METROS LAST HOME GAME TUESDAY

Final home game for the IUPUI Metros is Tuesday and a big season farewell is planned with door prizes, special entertainment, and free tickets for students. Feature attraction is the Metros versus a major college team, Southern Illinois-Edwardsville. With play like that shown last week by the Metros, SIU may have a tough time on the playing floor.

Besides the free tickets for students, available by showing IDs in Student Activity Offices, two gift certificates from Lear-Desmond and Leonard sporting goods of Carmel, will be given as door prizes. A girls' dance class from the Normal College will perform at half-time.

All IUPUI faculty and staff are invited to fill the hall. Game time is 7:30 p.m. in Chatard High School gym.

BE SAFE -- START NOW

The year-end report, released last week by IUPUI Safety Director Ronald F. Bryant, contains several cautions for university faculty, staff and students.

Bryant cautioned IUPUI people to exercise more care in the safe-keeping of their property. In many cases of theft last year, the inconvenience of the loss of personal property could have been avoided by simply taking the key out of one's locker, locking a room, car or locker, putting a wallet in one's pocket or putting a purse in a safe place.

University police officers have been instructed to stop and question anyone carrying any property from a university building. Department heads should give an employee a written letter of authorization to remove any article from the premises. Any person not having such a letter could be inconvenienced while their story is being checked.

Bryant reported that more than $80,000-worth of property was reported stolen last year. Of that amount, nearly $34,000 was recovered. "Some university employees were implicated in the disappearances," he said. "One of them is serving a one-to-five-year prison sentence for his part in the theft of laundry from one of the hospitals." He also noted that his detectives successfully concluded a case of aggravated assault upon a student by a former student on university property, sending the felon to prison for one to five years.

Bryant attributed much of the success of his officers to increased training. "I.U. police officers have undergone, collectively, 8,024 hours of specialized training in order to better themselves and their department's professional capabilities," he said.

NEWS 'N' NOTES FROM HERE 'N' THERE

J.A. Participants -- Students and faculty of the Department of Manufacturing Technology joined to present their "wares" to the public attending the Junior Achievement Fair at the Convention-Exposition Center earlier this month. They constructed and manned a booth to introduce the programs in mechanical engineering technology, mechanical drafting and design technology and industrial engineering technology. More than 2,000 young people and parents picked up free IUPUI induction molded plastic key-rings produced by the department.

New Fire Inspector -- The Safety Department announces the appointment of Weldon C. Jones as fire inspector for the IUPUI campus. The 46-year-old Jones is a retired Indianapolis fireman with 23 years of service.

Where To Find FIND -- FIND (Financial Information National Directory) is available in the Reference Department at the School of Medicine Library. Compiled by the AMA, it gives information about financial aid for training in health careers.

Additional Post -- By action of the I.U. board of trustees, Dr. R. W. Greenleaf, professor of finance (Business, 38th Street), has been given an additional appointment, to the School of Medicine as professor of health administration.

Missed -- John Mote, vice-president of administration at Methodist Hospital, also is a member of the search and screen committee to select an Affirmative Action Officer for IUPUI. Other members were printed in last week's Green Sheet.
