UNIVERSITY NOTES GOOD WORKS OF MANY AT IUPUI

Spring ceremonies for Founders Day at IUB Apr. 8 found five from IUPUI's campus among the worthy recipients of the IU's highest honors, and at IUPUI Apr. 20, Chancellor Gerald L. Bepko proudly presided over the second annual honors convocation named for his office in which 59 students, staff and faculty were noted for excellence in study and work endeavors.

Chancellor's Honors Awards: For the formal and fun ceremonies, Darrell Bailey, director of music, filled the auditorium at University Place with organ music for an academic processional/recessional. A crowd of family, friends and colleagues applauded 59 award-winning staff, faculty and students. From among nominees recommended by colleagues, those receiving the seventh annual Glenn W. Irwin, Jr., M.D. Experience Excellence Awards are:

Staff--Constance J. Alyea, electron microscopy technician, School of Medicine; Dennis L. Dell, production supervisor in medical education resources, School of Nursing; Velma E. Dobbins, recorder, School of Law; Reginald E. Edwards, painter, Physical Plant; Edward M. Hagan, building services, Medical Science Building; Patricia A. Jenkins, technician, Dept. of Biochemistry and founder/editor of 'Life at IUPUI;' Shirley R. Newhouse, administrative officer, Dept. of Psychiatry; Sandra S. Rothenberger, blood bank supervisor, Dept. of Pathology; Phyllis J. Van Treese, certification clerk, School of Education, and Gretchen Wolfram, director, Media Relations.

Faculty: Robert L. Bogan, associate dean for student affairs, School of Dentistry; Victor E. Childers, associate professor of international business, School of Business; Ronald Hoffman, Bruce Kenneth Wiseman Professor of Medicine, chief, hematology/oncology section, School of Medicine; Linda M. Kasper, associate professor of medical technology, Div. of Allied Health Sciences, School of Medicine; Donald J. Niederpruem, professor of microbiology and immunology, School of Medicine; Patricia A. Treadwell, associate professor of dermatology, School of Medicine; Dorothy L. Webb, professor of communication and theatre, School of Liberal Arts, and J. Edgar Webb, professor of communication and theatre, School of Liberal Arts.

Many IUPUI students who excel academically also were recognized. Coordinator for the event is Carol D. Nathan, associate dean of the faculties.

Founders Day Awards to IUPUI faculty: Professor George Weber, the Distinguished Professorship; Associate Professor of Chemistry David J. Malik and Professor of Medicine Roland B. McGrath, the President's Award; Professor of History Ralph D. Gray and Associate Professor of Biology Florence L. Juillerat, The George W. Pinnell Outstanding Service Awards.

March Extra Mile Award: For going the extra mile in his work, Gus Williams of Campus Facility Services, was named winner of March's award, announces Robert E. Martin, director, Administrative Affairs.

CAMPUS CALENDAR NEEDS NEXT YEAR NOW

The bigger and better campus calendar you find so often inside these pages can be even better if units and departments will set dates for next year's events and then send them in for the calendar. Gene Tempel, vice chancellor for external affairs, asks that those who plan events for the 1990-91 academic year select dates now and report them to the calendar office by the end of May. Of particular interest are those events, seminars, workshops, guest lectures and entertainment that have widespread public interest or are of major importance to departments. Calendar forms have been mailed to deans and directors and more are available by calling Noel Duerden in AO 109C, 4-2134. (Please note that if you want your event in the Green Sheet and the Calendar, you must contact both offices in writing, please.)

FITNESS DAY '90 NEEDS CHEERFUL VOLUNTEERS

Volunteer hosts who will help campus folks find ways to better health and fitness are needed for IUPUI Fitness Day '90. You will assist in exhibit booths, pass out balloons and distribute prize tickets to visitors. You need only be a happy and caring person who can cheerfully welcome IUPUIites and our guests. The 8th annual fair is May 16, 9:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m. in a new location, a tent just north of University Place on University Blvd. To volunteer, call Judy Smith at University Library, 4-5532, by May 1.

NEWS 'N' NOTES FROM HERE 'N' THERE

Celebrate May--There is something for everyone to celebrate this month. The first day is Law Day when the profession seeks to foster respect and understanding. May is also foot health, sleep well, bike, academic counselor, gazpacho, better hearing, mental health, older American, photo, high blood pressure, barbecue, duckling and arthritis month.

Postmenopausals, Please--Women who are one or more years after menopause and not taking hormones are needed to participate in a study of estrogen replacement therapy. Must have normal weight and blood pressure. Study medication and some diagnostic procedures will be provided at no charge. Subjects will receive compensation to cover transportation and time lost from work. Study director is Dr. Marguerite K. Shepard. For more, call Kim Cox, RN, Dept. of OB/GYN, IU Hospital, 4-4875.

Tennis Everyone?--Full- and part-time faculty and staff members are invited to participate in the first Faculty Club Tennis Tournament, May 7-13 at the Sports Center. Includes Ms open, Ms 55 and over, Ws, M and W doubles and mixed doubles. Entry fee of $12 for Faculty Club members and $14 non-members includes balls and court fees. For an entry form, call or write write William DeMyer, RH 130, 4-8951.

Frank Fest--The administration and supervisors in Physical Plant Building Services recently held a celebration honoring Frank C. Blandow, who is retiring soon after 29 years' service to IUPUI. He was presented a portrait of himself painted by students in the Herron School of Art. Here's looking at you, Frank.

For Young Cancer Patients--Applications are due May 1 for children and teenage cancer patients to attend Camp Little Red Door in June. Call Theresa Browning, 925-5595.

Esteemed Estonian--The Dept. of Sociology recently sponsored a lecture by Rein Ratas, a member of the Tallinn City Council and the Estonian Congress. He is vice chairman of Estonia's Green Movement and was on campus for the Earth Day celebration.

