REGISTRATION PREDICTIONS

A 15 per cent increase in new students, including freshmen and transfers, is expected when IUPUI begins classes Wednesday.

Registration for more than 17,000 students expected was held Friday and this Monday (August 21) at the Lecture Center on the new Downtown Campus.

John C. Krivacs, IUPUI director of admissions, reported that enrollment of new students will be up significantly in several fields. The Herron School of Art will have about 37 per cent more students than last year; the two-year nursing program will have a 36 per cent increase; business is up 18 per cent, and engineering is up 5 per cent---which he said is remarkable with engineering registrations down generally in the nation.

He noted also that there will be 443 veterans among the new students this fall, and 6 per cent more women than last year. While admissions of Hoosier residents is down 2 per cent, non-resident admissions are up 29 per cent. Non-residents pay twice the tuition and fees of that charged to residents.

The new freshman class will number 3,500. Also, more than 400 non-degree students will be among the new students at IUPUI.

ATT: WOMEN

Women who are considering entering or re-entering the employment market will get some advice on how to find what jobs are available and what they can do to get them in a one-day seminar September 14 at the 38th Street Campus of IUPUI.

The seminar entitled, Women and the World of Work, or "How to Get A Job and Like It," will offer job-hunting women the chance to explore the present-day job market and to look at some of the personal and family adjustments they may face if they find employment.

The program, sponsored by Indianapolis businesses and the IUPUI Continuing Education Office, will be offered for an enrollment fee of $5.

The 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. seminar will begin with coffee and registration followed by a slide presentation depicting a woman job-hunting at several local businesses and industries.

"How to Put Your Best Foot Forward," will be discussed by speech professor Dr. B. Bruce Wagener, in a session covering the job interview, resume and application.

Jane Pettijohn of Key Placement Service will discuss use of public and private employment services.

8/20/72 Parking

"Who Am I? What Can I Do?" will be explored with Dr. Eugene E. Levitt, director of the Section of Psychology and professor of clinical psychology, in a session designed to help women determine their own attitudes and adaptabilities as well as their capabilities as employees.

Dr. Diane L. Brashear, professor in the Graduate School of Social Service, will conduct a session on family expectations and adjustments followed by a panel of women who have gone back to work under varying circumstances who will give hints on how working women can manage the household, plan ahead, and adjust to new expenses.

EVERYTHING YOU EVER NEEDED TO KNOW ABOUT PARKING BUT DIDN'T THINK TO ASK . . .

August 31

August 31

All blue and green parking decals expire on September 1. After September 1, all current decals are invalid. New decals must be obtained from the Safety Department and in place on windshields by September 1 for those who wish to continue parking in blue and green lots.

The annual expiration of parking decals was provided for in the IUPUI Parking Regulations which were promulgated last year -- and the current parking decals do carry an expiration date. However, the expiration was not widely announced.

To renew stickers, applicants must fill in registration cards which are available from the Safety Department. Applicants must also pay up all unpaid parking fines before the stickers will be renewed. Department chairmen and office heads are urged to secure registration cards from the Safety Department, distribute them among present permit holders, and remind the permit holders that their present decals expire on September 1.

And from Vice-Chancellor Jack M. Ryder come these parking notes:

1. Effective date of new regulations -- September 1, 1972.
2. All faculty, staff and students who have not paid their past-due fines for parking violations should not expect to be issued a 1972-73 sticker until payment is made.
3. Fines will be levied at the rate of $3 for each parking violation.
4. There is a new blacktop surface, guarded, free parking lot owned and operated by General Hospital west of the hospital and north of the physical plant building. This lot is free to all IUPUI faculty, staff and students.

REGISTRAR NEWS

Professor John G. Williams Jr., assistant professor of computer technology and registrar for IUPUI, has requested relief from his administrative role and assignment to teaching in his field of computer technology. Hugh A. Wolf, dean for student services, called attention to the significant contributions made by Professor Williams over the past three years to the eventual automation of the IUPUI Registration and Student Record System.

Because of his rich background of experience in the registration process, Professor Williams will continue to serve as a technical consultant to Dean Wolf for the balance of this fiscal year.

Dean Wolf also noted that there are two other vacancies in the student services area -- one spot for a professional admissions officer and one in the area of student activities.

Applications for any of the three positions should be sent to Dean Wolf.

SAFETY DEPARTMENT CADETS

Beginning this month, the IUPUI Safety Department will take part in the I.U. Cadet Program, through which students interested in careers in criminal justice work part-time for the department. Sixteen young men and women who are enrolled at IUPUI will assist members of the department, handling assignments under supervision. The cadets will wear slacks, blue blazers, and Safety Department emblems.

Ronald Bryant, department director, requests cooperation from the staff and faculty whenever assistance is needed to make this program effective. Inquiries or suggestions about the program should be directed to Bryant.
