POLICE CORRUPTION: Their Side

mouth and makes decisions without thinking things through. He doesn't understand our problems out here in the ghettos. He doesn't know anything about the problems of patrolmen on the street.

"My friends and family have asked me if there is any corruption among police, and they want to know what I think about all the accusations.

"As far as charges of drinking on duty, I think what existed has slowed down or stopped because we are all so busy.

"I believe there might be some corruption, but no more than in any other profession. Just because a guy is a copper doesn't mean he's an honest John.

"As far as the end result, I think the two reporters will be convicted for trying to bribe an officer, while the three indicted policemen will be set free because the charges are so petty. I think they ought to stick Mary Martin in jail and throw away the key. I really wish those two deputies who were in on the 'investigation' get convicted of something."

A third policeman, a 31-year-old patrolman on the force, told his story.

"I feel like the whole thing started out as a vendetta against a high-ranking policeman. Then toes started getting stepped on with so many implications that the Star had to show something. We police have no daily newspaper to give our side of the story.

"What upsets me is that the reporters received awards for their work—which is nothing—all lies. It just makes me sick.

"If corruption existed, there ought to be some proof. In the six years I've been on the department, I have never seen a dollar pass hands. The extent of 'payoffs' I've heard about, if you can call it that, has been a bottle of whiskey that a cop might confiscate.

"I've even asked my friends if they've ever seen anybody take a bribe—nobody has seen it.

"When the stories first hit the newspapers, you could feel the atmosphere change in a public place if you were in uniform. To the public, if you wore a blue uniform, you were guilty.

"I think Churchill got a raw deal. Lugar acted to make people think he was concerned. And then he stuck that idiot Hale in there, and boy, is he an idiot! Everything he has done has been a farce. He taught criminal justice at Indiana Central, but he made an illegal arrest of Major Langford over the theft of funds at the police auction. I don't see how a man can tell 1,100 men how to do a job he's never done himself. A chief needs at least five years of street experience to do a good job and to have an understanding of police problems.

"Out of 1,100 men, there are bound to be some guys on the take—I'd guess no more than 2 percent. Out of 1,100 people, you won't find 1,100 perfect people. A cop that would take a bribe is just that type of person who wouldn't feel badly about it.

"A bribe is wrong no matter what you take. If I saw a close friend take a bribe, I don't think I'd turn him in, but I would certainly talk to him about it.

"I think the end result will be that Lugar will get rid of Hale and replace him with Stratton. The Star has really discredited Lugar and stepped on a lot of toes. I don't particularly like Lugar, but it's unfair to do him this way. Hale will step down by being offered a better position. Stratton is next in line as far as having the most experience.

"Stratton had a chance to sue the Star, but I think he was told not to. It's the feeling of a lot of the men that it's already decided he'll be the next chief. I used to respect Stratton, but he's becoming more of a politician. He won't

On Friday, September 27, the Marion County Grand Jury, which has been investigating charges of police corruption among members of the Indianapolis Police Department, declared:

If corruption exists, it is not widespread but involves only a very few in a department of over 1,000 officers. The department is basically sound and honest and is doing its job to protect the rights and privileges of us all. The law enforcement officials are urged to move ahead in their work and, whenever necessary, to take appropriate action to maintain the integrity and effectiveness of the force.

The jury suggested that the investigation be ended and not reopened unless new evidence becomes available.

But what do Indianapolis Police Department officers think about these charges that have made their jobs harder and have demoralized their characters?

In their own words, seven members out of 150 interviewed of the I.P.D. revealed their thoughts, feelings and ideas about these corruption charges.

The first to talk was a sergeant who works in an inner-city area of patrol. He has been on the force for over six years.

"I thoroughly disapprove of the way The Indianapolis Star handled the story. It's one-sided. According to the Star, all policemen are guilty of corruption until proven innocent. Furthermore, the Star has condemned the whole judicial process.

"Morale is low among the men, no doubt about that. The corruption charges have hurt police effectiveness on the street.

"I wish Winston Churchill was still chief of police. He was a policeman who has done more than any other chief I've worked under. And I've worked under four different ones.

"I don't think much of Chief Hale because he seems to be in agreement with the Star about police corruption. It's just not right for him to be chief; it's like a plumber teaching school. He lacks experience even though he has the knowledge.

