Drs. Hyatt, Bridge,
Haggstrom & Travers

This year we are pleased to announce that two residents graduated from the Program. Congratulations to Drs. Andrew Bridge and Ann-Marie Hyatt. Dr. Bridge will be moving to Chicago to pursue a practice opportunity in the "Windy City". Dr. Hyatt will be pursuing a dermatopathology fellowship with Professor Diya Mutasim at the University of Cincinnati's Department of Dermatology. We wish our newest colleagues all the best and hope they will all consider coming back to Indiana, if not to practice, at least to visit!

SPRING INDY DERM MEETING SUCCESSFUL

The Spring Indiana Academy of Dermatology Society Meeting was held at the I. U. Medical Center on Friday, May 15, 2010. Again, for the clinical meeting there were a wide variety of patients with interesting diagnoses presented and there was a large crowd in attendance. After the patient viewing, Dr. Jeffrey Callen, Director of the University of Louisville's Dermatology Program was honored as the Moores Lecturer. Dr. Callen's lecture was superb and demonstrated why Dr.

Drs. Callen & Wolverton

Callen is one of the premier dermatology clinicians in the United States. With Dr. Travers on sabbatical, Dr. Stephen Wolverton did a masterful job running the clinical meeting. Thanks to Dr. Wolverton, Dermatopathologist Director Dr. Simon Warren, Dermatology Chief Residents Drs. Bridge and Hyatt, and Dermatopathology Fellow Dr. Matthew Kuhar for a very successful meeting!

Mark your calendar! The date for the Fall IAD Clinical Meeting will be the 5th Friday in October (October 29th), and will be held again at the Dermatology Clinic at the Adult Outpatient Center. We are very pleased to announce that the Fall IDS Meeting speaker

Spotlight

Joanne Trockman M.D.

Written by Dr. Jeffrey Travers

Every issue of the Hackney-Norins Newsletter highlights an individual or a program in the Department—this issue highlights Dr. Glenna Joanne Trockman, Assistant Professor of Clinical Dermatology.

Dr. Joanne Trockman is an example of a special colleague whom has overcome considerable obstacles, and has done it with style, grace and a gritty determination.

Dr. Trockman was born in Danville, Illinois, the daughter of a butcher shop owner.

She spent the first four years of her life in Indianapolis and then moved back to Danville, where she graduated from Danville High School. She did her undergraduate degree in Zoology at Butler University as a General Motors Scholar. She spent her summers doing research here at the medical center in the Department of Ophthalmology.

Called to medicine, she completed her first two years of medical school here at IU, then married and transferred to the University of Southern California for her last two years.

Though Dr. Trockman was planning to become a pediatrician, experiencing dermatology as her last medical school rotation caused her to change her career plans. Under the guidance of famous Professor Norman Levin, she did her residency at LAC-USC Medical Center finishing in 1974 and becoming board-certified by American Board of Dermatology in 1975. She worked at Ross-Loos Medical Center in Los Angeles as Director of Dermatology for two years, and then was in private practice in LA for eight years and three years in Auburn-Opelika, Alabama until she moved to Indianapolis and started a successful practice in the Castleton area from 1988-2000. Unfortunately, Dr. Trockman retired from practice due to health problems, including systemic lupus erythematosus. Her story did not end there, however, as her improved health allowed her to consider returning to active practice after eight years. Under the guidance of Dr. Alexander Zemtsov and Dr. Jeffrey Travers, a “mini-residency” of nine months was set up which included her successfully completing the Dermatology Recertification Examination. Dr. Trockman was successfully relicensed by the Indiana State Board in December, 2008. She has been working part-time with Dr. Zemtsov and with the Department and this summer decided to join the Department full-time.

Dr. Trockman

Dr. Trockman loves being back seeing patients and feels that with her vast experience, she has much to contribute to the field especially interacting with all the “learners” at the University. “The teamwork and camaraderie is great, and the constant pursuit of knowledge and learning new things every day keeps me young!” Dr. Trockman is a consummate learner and teacher; in between patients in the clinic she is either reading or teaching.

When not poring over medical texts, she enjoys pleasure reading, music, gardening, and gourmet cooking. She has two children, Joel Trockman, who is a computer software engineer and salesman in LA, and daughter Jennifer, who is enrolled in the Kelly School of Business. Dr. Trockman also enjoys spending time with her granddaughter, Mercedes Goodman. Though Dr. Trockman is very appreciative of a “second chance” to practice Dermatology, the truth is that we are the ones who are appreciative of having such a colleague in our midst!

KUDOS TO:

Dr. John O'Malley, who was awarded the outstanding dermatology medical student award at the medical student awards banquet in May, 2010 by Dr. Alison Klenk, our Medical Student Education Director. A product of Indiana University's MD-PhD program, Dr. O'Malley is doing his internship at Riley Hospital and matched to Columbia University's program for his dermatology residency.

Dr. Mousdicas

Dr. Nico Mousdicas, whose contact dermatitis patch testing clinic has been so successful that he has doubled the amount of days that he is conducting this clinic to keep up with the demand...he has ~500 antigens and knows how to use them!

Dr. Liz Bryant, who was so successful as the first clinical trials fellow, that the Department will be funding Dr. Daniel West to follow her in this new fellowship, started by Drs. Wolverton and Mark.

Drs. Mark, Bryant & Wolverton

Yongxue Yao

Members of the Department who presented at the recent Society of Investigative Dermatology Meeting in Atlanta, Georgia. Seven abstracts were accepted, and talks were given by Dr. Raymond Konger (Department of Pathology and Dermatology), and postdoctoral fellows Drs. Ravi Sahu and Yongxue Yao, and former summer student Jared Travers.

THREE NEW RESIDENTS AND TWO NEW FELLOWS JOIN DEPARTMENT

Drs. Turner, Graham, Sanford, Bryant, West

We are pleased to announce that Drs. Elizabeth Bryant, Lori Sanford, and Thomas Graham are starting as Dermatology Residents July 1st. Drs. Sanford and Graham have just finished their internships here in the Department of Medicine, and Dr. Bryant just finished her clinical fellowship in the Department. Dr. Daniel West, who will be starting as an IU Dermatology Resident in July, 2011, will replace Dr. Bryant as Clinical Fellow. We are fortunate to keep Dr. Christiane Machado as a Clinical Fellow for her second year and we have started recruiting her to possibly join our faculty in 2011! With money from a supplement awarded to an NIH grant, we have also hired Matthew Turner, M.D., Ph.D., for a one-year Research and Clinical fellowship. Dr. Turner completed two years of residency at the prestigious University of Cincinnati's Dermatology Program and is using this fellowship year to learn new research techniques and gather data for an eventual future faculty position as a physician-scientist (hopefully he picks us!).

Welcome to

Drs. Bryant, Graham, Sanford, Turner and West!
