CAMP RILEY "SPECIAL"

It was a special day at a special place, Camp Riley for Handicapped Children. Youngsters and special guests on Wednesday celebrated Camp Riley's 25th birthday, its infirmary dedication and ESA Day. (ESA is Epsilon Sigma Alpha, a philanthropic sorority which has the camp as its statewide project.)

Near Martinsville, in the heart of the 2,300-acre Bradford Woods, Camp Riley is considered among the country's finest outdoor recreational areas.

The Riley Memorial Association raises funds for and supervises the construction of camp buildings. Traditionally, the association gives these facilities to Indiana University. With Wednesday's infirmary presentation, the association completed a five-year, $1,600,000 renovation and expansion program.

Accepting the infirmary keys for I.U. was trustee Dr. Joseph Black. Also participating in the festivities were Governor and Mrs. Otis R. Bowen, Herman B Wells, chancellor of the university, and top officials from the Indianapolis campus: Vice President Glenn W. Irwin, Jr., Dean Steven C. Beering, Dean Ralph E. McDonald, Dr. Morris Green, and Robert Baxter.

The new 3,200-square-foot building houses the camp's medical and dental facilities, administrative offices, laundry room, medical staff quarters and staff conference hall. It is equipped to handle nearly any medical emergency and is staffed at all times by two nurses, a physician, dentist and dental assistant. Many of the camp's youngsters (about 300 children attend the camp each summer) are seen regularly at one of Riley Hospital's clinics and many of the camp's counselors are I.U. students.

CROSS-CULTURAL CONFERENCE THIS WEEK

Over the past 30 years, persons from different cultures have worked, lived, learned together in increasing numbers. Researchers from many fields have begun studying the problems, tensions, and sometimes surprising results of these intercultural or cross-cultural encounters.

IUPUI will present an Intercultural Training Workshop taught by some of these researchers this week (July 16-20) at the the Essex House Hotel. Covering research in psychology, anthropology, communications and education, the workshop is directed toward those involved or interested in multi- or cross-cultural situations.

Speakers and presenters will include Dr. Dan Landis, professor and chairman of the Department of Psychology, and Dr. Golam Mannan, associate professor of education, dean of student services and director of the Office of International Programs. Landis also is editor of the International Journal of Intercultural Relations (IJIR), the first scholarly journal to deal with cross-cultural problems.

Special guest speakers include Dr. Gajendra Verma and Pierre Casse. Verma is a lecturer in psychology of education at the University of Bradford, United Kingdom, and co-director of a project to research the socialization of Asian immigrants in Britain. Casse is senior staff development officer in charge of training at the World Bank in Washington, D.C.

Also speaking will be Dr. Harry C. Triandis, professor of psychology at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, and Dr. Tulsi B. Saral, professor of communication sciences at Governors State University, Park Forest, Illinois. Saral is on the editorial staff of the IJIR, which has been adopted as the official publication of the Society for Intercultural Education, Training and Research (SIETAR).

Tickets still are available for the two banquets during the conference. Casse will give the keynote address Monday at the 6:45 p.m. banquet at the Essex House. He will discuss "Intercultural Training--A Psychological vs. An Anthropological Approach." The second dinner program, Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Roof Lounge at the Union Building, will present Triandis on "Reflections on Cross-Cultural Psychology as It Affects Intercultural Behavior." The dinner will feature an international cuisine.

For ticket information, call the Office of International Programs, Ext. 7294.
