GROUNDBREAKING PREFACES NEW LIBRARY

IUPUI will celebrate the beginning of a new $32 million library with a groundbreaking Aug. 1, with I.U. President Thomas Ehrlich presiding. Beginning with a reception at 10 a.m. in the Lecture Hall lobby, near LE 101, at 10:30 a.m. guests will be seated in the room and will see and hear some of the electronic capabilities expected in the new library. Twice the size and with plans for more than double the volumes of the current library, the novel, 201,491 square-foot five-story structure will have the electronic capability to bind together technology and telecommunication that will link information with students, faculty and the community, as well as to people and computers at universities around the state. "This will be a day to celebrate for all our nearly 27,000 students and more than 2,000 full- and part-time faculty members," said IUPUI Chancellor Gerald L. Bepko, who with others will turn over the earth that begins the three-year project on the site just east of the Business/SPEA Building. Designer of the reinforced concrete structure that will be bound in glass and limestone is Edward Larrabee Barnes/John M. Y. Lee, design architect firm of New York, who placed a glass atrium at the spine, as shown in the photo. Construction bids are expected to be made in August, according to University Architect Ray Casati. The 30-member Committee on the Library raised more than $18 million in private gifts, with Lilly Endowment Inc. providing $12 million and the state of Indiana another $14 million. Joining in the traditional outdoor and technological indoor celebration will be Indiana Governor Evan Bayh, Purdue President Steven C. Beering and library committee chairmen Mayor William H. Hudnut III, Eli Lilly and Co. CEO Richard D. Wood, Chancellor Emeritus Glenn W. Irwin, Jr., M.D. and Director of Libraries Barbara B. Fischler.

MAX*WELL means personal maximum wellness for those on campus who accept the invitation to walk, train and join in the starter fitness class. Call 4-0610 for more on the following programs.

The WALKING PROGRAM requires no registration and is free. It is Mon.-Thurs., leaving promptly at 12:10 p.m. at University Hospital, Krannert Entrance on the west side, and walking for approximately two miles until 12:50 p.m. Walkers can stop anytime or walk longer. Walking shoes are a must. Sandals, high heels or bare feet are not acceptable.

The STARTER FITNESS CLASS requires registration and is on Tuesdays, Aug. 7-28, 12:10-12:50 p.m. in Riley Hospital, room 3088. Bring lunch if you like and join the walkers other days. There is a $5 fee for the class handbook. Enrollment is limited to 30 people.

RILEY ISLANDS TREKS CAN EASE PAIN FOR SMALL PEOPLE

People of all ages can walk the "Children's Trail" at Riley Hospital where "Islands of Interest" have been created for the benefit of children and parents. The islands have been created from items collected from various parts of the world by retired School of Medicine faculty member Rachel Lehman. As features of the Children's Trail at Riley, the Islands include the Micromuseum, Dolls of the World and the Animal Fair, all in specially designed cases. Dr. Morris Green, who envisioned the Children's Trail, said of the project, "In the hospital life of children, there are large, empty chunks of time. Especially on weekends, holidays and in the evenings, one notices many children in bed staring into space that is simply devoid of any special attraction, let alone beauty. Parents may be present, but may have exhausted conversation ideas. With the creation of the "Islands of Interest" on the Children's Trail, patients walking, in wagons or in wheelchairs, can look forward to happy times when someone says, 'Let's take a walk'." He also said that children's hospitals should be places of beauty, that diversions help lessen pain and increase the tolerance for stresses that sick children endure. "We believe that art and music and intriguing objects are more potent mood elevators than any drug we can prescribe," he said. Funds for the $30,000 project were made possible through the Riley Memorial Association from the Indiana chapters of Kappa Kappa Kappa philanthropic sorority.

SIR MARTIN ROTH TO PRESENT GRAND ROUNDS AND LECTURE

Sir Martin Roth, who was knighted in 1972 by Queen Elizabeth II of Great Britain, will speak on campus this week. On July 20 at 11 a.m. he will present grand rounds for the Dept. of Psychiatry on the topic, "Prospectives in the Studies of Panic Disorders and Related Conditions." On July 24 at noon in the conference room of the Institute for Psychiatric Research he presents "Some New Growing Points in the Study of Alzheimer's Disease." Sir Roth is emeritus professor of psychiatry at the University of Cambridge and Fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge. Regarded as one of the world's most distinguished and accomplished psychiatrists, he has prestigious awards for his research into aging and in depressive illness and related disorders. He is a guest and a fellow of the I.U. Institute for Advanced Study at Bloomington. For more, call Eugene E. Levitt, director, Continuing Medical Education for the Dept. of Psychiatry, 4-7325.

NEWS 'N' NOTES FROM HERE 'N' THERE

Calling CP Campers--Children ages 3-12 with cerebral palsy are invited to a summer camp for them, July 23-Aug. 23, sponsored by United Cerebral Palsy of Central Indiana, Inc. For more, call Tara Mirchandani, 783-2576.

New Place--The Midwest Alliance in Nursing has moved to Suite E-3, 2511 East 46th St., Indianapolis 46205. The telephone number is 541-3600, the Fax is 848-7396.

Computer-Eyes--The Optical Shoppe in the Rotary Building on campus can coat your CRT and cut down the glare and eye strain. Children are welcome and you need no appointment. Look for a brochure from the Optical Shoppe and cut the coupon to save $25 on a pair of prescription frames and lenses. Call 4-8360.

Special Hours--University, dentistry, Herron and other libraries have special summer hours through August. Call the libraries for details.

