Message from the Dean

OUR GREAT SCHOOL IS MORE THAN SIMPLY A LAW SCHOOL.

It is just as much a school of leadership. While IU – Indy alums make up over half the licensed lawyers and 40% of the judges in Indiana, they also comprise a substantial number of the state’s political, business, non-profit, and civic leaders. This fact was driven home in the recent election when our alumni emerged as a U.S. senator, three Indiana congressmen, the Speaker of Indiana’s House of Representatives, the Marion County Prosecutor, several state legislators—the list goes on and on. This is on top of IU – Indy graduates being the CEOs of at least 80 of Indiana’s corporations and non-profits, many among the largest and most important businesses in the state. And our alumni are leaders at the national and international level as well.

I could fill volumes about the great leadership IU – Indy alums are providing in Indiana and around the world. While IU – Indianapolis law students make up less than 1% of the matriculants of Indiana University, no school in any university in this state is more important to the quality of life of all Hoosiers and the future economic development of Indiana. As I told the governor not long ago, our school is much like BASF—our graduates don’t make most of the products and services consumed by Hoosiers and other Americans, but their leadership and support make all of those products and services possible or better.

The coming three years will be critical to the future of our great “law and leadership” school. As mentioned in this issue, last month we launched the public phase of a crucial capital campaign. As I have been telling everyone who will listen, ours has been one of the most efficient law schools in the country, providing students for decades a superb legal education on a shoestring budget. Most recently, we were ranked 141st out of 200 ABA accredited law schools (bottom 30th percentile) in direct expenditures per student. While laudable, this is cause for great concern. As we face the likelihood of steep cuts in state support and a market-driven limit on how much tuition can increase, the school must develop significant new private funding sources. Thus, how successful we are in the upcoming capital campaign will determine how successful the school will be down the road in continuing to provide Indiana with outstanding legal and leadership talent. I hope all of our nearly 11,000 alumni will respond generously to our call.

The Henry J. Kaiser Family Foundation Inducted into IU President's Circle

ON SEPTEMBER 24, THE HENRY J. KAISER FAMILY FOUNDATION was inducted into the IU President's Circle for its support of Indiana University, including the IU School of Law-Indianapolis. IU law professor, Jennifer Drobac, a member of the Kaiser board, accepted the honor on behalf of the organization. Indiana University and the Kaiser Family Foundation have had a long-standing relationship, enhanced through collaborations with the law school, the Department of Telecommunications, and the School of Journalism.

The Kaiser Family Foundation is a nonprofit, private operating foundation, established in 1948 by Henry J. Kaiser, a philanthropist and industrialist. With headquarters in Menlo Park, California, and a Washington, D.C. office, the Kaiser Family Foundation is a known leader in health policy and communications. The Kaiser Family Foundation is dedicated to producing and communicating the best possible information and analysis on health issues to inform discussion and debate that affect millions of people and to elevate the national level of debate on health issues.

Funds from the Kaiser Family Foundation have been used for several projects at the law school, including initiatives of our Program on Law and State Government.

Professor López Receives National Recognition

PROFESSOR MARIÁ PABÓN LÓPEZ was appointed to the Editorial Advisory Committee of the National Conference of Bar Examiners. The committee reviews and comments on articles for publication in The Bar Examiner, the only national publication related to bar admissions. Professor López has been the secretary of the Indiana Board of Law Examiners since 2008.

Professor López was also elected to the American Law Institute, one of the highest honors in the legal profession.

"The National Conference of Bar Examiners could not have chosen a better person for the Editorial Advisory Committee," said Dean Gary R. Roberts of the Indiana University School of Law – Indianapolis. "Professor Maria López is a prolific author, as well as an award-winning teacher, and a dedicated proponent of public service. She is an invaluable asset to our school, and certainly deserves national recognition for her accomplishments."

A graduate of Princeton University and the University of Pennsylvania Law School, she was an Associate Editor of the UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA LAW REVIEW and served as an assistant U.S. Attorney for the U.S. Department of Justice, District of Puerto Rico in San Juan. She is an appointed member of the Supreme Court's Court Interpreter Certification Advisory Board.

Hon. Margret Robb, '78 Receives IUAA President's Award, Named Chief Judge

The Honorable Margret G. Robb has been named Chief Judge of the Indiana Court of Appeals. Her three-year term begins on Jan. 1. She will be the first woman appointed to this position.

She also received the President's Award from the Indiana University Alumni Association at a banquet on December 3. Robb is serving her 20th year on the IU School of Law – Indianapolis Alumni Board. For more than 10 years, she has organized and chaired the annual Indiana Continuing Legal Education Update program. Proceeds from the program help fund student scholarships, faculty grants, and other activities for the IU School of Law – Indianapolis Alumni Association. Robb's leadership has resulted in more than $750,000 in support of the law school and the alumni association.

The President's Awards are the highest honor the Alumni Association bestows upon alumni volunteers. "Great universities are measured by the achievements of their students, faculty and alumni," says J Thomas Forbes, executive director of the IU Alumni Association. "The banquet celebrates remarkable people who personify the culture of achievement, commitment, and pride that makes Indiana University one of the world's leading institutions."

Julie Roe Lach '04 Named NCAA Vice President of Enforcement

JULIE ROE LACH, who has served as director of enforcement at the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) since April 2004, was recently named Vice President of Enforcement. She will replace David Price, who will retire in December.

"Julie's solid experience, incredible energy and innovative ideas make her the perfect choice for our next vice president of enforcement," said NCAA President Mark Emmert. "I have complete confidence in Julie's ability to evaluate the enforcement process and programs from top to bottom. She'll seek input from our membership and be responsive to their concerns regarding the timeliness of the process while developing initiatives to discover and address violations. We're excited about the prospect of moving forward with Julie leading this very important function."

Lach is also currently serving as President of the Indiana University School of Law – Indianapolis Alumni Association Board of Directors.

Professor Wilson Receives Scottish Fellowship

PROFESSOR TOM WILSON was named a Neil MacCormick Fellow by the University of Edinburgh School of Law for the Fall 2010 semester.

Wilson says, "This fellowship provides the opportunity to conduct research at one of Europe's top universities. The faculty here have been extremely accessible and interested in promoting my research. "Wilson's MacCormick Fellow seminar took place on November 18 on "Community Land Trusts: An Emergency 'Third Sector' of Housing for Low-Income Residents in the U.S."

He says, "My research on creating and preserving affordable housing via community land trusts has been extraordinarily well received here. It seems that public investment in affordable housing is a hot topic in Scotland, and I have been asked to come back next summer to complete work on a comparative law article."

Professor Wilson teaches Contract Law, Sales, and Real Estate Transfer, Finance & Development in the J.D. program and American Legal Systems in the LL.M. program. He is director of the Law School's LL.M. track in American Law for Foreign Lawyers, director of the Joint Center for Asian Law Studies and director of the Chinese Law Summer Program, held at the Renmin University of China School of Law.

Ralph Adams, '67 Recognized for Pro Bono Excellence

ON FRIDAY, OCTOBER 15, RALPH ADAMS, '67, Fort Wayne, was recognized by the Indiana Pro Bono Commission for his outstanding pro bono service. Adams received the Randall T. Shepard Award for excellence in pro bono at the annual Shepard Award Dinner at the Marriott in downtown Indianapolis.

After 38 years of serving the people in Fort Wayne at Legal Services of Maumee Valley, both as staff attorney and executive director, Adams continues his legacy of service as the most prolific pro bono attorney with the Volunteer Lawyer Program (VLP) of Northeast Indiana. In the first seven months of 2010, he was active in 140 new cases and has never turned down a VLP referral. He spearheaded the VLP's efforts to implement a "hotline" approach to serve clients within hours of the initial inquiries, reducing the effort required to locate clients and maximizing assistance.

The Randall T. Shepard Award for excellence in pro bono is named in honor of the Chief Justice of Indiana and presented by the Indiana Pro Bono Commission to honor his vision and leadership in pro bono in Indiana.

This spring marks the 10-year anniversary of the law school's move into Inlow Hall. As I'm sure you know, establishing residence in the "new" building a decade ago was transformational for our school. Now the school is poised for an equally significant transformation.

IN 2010, THE SCHOOL UNDERTOOK ITS FIRST-EVER STRATEGIC-PLANNING PROCESS. This exercise of self examination has made it clear that the school has reached a critical turning point in its history. I know that it is a turning point because not only am I an alumna of the school, but I have been employed by the school for more than 21 years. I have watched as we have transitioned from a largely regional institution to a school that educates students from around the globe.

As I'm sure you'll agree, our alma mater has done an excellent job in the past of preparing future attorneys to work in the legal profession and in leadership positions in business and government. What I know, from being on the inside, however, is that it has done so with very limited resources. The school's faculty and staff have, again and again, pulled the proverbial rabbit out of the hat in terms of what they have been able to accomplish on what is—comparatively speaking—a shoestring budget. The time has come when the school needs to make some giant strides forward just so it does not fall behind other institutions of legal education.

What emerged from the strategic planning exercise is a blueprint that will launch the school into a new phase of its existence. The strategic plan identified several areas of "natural strengths" that the school possesses—strengths that, if developed, can make IU Indianapolis a destination law school for potential students from throughout the country who are interested in these discrete areas of study. On the following pages, you will find an outline of the strategic plan, along with the school's funding priorities for the future.

We need all of our alumni to be engaged—actively—in the process of making the strategic plan a reality. We seek not only financial support—but also strategic support. To make the plan come to life, we will need to seek funding from sources beyond just our alumni base. If you read the highlights of the strategic plan and discover that you know someone (even if he or she is not an alumnus) who would have an interest in supporting some of our endeavors because they will enrich the community, please contact the dean and arrange a meeting. If you are aware of philanthropic foundations that might have an interest in funding some of the school's upcoming projects, then please, contact the dean or a development officer and have a discussion.

The law school is an integral part of the city and the state of Indiana. The school can continue to educate lawyers and leaders, but not without your assistance. I happen to know most of you—and you are successful, smart, compassionate people. We need you now. We can't wait any longer. As you read the following pages, please think about the role that you can play in helping the school to take the next step in its transformation.

the Turning # Point

by Jonna Kane MacDougall, '86

The IU School of Law – Indianapolis is an outstanding institution of legal education and is positioned to become one of the nation's pre-eminent law schools in its areas of excellence.

Making an Impact

On the evening of October 9, the IUPUI campus launched the IUPUI IMPACT Campaign, a major fund raising effort for all schools on campus. A gala event with a cruise ship theme took place at the IUPUI Campus Center where the campaign was announced. The fearless crew, led by IU President Michael A. McRobbie, IUPUI Chancellor Charles Bantz and IU Foundation President Eugene Tempel set sail that evening to reach the $1.25 billion funding goal by 2013. They all stressed the importance of the campaign and how it can be transformational for the campus.

The law school's fund raising goal for the campaign is 12 million dollars, according to Dean Gary R. Roberts and Assistant Dean for Development, Mark Wunder.

