A PROCLAMATION

Whereas, IUPUI will be the site of competition in 10 sports during the Tenth Pan American Games in August, with thousands of athletes and spectators coming to our campus from dozens of countries in the Western Hemisphere;

And Whereas, Many members of our faculty and staff have joined other volunteers from the Indianapolis community to make these Games possible;

And Whereas, IUPUI has helped in many ways to prepare for the Games, through such activities as sponsorship of cultural events, certification of Spanish language skills of more than 2,100 volunteers for interpreting assignments, programs that have encouraged the youth of Indiana to improve their Spanish, and testing of the athletes by the sports medicine drug identification lab at the Indiana University Medical Center;

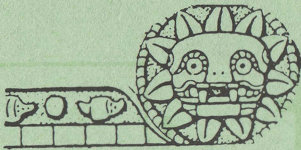

And Whereas, These Games offer a rare opportunity to make friends from 38 nations in our half of the world for our campus, our city, and our state;

It is Hereby Proclaimed That the period August 9 through 23, 1987, at IUPUI will be known as Pan American Games Days, during which we will offer our visitors full portions of Hoosier hospitality. We want to welcome our guests with warmth, make sure that they enjoy their stay with us, and send them home with bright memories of their time at our campus and in our community.

;Manos a la obra! Which means "Let's get the job done!" Let's work together to make these Games a great success. Especially those that will take place in our own front yard.

Gerald L. Bepko
Indiana University
Vice President (Indianapolis)

REGULAR NEWS 'N' NOTES FROM HERE 'N' THERE

Getting It Right--If your Green Sheet arrives in time, you may still be able to take advantage of the big garage sale at the Ronald McDonald House. The special pre-sale for IUPUI folks is July 31, noon-5 p.m.; the public sale is Aug. 1, 8 a.m.-5 p.m. The dates were wrong in the last issue of the Green Sheet. Also wrong was the spelling of Gonso, as in Lucy, assistant director of University Relations, who is in charge of our State Fair booth.

Thank You--Patricia Boaz, director of the Adult Education Coordinating Center, and her grown children, Peter, Bridget, Joel and Molly, send the following: "We deeply appreciate the outpouring of love from our university friends who planted a tree on the campus in memory of our dear daughter and sister, Joy."

Child Thinkers on Campus--From as far away as Santa Barbara, Calif., came youngsters in grades 4-10 to attend the annual Young Scholars Program on campus. Miriam Langsam continues to direct the program that this year brought together 240 gifted youngsters who got involved in dentistry, computers, law, athletics, lab work and much more.

Nutrition Needs You--Healthy, normal adults are needed for a nutrition study to test the effects of eating fresh or cooked fruit on blood sugar and appetite. Small stipend paid. Call Jane Stegner, 4-0952 or leave message at 4-4356.

Change Address--You may be surprised to learn that IUPUI has a Bureau of Facilities Studies. You may want to note that it moved from the Administration Building to Suite G025 in the Union Building. Ken Rogers is in charge and can still be reached at 4-2157.

Thirsty Meeting--The Thirsty Thursday bowling league from IUPUI is having an organizational meeting on Aug. 20, 7:30 p.m. at the Raceway Lanes, on 16th Street, across from the 500-Mile race track. Some lanes are left. All are welcome. Call Debbie, 4-8214 or Judy, 4-5532.

Happy 40th--Nuclear medicine is celebrating 40 years of invaluable medical achievement through innovative diagnostics. By proclamation from Mayor Bill, the city and campus acknowledge the contributions of our department of nuclear medicine which is well on its way to becoming a major international center. Dr. Henry Wellman is director. National Nuclear Medicine Week is July 27-Aug. 2.

Cultural Bonanza--A special black "folk craft" exhibit, opera, plays, music and art are all offered this week at IUB. The IU Opera presents "The Crucible" Aug. 7-8 at 8 p.m.; the Brown County Playhouse presents "The Foreigner" on Aug. 2 at 8 p.m.; and "Dial M for Murder" Aug. 6-9. For all the rest, call IUB, 335-MUSE.

Final-ly--The last opportunity for students to reserve classes for the Fall term is Aug. 17-20. The classes begin Aug. 24. Registration will be held in Cavanaugh Hall from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Registration is done alphabetically, with appointments made only by pre-arrangement. Payment is made at the time of registration. Call Admissions, 4-4591.

POSITION AVAILABLE FACULTY, Systems Librarian, School of Medicine Library. Requires master's degree from an ALA-accredited school and three years' experience in broad range of library automation activities. Send inquiries to: Phyllis J. Pear, Administrative Assistant, I.U. School of Medicine, 635 Barnhill Dr., Indianapolis 46223.