"My family and friends have watched to see how I'm reacting to all these charges. In a way, they believe the newspapers because that's the only side of the story they hear.

"The charges are a farce because with 160 witnesses only 3 indictments came about, which I think would have come about without the Star's help."

"No, I don't think there is widespread corruption. In my nine years on the force, I have never seen a policeman take a bribe.

"Plea-bargaining is the closest thing to police corruption that exists. It's something I don't like, but I'm forced to go along with it because of court caseloads. When I say plea-bargaining, I'm talking about reducing charges to misdemeanors if the suspect confesses to other crimes.

"The charges of police corruption are ridiculous. The results of the investigation should even convince the Star. The Star always tries to make something out of nothing to sell papers. But somehow, I don't think the Star will ever let it end."

The next to speak out was a patrolman from Frank sector.

"The Star's expose stinks! I think it's all political. I don't really think the Star has that much against police. The whole thing has put Mayor Lugar in the wringer.

"Morale was bad for awhile. At first I didn't like everybody thinking I was a crooked cop. Then I didn't give a —! Actually, the only people who respect policemen any less are those who didn't respect us in the first place. Most people realize it's strictly the Star's fabrication.

"I've never seen anybody take a dime. I disapprove of bribery. It would put me lower than the person offering the bribe to accept it.

"I don't think Churchill did all that bad a job. Hale stinks! He has too big a Print - Jockeys UNITE!

You hear a lot of people talking these days about freedom of the press and the rights of newspapers. And you'll always find us siding with those who believe that a free press is essential to a democracy; we've had to defend this newspaper too many times to believe otherwise.

But we also believe in something called responsibility of the press. Responsibility isn't something that you legislate; it's something that's up to each individual newspaper. No law demands that a newspaper print an article with which it disagrees. And rightfully so—the day that a law can require a newspaper to print something that is against the editorial policies of that paper, that is the day that you can say goodbye to free press.

However, we believe that there is a definite need for the newspapers to take the initiative and "legislate" themselves. For newspapers to ignore certain matters of ethics simply because the law can't touch them is a poor excuse for failing their public responsibilities.

We would suggest that a national attempt be made to form a National Newspaper Alliance, banding together under a common code of ethics. While one could never expect to have all of the country's newspapers under one banner, there is the possibility of joining a majority of the newspapers who would be willing to subject themselves to the judgment of all the other newspapers in the alliance.

Then, on the basis of the group consensus, newspapers would be able to criticize themselves in an extra-legal manner, using their code of ethics as a criteria for responsibility. Any newspaper in the alliance would be under constant scrutiny by its fellow newspapers and open to their criticism in the form of a vote of censure.

Of course, such a proposal relies on some sense of honesty among the media and assumes that such a sense already exists. This is basic groundwork on which the rest is built. The strength would come only if the alliance could band newspapers together tightly and produce a code of ethics that would not allow any members to "bend the rules" in their own behalf.

We feel that such a form of newspaper self-government is needed now before the public (and political) outcries against "irresponsible" press becomes too great for the system to bear.

You tellum Kellum

by Rick Smith

INDIANAPOLIS — When Nick Kellum was named athletic director of Indiana-Purdue University at Indianapolis three years ago, the title was one almost "in-name only."

He had practically no athletic program to "direct."

Much has happened to the IUPUI athletic program since that time. In fact, just about everything has been changed, upgraded and expanded—with the notable exception of the budget.

The Plainfield, Ind., native has worked diligently to build an inter-collegiate sports program. It appears the "fruits of his labors" may be realized soon.

Kellum has many ideas and hopes for the future. The work of the last three years, he says, has laid the groundwork for those.

"We would really like to be a full member of the NCAA," Kellum said. "To be a member, you have to have four sports in three seasons. We have added golf and tennis to basketball which now gives us three."

What will be the other sport(s)?

"We have active sports clubs in soccer, wrestling and men's volleyball now," Kellum stated. "The idea is to develop these sports clubs into intercollegiate sports as soon as the interest and available financing permits."

That last comment brings up a sore point—financing.

The heart of any athletic program, regardless of size, school or level of competition, is money. There isn't a whole lot that can be done without it.

"Right now, financing is our biggest problem," Kellum said. "Unlike many of the other regional campuses in the state, we do not have a student activity fee here. That is (or would be) the main source of income."