"Our goal is twelve million," said Dean Roberts, "but we hope we can exceed it in a significant way."

The law school's campaign chairs include Linda Pence, '74, Lacy Johnson, '81, and Michael Wells, '79. Honorary Chairs are Chancellor Emeritus Gerald L. Bepko; Dean Emeritus William T. Harvey; Dean Emeritus Norman Lefstein; former Interim Dean Susanah Mead and Professor Emeritus James P. White. A committee is being recruited and will be announced in the spring.

The law school's priorities for the campaign include faculty development, student scholarships, centers of excellence, and experiential learning programs. In the following pages you will learn about these priorities and why they are important to the school.

The Strategic Plan In a Nutshell

You remember the "Nutshell" series of study aids, right? Well, here you can find the nutshell version of the school's strategic plan—quick and painless.

Increase the size of, improve the diversity of, and strengthen the faculty to serve the needs of a dual division school.

Develop further resources for scholarships and other financial aid in order to attract and retain an increasingly talented and diverse student body, improve the quality of the overall program, and make law school more affordable.

Michael Wells, '79 president of REI Real Estate Services, LLC

“My experiences at the Indiana University School of Law – Indianapolis have contributed to my professional success. By supporting this campaign, I have the opportunity to not only give back to the school, but also to shape its future. It is my desire to see the law school continue to grow into a vibrant, global place of instruction where talented faculty prepare law students to be knowledgeable and confident leaders in their professions. To help the law school build on its strong tradition of excellence, I invite you to join me in supporting this campaign.”

Linda Pence, '74 founding partner of Pence Hensel LLC

“I am honored to serve as a campaign co-chair for the IU School of Law’s campaign. The IU School of Law – Indianapolis provided the education that led to my wonderful 36-year career in law. As law school alumni, we should be giving back to the institution that made our law careers possible. Gifts to the law school will make the institution even stronger, and in turn provide an exceptional education for future young lawyers who will follow in our footsteps.”

Lacy Johnson, '81 partner, Ice Miller, LLP

“Law school is a fantastic opportunity and it had a huge impact on my life. Sometimes, I think we may take that opportunity for granted. We need to cherish the law school and the opportunities it has given us, and we need to nourish the law school.”

Strengthen current programs and pursue new opportunities where the school has natural advantages, in order to enhance its reputation and make it a destination law school for highly qualified students. These programs include:

Healthcare and Life Sciences Law, Intellectual Property Law, State and Local Government Law, International and Comparative Law, Environmental Law, and Sports and Entertainment Law

Increase and strengthen opportunities for experiential learning through our clinics, externships, and other programs that involve faculty and students in addressing the legal needs of our communities.

Support and enhance our nationally-acclaimed legal writing program.

Emphasize and support research and scholarship among all faculty to raise the school's profile as a leading research institution.

Establish a distinctive identity for the school based upon its mission, guiding themes, and the blending of theory and practice.

Enhance the infrastructure and build a culture of commitment to the law school among its external constituencies in order to develop new resources and revenue streams that are essential for implementing the strategic plan.

Campaign Themes

These graphics are banners that have been created to illustrate the law school's IMPACT Campaign themes, showing how we make a difference.

IMPACT Campaign Priorities

Faculty Development Everyone has a memory of a favorite law professor—the person who inspired you and brought the law to life. Help us to keep those kinds of professors at IU Law – Indianapolis. Attracting and retaining high quality faculty in today's competitive environment requires financial resources beyond those found in traditional revenue streams. The establishment of endowed faculty positions will allow the law school to recruit and retain the very best teachers and scholars.

Student Scholarships—Ensuring Student Opportunity Scholarships provide the opportunity for a legal education to students who might otherwise have to forego pursuing law as a career. Scholarships also help the school to attract top-flight students who bring intellectual depth to class discussion, enhancing the educational process.

Centers of Excellence

The law school's centers and programs capitalize on the school's natural strengths in a variety of areas such as state and local government law, intellectual property law, healthcare and life sciences law, environmental law, sports and entertainment law, and international law. Philanthropic support of these programs can make the school a sought-after location for legal study in these areas. It will also create opportunities for scholarly activities, lectures, and public service projects that will have a positive impact on Indiana and beyond.

Experiential Learning Programs—Real World Law and Leadership

Nothing can teach you how to be a lawyer better than getting into the trenches and doing it. That's what our clinics and externships are all about—real world experience. The school's experiential learning options not only connect the law school to the community, they allow students to learn how to address the legal needs of society and to promote justice—wisely and compassionately. We don't just train lawyers, we create leaders. Our alumni are found not only in law firms, but also in the highest-ranking government offices, top businesses, and nonprofit organizations in the country. Your support can influence the future of the state of Indiana as well as the nation. ■

Positive Impact: Gifts in Action

Holder Scholarship Recipient Speaks at Donor-Scholar Brunch

By Alicia Dean Carlson

THIRD-YEAR LAW STUDENT EDWARD SMID, WORKED AND SAVED TO PAY FOR LAW SCHOOL, BUT A SCHOLARSHIP HAS MADE A BIG DIFFERENCE—BOTH FINANCIALLY AND AS INSPIRATION.

Smid's remarks at the Donor-Scholar Brunch at the Woodstock Club in Indianapolis on September 19, reminded faculty, donors and scholarship recipients how important scholarships are to students.

Smid, a native of Fort Wayne, served in the Marine Corps for six years after graduating from IU in 2001. Before starting law school in 2008, Smid and his wife developed a financial plan.

"I spent the first semester watching my financial plan crumble as the markets took a turn for the worse," Smid said in his remarks. "So I'm sure you can imagine the overwhelming sense of relief that I felt when I received the letter indicating that I had been awarded the Cale J. Holder Scholarship."

The scholarship was established in memory of Hon. Cale J. Holder, who graduated from the Benjamin Harrison Law School in 1934 and received his J.D. from the Indiana Law School in 1938.

By coincidence, Smid was chosen in 2010 to serve as an intern with District Court Judge Sarah Evans Barker, who took over Holder's seat in 1994.

"I remember walking into the courtroom where Judge Holder served for so long and realizing that the scholarship was not just an honor but also a tremendous challenge," Smid said. "Judge Holder was a man of unwavering principles, who was dedicated to promoting personal accountability, patriotism, and the rule of law. I will promote these principles throughout my career, with the hope that at its end, I will be able to look back and say that I earned the honor of being associated with such a remarkable man." ■

John Marynell, '67: Providing Opportunity

By Alicia Dean Carlson

IF WORKFORCE STATISTICS ARE CORRECT THAT MOST AMERICANS HAVE SEVEN CAREERS OVER A LIFETIME, JOHN MARYNELL, '67, IS WAY ABOVE AVERAGE.

The son of two hardworking parents who set the tone, Marynell began working as a youngster, delivering newspapers in his hometown of Evansville. He worked his way through high school, pushing a broom and doing other odd jobs. As an undergraduate zoology major at IU-Bloomington, Marynell was up at dawn delivering the Daily Student. He washed dishes in a sorority and at his own Theta Chi fraternity, dispatched taxis, refereed intramural sports, worked at a bookstore and IU athletic ticket booths, and chased tips as a waiter at Nick's and The Regulator.

"I did anything to make a buck," Marynell says.

Work and sports dominated his IU experience. As a student, Marynell, who remains an ardent fan and Varsity Club member, attended basketball and football games with his fraternity brothers and a bulldog, Ox, who became an official mascot and earned Marynell the best seats.

Marynell decided to go to law school—but not to become a trial lawyer.

"I never had the Clarence Darrow vision," he says. "I thought law school would give me a more diversified background for business."

After a year of law school in Bloomington, Marynell transferred to Indianapolis. He took a job in the mortgage loan department at Jefferson National Life Insurance and attended law school in the evening. When he graduated, Marynell launched a career in commercial real estate development and lending in Chicago. He retired in 2008 from Bank of America, which had purchased his employer, LaSalle Bank.

A lifetime of work has paid off for Marynell. He travels to destinations as diverse as Puerto Vallarta, London, Singapore and Buenos Aires, serves on the board of managers for the Robert R. McCormick unit of the Chicago Boys & Girls Club in Chicago, offers support to other important causes, and holds onto his IU football and basketball season tickets.

"I'm not wealthy, but I'm rich in the important things," he says.

Marynell first established the John E. Marynell Scholarship in 1994 as an annual scholarship awarded to an incoming first-year law student demonstrating financial need and the potential to succeed in the practice of law. In 2009, Marynell endowed the scholarship, creating a lasting legacy.

Occasionally, he's had the opportunity to offer the scholarship recipient a little advice.

"I give to the law school because it gave me an opportunity," Marynell says. "I tell the students, 'Remember, someone has helped you. Be charitable to someone else.'" ■

Leaders of Indiana and Beyond

The law school is proud to recognize the achievements of the following government, professional and civic leaders, and we are proud to count them among our alumni.

Dan Coats, '72 Returns to Public Service, Leads Wave of Alumni Who Won in Fall Elections

When the new Congress convenes in January, alumni from Indiana University School of Law – Indianapolis will make up four of Indiana's 11-member Congressional Delegation. Leading the wave of alumni elected into public service is Dan Coats, '72, (pictured) who easily won the U.S. Senate seat he held from 1989-1998, defeating his democratic challenger, Brad Ellsworth on November 2, 2010. Coats also served as U.S. Ambassador to Germany and has practiced law in Washington, D.C.

Current Indiana Secretary of State, Todd Rokita, '95, won Indiana's 4th District race and Republican Mike Pence, '86, won his sixth term in the 6th District against Democrat Barry A. Welsh. Pence announced on November 3 that he is stepping down as his party's Conference Chairman, a position he has held since 2008. Political newcomer and recent graduate, Todd Young, '06 beat incumbent Democrat Baron P. Hill in the 9th District.

On the state level, Brian Bosma, '84, is set to become the Speaker of the Indiana House of Representatives for the second time, making him the fourth IU Law – Indianapolis alumnus to hold that position out of the last five House Speakers.

Democrat Terry Curry, '78, won the race for Marion County Prosecutor, beating his Republican rival and fellow alumnus, Mark Massa, '89. ■

Steven David, '82 Joins Indiana's High Court

Indiana Governor Mitch Daniels selected Boone Circuit Court Judge, Steven David, '82, to serve as Indiana Supreme Court Justice. A 1982 graduate of the law school, Justice David served on the Boone Circuit Court from 1995-2010. Prior to serving on the Boone Circuit Court bench, he worked as corporate counsel for Mayflower Transit (Carmel, Indiana) and in private practice at the Columbus firm of Cline King King & David. He began his career in the U.S. Army Judge Advocate General's Corps.

David succeeded Justice Theodore R. Boehm who retired from the State Supreme Court at the end of September. Justice David joins fellow alumnus Justice Brent E. Dickson, '68, who was appointed to the court in 1986.

