DEVELOPMENTS IN IUPUI PARKING PROBLEMS

The IUPUI Parking Committee, which includes representative faculty and staff members and students, has devoted much thought and many hours of hard work to the development of a functional and equitable system for the operation and support of parking facilities on our campuses. Members of the Committee deserve commendation for their efforts, and I hereby commend them!

The Committee, in concentrating on developing a system that will best serve all those who drive and park on the campuses, has dealt with many complex and special needs, including accommodation of patients, physicians, visitors to our hospitals, students and faculty, as well as the loss of spaces caused by new construction, and wide variations in priorities and schedules among commuters to our campuses. Although the perfect system is impossible to attain, the Committee has attempted to balance extensive needs with available facilities.

With announcement of the national Wage-Price Freeze, effective August 15, it became necessary to postpone full implementation of the Committee's proposals on September 1, as had been scheduled. For example, the monthly service charge for one type of restricted parking area was to have been increased. This increase will not take effect, during the period of the Freeze, or until appropriate governmental authorities determine otherwise.

Incidentally, immediately after the Freeze was announced, Vice Chancellor Ryder and Business Manager Lautzenheiser visited the local Compliance Office of Internal Revenue Service and requested a written ruling on the proposed parking system for IUPUI. Just as soon as this information is received, it will be widely disseminated. In the meanwhile, motor vehicle regulations in effect prior to August 15 will be enforced.

In the mutual interest of all concerned, I respectfully request everyone's cooperation, so that we can continue to move toward the Committee's goal of providing as effective, safe, and equitable management of driving and parking at IUPUI as is possible.

--Chancellor Maynard K. Hine

THE UNIVERSITY AND THE "OUTSIDE WORLD"

Recent events demonstrate rather sharply that the University's environment is larger than its students, staffs, faculties, and alumni.

-- The President's economic policies, based on such considerations as the pace of the nation's economic activities and the international status of the dollar, also blocked raises for faculty members on 10-month contracts and delayed enforcement of the IUPUI parking program.

-- The new Indiana Higher Education Commission ordered the state universities to suspend temporarily the development of new degree programs, new schools and colleges, and new regional campuses. The commission announced its intent to review all baccalaureate and associate degree programs and gave indication of a concern with the distinctions between academic and vocational orientations in post-high school education.

As the impact of the President's economic policies developed, there also developed some indications of the changing relationships between the University and its constituencies. Student and staff groups both took public action to require application of the President's program to the activities of the University. Among other things, this was an indication of a growing tendency among various social groups to consider the University as an economic and social institution as well as an educational institution.

There are signs of this tendency in the establishment and initial activities of the Higher Education Commission. The legislature and its constituencies are looking to the universities for something more, something different than baccalaureate degrees and athletic entertainments.

There used to be a bit of humor passed among university presidents that their responsibilities were to provide parking for the faculty, sex for the students, and football for the alumni.

Now the presidents must also provide competitive economic status for the staff, opportunities for the minorities, research and expertise for government and business, leadership in personnel and example for social concerns, economic development and civic pride for the local community, and a constantly changing list of reasons why the public should keep the university in business. -- HJU

CHANGING TIMES

Promotions or changes in assignments have been made involving seven IUPUI administrative staff members.

Professor Howard L. Wisner, long-time faculty member and a member of the IUPUI faculty Council, has been named assistant to Dr. William A. Nevill, dean of the 38th Street Campus.

Vice-Chancellor Jack M. Ryder now has three assistants. They are Ronald E. Hunt, former Purdue business manager, as fiscal planning assistant; Professor Willard E. Hanshew, who has been on leave attending the Army War College, Carlisle Barracks in Carlisle, Pa., as administrative assistant; and, Sue McDowell, financial assistant. She formerly was Purdue accounting manager.

Professor Owen A. Paul, chairman of the non-credit supervision programs at 38th Street, has assumed chairmanship of the credit industrial supervision curriculum. He also is international president of the Society for Advancement of Management.

John D. Williams, who was Purdue purchasing manager, has been appointed manager of printing, duplicating and courier service for IUPUI. He reports to Arthur Lautzenheiser.

R. Ray Hawkins, formerly placement and financial aids officer for Purdue programs, has been named IUPUI placement director, reporting to Dean Hugh A. Wolf.

FLICK TIME AGAIN

This fall, the Departments of English and German are offering a program of German Expressionist films of the 1920s and some related American films. They will be shown on Tuesdays at 8 p.m. in Room 104 of the Lecture Center. All showings are free to all IUPUI students and faculty. (Individual listings will appear in subsequent issues of Week.)

- September 21 Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde (U.S., 1920)
John Barrymore's famous version of Robert Louis Stevenson's story of double identity.
- October 5 Nosferatu (The Vampire, Germany, 1922)
F.W. Murnau's treatment of Bram Stoker's famous Victorian vampire tale, Dracula.
- October 12 Professor John Barlow, head of the German Department, will lecture on the literature of the German Weimar Republic to provide background for this series.
- October 19 Dr. Mabuse (The Fatal Passions, Germany, 1922)
Fritz Lang's extraordinarily prophetic picture that foreshadows through the lurid tale of a mad gambler-psychiatrist much of the black history of Middle Europe between the two world wars.
- November 2 The Phantom of the Opera (U.S.A., 1925)
As close to Hallowe'en as possible, the Lon Chaney version of this grandfather of spook films.
- November 16 Waxworks (Germany, 1924)
Most of the great German silent stars--Emil Jannings, Werner Krauss and Conrad Veidt--in Paul Leni's episodic film.
- November 30 Metropolis (Germany, 1926)
The climactic glory of expressionist cinema, Fritz Lang's startling vision of the urban future.