No Butts About It

MEDICAL CENTER SNUFFS SMOKING JULY 1

You may have read it before, but it bears repeating that effective July 1 smoking will be prohibited in all IU Medical Center buildings and hospitals. The new policy prohibits smoking not only in buildings, but on the premises of Medical Center buildings. (The policy does not include Larue Carter Memorial Hospital or Wishard Hospital because they are not housed in University buildings. The VA Hospital has already instituted a no-smoking policy.) Also, Hospital Human Resources Development will continue to offer stop smoking classes to faculty, staff and students. The decision to protect the health of patients, guests, visitors and staff with a smoke-free environment was reached after careful deliberation that included extensive discussion and approval by the hospitals' administrative staff and the executive committee of the medical staff. "It is supportive of and consistent with a strong movement in the national medical community," said David Handel, director of Hospitals, about the new policy. The movement focuses on the inherent inconsistency between known health hazards of smoking and the acceptance of smoking within a medical institution, the administration further said. The Medical Center joins several Indianapolis-area hospitals in implementing a smoke-free environment this year.

BEDFORD AMONG VIPS TO REAP ICBHE AWARDS

IUPUI's director of minority student services Robert E. Bedford will be honored at the annual meeting of the Indiana Coalition of Blacks in Higher Education, May 4 at the Allison Mansion, Marian College. Dr. Clyde Ingle, commissioner, Indiana Commission for Higher Education, and Marci Reddick, higher education assistant to Gov. Evan Bayh, will speak. Dr. Stanley Warren, associate dean at DePauw U., will lead a panel of black faculty, staff and students in discussion. Bedford, William Crawford, State Representative; Sam Jones, Indianapolis Urban League, and Phillip Summers, president of Vincennes U., will be honored for their contributions to higher education opportunities for minorities. The meeting, including lunch, is $10. For more, call Myra Mason, Ivy Tech, 921-4514.

MORE NEWS 'N' NOTES

Championships--More than 90 girls, ages 8-18, from Indiana, Illinois and Michigan are expected to participate in the 1990 Sectional Age Group Synchronized Swimming Championships at the natatorium, Apr. 28-29. Competition begins at 8:15 a.m. daily. There is no charge and the public is welcome. For more, call the sponsor, The Indianapolis Synchronettes, head coach Julie Thaden, 4-3517.

Medical Genetics--Patricia L. Johnson, graduate student, presents "The Human Genome Project," May 8, 4 p.m., IB 233.

STATE'S FIRST LADY, COREY LECTURES OPEN PLAYWRITING COMPETITION

Indiana's first lady Susan Bayh and publisher Orlin Corey will launch the fourth biennial National Playwriting Competition for Young Audiences, sponsored by IUPUI University Theatre. A strong advocate for literacy for all, Mrs. Bayh said she fully endorses the competition to encourage writers to create artistic scripts for young people. The opening is May 3 at the Indianapolis Museum of Art, where Mrs. Bayh and Corey will hold a news conference to announce the competition. The same day, Corey, who is owner/publisher of Anchorage Press, the nation's largest publisher of plays for youth, will give two free public lectures that will be followed by receptions. He presents "Theatre and Arts Education" at 2 p.m. in DeBoest Lecture Hall, IMA, and at 7 p.m. he presents "Theatre and Young Audiences in America Today" in the University Theatre, Mary Cable Building. Corey is on tour with his latest book, "An Odyssey of Masquers: The Everyman Players," a true account of the touring repertory company he has directed for 24 consecutive seasons. In the competition, 10 finalists will be selected and four cash awards of $1,000 each will go to writers of the top four plays. Winning plays will have polished readings by professionals during a playwriting symposium on campus next March, which winners must be able to attend. Guidelines and entry forms are available in University Theatre, 4-2095. Deadline for submitting is Oct. 1. Dorothy Webb, director of youth theater at IUPUI, is handling this fourth national contest, which she started in 1984.

PARALLEL COMPUTERS SEMINAR ATTRACTS INTERNATIONAL SCIENTISTS TO CAMPUS

Engineers and computer scientists from Europe, Canada, South Africa and the U.S. are expected to attend a conference on high performance "parallel computers" May 6-8 at University Place. Much of the attraction is the expertise and reputation of Akin Ecer, professor of mechanical engineering and director of the computational fluid dynamics lab, Div. of Engineering. Recognized as an authority in the use of parallel computers, he said, "When you hear about powerful computers solving problems, this (parallel computers) is where it is." Sponsors are NASA, INTEL Scientific Computers, IBM, the Research Institute for Advanced Computer Science and the School of Engineering and Technology at IUPUI.--J. Grim

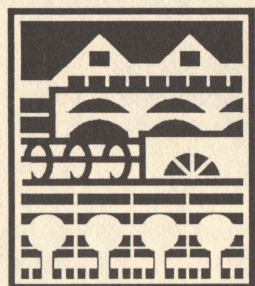

FINALLY...

...in the tunnels beneath these hallowed halls, several hundred new grads and their mentors will be standing in line Apr. 30-May 4, 11 a.m.-6 p.m., to receive rented commencement regalia. A handful of dedicated people from the Alumni Office will be down there with them, making sure everyone gets just the order. Commencement is May 13 in the Hoosier Dome. More next week.

...a reminder that the School of Social Work invites everyone to a conference on "Family Violence" May 3 in University Place. Our own Suzanne Steinmetz, nationally recognized expert on family violence, will give the keynote address at 9:30 a.m. Morning and afternoon workshop topics include treatment for battered women, sexual abuse of children, adult survivors of incest, male batterers and males who have sexually abused or molested children. For fees and registration, call Rebecca Van Voorhis, 4-6732.