Justice David was one of three finalists for the Supreme Court, all of whom were alumni of the law school. The other two finalists were Marion Superior Judge Robyn Moberly, '78, and Karl Mulvaney, '77, partner at Bingham McHale. ■

In semi-retirement she continues to trace her mother’s family’s roots which relate to one of the founding families of the Dutch colony in America. She is a member of the Society of Daughters of Holland Dames and the Dutch Settlers of Albany. She also serves on the board of the Wyckoff Farmhouse museum, a 17th century Dutch farmhouse that is the oldest landmark building in New York, and her ancestral home (a Wyckoff granddaughter married one of her Van Horne ancestors in America). She says, “That was a ‘wow’ moment when I saw the hand-hewn timbers inside the house’s walls and realized my ancestors had touched them.”

School Colors During Charlotte Squarcy’s Dutch travels, the Mayor of the village of Hoorn presented her with a large bouquet of tulips created especially to celebrate the town’s 650th anniversary. They are extremely appropriate because they display not only the vivid red and fringed white of her IU heritage, they also have a black and gold interior, making them perfect for celebrating the IUPUI campus where she received her law degree. The tulips can only be ordered by special arrangement with the office of the Mayor. asked for autographs or pictures by a wide variety of people. Squarcy, who used the stage name Charlotte Van Hoorn, also writes a blog for her fans.

She is proud of her Hoosier roots, as well as her Dutch heritage. Having taken the bar exam prior to finishing her law degree, she was sworn in as Deputy Attorney General of Indiana the week after commencement in 1977. “It was a genuine thrill to have litigated 50 trials and administrative hearings while serving the people of Indiana,” she says. “Service in the AG’s Office is terrific trial experience.”

By all accounts the Dutch television series was a hit! Squarcy received a formal letter from the Private Secretary of HRH Queen Beatrix congratulating her on the TV series. Previously, she had met Crown Prince Wilhelm and Princess Maxima of The Netherlands.

Squarcy says she would love to do another series in the U.S. on sites influenced by Dutch culture. As for her future in show business, she laughs, “I hope to get a hair care commercial out of this!”

10th Annual PLSG Symposium

Law School Program Focuses on Public Entrepreneurship

On October 1, 2010, the law school's Program on Law and State Government (PLSG) hosted its 10th Annual Fellowship Symposium, "Public Entrepreneurship and State Government." Two student Fellows, Erin Albert and Melissa Stuart, were joined by experts from Indiana and around the nation who examined innovative business models used by state governments to provide public services. Following an assessment of state governments' current systems, the Fellows identified successful, real-world examples of service coordination and delivery from Indiana and other states.

The morning panel on entrepreneurship in education featured Mark Long from the IU Kelley School of Business and Mark Need of the IU Maurer School of Law.

The keynote address was given by Doug Chapin, Director of Election Initiatives for the Pew Center on the States.

ALBERT SAYS, “DURING ONE OF THE PANEL SESSIONS WE FOCUSED ON ENTREPRENEURIAL EDUCATION ACROSS THE SPECTRUM. One fantastic local example is that of Lemonade Day, where in May of 2010, over 7,400 kids signed up to run their own lemonade stands as part of a nationwide movement by Michael Holthouse, an entrepreneur who grew up in Indiana. This is just one example of what we explored in terms of entrepreneurial education, and even social business, through this fellowship year.” Albert’s Fellowship address was entitled “Social Entrepreneurship: Can State Law Achieve Balance Between Social Cause and Profit?”

A panel discussion on “Entrepreneurship in Education” included Mark Need, Clinical Associate Professor of Law and Director of the Elmore Entrepreneurship Law Clinic at IU’s Maurer School of Law, and Mark Steward Long, M.S., Instructor in the Entrepreneurship and Management Program at the IU Kelley School of Business.

Another panel discussion centered on Business Models and Social Entrepreneurship, featuring Robert Lang, CEO of the Mary Elizabeth & Gordon B. Mannweiler Foundation Inc., and CEO of L3C Advisors L3C; John Tyler, Vice President and Corporate Secretary of Ewing Marion Kauffman Foundation; and Elizabeth Minnigh, attorney with Buchanan Ingersoll & Rooney PC. Luncheon keynote speaker, Doug Chapin, Director of Election Initiatives at the Pew Center on the States, presented a talk on “90-Degree Walk: The Role of Election Data in a New Approach to Reform.”

Melissa Stuart’s Fellowship address was entitled “Legal Frameworks for Performance-Driven Government,” and she also moderated a panel entitled “Is Law an Obstacle to Data-Based Governing in Indiana?” featuring David Griffith, staff attorney with the Indiana Supreme Court’s Division of State Court Administration, Judicial Technology and Automation Committee (JTAC); Becky Selig, Director of the Bureau of Quality Improvement Services in the Division of Disability, Aging, and Rehabilitative Services, Family and Social Services Administration; Molly Chamberlin, Ph.D., Director of Data Collection, Analysis and Reporting, Office of Learning Choices, Department of Education; and Gary Huff, Town Manager of Fishers, Indiana.

“One of the highlights of my research is the success the Town of Fishers has had in using data and performance metrics to help inform service delivery to its citizens,” says Stuart.

“This year’s candidates for the Program on Law and State Government fellowship were phenomenal, and both fellows are passionate about the topic of entrepreneurship as it relates to state government and governance,” said Professor Cynthia Baker, PLSG Director at the law school. “With the current economic climate, it is an exciting time to better understand how entrepreneurial thinking and habits are, or could be, impacting how state governments carry out their myriad responsibilities.” ■

IP Center Develops Strategic Plan & Implements Multiple Initiatives

John Schaibley, IP Center Director

SINCE JOHN SCHAIBLEY WAS APPOINTED EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR OF THE LAW SCHOOL'S CENTER FOR INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY LAW AND INNOVATION IN JANUARY, he has been hard at work defining and implementing the Center's mission, goals, and objectives, bringing together the many players essential to its success, and spreading the word about the IP Center in a variety of venues, including the Intellectual Property Scholars Conference at UC-Berkeley in August. Professor Schaibley is enthusiastic about the IP Center, which is focused on patent law and the life sciences, but is also active in other IP areas, including trademark, copyright, and right of publicity law. The primary mission of the IP Center is promoting student IP education and scholarship, not only increasing the number of JD graduates with a concentration in intellectual property law, but also providing exposure to IP law to the broader student community as well. Professor Schaibley, who this year teaches the Patent

Litigation and Intellectual Property Survey courses, explains, "Given the increasing importance of intellectual property to society, IP issues are ubiquitous throughout the legal world. Knowledge of this area is therefore beneficial to non-specialists as well, including future executives, litigators, business lawyers, judges, in-house counsel, government attorneys, and others. The IP Center's broader goals and objectives include advancing the law of intellectual property, advocating and stimulating reform through scholarship and programs, and providing meaningful, non-redundant assistance and support to the numerous constituencies in various areas of intellectual property law."

Under Professor Schaibley's leadership, projects underway or in development include: expanding the school's IP curriculum, active and targeted recruiting of science and engineering students to enhance the already strong patent law program, attracting and retaining the highest quality full time and adjunct IP faculty, fielding a patent law moot court team, encouraging and supporting IP scholarship, generating support for a Patent Law Boot Camp for judges and law clerks, creating an IP Certificate for students who meet specified requirements, hosting seminars, operating formal and informal IP idea exchanges to enhance communication between various IP constituencies, assisting students in locating IP employment opportunities, as well as a host of other events and activities.

The IP Center recently moved into its new, well-equipped facility located on the canal, just a block from the law school (space formerly occupied by the Master of Laws program). This location is an ideal gathering place for idea exchange among the actors in different realms of intellectual property law, and facilitates collaborative activities for students and practitioners alike. Indeed, this new space is already proving to be a great resource for the law school's IP students and the IP community. Multiple IP-oriented student groups such as the IP Law Association, the Fashion and Design Law Society, and the Sports and Entertainment Law Society use the Center's space. Moreover, the Center recently hosted a meeting of the law school's distinguished group of IP law adjunct professors and a reception for members of the IP Section of the Indianapolis Bar Association and the IP Student Association.

IP Center projects are dependent on support, financial and otherwise, from those who share its vision: serving as a nucleus for IP development and protection by (1) acting as an agent of evolution for IP doctrine, (2) transferring IP information among the various IP constituencies, (3) creating programs to act as enzymes for innovation, (4) generating interest and support for IP law, and (5) contributing to the Indiana Life Sciences Initiative. Ultimately, it will all depend on the students and the teachers, and thus the Center's greatest financial needs are targeted scholarship money to attract and retain the best and brightest IP students and funds to attract and retain the highest quality IP faculty. ■

Law School's Annual CLE Program Featured Experts in IP, Antitrust, and Employment Law

This year's Annual Continuing Legal Education (CLE) Program on October 12 featured a host of experts who focused on the topic, "Confronting Change in a New Healthcare Economy: Patents, Antitrust and the Workplace."

Presenters included Eli Lilly & Company Senior Vice President, Robert Armitage, who was recently chosen by The American Lawyer as one of the 25 most influential people in Intellectual Property Law. He discussed patent reform legislation. June Im, counsel at the Federal Trade Commission, focused on pharmaceutical patents and antitrust law from a Washington perspective, while Tom Barnett, a partner at Covington & Burling in Washington D.C., presented a view from the bar, with a particular emphasis on issues relating to manufacturers of generic pharmaceutical products. IU School of Law – Indianapolis professors Max Huffman and Emily Morris made a presentation entitled "A Patent Policy Approach to Hatch Waxman Gaming," which is related to an article they are co-authoring.

Indianapolis attorney Ellen Boshkoff, a partner at Baker & Daniels, added an employment law perspective, discussing issues relating to outsourcing. The CLE program also included a session on ethics, "Professional Responsibility Update," presented by G. Michael Witte, '82, Indiana Disciplinary Commission Executive Secretary and IU School of Law – Indianapolis Professor, María Pabón López. ■

Indiana Supreme Court Takes a Personal Look at Justice Brandeis

THIS YEAR'S INDIANA SUPREME COURT LECTURE FEATURED FRANK GILBERT, who spoke in the Wynne Courtroom on October 19, 2010. Mr. Gilbert, a grandson of United States Supreme Court Justice Louis Brandeis, spoke about his personal memories of his grandfather.

Gilbert is a senior field representative at the National Trust for Historic Preservation. He works with local governments in many parts of the United States, helping them to develop or strengthen programs to protect and improve landmark buildings and historic districts. His work has taken him to almost all of the 50 states, including current assignments in Oklahoma, South Dakota, Mississippi and New Mexico. Before coming to the Trust, Gilbert was executive director of the New York City Landmarks Preservation Commission. Over a nine-year period he helped to develop the historic preservation program in a city known for tearing down landmarks and building skyscrapers. He directed the work on designating 25 historic districts including Greenwich Village, Gramercy Park and Soho. Mr. Gilbert was a leader in the successful effort to save Grand Central Station. The preservation of Grand Central and the constitutionality of historic preservation were upheld in a major U.S. Supreme Court decision in 1978 (Penn Central Transportation Co. v. City of New York, 438 U.S. 104). He is a lawyer and a member of the District of Columbia bar. Gilbert is one of four grandchildren of Justice Louis Brandeis. His mother, Susan, was the older of Justice Brandeis' two daughters.

