School in Theatre, now in its fourth year, aims its sights on children in grades 2-9 (and older).

The Herron program, which runs concurrently with the IUPUI academic year, includes classes in ceramics, basic drawing, and in perspective, portrait and figure drawing, jewelry, painting, photography, portfolio review, printmaking, etching, silkscreen, sculpture, watercolor and papermaking for students in grades 7-12. Registration for the spring semester will be Feb. 3 from 9-10:30 a.m. in the Museum Building auditorium. A general tuition of $80 allows students to register for one course each semester. Attendees with scholarships from their schools can enroll for $60. Program director is Lance Baber, associate professor of art education. For information, call 923-3651.

Meanwhile, back at the main campus, adults and children can clown around together as other young people get on with some serious and not-so-serious acting when the Saturday School in Theatre at IUPUI also starts Feb. 3. Creative drama or acting is offered to young people in grades 2-9 while the clowning class is open to people in grades 3 through adult and is especially fun for parents and children, as well as for grandparents and grandchildren. The School offers five separate classes taught by professional men and women in theater and drama, under the direction of headmistress Marita Scherer. She will teach Acting I for students in grades 6-7. Acting II for students in grades 8-9 will be taught by Tim Leonard. Professional clown Barry (Bingo) Hardy will teach the clowning class, including mime, make-up and movement. Children in grades 4-5 need no previous acting experience to enjoy the improvisational setting in the creative drama class taught by Nancy Eddy. Last, there's creative drama for youngsters in grades 2-3 who are taught by Sandra Hartlieb. All classes begin in the morning on Saturdays and run for 10 weeks. The cost is $62 for each class. To register, or for more information, call the IUPUI Division of Continuing Studies, 4-3426.

RECEPTION TO CELEBRATE BOOK PUBLICATION

A book about pre-revolutionary Russia by Scott J. Seregny, associate professor of history, has been published by the Indiana University Press. Russian Teachers and Peasant Revolution, The Politics of Education in 1905 is, according to William G. Rosenberg, "the first study in any language of the crucial social 'link' in rural Russia between broader society...and the people..." According to the IU Press, the book "chronicles the remarkable emergence in Russia, within the decade after 1895, of a modern professional movement uniting rural teachers...The events of 1905 thrust rural teachers into the vortex of peasant revolution which, paradoxically, threatened the teachers' status while holding out the promise of furthering democratization and political reform." To mark the book's publication, the history department has planned a reception for Jan. 26 at 4 p.m. in Cavanaugh, room 507. Friends, colleagues and interested persons are invited.

INFANT MORTALITY UPDATE ON CHANNEL 8 TUESDAY

WISH-TV will re-examine the infant mortality issue at 8 p.m. Jan. 23 in an hour-long news special built around the station's first initiative, "A Loss of Innocents," which was broadcast nearly a year ago. The update will cover new clinics in Marion County, the importance of early and regular prenatal care, as well as new information on the impact of drug abuse by pregnant women. A live panel discussion, including several campus experts, will focus on the current availability of public prenatal and early childhood care, as well as the status of the Indianapolis Campaign for Healthy Babies. "Familiar faces" will include Dr. Patricia A. Keener, professor of pediatrics, director of pediatric services at Wishard and medical director of the Campaign; Dr. Alan M. Golichowsky, associate professor of obstetrics and gynecology; Joanne B. Martin, assistant professor of nursing and member of the Campaign's advisory board, and Dr. Eric A. Yancy, Indianapolis pediatrician and clinical instructor in pediatrics. A major purpose of the program is to kick off publicity for the Marion County Health Department's Mother/Baby Healthline, the public link to health care and social issues.

FINANCIAL AID IN FOCUS

Next week is Financial Aid Awareness Week, but this week students who need to apply for assistance for the 1990-91 academic year can be aware early by stopping by a variety of campus sites to pick up informational packets. Here are the locales:

Jan. 22: 10-11:30 a.m. at School of Nursing; 11 a.m.-1 p.m. at Food Court at University Place Hotel; 4-5:30 p.m. at School of Nursing

Jan. 23: 9-11 a.m. at Nursing; 11 a.m.-1:30 p.m. at Herron School of Art; 11 a.m.-1 p.m. at Food Court; 4-5 p.m. at Nursing

Jan. 24: 9-10:30 a.m. at 38th Street campus; 11 a.m.-1 p.m. at Food Court; 4-6 p.m. at 38th Street campus

Jan. 25: 9:30-11 a.m. at 38th Street campus; 11 a.m.-1 p.m. at Food Court; 4-6 p.m., at 38th Street campus

Jan. 26: 11 a.m.-1 p.m. at Union Building

During Financial Aid Awareness Week (Jan. 29-Feb. 2) students and parents may call the Indiana Student Financial Aid Association's Hotline, 1-800-992-2076, to get help in completing their Financial Aid Form. You may call from 9 a.m.-9 p.m. Monday through Friday. Then, Feb. 4 comes "College Goal Sunday" from 2-4 p.m. at several sites across Indiana. Students and parents may bring their tax information (filed returns or W2 statements) to a site closest to them and get help in completing the Financial Aid Form for the 1990-91 school year. Financial aid professionals have volunteered their help. To find out more about this program, or the nearest site to you, call the hotline or the IUPUI Office of Scholarships and Financial Aid, 4-4162.