At one time, IUPUI did have a $3 student activity fee. Since this has been abolished, Kellum has had to look desperately for other means of financing his teams.

"By all means we have a bright future for growth," he said. "Any time you have a campus with over 18,000 students, the potential for programs in athletics is great."

Since IUPUI is rather young, Kellum said it may be some time before growth really begins. Again, the topic of money came up.

"We don't have a true alumni body yet. Universities depend a great deal on alumni for support and funds. We just don't have any yet."

Still, Kellum has hopes.

"We are real optimistic about the future. We are not going to get the job done overnight, but in 10 to 15 years I feel we will have an extensive intercollegiate program with the exception of football."

Kellum said high costs of a football program have prevented any exploration into fielding a team in the future. "We aren't considering that venture for some time to come."

Kellum has seen many changes in the IUPUI athletic program since he took the job. He considers the basketball team as the biggest achievement thus far.

Dear Guvament,

Sentences taken from actual letters written to a government agency.

"This is my eighth child. What are you going to do about it?"

"I have no children as yet as my husband is a truck driver and works night and day."

"I am forwarding my marriage certificate and six children. I had seven, but one died which was baptized on a half sheet of paper."

"I am writing the Welfare Dept. to say that my baby was born two years old. When do I get my money?"

"Mrs. Jones has not had any clothes for a year and has been visited by the Clergy regularly."

"I cannot get sick pay. I have six children. Can you tell me why?"

"I am glad to report that my husband who is missing is dead."

"Please find for certain if my husband is dead. The man I live with don't eat or do anything until he knows."

"I am very much annoyed to find that you have branded my son illiterate. This is a dirty lie as I was married a week before he was born."

"In answer to your letter, I have given birth to a boy weighing ten pounds. I hope this is satisfactory."

"I am forwarding my marriage certificate and my three children, one of which is a mistake as you can see."

"My husband got his project cut off two weeks ago and I haven't had any relief since."

"Unless I get my husband's money pretty soon, I will be forced to lead an immortal life."

"You have changed my little boy to a girl; will this make any difference?"

"In accordance with your instruction, I gave birth to twins in the enclosed envelope."

"I want money as quick as I can get it. I have been in bed with the doctor for two weeks and he doesn't do me any good. If things don't improve I will have to send for another doctor."

The shop foreman of the sheet metal company which is located on the corner of Agnes and New York Street, has warned that any unauthorized vehicles parked in the marked off area will be towed away at the owner's expense.

The shop foreman, Ira Neal says he has had enough of students parking in the area and blocking the flow of trucks going about their daily business. Revenge, in part, has been claimed by Neal. He claims to have hemmed in one student-owned parked car by parking one of his service trucks immediately behind the protruding car. Neal also suggests that the parking of cars in front of the entrances to the Sheet metal company could be in violation of state fire laws.

On Friday, November 15th at 7:30, Professor Leon Bourke of the French Department will speak to members and guests of the English Club in the Cavanaugh Faculty Lounge on the work and philosophical position of the French writer Albert Camus. Professor Bourke's talk will focus particularly on The Plague (available in Modern Library paperback).

People who are curious about Camus but who have never read any of his work may feel free to attend. There will be an opportunity for questions & discussions after Dr. Bourke's talk and refreshments will be served. All interested students and faculty are invited.

Four Soviet researchers have arrived in the U.S. to study American seismographs and data in an exchange program to develop earthquake prediction techniques.

While the Soviets are comparing American seismic records and earthquake instruments, a group of U.S. scientists and engineers will be employing American techniques to detect earthquakes in the Garm region in the southeastern part of the U.S.S.R., just north of Afghanistan.

The program, funded by the visiting scientists' countries, with the U.S. costs being shared by the National Science Foundation (NSF) and the United States Geological Survey (USGS) is considered especially promising since both countries have had success predicting several earth tremors. Despite this however, scientists report that much work remains to be done before any major quakes can be predicted.