Indiana Supreme Court Chief Justice Randall T. Shepard introduced the speaker and all five Indiana justices were in attendance at the lecture, including the newest Justice Stephen David, '82 who was sworn in serve on the state's high court the day before the event. The law school thanks the Indiana Supreme Court for sponsoring this lecture. ■

Teen Court Benefit Night

On September 16, Reach For Youth held its second annual Teen Court Benefit Night in the Inlow Hall Atrium. More than 50 people attended to support the Teen Court program, which has been in operation for nearly 20 years. IU School of Law-Indianapolis students, past and present, were there to help raise funds and awareness for Teen Court, including alumnus Jimmie “Tic Tac” McMillian, ‘02, who served as the evening’s emcee and presented awards to five outstanding youth volunteers involved in the program. Marion County Superior Court Judge Annie Christ-Garcia, ‘92, gave the keynote speech, praising Teen Court as a community court model that sees continued success in serving first-time, non-violent offenders by providing a valuable second chance. For more information about Reach For Youth or Teen Court, please visit www.reachforyouth.org. ■

Seventh Annual Leibman Forum

Focuses on Intellectual Property

THE SEVENTH ANNUAL JORDAN H. AND JOAN R. LEIBMAN FORUM ON THE LEGAL AND BUSINESS ENVIRONMENT OF ART TOOK PLACE ON TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 9 IN THE WYNNE COURTROOM. The topic of the program was “Fashioning the Law of Design: Wearable Intellectual Property,” and featured attorney Kenan Farrell, ’03, who spoke on pending legislation in Washington, the Innovative Design Protection and Piracy Prevention Act. Farrell is the founder of KLF Legal, an Intellectual Property and Entertainment law firm located on Mass. Ave., in the Indianapolis Arts & Theater District. His practice focuses on the strategic development and protection of creative properties. He represents clients in music, film, theater, television, book publishing and the visual arts throughout the United States and abroad. Farrell is the current chairman of the Indianapolis Bar Association’s Solo and Small Firm Committee and also serves on the board of the Sports & Entertainment Committee. In these roles, he frequently speaks on a wide range of intellectual property, entertainment and practice management topics.

Also presenting at the forum was Beth Bennett, founder and owner of Beth Bennett Couture in Indianapolis. She provided a designer’s perspective on the proposed legislation. Bennett holds a BFA from DePaul University and an MFA from New York University and was trained as a costume designer for stage and screen. She is the founder and owner of Beth Bennett Couture, an umbrella micro-company for B Trousseau Couture and Picnic. B Trousseau Couture caters to a discerning client who seeks custom bridal or special occasion luxury. B Trousseau Couture’s mission is to set the bar for innovative custom bridal in Indianapolis and the Midwest. Picnic is a line of misses daywear separates and dresses.

Prior to the lecture, two students from the Herron School of Art and Design showed outfits that they had created as projects for a sculpture class at Herron. Emily Schorn, a 5th year Senior working on her Bachelor of Fine Arts in Sculpture, modeled her wearable art piece entitled, “Though the fog is thick I try to see my way through.” It was inspired by a song written by Garth Osborn called ‘My Hope in You.’ The song is about the ability to look ahead, in the midst of the trouble, and find hope.

The work of Ashten Houpt, a Junior at Herron, majoring in Sculpture was also featured. Her piece was a dress, composed entirely of wedding magazines. The title of her work was “I do, I do, I do!” Her work was inspired by her own impending wedding, this coming May, and the overwhelming undertaking of planning for such a huge event.

The Leibman Forum was established through the generous contribution of Leah Hartman, '85, an alumna of both the law school and the Kelley School of Business, who wished to honor her former professor and mentor, Jordan H. Leibman, '79. Leibman taught Business Law at the Kelley School of Business for many years before his retirement. He and his wife, Joan, decided a joint event involving the Herron School of Art and Design, the law school, and the Kelley School of Business, would be a unique and important contribution to the life of the IUPUI campus. ■

Call to the Profession

The annual Call to the Profession ceremony for incoming first-year students took place in the Conour Atrium on Saturday, August 21.

Speakers included Sally Zweig, '86, a partner at Katz & Korin, who spoke on the importance of work/life balance while in law school, and the Honorable Jane Magnus-Stinson, '83, who spoke on professionalism. Following Judge Magnus-Stinson's talk, she led the first-year students in the Oath of Professionalism. Dean Gary Roberts offered a champagne toast to the students and Indianapolis Bar Association President Michael Hebenstreit, '77, welcomed students to the school on behalf of the IBA. The formal program was followed by a reception and tours of the building. The ceremony was coordinated by Sonja Rice, '07, Interim Director of Student Affairs and Danial Kibble of the IU Alumni Association. ■

Senator Lugar Speaks at Program on Mexican Judicial and Criminal Justice Systems

The Indiana Attorney General's office hosted an international educational symposium on September 26, 2010 at the law school. Dean Gary R. Roberts was on hand to welcome Indiana Senator Richard G. Lugar who gave the keynote address. Indiana Attorney General Gregory F. Zoeller also spoke at the event which examined Mexico as a country whose legal system is currently in transition to a model similar to that of the United States. In addition to a panel of Attorneys General from Mexico, Professor Jimmy Gurule from Notre Dame Law School also spoke on "The Rule of Law and Mexico." The symposium brought together business leaders, the academic community, international lawyers and others interested in learning more about Mexico. ■

Visitors from the Land of the Rising Sun

Visitors from Brazil

From August 30 through September 3, the law school once again hosted colleagues from the Faculdades Espírito Santenses (FAESA) law school in Vitória, Espírito Santo, Brazil. This was the second year for the "Program in U.S. Law" conducted by Professor Lloyd T. "Tom" Wilson.

In 2009 the focus of the program was the common law and the jury system. This year the Brazilians requested an emphasis on the U.S. Constitution. The program included four half-days of class at the school, including a lecture by Indiana Court of Appeals Judge Paul D. Mathias and public attorney Anna Onaitis Holden,

'05, on emerging due process rights for persons who face criminal charges but lack the mental capacity to assist their counsel. The final class considered immigration issues and the birth citizenship clause of the Constitution and included a lecture by Indiana Supreme Court Justice Frank Sullivan, Jr.

The Brazilian delegation visited the Indiana State Senate, where they met with Senators Phil Boots (R) and Mike Delph (R) (a third-year student at the law school who will graduate in December 2010). Professor Wilson said, "This year's visit by our FAESA colleagues was productive and enjoyable. It also provided an opportunity to further strengthen the law school's ties with a law school in one of South America's most dynamic countries." Professor Wilson will conduct the third annual program in American law for the Brazilian law school in early September 2011. ■

Human Rights Law Event

On June 25, the school's Program in International Human Rights Law hosted a U.S. Department of State delegation from the Philippines. The visit was arranged in cooperation with the International Center of Indianapolis and was part of a law school event focusing on issues related to human trafficking. The event was sponsored, in part, by the U.S. State Department, pursuant to its "Countering Trafficking in Persons" project for the Philippines.

Legal Education Conclave Focuses on Diversity and Economy

On September 23-24, 2010 the Indiana State Bar Association hosted the Legal Education Conclave at Inlow Hall. The event, which takes place every four years, brings together all four Indiana law schools and a variety of stakeholders in the legal community such as the Board of Law Examiners and the Disciplinary Commission.

The law school's Chasity Q. Thompson, '02, Assistant Dean of the Office of Professional Development, co-chaired the event along with Gail Peshel, Assistant Dean of Career Services at Notre Dame.

The event focused on current trends and challenges to legal education. The keynote address on diversity was given by Kim M. Boyle, the first African-American woman president of the Louisiana State Bar Association and a partner at the New Orleans firm of Phelps Dunbar.

Breakout sessions dealt with a variety of issues, including diversity and the effect of the current economic crisis on the profession. ■

Top: Attending the Conclave were Dean Gary R. Roberts, ISBA President Roderick Morgan, Kim M. Boyle, the first African-American woman president of the Louisiana State Bar Association, and Dean Lauren Robel of the IU Maurer School of Law.

Inset: G. Michael Witte, '82, Indiana Disciplinary Commission and Camille Wiggins, Division of State Court Administration participated in the Diversity in Law panel discussion.

Alumni Honored at Annual ISBA Meeting

AT THIS YEAR'S ANNUAL ISBA MEETING ON OCTOBER 14, OUTGOING PRESIDENT RODERICK H. MORGAN presented his Presidential Citation for exceptional contributions to the profession of law and the citizens of Indiana to Hon. Caryl A. Dill, '77; Paje E. Felts, '91; and Chasity Q. Thompson, '02.

Hon. Caryl A. Dill is a magistrate for the Marion County Superior Court. She was previously Master Commissioner for the same court. She spearheaded development of the ISBA's new statewide Mentor Match program.

Paje E. Felts is Legislative Counsel at the ISBA. She has a background in journalism, including a degree from the Institute of Political Journalism at Georgetown University. She worked as campus minister for St. Joseph Catholic Church in Terre Haute before starting her legal career.

Chasity Q. Thompson is the Assistant Dean of the Office of Professional Development at Indiana University School of Law-Indianapolis. She graduated magna cum laude from Alabama State University and received her MBA from Auburn University. She served for two years as a judicial clerk for Chief Justice Randall T. Shepard of the Indiana Supreme Court immediately following graduation.

Hon. Barbara L. Crawford, '87 received the ISBA's Rabb Emission Award in recognition for her efforts to promote diversity in the legal community. She was recently appointed as judge of the Marion Superior Court by Governor Mitch Daniels, and had previously worked at the Marion County Prosecutor's Office, the Indiana Attorney General's Office and the Marion County Public Defender's Office. She is also an adjunct instructor at the law school.

Deborah L. Farmer, '83 was selected to receive the Gale Phelps Award for her contribution to professionalism in the area of family law. She is managing partner at Campbell Kyle Proffitt. She is also past president of the Indianapolis Bar Foundation and served on the ISBA Board of Governors.

ISBA President Roderick Morgan presented the Presidential Citation for exceptional contributions to the profession of law and the citizens of Indiana to Chasity Q. Thompson, '02.

The Hon. Viola J. Taliaferro Award was presented to Catherine M. Michael, '00 for her commitment to ensuring the community and the courts work to help at-risk families. She is an attorney at Hollingsworth & Zivitz. She is an adjunct professor at Nova Southeastern School of Law in Florida and is the author of The Parent's Guide to Special Education: Understanding Eligibility, Evaluations, and Case Conferences. ■

Impact on Environmental Law

PROFESSOR ERIC DANNENMAIER IS THE CHAIR OF A NEW WORKING GROUP ON POLICY, ECONOMICS, AND LAW established by the Richard G. Lugar Center for Renewable Energy on IU's Indianapolis campus.

