IUPUI HAS LARGEST ENROLLMENT INCREASE IN I.U. SYSTEM

As predicted, Indiana University's state-wide fall enrollment is holding at about the same level as last year, Registrar M.D. Scherer has reported.

As of August 29, the preliminary total for the eight campuses is 65,795, compared to 65,482 on the same date a year ago, an increase of 313 students (five-tenths of a per cent). Late enrollees, not included in these figures, will revise the total upward.

Scherer said the largest increase was at IUPUI which has enrolled 16,885, a gain of 894 (5.6 per cent) over last year.

The situation is reversed at Bloomington where 29,219 have registered so far, which is 600 students (2 per cent) less than a year ago. Scherer said that while the Bloomington freshman class at 6,488 is up nine-tenths of a per cent, and graduate enrollment of 6,705 is a gain of 1.1 per cent, the junior and senior classes at Bloomington are down 7 and 2.1 per cent, respectively.

Preliminary enrollments for the other I.U. campuses are as follows:

Fort Wayne, 4,540, up 148 (3.4 per cent).
Southeast (New Albany), 2,789, up 86 (3.2 per cent).
East (Richmond), 777, up 96 (14.1 per cent).
South Bend, 4,939, down 140 (2.8 per cent).
Northwest (Gary), 4,652, down 68 (1.4 per cent).
Kokomo, 1,968, down 103 (5 per cent).

GOVERNOR BOWEN REPORTS ON INDIANA PROGRAM

An article written by Indiana Governor Otis R. Bowen M.D., describing the Indiana Program for Statewide Medical Education, has been published in the current issue of Compact, the publication of the Education Commission of the States.

The Indiana Program, developed by the Indiana University School of Medicine to meet the state's shortage of physicians, represents one of the major reforms in medical education. More than 40 other states and regions are adopting their own versions of the program.

Governor Bowen's article reports that the Indiana Program has increased the number of interns and residents studying in Indiana from 428 in 1967 to 697 this year and has successfully attracted physicians to study in Indiana.

Under the program, medical students are studying in 56 community and county hospitals and are taking individualized instruction in more than 140 physicians' offices throughout the state.

Governor Bowen stated in the article that the Indiana Program was a more successful response to the shortage of physicians than a second state medical school would have been. A second medical school, he wrote, would have taken $150 million and 10 to 12 years to add physicians to Hoosier practices.

Governor Bowen serves on the steering committee of the Education Commission of the States and his article is based on a speech he delivered to the ECS annual meeting.