Zillite gives coronation for "The Abdication"

by Karen M. Zillite

Every few years, a movie is released which could be categorized in a "Women in History" series. I'm thinking specifically of Isadora, Mary, Queen of Scots and Pope Joan (the latter of which is only vaguely historically documented). Once again, much along the lines of Glenda Jackson or Vanessa from 1632 to 1654 is a fascinating one. However, the film, The Abdication, hardly touches the historical aspects of her reign. Instead, the film's focus and plot completely revolve around Christina's arrival to Rome and her vehement attempts to become accepted into Catholicism by the Pope. The Pope we never see.

We do see Peter Finch as a Cardinal, though. (Any of you catch the ornithology joke: Finch plays Cardinal? — Bird of a different color, I'd say). His role has several purposes (which seemed too many for his acting capacities to convey convincingly). As Cardinal and candidate for the Papacy, he interrogates the ex-queen to determine the sincerity of her conversion. As member of the religious order proclaiming love for humankind, he listens to the condensed auto-biography of this highly individualistic woman. And as a member of the male sex of the human species, he falls in love with Christina — who has also claimed romantic desires for him. This romantic side of the film I have reservations about, mostly due to Finch's performance and papel position.

Christina has been described (by Rene Descartes) as a strong-willed, creative, and superbly intelligent woman. This is very well conveyed by Liv Ullman, whose remarkable talent for displaying both subtle and voracious emotions dominates the film.

Christina's reasons for abdicating the throne are dual: she has sworn against espousal and motherhood, thus eliminating her chances for bearing an heir which worries her royal colleagues. Also, Protestantism offers no rewards in Christina's eyes, so she wishes to dedicate herself to Catholicism. The first reason I find worthy of comment. In 1650, such an attitude of celibacy is understandably ahead of its time. When will that time come which accepts such an attitude? Somehow it seems strange that 325 years later people still worry about this individualistic choice of a non-inhabited womb. I guess a person doesn't get any credit for being single and solitary in this world.

Which brings to mention another absence of credit. There aren't any lines flashed across the screen in the beginning of the flick to tell you who's who or who does what. A good reason being that Ullman and Finch are about the only characters you become familiar with. This is due to the fact that The Abdication was originally a play. This becomes quite obvious as the film progresses and that fact is its only shortcoming.

Ruth Wolff is responsible for writing both play and screenplay. Although I've never read the play (or seen it), I was well aware of the literary carry-over from play to film. The film approaches Christina's monologues by voicing them over flashbacks covering childhood through abdication. The speeches of both Finch and Ullman are quite dramatic; the problem here is that drama is better delivered on a stage. Films, unlike live performances, have the advantage of intimate close-ups to portray emotion or action, and thus do not have to rely on "heavy" lines. In Abdication, both ears and eyes are assaulted with poetic rhetoric and expressive faces. Ever heard of too much of a good thing? That coinage sums up this picture nicely.

Other good points include some surrealist cinematography by Geoffrey Unsworth, and quite a bit of majestic music by Nino Rota. If an LP is ever released, it would only be good for playing at the next coronation you attend.

If you're in the mood for seeing an "artistic" film or are a Liv Ullman fan (like myself), you'll probably enjoy the film. What it says, it says powerfully. What it doesn't say (historically), you probably won't even miss.

Roman Polanski's version of Macbeth will be presented by the Lectures and Convocations Committee on November 13 in the 38th Street Student Lounge at noon and in the Lecture Hall that evening at 8:15 p.m. FREE!

Oh my you think you've got troubles! Oh my. Do you realize how much Special Formula Buffalo and Goat Feed Costs? Well let me tell you that I'd rather be feeding a Great Dane, I can't think of one right now. New! contest: Send me a list of all the great danes you know, and I'll give you a free Sagamore for a week. Think of that.

Anyway, I'd rather feed a Great Dane ground chuck four times a day. Five pounds of ground Chuck, Chuck Evans, than to have to feed my buffalo and goat. That's how much to feed cost. Outrageous.

Do you know how many articles I have to type up to pay for all that Special Feed Buffalo and Goat Feed? None. I don't get paid for these articles...I think I should.

Just think if you were running this "newspaper" wouldn't you be honored to get such masterpieces as this one? Why sure you would. And you would be willing to pay for them wouldn't you? Sure you would.

Do you hear that Mr. M. William Lutholtz? Do you hear all those people out there saying they are going to start a newspaper and pay me for all these wonderful, wonderful articles? Do you hear them? Well take heed Mr. Lutholtz. If I don't start getting some gratis for this, well, I'll threaten you. Do you hear me?