"CAPSTONE" COMMITTEE LOOKING AT BROADER PERSPECTIVE FOR SENIORS

The "real world" of work can be foreign territory for college graduates and to make the transition from classroom to career smoother, IUPUI is joining universities across the nation in developing pre-commencement courses aimed at preparing students for life beyond college. In an effort to get seniors to seek a broader perspective of their educational experiences, a committee of IUPUI faculty members is exploring possibilities for a senior "capstone experience," an initiative proposed by I.U. President Thomas Ehrlich for all eight I.U. campuses. Chairman of the committee is Charles Yokomoto, professor of electrical engineering technology, who said, "Just about every school on campus has courses that can fall under the umbrella of the senior experience." The faculty committee's aim is to get dialogue going across campus about the capstone experience and departmental possibilities for implementation, perhaps within the next year, Yokomoto said. Applied learning in cross-discipline areas, as well as leadership development, personal and practical readiness and social awareness, are among the many areas to be explored. Yokomoto joined other university leaders who discussed the "capstone experience" and related topics at a first-of-its kind national conference in Atlanta last spring.-J. Grim

UNIVERSITY PLACE NOW OFFERS TOTAL CONFERENCE PLANNING

From concept to completion, University Place Conference Center and Hotel now offers turnkey meeting planning as part of its conference planning service. "Even if you come to us with simply an idea for a meeting, we are able now to take over development, promotion, management and administration to finally deliver a complete conference," said John D. Short, director of University Place. The service is an outgrowth of meeting planning offered for the past two years by the Office of Conference Planning, Div. of Continuing Studies. Planning can include corresponding with speakers, arrangements and accommodations, designing and mailing promotional material, registration, paying accounts and providing a final profit/loss statement. Fees are cost-effective, particularly when compared to the cost of hiring extra staff or disrupting regular work flow. Harriet Rodenberg, Casey Maas and Amaryllis Lewis are among the service's staff. For more, call University Place, 4-2700.

SHERRILL EDITS NEW BOOK BY DOZEN SCHOLARS

Twelve religious studies scholars from across the nation discuss in depth the role of religion in American culture in a new book, "Religion and the Life of the Nation: American Recoveries," edited by Rowland A. Sherrill, professor and chairman of the religious studies department at IUPUI. It is the second of three volumes published by the University of Illinois Press and culminates a three-year project at IUPUI, "Religion and the Life of the Nation," supported by Lilly Endowment Inc. "This is about how religion gets into the bloodstream of the culture. Anyone seriously interested in the study of American culture must look at religion, too," Sherrill said. IUPUI has gained national attention as a result of this book and the research and exchange in the Center for the Study of Religion and American Culture that is directed by Conrad Cherry. The book is available at Borders and the Christian Theological Seminary bookstores.-J. Grim

ATHLETES 30 AND MORE CAN STILL ENTER MASTERS TRACK AND FIELD EVENTS

There's a late fee of $25, but athletes 30 years old or older can still enter the TAC/USA National Masters Track and Field Championships Aug. 2-5 at the track and field stadium. About 1,000 people at all levels of fitness are expected to compete. To enter, or for more information, call Heidi Neuberger, meet administrator, 4-3363.

We are Invited to the Eiteljorg

IUPUI SET TO STROLL THROUGH SIBERIA

For the week of Aug. 9-15, we are to be the special guests to a special Smithsonian Institution exhibit at the Eiteljorg Museum, a first-ever sharing project between the United States, the Soviet Union and Canada. During IUPUI's museum week, we will be offered reduced rates of $1 off per ticket and other special treatment. Entitled "Crossroads of Continents," the exhibit lifts the "ice curtain" on Siberia and features more than 600 artifacts--many never before displayed publicly, and it spans 20,000 years of the people, trade and culture of the area of the Bering Strait--the link between the Asian and North American continents. Indianapolis is the only Midwest location for the exhibit that is scheduled for Washington, D.C., Seattle, New York City, Los Angeles, Anchorage, Ottawa and finally through 1998 in Moscow, Leningrad and other cities in the U.S.S.R. Get tickets and plan an "office walk" or a family outing to the Eiteljorg at 500 West Washington St. Your Aug. 5 Green Sheet will have more information, or call Donna Menchhoffer, 4-8251.

GERSTING GOES HAWAIIAN Judith L. Gersting, professor of computer and information science in the School of Science will be a visiting professor in the department of computer science at the University of Hawaii at Hilo, Aug. 15 through May, 1991. She will teach and help develop a computer science program at Hilo for accreditation, as well as a graduate program in software engineering. Her experiences at Hilo will aid the School of Science as it develops a software engineering program next year.

FINALLY...

...Beverly C. Flynn, professor of nursing, School of Nursing, typifies faculty and staff who serve the university and community. As director of "Healthy Cities Indiana," a consortium of cities working to improve community health, she recently held a statewide network session to discuss hometown projects. Children in cities, schools, the economics of recycling, and child health care were discussed.

...The IUPUI Non-Academic Counseling Center has moved to room 330 in the Union Building. The Center, directed by Don Wakefield, was in the gray and white house at 419 N. Blackford. The Center provides personal counseling as well as workshops on several areas of self-development to students, faculty and staff. The phone number remains 4-2548, and the offices are open weekdays.

...finals of the White River Park State Games are on and around campus July 13-15. Nearly 10,000 athletes and guests are expected. Finals fest, featuring booths, food and entertainment in Military Park, is from 3:30-6:30 p.m., July 13, with opening ceremonies that evening at 7:30 p.m. For more, call 237-5000.