KEATING COMPETITION OPEN -- College students interested in writing careers may enter the 1990 Thomas R. Keating Feature Writing Competition awarding scholarships of up to $1,000. Open to all freshman through junior year students at Indiana colleges, the annual competition honors the late Tom Keating, who was an Indianapolis Star columnist for 14 years. Keating, who also taught at IUPUI, died in 1985. The competition is sponsored by the School of Journalism here, the Indianapolis Press Club and the Indianapolis Society of Professional Journalists. To enter, students must submit three original nonfiction human interest stories by Mar. 1. Judges will select 10 finalists for a feature writing seminar in Indianapolis April 6-7. For information, call School of Journalism, 4-2773.

IUPUI BASKETBALL BANDWAGON GEARING UP

The Metro Athletic Club and the IU Alumni Association are co-sponsoring two away trips to big games on the men's basketball schedule. First off is a Feb. 1 trip to Louisville for the IUPUI v. Bellarmine (NCAA Division II) game and on Feb. 15 to Upland for the IUPUI v. Taylor game. (Taylor is numero uno in the NAIA District 21 Top 20.) Bus capacity is 45 for each trip. The Bellarmine trip costs $30 which covers a box dinner, parking in the East Garage, game tickets, refreshments and transportation. The bus for Louisville will leave a 4:45 p.m. sharp from the University Place Conference Center and return before midnight. For info, call Barry Smith in the alumni office, 4-8959. More about the Taylor trip in the next Green Sheet.

AWARDS CAP MARTIN LUTHER KING CELEBRATION

Three students and an Indianapolis minister were honored Jan. 15 during the 19th Annual Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., Dinner and Awards Ceremony at the West End. Kevin Baxter, a junior business student, received the Dr. Joseph T. Taylor Academic Award. He is vice president of the IUPUI Minorities in Business student organization. Tyrone Artis, a senior in the School of Engineering and Technology, received the I Have A Dream Award. Barbara Shields, a senior in the School of Business, was presented with the Advocate of the Dream Award. The Black Student Union also honored the Rev. James R. Bradley Sr. with the Drum Major Instinct Award. Rev. Bradley, who delivered the dinner's invocation, is pastor of First Baptist North Church.

The evening capped a successful celebration of the holiday that began with a prayer breakfast at the Madame Walker Urban Life Center and continued in the afternoon with a crowd enjoying Chicago's Kumba Theatre. Writer Maya Angelou held the sellout dinner audience of more than 500 spellbound as she recollected her past and talked about everyone's future.

WELCOME TO THE WRITING CENTER

Cavanaugh 427
274-2049

The University Writing Center provides tutoring for all kinds of writing needs. Whether you have an essay, report, research paper, poem, short story, or resume, the Writing Center can help. Our staff consists of writing faculty and English major tutors. All of us are good writers and friendly critics, and we are ready to help you find ways to improve your writing at any stage of the writing process.

The services of the Writing Center are available to the entire IUPUI community. Faculty and staff, graduate students, and students of all disciplines are invited to bring any writing project to the Writing Center for help with finding a topic, focusing, organizing, writing, revising, improving mechanical skills, and overcoming writer's block.

While we don't provide a proofreading service, we will work with students who want to improve their own editing and proofreading abilities. Our instructors are trained to work with students who have special needs, including non-native English speakers. We also can help students format and document research papers. Our expansive library provides guidelines and models for all kinds of writing.

If you would like to improve your writing with a visit to the Writing Center, these simple guidelines will help:

-Call and make an appointment. Drop-ins will be accommodated if possible, but by mid-semester most appointment slots are filled a day or more in advance. Please call to cancel if you cannot come to the appointment.

-Come in while we can still help you. If you bring a final draft, we won't be able to work on improving the paper.

-Bring your assignment sheet, notes, or any instructions for the project.

-Be ready to work with your tutor. A Writing Center instructor will work one-on-one with you, so your contribution is essential.

Hours: M 9:00-5:00
T-W 9:00-7:00
R 9:00-5:00
F 9:00-2:00
S 10:00-2:30

The University Writing Center offers several services for students, faculty, and staff. We welcome your participation in any of these activities.

1. Tutorial appointments. Students can call ahead for one-half hour tutorial sessions. A writing sample should be brought to the first meeting with an instructor.
2. Drop-in help. Immediate help is available if appointments do not occupy all instructors. Students may stop by for answers to quick questions.
3. Reference library. The Writing Center has reference books, format and style manuals, dictionaries, thesauruses, composition texts, and dozens of other books on writing. Students may use the books in the Writing Center or check them out for two-week periods.
4. Handouts. The Writing Center has developed handouts on many subjects from punctuation to argumentation. Students may take the handouts as part of their session or as supplementary material to read on their own.
5. Workshops. During the semester the Writing Center offers workshops on various topics for students, faculty, and staff of all disciplines.

Two additional services available to instructors and the community:

1. Traveling teacher. Any IUPUI instructor may request our traveling teacher to assist in a classroom session. Possible topics are essay test preparation, methods for structuring research projects, or specific grammatical or composition problems. Call Barbara Cambridge (274-0092) to explain your needs and to arrange a visit.
2. Writing Center Hotline (274-3000). Members of the community, faculty, staff, or student body may call the Writing Center Hotline for answers to questions about grammar, usage, sentence structure, punctuation, documentation, formats, or any aspect of the writing process. Answering an average of over twenty calls per day from all over the nation, Hotline staff are available Monday through Thursday from 9:00 to 5:00.