That's right friends. Along with your Great Dane names, send along a little note saying you are a big-time publisher and that you are going to start a newspaper and pay me big money. You don't have to sign it or anything, just send it in.

Geese thanks pardners. I shore appreciate it. And my goat and my buffalo appreciate it too. And my mother thanks you. And my father thanks you. And my brothers thank you. And my sisters thank you. The Flying Dutchman. A Legendary Mixture.

Caught in the act

J. Geils in Cow Barn

by Rob Perdue

Bigtime boogie from Boston finally came to Indy this past Halloween. The J. Geils Band made their first appearance in the time withered Coliseum and despite the facilities and a few obnoxious fans gave Indy the most exciting and boogified concert of 1974.

Golden Earring opened the show and did a good job of getting an already charged up audience ready for the boys from the beantown. Their set which was climaxed by what else, "Radar Love" was somewhat lacking and it appears they'll have a hard time making the transaction from an opening act to a headliner. Barry Hay, their lead singer looks uncomfortable on stage which was a large part of the groups problem. During their encore the usual pushing started and a broken barrier resulted. The show was delayed additionally between groups for repair. I'm still amazed why people push at nearly every concert. Didn't we learn anything from Woodstock.

When the J. Geils Band finally took the stage most of the ten thousand fans in attendance were on their feet from the opening chords. Peter Wolf, one of the premier lead singers in America, was in fine form diddyboppin through each song laying his usual street jive on the very responsive audience. "Looking For A Love" a prime example of the J. Geils Band brand of rock n roll was met with the loudest round of applause of the evening. "Whammer Jammer", a harmonica solo by Magic Dick, was most representative of the J. Geils Band of old.

After three fantastic encores the house lights came up and a very drained crowd strolled outside into the Halloween air. After the show I talked with Peter Wolf and was very impressed with his general enthusiasm for what he's doing which was echoed by the rest of the band. They've changed their style a bit since Full House but they're still the most exciting band America has to offer.

Barbie sez

by Barbie Q. Evans

Hi, guys, and welcome back to the second chapter of Oooo - eeee - poooo - eeee Ptomaine. How'd you like the beans last week? Real gasser recipe, huh?

Well, last week ain't got nothing in this episode. This week brings you another fine way to eat around the food prices. This little poultry plesantry comes in the form of

ROOSTER'S DELIGHT (Chicken Breasts and Thighs)

4 Chicken Breast Halves
4 Thighs of Same Type Bird
2 Cups Flour
2 Eggs of Chicken
1/4 Cup Milk of Cow
Numerous Assorted Spices

This week's food-thinkers tip is an old Sicilian family recipe. I even had to take an oath of allegiance to an old Sicilian family before they'd let me have it. (Anybody want to see my new Black Hand?)

Step One. Break the shells of the eggs and pour the contents into a bowl. Tell them that you are sorry that they didn't grow up to be real chickens. Now pepper the eggs real nice. Add a little salt and some garlic powder. Also add the milk and then stir it all up.

Step Two. Mix the two cups of flour with one teaspoon each of Savory, Parsley, Sage, Basil and Thyme. (Basil!) Also a teaspoon of Oregano. Portland Oregano if you can get it. (Who the hell is Basil and where's Rosemary? For that matter, where's Simon and Garfunkel?)

Step Three. Preheat an electric skillet to 400 degrees Fahrenheit. If you don't have an electric skillet, try an electric blanket—but they don't usually get that hot. Otherwise, just heat a regular large-size skillet to that temperature. You can tell if it's 400 degrees by putting your fingers on the inner surface of the skillet. If the tips of your fingers turn brown in less than three minutes, it's hot enough.

Step Four. Cover the bottom of the pan with cooking oil.

Step Five. Place the chicken parts in the egg stuff and make sure that each piece gets covered well. (I wouldn't touch that line...) Then take the little things and put them in the flour and roll them around for a while until they are all covered up in white like them guys in the Kook Klux Klan.

Step Six. Now arrange them in the skillet so that the thighs (dark meat) are in the center of the pan. Ring the thighs with the breasts (white meat). This will allow for the intermingling of the flavor juices and will also serve as a map of the Indianapolis area.

