THE NUMBERS GAME

Late registration of 639 students has raised final enrollment figures for Indiana University's eight campuses to 68,546, or 1,098 (1.6 per cent) over the first semester total of last year.

Registrar M. D. Scherer said that the total first semester enrollment, by campuses, is as follows:

Fort Wayne -- 4,640, up 238 (5.4 per cent).
South Bend -- 5,339, down 106 (1.9 per cent).
Northwest (Gary) -- 4,781, up 27 (.5 per cent).
Southeast (Jeffersonville) -- 2,745, up 56 (2.1 per cent).
Kokomo -- 2,088, down 30 (1.4 per cent).
East (Richmond) -- 704, down 12 (1.7 per cent).
Evansville (one class) -- 31, up 5 (19.2 per cent).
Indianapolis (IUPUI) -- 16,938, up 358 (2.2 per cent).
Bloomington -- 31,280, up 562 (1.8 per cent).

Students are counted for statistical purposes according to the campuses at which they are enrolled rather than by the schools in which they are enrolled: School of Medicine students at Bloomington are counted in the Bloomington figures; Graduate School students in Indianapolis are counted with the IUPUI enrollment figures.

RADIATION SAFETY OFFICE RELOCATED AND REORGANIZED

The IUPUI Radiation Safety Program has been reorganized in an effort to make it more responsive to present and future Federal and state regulatory requirements.

A Radiation Safety Council has been appointed with over-all responsibility for radiation safety in the IUPUI complex. The council co-ordinates the activities of the radiation safety committees, one for radionuclides and one for machine-produced radiation. It also makes policy decisions on matters that affect the IUPUI complex as a whole.

Dr. Henry N. Wellman has been named chairman of the Radionuclide Radiation Safety Committee and Dr. Edmund A. Franken is chairman of the Machine-Produced Radiation Safety Committee.

The committees are responsible for reviewing the radiation safety aspects of continuing and proposed uses of radiation within the IUPUI complex. The Radiation Safety Office (formerly the Radiological Control Office) is the service arm of the committees. Robert Anger has been appointed the IUPUI radiation safety officer and director of the expanded Radiation Safety Office. Ms. A. D'Andrea Browne is the associate radiation safety officer for radionuclides and Dr. Ronald Berg is the interim associate radiation safety officer for machine-produced radiation.

As part of the over-all reorganization, the Radiation Safety Office has moved from 914A Fesler Hall to Room 920 in Long Hospital Clinical Building, next to Nuclear Medicine. The phone numbers for the office are still Ext. 4797/4798.

JANE RICHARDS NAMED TO IHETS POST

Jane G. Richards, professor of speech at Indiana State University at Terre Haute, has been named executive director of the Indiana Higher Education Telecommunication System (IHETS).

Professor Richards' new position was announced in a news conference here by C. H. Lawshe, chairman of the IHETS board of directors and Purdue University vice-president.

Professor Richards will direct the mammoth audio-visual network which now interconnects campuses of the state's post-secondary institutions as well as providing some service to some of Indiana's private colleges.

Lawshe said Mrs. Richards, wife of an ISU English professor, was selected from an extensive list of able candidates which was developed after a nation-wide search for candidates for the post.

"Indiana's institutions of higher education count themselves most fortunate to be able to attract Dr. Richards to this post," Dr. Lawshe said. "Her extensive experience both in the field of education and electronic media, coupled with her familiarity with Indiana's unique system, resulted in her unanimous choice by the IHETS board of directors."

Professor Richards succeeds Hugh Green who resigned as executive director last summer.

A native of Flint, Michigan, Professor Richards holds bachelor's and master's degrees in speech from the University of Michigan and a doctorate in education from Michigan State University. She has a wide range of professional memberships and has been active in the National Education Association and National Association of Educational Broadcasters. Last year she won ISU's Blue Key Award for teaching and the Sigma Delta Chi "Man of the Year" Award.

NEWS 'N' NOTES FROM HERE 'N' THERE

Madrigals Coming Again -- The festive pageantry of the 16th-Century Madrigal Dinners will be presented again this year on Friday and Saturday, December 8-9, in the IUPUI Union Building. The colorfully costumed singers from Indiana State University will perform and the menu is planned to accent the tradition and lore of the occasion. Tickets are now on sale in the Catering Office of the Union Building (ground floor, across from the Barber Shop). Cost is $5.25 per person. If you have any questions, please call Mrs. Nix, Ext. 7358. Note: Reservations will not be held past Wednesday, November 15.

Union Art -- This month's art display in the newly renovated cases at the Union Building is being directed by Craig Gosling of the Medical Illustrations Department.

Going Places -- The response to the IUPUI Travel Service has been incredible, according to co-ordinator Helen Zapp, who says there's a new addition to the travelogue: Paris for New Year's. Call her at Ext. 8265 for more info.

Help Project -- Have you thought of helping the disadvantaged but didn't know how? Chemistry tutors for 8th grade, high school and college freshmen are needed. Project SEED (Subcommittee on Education and Employment of the Disadvantaged) of the Indiana Chapter of the American Chemical Society needs volunteers. If you can spare an hour a week to help tutor, or an occasional hour to help a student with a Science Fair project, call M.E. Hodes, Ext. 8863.

"Constructive" Happenings at IUPUI -- The Medical Science parking lot has been improved to the tune of 60 new parking spaces. . .The entire area south of Vermont Street between Patterson Street and Beauty Avenue has been graded, paved and relighted. This means parking for 1150 cars, 955 on blacktop (red permit parking) and 195 on crushed stone (orange or free parking). . .Ninety cars can now find homes in the center of Winona Village. You should enter and exit only at the south entrance through the Board of Health parking lot. The streets and other parking areas in the Village are for Village residents only. . .Sidewalk repair is under way at the main east and bookstore entrance to the Union, on the west side of West Drive, between the Medical Science Building and Emerson Hall.

Pharmacy News -- John L. Arney, a staff pharmacist for 16 years, has been promoted to the new position of assistant chief pharmacist, outpatient facilities, and Rodney G. Wirsching, on the pharmacy staff for five years, has the new position of assistant chief pharmacist, inpatient facilities.

Bonean's Book Found -- "Handbook of Orthopaedic Surgery," belonging to Bonean Littlefield, is in the Anesthesia Department, Fesler Hall, Room 204.

Christmas Cards -- If you would like an early selection of UNICEF Christmas cards, call Elizabeth B. Solow at Ext. 7292 or Robert Forney Jr. at Ext. 7825.

Students Elect -- Donald R. Curtis, a senior majoring in English, has been elected first president of the new undergraduate student government at IUPUI. Frank G. Radaker Jr., a junior majoring in biology, is vice-president.

Loaded -- The telephone switchboard in Long Hospital is overloaded with paging requests that could be directed to the Page Desk. Ergo, call "PAGE" (7243) instead of "0" for the operator.
