INCIDENTS

Vol. III, No. 5

December 21, 1967

The Merry Season is once more upon us and, presumably, we are engaged each and all, in our private marathons--swimming desperately against the tide of Time--running-out, obsessed with days that gush over the brink with a swirl and a swish and are gone. We hope for a miracle that will multiply hours and strive for endurance which will fortify us for round-the-clock activity. Yet, somehow the last detail will be squeezed into place and Christmas morning will find us gathered around the tree with our loved ones, the presents all wrapped, the greetings dispatched, and our spirits brimming over with good will--tempered only by the eternal resolution: NEXT year we will become organized.

But, it is a great Season and a great custom, and the most warming part of all is to say from the heart, despite the frenzy:

MERRY CHRISTMAS TO ALL, AND THE NEW YEAR'S BEST!