Step Seven. While turning the thighs and breasts periodically, go watch the Sunday wrap-up of the Purdue football game. It takes about that long for this stuff to cook.

Step Eight. After about an half an hour of cooking, the cooker might choose the option of adding a bottle of Open Pit Bar-B-Q (hickory flavored) Sauce to the cookees. (Some connoisseurs of the art believe that a little sauce will help to tenderize the breasts and thighs. Some of them have also been arrested for child molest.)

This great din-din can be served along with any number of side dishes. Of course, if you can get the proper breasts and thighs, you may not need any side dishes.

The main course will cook up for about $1.25 each for four people. As you can see, this meal just amounts to chicken feed. (Snickers, snickers.)

I just thought of something—if someone says "snicker," does that mean that something is more "snick" than something else?

Final Note: It is appropriate, when removing the wraps from the breasts and thighs, to tell them that you love them and really do respect them. This often helps the wraps come off easier.

IMA shows 30's films

The Indianapolis Museum of Art is sponsoring films from the 1930's every Friday night at 8 p.m. at the DeBoest Lecture Hall at the Museum. Richard Basch, noted NBC film critic at-large and lecturer of films at numerous campuses, will introduce each of these films with a brief discourse.

American Madness (1932) starring Pat O'Brian and Walter Huston will be shown November 15. This is an outrageous story of a run on a bank caused by rumors that the president of the bank has robbed it of 5 million dollars.

The I.M.A. will also present Vittorio De Sica's 1952 classic, Umberto D., another of his neo-realistic studies of "Man oppressed." The film centers around a retired civil servant during the Italian economic upheavals and focuses on his despairing search for companionship. Umberto D. will be shown in the DeBoest Lecture Hall at the art museum on Sunday, November 10 at 7:30 p.m.

A captain from the investigation division who has 20 years on the I.P.D. to his credit made several new contributions to the rebuttal.

"I think the expose came immediately after the release of the movie 'Serpico' in Indianapolis. This movie was based on corruption in the New York City Police Department. I have a feeling these reporters thought they could bring the problem to Indianapolis by changing a few of the names and particulars.

"A police department is no different from any other walk of life. In all walks of life you have corruption.

"The only 'payoffs' I've ever heard about have been petty — a jug off a bootlegger or a buck or two off a gambler. But I don't know if these reports are even true.

"Out of 1,100 men, I'd guess maybe 15 are corrupt. If I ever see a fellow officer — no matter what his rank — take a bribe, he'd go to jail.

"I think the Star is way out in left field. The Star sells newspapers and likes to sensationalize.

"I think this whole farce is politically motivated for the Democrats when you realize that reporter William Anderson was once Mayor Barton's administrative assistant. The Star must be teed off at the Republicans since it usually supports that party.

"There's been no effect on my job due to the expose. It's all in the way a policeman accepts it. It can't affect you if you know you are not involved. Of course it hurts me, though, when someone says all police are corrupt. The Star is awfully ignorant to brand a whole police department.

"A classic example of why police are taken to be corrupt is this: In court a first degree burglary charge is reduced to malicious trespass due to lack of evidence because the detective assigned to the case didn't see it happen. But everyone thinks that detective is on the take because of the reduction when he actually had nothing to do with it.

"As far as I'm concerned, I think Churchill was the best chief — and I've worked under five chiefs. I do think Hale is conscientious and he's trying to do a good job. But he doesn't understand or sympathize with police problems because he was never a policeman. But I'll give him an "E" for effort.

"Most policemen liked Churchill, but Hale is trying to do a good job. Hale is his own man. He'll back you 100 per cent if you're right, but God help you if you're wrong. He's trying to bring professionalism to the department."

A patrolman in his middle twenties from Boy sector with several years on the department shared his thoughts.

"Hale should have stuck to teaching. He might have been great doing what he did, but he's ignorant as far as police work is concerned. Churchill was a smart, good chief.

"I have never seen or heard about anyone taking a bribe.

"I only feel contempt for the Star. I think the whole deal will fade away quietly because you can't beat the newspaper when it's the only one in town.

"Hale will be out after the election, and Stratton will be the new chief.

"If I saw another cop taking a bribe, I wouldn't do anything — it's none of my business."

Finally, one patrolman with several years on the department, revealed reluctantly that corruption does exist.