The Lugar Center supports renewable energy research (including hydrogen generation, fuel cell technology, and bio-fuels) and has created the Working Group to expand its contributions to the social sciences and to bring expertise associated with science and engineering research to policymakers at both state and national levels.

The new Working Group is engaged in a research project funded by the Pew Charitable Trust to prepare a white paper on "Energy Security as a National Security Issue" which will inform a series of workshops with legislators and other policy leaders in 2010 and 2011. The Working Group is also developing a project that compares E.U. and U.S. state adoption of renewable energy policies, and is exploring collaboration with a new Great Lakes regional initiative on sustainable energy policy.

Professor Dannenmaier's research often concerns national security and national energy policy issues, and he is actively engaged in efforts to frame a more sustainable national energy policy. In June, for example, he was a key speaker at a National Security and Clean Energy Roundtable sponsored by Repower America and other national energy policy groups.

Dannenmaier is also engaged with energy experts within the IU system. In addition to chairing the Lugar Center's Working Group, he has been asked to join the Lugar Center's Executive Committee. He also serves on the executive committee of the IU Energy Institute, a new university-wide initiative to strengthen IU's research and educational contributions to addressing national and international energy challenges. ■

Law School Professor Leads 'Energy Security' Initiative by Lugar Center for Renewable Energy

Law School Named to "Greenest Law Schools" List by Pre-Law Magazine

In its Back to School 2010 Issue, The National Jurist's Pre-Law Magazine featured a list of "Top Green Schools," including the Indiana University School of Law - Indianapolis. Ranked among the top 15 (in the "Cum Laude" category), the law school was cited for its Environmental Policy Forum, which is a research and educational initiative seeking to examine legal and institutional frameworks for the environment, and support leaders in government, business, and the non-profit sector in their efforts to reform and strengthen those frameworks. The group engages in research and fosters public dialogue (through workshops, roundtables, and symposia), advancing cooperative solutions to public environmental concerns.

The Environmental Law Society (ELS) at the law school is also an active student group, co-sponsoring the Environmental Policy Forum's annual Spring Symposium. Past topics of the symposium include Water Law, Energy Policy, and Climate Change. The ELS and the Forum have also sponsored a university-wide campus carbon footprint workshop, a film series, and periodic environmental career forums. Law school faculty Dan Cole, Eric Dannenmaier, Andrew Klein, and Carlton Waterhouse are recognized scholars on environmental law issues, participate in the forum, and teach a variety of courses on environmental law.

In creating the list, the magazine collected information about law schools' curriculum, campus environment and building trends. Additional weight was given to schools with a strong green focus in their classes, faculty and other academic offerings, such as externships, legal journals and summer programs.

Dean's Report 2009-2010

The Dean's Report recognizes those generous alumni and friends who have supported the school financially during fiscal year 2009-2010. Donors to the law school are recognized in several ways, including membership in the Landmark Society, the Century Society, the Black Cane Society, the Maennerchor Society (all carrying the Partners in Progress Giving Designation), the Dean's Council and the Law School Associates—as well as the new Harrison Society that honors the law school's highest levels of cumulative lifetime giving and the Legacy Society recognizing those benefactors who have made a provision to benefit the law school through their estate plans or other planned gift.

Giving highlights from the fiscal year include:

- $817,911 in dollars “raised,” which includes outright gifts received, matching gifts received, and new pledges made.
- $742,358 in dollars “received,” which includes outright gifts received, matching gifts received, and payments on pledges made in prior fiscal years.
- The total number of donors increased by 13.7% from 1,703 to 1,937, which includes 141 first-time donors to IU Law – Indianapolis.
- The number of donors at the Partners in Progress level of $1,000 or more increased 12.25% from 147 to 165.
- The rate of alumni supporting the law school increased to 12.13% from 10.41% in fiscal year 2008-2009.
- 1,131 alumni made a gift to the law school—the highest number of alumni donors in the past 9 years.

Our private fundraising is especially important because the law school is a state-assisted, not state-supported, institution. Private funds are crucial to create scholarships, to establish endowed professorships and faculty chairs, to support our academic centers of excellence, and to provide opportunities for hands-on learning experiences such as the legal clinics and externships. Unrestricted gifts are also a vital part of the law school's annual operating budget and provide flexible funding to allow the law school to respond in a timely manner to new opportunities that arise and provide support for aspects of the law school that would otherwise have no source of funding.

We wish to thank the alumni and friends, named in the following pages, who make it a priority to support our law school through their loyalty and generosity.

Development Team Left to Right: Cheri Bauder, Senior Administrative Assistant; Jake Manaloor, '03, Associate Director for Contracts, Grants and Fundraising; Amanda Kamman, Director of Fundraising and Development Services; Mark Wunder, Assistant Dean for Development; Joyce Hertko, Director of Major Gifts; Lisa Schrage, Assistant Director for Donor Relations

To make a gift of securities or to make a planned gift, contact us at 317-274-1906 and a member of the Development Department will be happy to assist you.

How Your Gifts Are Spent

Faculty A key measure of any law school is the quality of its faculty. In order to maintain and build a faculty of superior teachers and scholars, we need gifts that will help attract and retain the very best faculty members, support innovative teaching, research and public service projects, and enhance professional development.

Students Gifts to the Annual Fund help to defray the high cost of legal education and assist student groups and programs with their initiatives. Gifts to scholarship funds help keep the law school financially accessible to promising students who will become tomorrow's leaders in the legal profession, in business and government, and throughout society. Gifts also enable our IU Law – Indianapolis students to represent the law school at national and regional competitions and conferences.

Experiential Learning Private gifts are critical for supporting hands-on learning opportunities that develop professional skills through the legal clinics and supervised externships.

Law Library Gifts help maintain one of the largest and most highly automated legal collections in Indiana. The library serves law students, faculty, members of the bar, and citizens of Indiana.

Additional Support Private gifts are essential for funding a variety of activities and programs of the law school that enhance the educational experience, serve as a resource to the larger community, and build connections with prospective students and alumni, including guest lectures, professional development programs for students, student recruitment, publications, alumni events, and commencement.

Partners in Progress 2009-2010

Partners in Progress members are donors who contributed at one of the four leadership giving levels—Landmark Society, Century Society, Black Cane Society, or Maennerchor Society—between July 1, 2009 and June 30, 2010 to the Indiana University School of Law – Indianapolis. Giving totals include gifts, pledge payments, and matching gifts received by the IU Foundation between July 1, 2009 and June 30, 2010. ## The Harrison Society 2009-2010

The law school gratefully acknowledges the members of the Harrison Society, whose cumulative gifts of $100,000 or more have served to keep the school at the forefront of legal education. The Society is named in memory of former U.S. President Benjamin Harrison, a trustee of the original Indiana Law School, and namesake of the Benjamin Harrison Law School, both predecessor schools of the IU School of Law – Indianapolis.

Legacy Society 2009-2010 Donors

The Legacy Society honors individuals who seek to advance legal education at the IU School of Law – Indianapolis by investing in its future. The society enrolls benefactors who confirm planned or deferred gift arrangements benefiting the law school. When alumni and friends let us know that they have included the school in their estate plans, they are invited to join the Legacy Society.

If you have included our school in your estate plans, please let us know. Doing so will ensure that we understand your wishes and can use your gift exactly as you intend. It also allows the school to make note of your gift as we plan for the future—and finally, and most importantly, it allows us to thank you, honor, and show our appreciation for your generosity. We would like to thank the following members of the Legacy Society.

For more information about including the law school in your estate plans, please contact Mark V. Wunder, Assistant Dean for Development, at (317) 278-8147 or mwunder@iupui.edu.

Annual Law Firm and Corporate Campaign 2009-2010

Each year, alumni in a number of law firms and corporations participate in the Annual Law Firm and Corporate Campaign. A volunteer chair is recruited from each firm or corporation, and they are asked to solicit contributions from fellow alumni in their office. This annual campaign is vital to the law school's annual fund and is by far our most successful fund raising drive of the year. Thank you to the 2009-2010 Campaign Chairs and everyone who participated in the 2009-2010 Law Firm and Corporate Campaign. We would especially like to recognize the firms with the highest percentage of participation, as well as the firms and corporations who are recognized for their total dollars contributed in the 2009-2010 campaign.

Spirit of Philanthropy Award 2009-2010

Barkley Honored with Spirit of Philanthropy Award

THE IU SCHOOL OF LAW – INDIANAPOLIS IS HONORED TO RECOGNIZE JAMES M. BARKLEY FOR HIS LOYALTY, SERVICE, AND GENEROUS SUPPORT OF THE LAW SCHOOL. Jim is a member of the law school's Board of Visitors and serves as a campaign chair at Simon Property Group for the annual Law Firm and Corporate Campaign. Jim contributed to the capital campaign to build Inlow Hall and is a member of Partners in Progress, the school's annual leadership giving society. Jim was most recently instrumental in establishing the Birch Bayh Annual Lectureship at the law school.

Mr. Barkley is a 1977 graduate of the IU School of Law – Indianapolis and a 1974 graduate of the Kelley School of Business in Bloomington. Mr. Barkley joined Melvin Simon & Associates, Inc., in 1978 as a staff attorney and was named Assistant General Counsel in 1984. In 1992 he was named General Counsel and was appointed General Counsel and Secretary of Simon Property Group, Inc. at the time of its formation in 1993. Mr. Barkley is a member of the Indianapolis and Indiana State Bar Associations and was elected in 1991 to the American College of Real Estate Lawyers. Mr. Barkley previously served on the Board of Directors of the Indiana Chamber of Commerce and currently sits on the Board of Directors of Gallerie Commerciali Italia. Jim's wife Cindy and their daughter Megan are both IU graduates as well. ■

THE LOVEJOY AWARDS

The Lovejoy Awards were established in 2004. They are awarded annually to the students submitting the best briefs in the third semester of legal writing as a component of moot court participation. Elijah Lovejoy was a publisher and avid abolitionist during the antebellum era who died defending his printing press. An angry mob murdered Lovejoy in 1837 on the frontier of the American west in Alton, Illinois. Many consider Lovejoy to be the first martyr to freedom of the press in the United States. Lovejoy was a contemporary of Abraham Lincoln, who later selected Lovejoy's younger brother John to serve as U.S. counsel to Peru. Another brother, Owen, served and died in the U.S. Congress during Lincoln's presidency. Upon hearing the news of Owen's death, Lincoln said: "Lovejoy was the only friend I had in Congress." The Lovejoy Award for best brief was established to honor this generation of brothers who dedicated their lives to a greater purpose and through the power of their words, writings, and advocacy changed a nation.

Steven M. Jensen

John P. Delaney

JUDITH ANSPACH made a presentation on “How Libraries Can Benefit from Hosting a Library Practicum Student” on Oct. 22 at the Ohio Regional Law Library Association Annual Meeting.

CYNTHIA BAKER’s recent article (with Bob Lancaster–LSU), “Under Pressure: Rethinking Externships in a Bleak Economy,” was published in the CLINICAL LAW REVIEW.