LET THE GAMES BEGIN, PLEASE

Like any big party, there is a flurry of last-minute details before the guests arrive, but the colorful silky banners are flying, new sidewalks are down, beds and board are ready, and IUPUI and Indy are so clean "they look like someone vacuumed up even the grit and grime off the streets," said a New Yorker. On Aug. 7 a total of 40 electricians, 40 laborers, 40 carpenters and 40 painters will ready the Speedway for the opening extravaganza on Aug. 8; beginning Aug. 9, 30 electricians, 30 carpenters, and 100 laborers will tear everything down. Thousands and thousands of volunteers are outfitted in the white and grey and they've set their white caps on doing the best possible job. Some people, like Phyllis Boston in the vice president's office, are really into the spirit of things. She's been wearing Pan Am-colored clothing for months. She's also been filling in the Pan Am flow sheet and calendar on campus. In the following pages you can read what IUPUI departments and people have done to make all this a success. There is not space enough to mention all that's been done and those who have done it. To all of you who have made contributions, both large and small, .ole!

PAN AMERICAN NEWS 'N' NOTES

Health in This Hemisphere--The Schools of Nursing and Continuing Studies, International Programs, and Nursing Alumni are sponsoring a multidisciplinary conference, "Health for All by the Year 2000: Progress in the Americas" Aug. 31-Sept. 1 at the Lincoln Hotel and University Conference Center. Experts from the U.S., South America and Canada will be among the speakers. All are welcome. Call 4-7779 or 4-5063.

Look in the Lobby--In Cavanaugh Hall, through Aug. 28, you are invited to see a small exhibit featuring crafts and art objects of Latin America in the personal collection of Marta Cruz.

Music--Winners of major international music competitions in North and South America will be featured in the Pan Am Music Festival of Champions, Aug. 1-6 at Clowes Memorial Hall. Sponsors are Cathedral Arts and Butler University. For tickets, call 239-1000.

Gaucha Feast--"Churrasco," a Brazilian barbecue, will be at the new Indianapolis Zoo site on Aug. 7, 7-10 p.m. Brazilian chef Natanael de Frega Seffrin will do the honors amid music and dancing. Limited numbers of tickets are on sale at the zoo and the City Center.

Family Fun--Fiesta, the annual Hispanic American party downtown, is always fun. This year it's made even more fun as it joins the Pan Am celebration. Food, music, laughter, dancing and entertainment are offered Aug. 1 from noon to midnight in Veterans Memorial Plaza. The culture of more than 20 Pan Am countries will be represented. All welcome.