"Yes, I've taken a bribe. But, I feel it doesn't have much to do with my being a policeman. No matter what job I had, if there was a way to make extra money, I'd do it. We just don't make that much money! I don't know of anybody else who has taken money. If my friends ever found out that I did take bribes, they wouldn't be my friends. I guess I rationalize by saying my situation is somewhat desperate. I'm twice-divorced with a total of three kids. I only got married for the third time to exist!

"Most of my salary goes in child support. My present wife will always have to work to support us unless my situation changes. I don't dare pick up any money with the situation the way it is now. I can't see what's so bad about taking money from a gambler or a prostitute — it's dirty money anyway!

"At least it goes to feed my kids and keep them in clothes. I'm not proud of myself, but things were so bad before I got married again that I had to literally live off my friends and family. There's no pride in that, either."

All of these policemen were in agreement that corruption probably existed among their ranks, but even the one who admitted taking bribes couldn't go along with the charges of widespread corruption.

In conclusion, one of the patrolmen had this to add: "If money was so easy to pick up as a policeman, I would like to know why about three-fourths of the police have part-time jobs — including myself. I don't make a fabulous salary by any means, and probably never will in this line of work.

"Until recently, I didn't resent my salary because I felt my job had other rewards. But being called crooked because I'm a cop isn't one of those rewards. I'm afraid if the situation continues, Indianapolis might just lose several disillusioned, honest and hard-working police officers."

PARTY TO HONOR JACK RYDER WHO IS NEW COLLEGE PRESIDENT

An official farewell party for Dr. Jack M. Ryder, IUPUI vice chancellor and dean for administrative affairs, will be held Friday, Nov. 22, at the Rodeway Airport Motel.

Dr. Ryder, dean of the old Purdue campus here and IUPUI vice chancellor since its inception, will become president of Saginaw Valley College in Michigan on Dec. 1.

The all-IUPUI reception and

SEEKING APPS FOR DANFORTH FELLOWSHIPS

Seniors and recent graduates who wish to become college teachers are invited to apply for Danforth Fellowships in the 1975-76 program.

An application deadline of Nov. 11 is set, and applications are available from the Graduate School Office, Room A101 in the Union Building.

dinner will begin at 6 p.m. Cost is $0 per ticket. Information is available from Dr. John C. Buhner, vice chancellor and dean of the faculties.

Dr. Ryder will become president of the state college near Bay City, Mich., after having served higher education in Indiana since 1962. He has been assistant to the dean of Purdue's extension administration, director and dean of the Purdue Indianapolis Campus, interim director of Ivy Tech for a year in 1964, and IUPUI vice chancellor since 1969.

He was president of the Indianapolis Scientific and Engineering Foundation, a member of the IU system Management Information System steering committee and of the IUPUI Goals and Objectives Committee.

He holds degrees from Michigan State University and is a former public school administrator in out-state Michigan.

IUPUI RECRUITMENT CALENDAR ON-CAMPUS INTERVIEWS

The schedule of employers interviewing students for career opportunities appears each week in this section of the Sagamore. Interviews are held in the Placement Center, Room 60, Krannert Building, 38th Street Campus. Sign-up sheets are available after 8:30 a.m. on the Monday two-weeks preceding the date of the interview. Detroit Abortions: ANNOUNCEMENT

We're proud to announce our referrals for early pregnancy are now being sent to Metropolitan Detroit's finest birth control center. It is a brand new facility designed specifically for the complete medical and emotional needs of women undertaking a pregnancy termination.

Constructed according to the standards and guidelines set forth by the Michigan Department of Public Health, over 4000 square feet is devoted to patient comfort.

Operating physicians are certified surgeons and OB/GYN's. With over 15 years in private practice, they are specialists in all phases of pregnancy interruption.

Patients are welcomed in an atmosphere of music and sheer elegance by a carefully selected, skilled and sympathetic staff. All information is confidential. There are no building signs.

We're especially proud of the set-up recovery room. Being a patient's last stop, she will be served soft drinks and a snack at cafe-style tables. She'll have a large mirrored vanity area with a marble make-up counter for last minute touch-up, feminine toiletries, telephone service for a call home, and a private exit foyer to meet her escort.

Procedure fees are low. Pregnancy tests are free. We invite you to call