As Lead Independent Director, CHANCELLOR EMERITUS AND PROFESSOR GERALD L. BEPKO attended the annual recognition event for OneAmerica’s top producers held in Washington, D.C., from July 7-10, 2010. As a life member of the National Conference of Commissioners and Uniform State Laws, Professor Bepko participated in the annual meeting, at which revisions to the Uniform Commercial Code Article 9 on Secured Transactions were adopted – the subject matter of the course Professor Bepko is teaching in the Fall Term.

Effective July 1, 2010, Professor Bepko was appointed by Governor Mitch Daniels to a second four-year term as an at-large member of the Indiana Commission for Higher Education.

Along with Purdue University President Emeritus and IU School of Medicine Dean Emeritus Steven C. Beering, IUPUI Chancellor Emeritus Bepko will be an Honorary Co-Chair of the IUPUI Impact Campaign Council. He will also serve as Honorary Co-Chair of the law school’s campaign committee, which is part of the larger IUPUI Impact Campaign.

On September 17, Professor Bepko spoke to the Indiana University School of Medicine Leadership Program on the subject of leadership. Additionally, Professor Bepko became a member of an initial planning committee for a possible fund raising campaign for the WFYI Teleplex.

Along with his wife, Jean Bepko, Professor Bepko served as one of the Honorary Co-Chairs of the Mary Tucker Jasper Lecture Series Dinner for the President Benjamin Harrison Home.

On October 22, he spoke to the annual IUPUI Honors College New Scholar Welcome and in particular greeted the newly appointed Bepko Scholars and Fellows for 2010-2011. On November 19-20 Professor Bepko chaired the District 9 Rhodes Scholar Selection Committee which chooses two Rhodes Scholars to represent the three-state district including Indiana, Kentucky, and Ohio.

SHAWN BOYNE spent September and October in residence at the Max Planck Institute for Foreign and International Criminal Law in Freiburg, Germany, completing work on a book project tentatively entitled: The Many Faces of Objectivity: The German Way of Justice. While in residence at the institute, Dr. Boyne presented a talk entitled, “Law in Action: Training Law Students Using a Counter-Terrorism Simulation.” Her most recent research article is entitled “The Many Faces of Objectivity: A Look at German Sexual Assault Cases,” 67 Wash. & Lee. L.R. ____ (2010). On November 10, Professor Boyne presented on the topic, “Why Teach About Hate Crimes in Criminal Law,” for the IUPUI Multi-Cultural Teaching & Learning Institute: Culturally Sensitive Pedagogy.

KAREN BRAVO attended and participated in the Third Annual People of Color Legal Scholarship Conference which took place at the Seton Hall Law School in Newark, New Jersey on September 9 – 12, 2010. (The National People of Color Legal Scholarship Conferences fulfill the commitments of the six regional People of Color legal scholarship conferences – Mid-Atlantic, Midwestern, Northeast, Southeast, Southwest, and Western – to come together approximately every five years to examine and support the role of faculty of color in the teaching of law.) The theme of the conference was Our Country, Our World in a “Post-Racial” Era.

At the conference, Professor Bravo presented her research on the nature of personhood: “When Humanity is Not Enough: On the Legal Construction of Natural, Juridical and Quasi-Persons.” She also participated on a panel on the role of black women in international law: Towards an International Law of Black Women: New Theory, New Praxis, presenting her work: Black Female “Things” in International Law: A Meditation on Saartjie Baartman and Truganini.

In November, Professor Bravo travelled to Prague, the Czech Republic, to participate in the Second Global Conference on Bullying and the Abuse of Power: From the Playground to International Relations. The global conference was organized by Inter-Disciplinary.Net, a U.K.-based forum for the exchange and interaction of ideas, research, and points of view that address a wide range of issues of concern and interest in the contemporary world. Professor Bravo joined an international group of attendees from the United Kingdom, Turkey, India, Taiwan, Iran, and South Africa, among others, in examining the nature, role and impact of bullying in various spheres of human endeavor. Professor Bravo presented her paper, “Legal Constructions of Personhood and Their Nexus with the Traffic in Human Beings” during the session on Bullying and Personhood. She also chaired the session on Bullying and Politics.

Faculty News

DAN COLE published, with Peter Z. Grossman, “Institutions Matter! Why the Herder Problem Is Not a Prisoners’ Dilemma,” 69 Theory and Decision 219 (2010). The same two co-authors also completed revisions for the second edition of their textbook, Principles of Law and Economics (forthcoming Aspen 2011). In October, Professor Cole was a panelist at the Institute for Policy Integrity’s conference on “Global Cost-Benefit Analysis: Challenges and Opportunities” at the New York University School of Law. The following week he co-organized and presented two papers (one with Elinor Ostrom) at the Lincoln Institute of Land Policy’s conference on the “Evolution of Property Rights Related to Land and Natural Resources” in Cambridge, Massachusetts. The papers from that conference will be collected in a book, to be edited by Professors Cole and Ostrom and published by the Lincoln Institute in 2011. In November, Professor Cole chaired a panel on “Distributional Considerations in Benefit-Cost Analysis” at a conference in Washington, D.C. co-sponsored by the MacArthur Foundation and the Society for Benefit-Cost Analysis on “Developing Standards for Benefit-Cost Analysis.” Later that same week, he presented a paper on “Property Creation by Regulation” at the Denver University’s Sturm College of Law.

GEORGE EDWARDS was invited to present at London’s Royal Society of International Affairs – Chatham House, which is the U.K. sister organization of the prestigious U.S. Council on Foreign Relations (CFR). Professor Edwards spoke as part of the Transatlantic Dialogue on International Law co-sponsored by Chatham House and the Atlantic Council. Professor Edwards’ presentation was titled “Efficacy of International Law in Protecting Human Rights: Hong Kong, the U.S., the U.K., and Transnational Legal Education.” Professor Edwards was one of two dozen participants invited to join the dialogue, with other participants being officials of the U.S. government (Department of State), U.K. government (Foreign Office), and the European Union, along with representatives of academia and civil society from the U.S., the U.K., and continental Europe. The panel on which Professor Edwards spoke was chaired by William H. Taft, IV (former U.S. Deputy Secretary of Defense and Legal Advisor to the Department of State). The Atlantic Council, based in Washington, DC, co-sponsored the Dialogue, which took place on November 10 and 11. The Atlantic Council traces its roots to the creation of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO), and to government officials and voluntary organizations interested in political, economic and security issues, with its programs

“based on the conviction that a healthy transatlantic relationship is fundamental to progress in organizing a strong international system.” The High Level Dialogue was held pursuant to the “Chatham House Rule,” which provides that “When a meeting, or part thereof, is held under the Chatham House Rule, participants are free to use the information received, but neither the identity nor the affiliation of the speaker(s), nor that of any other participant, may be revealed.” The world-famous Chatham House Rule is invoked to encourage openness and the sharing of information.

During the summer of 2010, FRANK EMMERT taught WTO Law at the law school in Indianapolis and then Principles of Administrative Law in the school’s LL.M. Program in Cairo (Egypt). On July 10, the second commencement ceremony of the school’s Egypt program took place, with 19 students graduating. Approximately one-third of the students in Egypt are already working as judges or prosecutors or otherwise in the Egyptian civil service, one-third are working as attorneys or in-house legal counsel, and the rest are recent graduates looking for their first jobs. Approximately 40% are women. Nearly 90 students are continuing in the program at the present time, mostly working on their final theses, and the bulk of those are predicted to graduate in 2011. Approximately 65 students will begin their studies in Cairo in January 2011, with eligibility to graduate in the summer of 2012. With a view towards the longer term sustainability of the project, Professor Emmert went to Egypt during fall break to meet with political and business leaders of the country to receive feedback on the program and its future financing.

From September 19-24, Professor Emmert visited Iran, where he first spoke on “Teaching Comparative Law” and on “Comparative Competition Law” at a conference organized by Mofid University in Qom. Subsequently, he met with several of the reform-oriented religious leaders of the country at the Academy of Sciences and at the National Library in Tehran.

On October 22 and 23, Professor Emmert attended a conference in Antalya (Turkey), where he spoke about “Building a Life-Long Research Agenda” and taught a full-day workshop on how to write a doctoral thesis to a group of young academics from the Caucasus region and Central Asia. The event was hosted by the Open Society Institute, funded by the Soros Foundation, and in particular its Higher Education Support Program (HESP). In the current academic year, Professor Emmert has once again been appointed to a fellowship by HESP to support higher education reform in this part of the world. Previously he worked for two years with the law department at American University Central Asia in Kyrgyzstan. This year, he will be serving as a resource person and advisor to the law department at Yerevan State University in Armenia. His first trip to the partner institution took place in November.

In addition to his teaching in Indianapolis, during the Thanksgiving break, Professor Emmert taught International Business Law for the IU students in the Kelley School of Business MBA Program in Zagreb, Croatia.

Over the summer and fall, Professor Emmert also finished editing a book on the reception of the European Convention of Human Rights in the “new” member states of the Council of Europe, from the Baltics to Turkey. The book will include some 25 country reports by local experts as well as introductory chapters and conclusions by Emmert and his co-editor, Professor Leonard Hammer from Jerusalem. Last but not least, Emmert wrote an article, “How To and How Not To Introduce Competition Oversight in Developing and Transitional Countries” for the Developing World Review of Trade and Competition. This piece is based on his presentations at the AALS Annual Meeting in San Diego in January 2009 and the ABA Antitrust Spring Meeting in Washington in April 2009.

NICHOLAS GEORGAKOPOULOS has been working on the piercing of the corporate veil in bankruptcy. He presented his empirical results to the faculty in June, to the ATINER conference, in Athens, Greece, in July, and to the Midwestern Law and Economics Association annual meeting in Boulder, Colorado, in October.

JOHN HILL’s book, The Political Centrist (Vanderbilt Univ. Press, 2009) was published in paperback in July. The book argues that liberalism and conservatism are each conflicted political philosophies and puts forth a principled centrist position on issues such as the role of government in the economy, judicial activism, affirmative action, illegal immigration and other issues.

On September 17, Professor Hill participated in a Constitution Day symposium at Huntington College where the topic of discussion was the constitutional right to equal protection in light of the debate over gay marriage.

On September 22, he presented a talk titled, “The Economic Case for Federalism: How Political Centralization Increases Debt, Deficits and Spending,” at a program for the law school’s Federalist Society.

On October 14, Professor Hill made a presentation on liberal, conservative and centrist politics at the University’s Readings at the Table series. The Readings at the Table series highlights books written by IUPUI faculty.

ELEANOR KINNEY has published, “For-Profit Enterprise in Health Care: Can It Contribute to Health Reform?” 36 AMERICAN JOURNAL OF LAW AND MEDICINE 405 (2010).