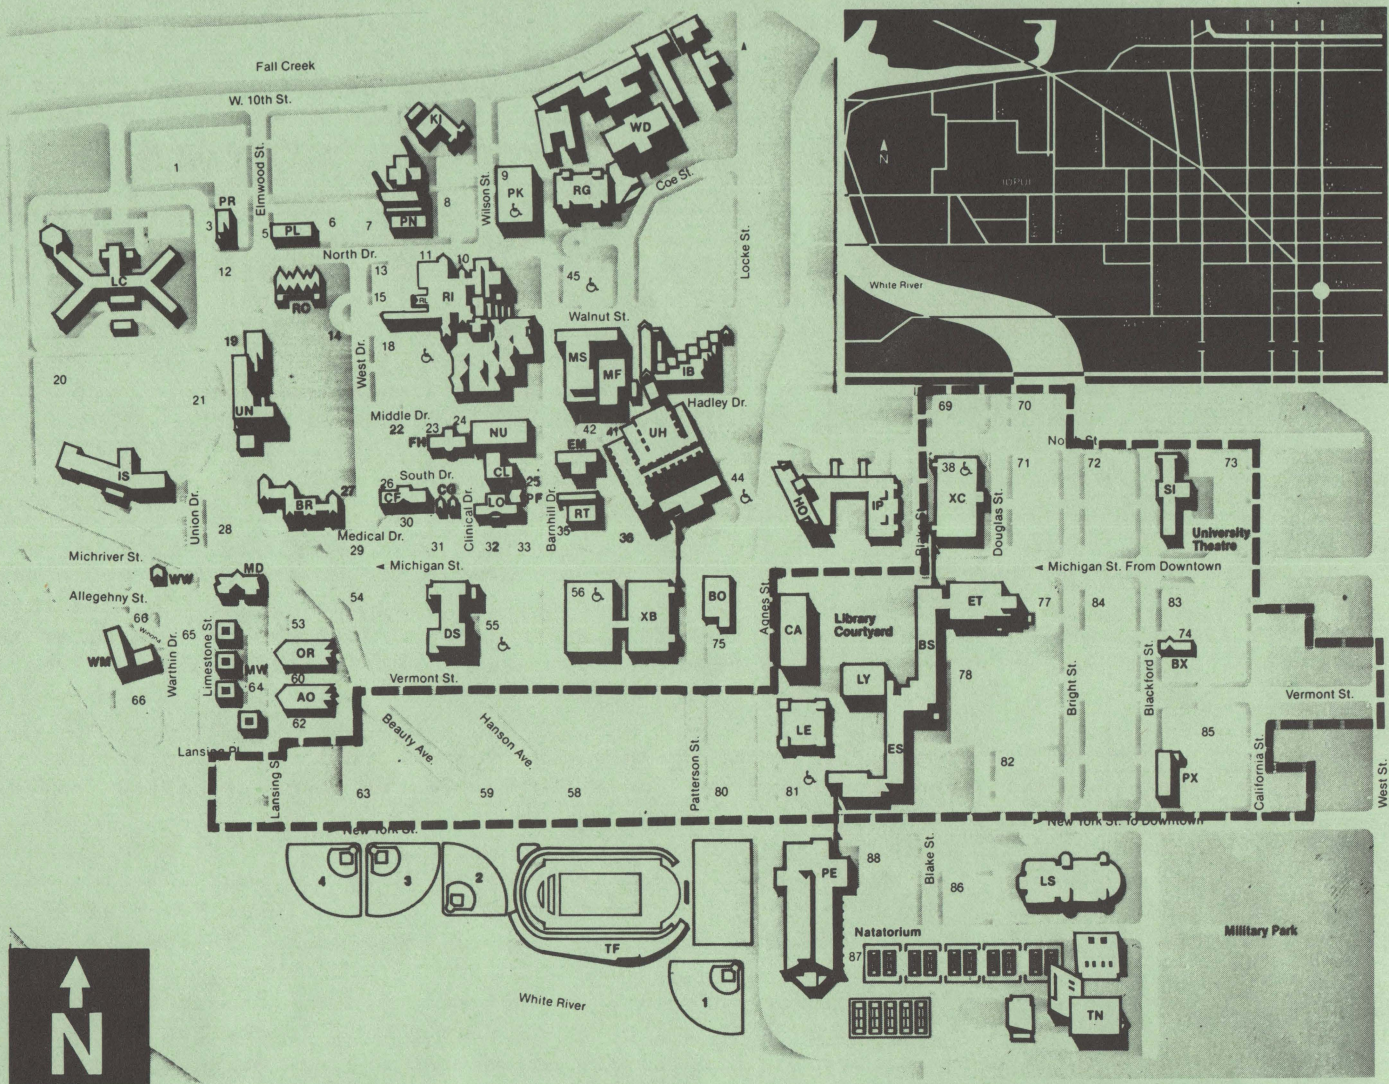

500 Hula Hoopers--While you are watching 500 area children with white hula hoops dance in the Pan Am opening ceremonies Aug. 8 at 3 p.m. at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, you will be seeing the dream and handiwork of Cherri Jaffee and others from Dance Kaleidoscope who thought it was good to include children and then went about to help them learn modern dance.

IMA Celebrates--Jazz by the Tony Byrne Trio and the exhibit, "Art of the Fantastic: Latin America, 1920-1987," will be featured in the Indianapolis Museum of Art First Friday on Aug. 7 beginning at 5:30 p.m. Light hors d'oeuvres and a cash bar are available. Tickets at the door are $2 for members; $3 for others.

Facing It--A free symposium on oral-facial trauma in relation to sports is offered Aug. 8 at the School of Dentistry on Aug. 8, 9 a.m. Room S-117. Sponsors are the school and the Pan American Health Organization. Call 4-7461.

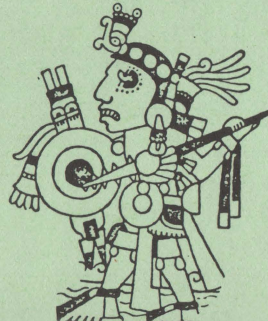

Sporting Art--In the Herron Gallery through Aug. 29 is the exhibit, "Contemporary Artists Look at Sport: A National Survey." Hours are 10 a.m.-5 p.m. weekdays.

