Doctors Dykema, Gilmore, and Simpson are participating in a three-year course in Gnathology, being held at the University of Kentucky College of Dentistry.

RESEARCH IN ULTRA-VIOLET

Graduate students are busy with their research projects in the Oral Diagnosis-Oral Medicine research lab in Room 217. If you happen to notice the lights are all off, it is merely because Dr. Arden Christen is using ultra-violet light microscopy to study fluorescent stained specimens. This does make it a bit difficult for Kae and Shirley to work, but much interest has been created in the tetracycline staining which is detected by fluorescence, and many patients are being found with this problem.

BOOKWORMS IN ORDER DEPARTMENT

Stanley Crunk and Claudia Hand are planning to enroll in spring semester evening classes at the Indianapolis Downtown Campus of Indiana University.

The Landauer Film Badge Service is now being used in the department to detect the amount of radiation delivered to students and personnel. Films worn by the students are returned to the company each week for processing and exposure determination while personnel badges are worn for one month. Weekly Film Badge Dosimetry Reports are posted on the department's bulletin board.

PARADISE ENOW

Current and near-current dental journals are now to be found on shelving which has been placed in the extreme northwest corner of the Library's main floor. This is adjacent to a long-existing rack for current and near-current non-dental periodicals.

The jug of wine and the loaf are still taboo, but thou art welcome and there is comfortable seating plus the latest and most stimulating reading matter within easy finger's grasp.