In September, she served as a panelist for “Global Public Health Legal Responses to H1N1,” at a conference on Using Law, Policy and Research to Improve Public Health, sponsored by the American Society of Law, Medicine & Ethics and the Public Health Law Association, in Atlanta, Georgia. Also in September, Professor Kinney was a speaker on “Health Care Law,” at the Indiana Law Update 2010, sponsored by the law school and the Indiana Continuing Legal Education Forum, in Indianapolis. Later that month, she also served as a panelist for the “Health Care & Benefits,” Power Breakfast Series, sponsored by the Indianapolis Business Journal (IBJ), in Indianapolis.

In June, she taught a health policy initiative class at the IU School of Nursing, Health Law Policy and Bioethics: What are They and What is the Role of Each. She continues to serve as a member of the steering committee of the alliance of distinguished and titled professors at IU. She also continues to serve on the academic affairs committee of the Food and Drug Law Institute.

ANDREW KLEIN spoke in June at a conference in Minneapolis for law school associate deans. He was on the organizing committee for the conference as a member of the ABA Section on Legal Education’s committee on administration. Professor Klein also has been appointed as Chief of Staff for Chancellor Charles Bantz on the IUPUI campus.

In October, NORMAN LEFSTEIN, Professor and Dean Emeritus, spoke at a seminar at Loyola Law School in Los Angeles concerned with American Bar Association Criminal Justice Standards on the Prosecution and Defense Function. His subject was “Public Defense Workloads: Are ABA Standards for Criminal Justice Adequate?” He also spoke at a similar seminar in November at the University of Texas School of Law in Austin. In addition, during November, at the annual meeting of the National Legal Aid & Defender Association in Atlanta, he discussed the ABA Eight Guidelines Related to Excessive Workloads in Public Defense, for which he served as the reporter. Professor Lefstein continues to serve as a consultant to the ABA Standing Committee on Legal Aid and Indigent Defendants, a member of the Research Advisory Board of the Innocence Project of the Cardozo School of Law in New York, and a member of the Board of Directors of USA Funds.

GERARD MAGLIOCCA gave a talk on “Too Big To Fail States” at the University of Connecticut Law School in October. In November, he gave a talk on “The Private Action Requirement and Health Care Reform” at Florida International University Law School. Additionally, Professor Magliocca joined the Balkinization blog.

JIM NEHF was invited by the Centro de Estudos de Direito Economico e Social in Sao Paulo to speak on consumer law reform in the United States in the wake of the recent financial crisis. The Seminario Internacional de Direito do Consumidor took place on November 17 and 18. His presentation, “Preventing Another Financial Crisis: Reforming U.S. Consumer Credit Markets,” explained how the weakening of U.S. consumer laws in the mortgage industry contributed to the banking and financial crisis, and how the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act addresses this concern moving forward. Also speaking at the conference were the Brazilian Minister of Justice (Luis Paulo Telles Barreto), the President of the American Bar Association (Stephen Zack), and faculty from law schools in the United Kingdom, Brazil, and the United States. Additional information can be found at <http://www.cedes.org.br/consumidor/pages/programacao>.

ANTONY PAGE presented several works-in-progress, based on his and Professor Rob Katz’s ongoing research on the legal aspects of social enterprise and social entrepreneurship. Page recently returned from Boulder, Colorado, where he presented, “Is Social Enterprise the New Corporate Social Responsibility?,” at the Midwestern Law & Economics Annual Conference. He presented the same work at the Law and Society Association’s 2010 annual meeting in Chicago. Page also presented “Notion Building: Legal Forms for Social Entrepreneurs” at the University of Kentucky College of Law’s Developing Ideas Conference. In addition, unrelated to social entrepreneurship, he presented “Poll Workers, Election Administration, and the Problem of Implicit Bias,” in Vancouver at the American Psychology-Law Society’s Annual Conference. From mid-June to mid-

July Professor Page served as the resident professor for the law school’s Central & Eastern European Law Program based near Dubrovnik Croatia.

In September, MICHAEL PITTS published “Redistricting and Discriminatory Purpose,” 59 AM. U. L. REV. 1575 (2010) which sets forth a framework for how the federal government should analyze redistricting plans under Section 5 of the Voting Rights Act. That same month, Professor Pitts also presented portions of the article at an election law conference at the University of Baltimore School of Law. In August, he was named a Dean’s Fellow for scholarly excellence and in September he was elected by the faculty to the law school’s Executive Committee.

At the June 2010 mid-year meeting of the Association of American Law Schools in New York City, FLORENCE WAGMAN ROISMAN, the William F. Harvey Professor of Law, made two presentations. First, she was a member of the opening plenary panel for the Workshop on Post Racial Civil Rights, speaking about “The Legal (Re)production of Inequality” with respect to housing. Second, at the AALS Workshop on Property Law, she discussed “Tenants and the Foreclosure Crisis” in the Works in Progress breakout session.

Pursuing her program of encouraging and assisting law professors to teach students to address the foreclosure crisis, Professor Roisman prepared a chapter for a book, Vulnerable Populations and Transformative Law Teaching: A Critical Reader, which is to be published by Carolina Academic Press in 2011. The chapter is entitled: Teaching to Address the Foreclosure Crisis. This book grows out of a teaching conference co-sponsored by the Society of American Law Teachers and the Golden Gate University School of Law in March 2010; Professor Roisman had made a presentation about foreclosure relief at that conference. The preparation of this chapter was assisted by a Teaching Assistance/Instructional Development Grant from the Alumni Association of the IU School of Law – Indianapolis.

Professor Roisman also wrote a Tribute to Professor Lawrence B. Wilkins that was published in the INDIANA LAW REVIEW, 43 IND. L. REV. 279-80 (2010). On September 27, 2010, Professor Roisman gave two talks in Baltimore, Maryland. As part of a lecture series sponsored by the Homeless Persons Representation Project, she gave a public lecture on the topic “Implementing the Right to Housing.” On the same day, she discussed “Teaching About Implementing the Right to Housing” at a faculty workshop at the University of Baltimore School of Law.

PROFESSOR SCHUMM, who founded the Appellate Clinic in 2008, has been busy before the Indiana Supreme Court. He argued two cases in June. On June 17, he argued In re I.B., challenging the Court of Appeals’ holding that parents do not have a right to appointed counsel on appeal. The Supreme Court agreed. In re I.B., 933 N.E.2d 1264 (Ind. 2010). On June 24 he argued there was insufficient evidence to support an invasion of privacy conviction when the State failed to serve a copy of a protective order on his client. He was assisted by certified legal intern Shannon White, ’10, who had argued and prevailed in the Court of Appeals. Tharp v. State, 922 N.E.2d 641 (Ind. Ct. App. 2010), vacated. Finally, in July he wrote an amicus brief on behalf of the Indiana Public Defender Council in Akard v. State, 928 N.E.2d 623 (Ind. Ct. App. 2010), vacated, the first case in Indiana to increase a sentence on appeal under the appellate courts’ review and revise power. The Indiana Supreme Court granted transfer and heard oral argument on November 4. Professor Schumm serves on the Executive Committee of the Indianapolis Bar Association’s Appellate Practice Section. He recently became the coordinator of the Indiana Appellate Institute, an initiative that will allow lawyers who have cases set for oral argument before the Indiana Supreme Court or Court of Appeals to moot those arguments at the law school before a panel of experienced appellate lawyers or those with expertise in the practice area. Finally, in July he served as a special correspondent to the Indiana Supreme Court selection process for the Indiana Law Blog. His entries on the candidates, interviews (he attended all 43 interviews in both rounds), and process were widely read and quoted. He will have an opportunity to apply that knowledge and experience in the spring semester when he co-teaches a new seminar on judicial selection methods with Judge Timothy Oakes.

CARLTON WATERHOUSE traveled to South Africa where he presented his current research on “Rights and Reparations: Remediating the Past without Wrecking the Future” to the law faculty of the University of Cape Town on December 9. While in Cape Town Professor Waterhouse also participated in the Conference on Law, Culture, Constitutionalism, and Governance, held jointly with the University of Cape Town and the University of Stellenbosch on December 10 - 11. Professor Waterhouse presented his research as part of a conference panel on Law and the “Post-Racial/Ethnic State.” The conference included speakers from a variety of countries across the globe including Germany, Ireland, Australia, the United States, and South Africa. During his trip, Professor Waterhouse also conducted research and met with government officials and business leaders regarding the government’s efforts to rectify economic harms caused by apartheid.

FRAN WATSON participated in the 2010 Innocence Policy Network Conference in New Orleans, June 4-6, by invitation of the Innocence Network. On August 26, she was a guest on “No Limits,” a weekly radio show produced by WFYI Radio, Indianapolis. The topic focused on issues surrounding an alleged drunk driving crash by an Indianapolis police officer.

JAMES P. WHITE, professor emeritus, chaired a Butler Board of Trustees Committee which drafted a new Butler University Honorary Degree Policy recently adopted by the Trustees.

In July, he traveled to Barcelona to serve as Consultant on the Dual Degree Program between the University of Puerto Rico School of Law and the University of Barcelona Faculty of Law. Professor White continues to serve as Secretary of the Butler University Board of Trustees and Chair of the Academic Affairs Committee. He also serves as a member of the Board of John Marshall-Atlanta School of Law and the California Western School of Law Council of Advisors.

News About Former Professor

Professors Emeritus James W. Torke, Jeffrey W. Grove, and Gerald L. Bepko traveled to Columbus, Ohio, to visit Douglas J. Whaley, formerly a faculty member at the IU School of Law – Indianapolis. For the past 25 years or more, Professor Whaley held the James W. Shocknessy chair at Ohio State University. In the winter of this past year, Professor Whaley had a heart transplant which went very well. He is now attending to the eight different case books that he has in print and enjoying retirement in his adopted home city of Columbus, Ohio. ■

Welcome to the Law School Family!

PROFESSOR CARLTON M. WATERHOUSE

Professor Carlton Waterhouse joined the faculty as Associate Professor in the fall of 2010. Professor Waterhouse is nationally recognized for his work on environmental justice and is known internationally for his research and writing on reparations for historic injustices and state human rights violations. His views have been published in the Wall Street Journal online and his articles have appeared in prestigious law journals including the PENNSYLVANIA JOURNAL OF INTERNATIONAL LAW, the FORDHAM ENVIRONMENTAL LAW REVIEW, and the RUTGERS LAW REVIEW. He attended college at the Pennsylvania State University where he studied engineering and the ethics of technology before deciding to pursue a legal education. He is a graduate of Howard University School of Law, where he was admitted as one of its distinctive Merit Fellows. While in law school, he was selected for an internship with the Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law where he participated in the preliminary formation and development of the Civil Rights Act of 1992.

After law school, he began his career as an attorney with the United States Environmental Protection Agency where he served in the Office of Regional Counsel in Atlanta, Georgia and the Office of General Counsel in Washington, D.C. At the EPA, he served as the chief counsel for the agency in several significant cases and as a national and regional expert on environmental justice, earning three of the Agency's prestigious national awards. His responsibilities at the EPA included enforcement actions under numerous environmental statutes, the development of regional and national policy on Environmental Justice and the application of Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 to the EPA permitting actions. Following a successful nine-year career with the EPA, Professor Waterhouse enrolled in a Ph.D. program in the Emory University Graduate School of Arts and Sciences as one of the select George W. Woodruff Fellows. The previous year, he graduated with honors from the Candler School of Theology at Emory University with a Master of Theological Studies degree. In 2006, he graduated from Emory with a Ph.D. in Social Ethics.