PAINLESS PAN AM PARKING: ARRIVE EARLY, USE 10TH STREET AND GARAGES

In the map above, the area bordered by the dash lines shows where Pan Am Games spectators will park weekdays. Weekends and evenings they will use all lots south and north of Michigan St. and east of Agnes St. Staff, faculty and students are urged to use garages and not spectator parking, but with some exceptions, they can park wherever their permits are valid. The exceptions are lots 86, 87 and 88, which will be VIP lots requiring special permits that will be given faculty and staff who regularly use them; Lot 81 which will be closed for an information tent, and all lots south of New York Street. You are urged to use 10th St. as much as possible, arrive before 9 a.m. when most games begin, be patient and follow the directions of police officers who will be working overtime to keep things moving. New students who come to campus to register Aug. 17-20 for fall classes will not be charged the $3 spectator parking fee.

GAMES COVERAGE CAN BE FOUND in the two special editions of the Sagamore, Aug. 10 and 17, available on campus and downtown. They will include Pan Am information about the campus and the city. The annual orientation edition will be available Aug. 24.

STILL—PAX/I NEEDS VOLUNTEERS AND TICKETS ARE AVAILABLE FOR MOST SPORTS. The Games are just days away now, but volunteers are still needed. The credentials and uniform people are running a great show at the Deaf School. The wait is not long and people are friendly. Pan Am fever is finally catching on. PAX/I says people are needed for driving and warehousing. Also, except for the final basketball game, tickets are still available. Call 239-1111.

PAN AMIRACLES: PUBLICATIONS, PARKING, POLICE

There's no better opportunity to boast about ourselves than during the Games, and there's no better boaster than the Office of PUBLICATIONS, directed by Noel Duerden. Natives and guests alike also need information, and Noel's fine staff has provided that too--in two languages, of course. In "Amiga's Guide to IUPUI," guests will learn that only American money will work on campus, that police are ready to handle all emergencies, where to get photocopies, emergency help, what kind of money works, transportation and much more. In the booklet "Viva!", we brag a little and do it well. In "Factos" we give just the facts on facing pages--one in English, the other in Spanish. Also, Publications has printed La Pinata all year, not to mention many Pan-Am related flyers. Publications has kept us informed.

PARKING SERVICES has been in the hot seat from the beginning. On a campus already congested with vehicles, Parking Services was handed the thankless job of finding a way to accommodate guests and all of us "regulars." It simply comes down to asking us all to "move over" and make room for company. John Gilbert and his staff have overseen parking arrangements, special passes, attended dozens of PAX/I meetings and answered hundreds of calls about parking. During the games, we repeat, stay north of New York, use garages (there will be no charge if you have a surface permit), drive on 10th Street, and remember Parking Services people also have to park.

POLICE Chief John Mulvey and his able assistant Larry Propst have tried to imagine every security problem that could face us during the Games and have worked out a real plan. Our own officers will be joined by imports of IU police from Bloomington, Gary and the Northwest campuses. Also, Mulvey has the help of Spanish-speaking Hispanic officers from several municipal police departments from around the state. All the officers have undergone Spanish language and culture training. They will literally live on campus 24 hours a day during the Games. The IUPUI Police Department needs and deserves our cooperation and support everyday of the Games.

MERE MENTION WILL HAVE TO DO Deadlines and space limitations makes it necessary to only mention some of the other Pan Am miracle workers on campus. But you should know that Marjorie Albohm, from the International Institute of Sports Science and Medicine, IU School of Medicine, is head athletic trainer for the Games and she, along with Jay Bradley, are responsible for 350 athletic trainers from the U.S. who will provide medical care for all athletes. Associate Dean John Hunger and the School of Environmental Affairs have enlisted and trained students for security work during the games. Some are earning credits, and John gives even more credit to his secretary Cindy Baker for all her help. Even if there was space enough, enough could not be written about the involvement of Dale Neuburger and his staff at the Natatorium, and about Dean Nick Kellum and his staff in the School of Physical Education. Also, Ed Erotas and his Union Building staff have made ready 20 rooms that await media groups from the U.S. and Canada.

PAINTED PAN AMURAL

The art work of Herron students under the direction of Carol Tharp-Perrin and Herron's Richard E. Nickolson adorns the side of the garage where the I.U. Calliope is kept. Photo is by Ron Hanson.

ALL CERTIFIED SPANISH-SPEAKERS CAME THROUGH IUPUI

The Games. Not just on campus, but all over Indiana, when it's all said and done, much of it will have been said in Spanish and nearly every volunteer who heard and understood the language and talked with VIPs, guests and athletes will have been tested, interviewed, polished and finally certified through the Pan American Events and Language Programs Office (PANAMELP) at IUPUI. Mary Carr, director, and Marta Cruz, her assistant, have provided PAX/I with more than 2,000 Spanish speakers who range in age from 16-70 and who are from as many walks of life as you can imagine. In addition, both women were deeply involved in the Model Organization of American States held last December in Washington, D.C. and attended by nearly 300 students. They set up testing sites and held language programs in many high schools all over the state. They directed IUPUI's Mini Pan Am Games Day last spring that brought 1,200 students to campus. They just completed an intensive language session for the 215 Spanish-speaking high school students who are now assigned to the Athletes Village. PANAMELP has touched thousands of people who will touch thousands more and they have been involved with students from more than 90 secondary schools in the state. If all this was not enough, the office published La Pinata, the monthly information newsletter you found in the Green Sheet and they helped many of us all over campus with Spanish words and phrases. (Oh, yes. Marta Cruz got married.) During the games they will be on 24-hour call. Mary will be in the field as attache to 109 people from Panama and Marta will be assistant attache to the 900 expected from Cuba. Neither will get a breather when the games end. Mary, who has been on loan to us from the Lawrence School Corporation, begins her teaching duties on Aug. 24, a day after the Games end, and Marta begins a job search.

KNOW WHAT IS OFF LIMITS Emily Wren, administrative affairs, advises that only ticketholders or those with proper credentials will be admitted to all sports venues--on campus and off. Also, the second floor, north-south corridor of the Education/Social Work Building will be strictly off-limits to those without official PAX/I credentials. Entry to the Conference Center also will require special ID. All other buildings will be accessible, as usual.

BOB AND BILL PERSONIFY PAN AM SPIRIT

Robert Baxter and William Spencer, both in the vice president's office, have worked nearly every day for two years on some phase or other of the Pan American Games. Bob, with lots of help from his secretary Phyllis Boston, "copes." He coordinates all campus-related Pan Am events--police, buildings, activities and more. Beyond the campus, Bob has attended more meetings than he can remember in his job as co-chairman of the Language/Meeting Services Division of PAX/I. In that job, he and other volunteers have provided translators and every imaginable need--transportation, entertainment, food, lodging, shopping, medical needs--everything for pre-Games meetings of officials from the 38 involved countries. There's another whole page, single-spaced which explains his duties, but there's nothing to explain how he stays calm and keeps smiling. A long time ago, it seems now, Bill Spencer literally wrote the book on the Games. He took a mountain of paper--graphs, unintelligible directions and explanations--and wrote it all into a succinct, readable and, better yet, understandable official guidebook to be used by everyone connected with the games. Bill invented the easy to read events chart on page five, and has kept a running calendar of every event related to the Games. Bill thinks. He writes. He is excited about the Games and proud of IUPUI's involvement. His only advice for the Games: "Be friendly and have fun."

In these photos taken by Ron Hanson, are two volunteers who will be actively involved in the Pan Am Games. The woman on the left has apparently forgotten to read her Pan American Games Volunteer Handbook. The woman on the right has it right. Volunteers are to wear their official uniform at all times when they work at the Games. Shoes are to be "decent" (As opposed to indecent?), and of the street or tennis variety. Shirts are to be tucked in, jewelry is to be demure or not at all, clothes are to be clean and pressed, hats or visors are to be worn--frontwards probably. Volunteers are not allowed to bring cameras to any sport venue. And, at no charge to anyone, they are to be clean, neat, courteous, polite, friendly. Further, it will not hurt anything if they do not make hand gestures that are likely to offend people from other countries--or this one for that matter. Volunteers are to be prompt in showing up at their designated post, and they are to remember to tack down the PAX/I patch on their shirt, lest it peels off from being in the washing machine every night--one uniform per volunteer, please.

BOOKSTORES HAVE 100 PAX/I PRODUCTS for sale. Joe Fulmer, director, has stocked the stores at the Union Building and Cavanaugh Hall with pins, patches, maps, cups, flags, sweatshirts and even candy bars--all official PAX/I products. Collectors and compulsive shoppers are welcome to browse and buy.

PHYSICIANS AND SPORTS MEDICINE TEST AND MEET

Dr. Ronald Blankenbaker heads the Sports Medicine Laboratory at the medical center that will do 1,200 drugs tests on Pan Am athletes. He will make a presentation during the sports medicine conference at IUB Aug. 5-7. Doctors, trainers and coaches will be among the 500 expected participants in the Pan American Sports Congress when it meets to learn the latest on sports-related health. "Our" Doc Bowen, now secretary of Health and Human Services is honorary chairman and speaks at noon on Aug. 7.