In addition to teaching courses on property law, administrative law, and environmental law, Professor Waterhouse teaches seminars on environmental justice and on political reconciliation and reparations that address the unique relationship between law and social ethics. Professor Waterhouse is the recipient of multiple student awards as a teacher and mentor. He is an active member of the National Bar Association and serves as the Vice Chairperson of the organization's Law Professors Division.

ASSISTANT DEAN MARK WUNDER

Mark Wunder joined the School of Law as Assistant Dean for Development in June of 2010. For the previous 11 years, Mark served in various institutional advancement roles in education, including seven years with the University of Iowa College of Law as Assistant Dean for External Relations and as Director of Development. From 2002-2006, he served on the Executive Committee of the Association of American Law Schools Section on Institutional Advancement. Prior to working in advancement, Mark completed a judicial clerkship with the Iowa Court of Appeals and practiced law in Kansas City for 11 years. He received his B.S. in 1984, and his J.D. in 1987 from the University of Iowa.

CARLOTA TOLEDO, ASSOCIATE DIRECTOR OF STUDENT AFFAIRS

Carlota Toledo was appointed Associate Director for Student Affairs in January of 2010. Her responsibilities include assisting students with academic advising and improving their performance in law school. Carlota presents programs designed to help students succeed in law school, working closely with the Dean's Tutorial Society and other student organizations on campus to offer academic success programs and events throughout the year. She is also the law school liaison to the Adaptive Education Services (AES) office on the IUPUI campus and participates in the Academic Support Section of the Law School Admissions Council (LSAC). She is a member of the Bar Passage Committee of the American Association of Law Schools (AALS). Carlota graduated from the University of Chicago with a B.A. degree in Sociology. She earned a J.D., with a concentration in Health Law, from DePaul University College of Law in 2005, where she actively participated as a student leader and member of the part-time evening division.

Immediately before joining IU, Carlota was Associate Director for Student Affairs at Michigan State University College of Law. Carlota is licensed to practice law in Illinois and is a member of the Illinois State Bar Association, Indiana State Bar Association, Cook County Bar Association and American Bar Association.

ANTHONY MASSERIA, ACADEMIC ADVISOR

Anthony Masseria joined the law school in 2010 as academic advisor. He has been working in student services for over five years at various institutions. He earned a Bachelor of Arts in Spanish and Theological Studies from Hanover College in 2003. From 2004 to 2006, he attended the IUPUI School of Liberal Arts, studying Anthropology, and earned a Master of Science in Education in Student Affairs Administration from IU Bloomington in 2009. Since 2004, he has held various positions in academic support and first-year undergraduate programs with IUPUI University College, worked as a residence hall director at Hanover College, and most recently worked with ITT Technical Institute Online Programs in Academic Affairs. He is a lifetime member of Phi Sigma Iota and has been a member of the National Association of Student Personnel Administrators (NASPA) since 2007.

CATHERINE A. LEMMER, HEAD OF
INFORMATION SERVICES, RUTH LILLY
LAW LIBRARY

Catherine Lemmer joined the law library as the Head of Information Services in June of 2010. She teaches legal research and provides reference and research support services to all law library users. Prior to joining the law library faculty, she was the Project Manager for Evergreen Indiana, an 80-member consortium implementing a state-wide open source integrated library system initiative in partnership with the Indiana State Library. She was also a partner with the Chicago law firm of Vedder Price P.C., specializing in corporate and banking law and has held positions at a public library. Lemmer holds a B.A. (magna cum laude) from Lawrence University, an M.S. from University of Illinois and a J.D. (cum laude) from the University of Wisconsin. She has presented at state and national conferences and is a member of the Order of the Coif, Phi Beta Kappa and Beta Phi Mu, and various professional associations.

PRISCILLA D. KEITH, '93, DIRECTOR OF RESEARCH AND PROJECTS, HALL
CENTER FOR LAW AND HEALTH

Priscilla D. Keith, '93 joined the law school's Hall Center for Law and Health in October. She serves as Director of Research and Projects, as well as adjunct professor. As Director, she will manage the legal and policy research projects of the Center. She will also be responsible for the development of the curriculum and other arrangements for the graduate law degree program (LL.M.) in health law, policy and bioethics. She is already working to develop proposals for external funding from government agencies, foundations, corporations and private individuals. Before returning to work for her alma mater, Keith served as the General Counsel of the Health & Hospital Corporation of Marion County, in Indianapolis, including Wishard Health Services, the Marion County Health Department, and Environmental Services. Her primary focus was litigation, corporate transactions, and risk management, and serving as the counsel for the Marion County Health Department's Ryan White HIV AIDS Legal Project. Prior to her appointment as General Counsel, she served as Assistant Counsel to former Indiana Governor, Frank O'Bannon. She also served as an executive assistant to the Department of Insurance, State Board of Accounts, Utilities and Telecommunications, and the Women's Commission. Additionally, Keith was Chief Counsel of the Advisory Section under Attorneys General Jeff Modisett and Karen Freeman-Wilson. Prior to her legal career, Keith worked for Eli Lilly and Company in discovery research, environmental and medical plans. She is a member of the American Bar Association's Health Law Section, and serves on its Council, and is the Interest Group Leader. She also serves on the Board of Directors of the Providence Cristo Rey High School in Indianapolis, Visiting Nurses Service, the State of Indiana Ethics Commission and St. Mary's Child Center. In addition to earning her J.D. from our law school, she holds an M.S. in Anatomy from Atlanta University, and a B.S. from Spelman College. She is admitted to the Indiana Bar.

Professor Andrew Klein Serving as IUPUI Chancellor's Chief of Staff

Professor Andrew R. Klein has joined the office of IUPUI Chancellor Charles Bantz as part-time chief of staff. "Andy Klein's experience as associate dean, his commitment to public service and IUPUI, his professional skills, and sound judgment will work together well in the varied responsibilities typically handled by a chief of staff," said Chancellor Bantz, when he announced Klein's appointment. Professor Klein joined the IU School of Law-Indianapolis faculty in 2000 where he is the Paul E. Beam Professor of Law. He served as Associate Dean for Academic Affairs at the law school from 2004-2007. As chief of staff, he has day-to-day oversight of intercollegiate athletics, acts on the Chancellor's behalf in service on major projects, and handles other duties as assigned. He continues to teach half time at the law school. ■

All are Welcome to Join the Law School Running & Walking Club

Alumni and friends of the law school are welcome to join the law school's Running & Walking Club, founded by Professor Peter Prescott. Pictured left are club members Andrea Kochert (1L), Aimee Heitz (2L), and Katie Brant (2L) who came in second overall among the all-women marathon relay teams at the 2010 Community Health Network Indianapolis Marathon, Half Marathon and 5K on October 16. Kate Mercer-Clawson (3L) was also a member of the team. The club meets twice a week at the law school in the evenings, and often meets "off campus" on Saturdays to run/walk and socialize. Follow them on Facebook and join students and professors for a healthy way to relieve the stress of being a lawyer (or being in law school)! ■

Professor Karlson Passes Away at Age 67

PROFESSOR EMERITUS HENRY C. KARLSON PASSED AWAY ON MONDAY, OCTOBER 25, 2010, after a battle with cancer. Karlson taught criminal law at Indiana University School of Law – Indianapolis for over 30 years, and was a frequent commentator for local media outlets. He joined the law school faculty in 1977 and retired in 2008. Even after retiring, however, he continued to teach part-time.

Vice Dean Paul Cox, the Centennial Professor of law, says, “Henry Karlson was an important fixture at this law school for many years. He was a teacher passionately dedicated to his students and passionately intent upon instilling in them dedication to the rule of law. He loved the law school, greatly contributing to its development and success.” Professor Cox added, “He loved the law, greatly contributing both to its advancement and to the continuing education of the practicing bar. He was highly principled, and fearless in defending his principles. He was equally fearless in defending those he thought wronged. Henry’s passing is tragically premature. He will be greatly missed by his colleagues and his former students.”

Professor Karlson served for eight years in the United States Army where he was appointed a Trial Judge as a member of the U.S. Army Trial Judiciary and served as a Trial Judge in Vietnam.

Before joining the faculty at Indiana University, he taught at the University of Illinois College of Law. Over the years, he taught not only criminal law, but evidence, trial practice, and a seminar dealing with child abuse. A noted expert on child abuse, he not only co-authored a book on the subject, he also wrote articles that appeared in the APSAC Handbook on Child Maltreatment, the Indiana Law Review, the Journal of Child Abuse and Neglect, the Annals of Emergency Medicine and the Defense Law Journal. In addition, he delivered papers at more than one hundred continuing legal education programs.

Professor Karlson was a qualified expert witness on the issue of the proper methods for questioning very young children, and on the issue of lawyer competency. He was a member of the Association of Counsel for Children, the American Professional Society on the Abuse of Children, the Association of Trial Lawyers of America, the Order of the Coif and a former member of the Indiana Supreme Court Committee on Rules of Evidence and the Board of Examiners of the National Board of Trial advocacy.

He received his A.B., J.D. and LL.M. degrees from the University of Illinois.

Professor Karlson is survived by his wife, Nancy; daughter, Elizabeth M. Karlson, '00 (Chris); son, Henry C. Karlson III; and one grandson. ■

Henry Karlson, law professor and pundit, dies

By Jon Murray

Henry Karlson didn't curry favor with police or prosecutors. He readily second-guessed their decisions, while schooling countless budding lawyers on criminal law and leaving his fingerprints all over Indiana's criminal code.

Karlson, 67, Indianapolis, died Monday of complications from leukemia. His death was announced that night at a City-County Council meeting—a sign of the respect the outspoken Karlson earned during three decades of teaching and punditry.

"Intellectual trepidation was not a part of Henry Karlson," said William F. Harvey, a longtime friend and a former dean of the Indiana University School of Law – Indianapolis. "He knew what he knew, and he knew it perfectly."

Karlson was a fixture at IU as much for his specialty in criminal law and evidence as for his conservatism—both in politics and in his view of legal education, a rarity in an increasingly left-leaning field.

He cultivated an expertise in child-abuse and molestation cases. He retired from the law school in 2008 but continued to teach criminal law until his illness sidelined him this year.

Karlson helped state lawmakers draft changes to Indiana's criminal code and participated in writing the state courts' evidence rules in the 1990s.

He opined for the media on high-profile cases, and his bluntness put him at odds with police and prosecutors.

"The thing that would make him most angry is injustice. He hated seeing injustice," said his daughter, Liz Karlson, 40, who also became an attorney.

Earlier in his career, Karlson, then a young Army trial judge, was assigned in 1972 to write the Army's official "after action report" on the My Lai Massacre. His report addressed legal questions arising from the killing of about 300 Vietnamese villagers in 1968.
