

HILGEMAN COMES "HOME" TO DIRECT HERRON GALLERY

After six years on the East Coast Indianapolis native Liese Hilgeman, left, has come home to direct the Herron Gallery, Indianapolis Center for Contemporary Art. William J. Voos, dean of Herron, said of her appointment, "We are certain that she will bring excellent creative vision and good management to the position and become another strong director in the traditions of Carol Adney, Martha Winans and the late Robert Roman." Hilgeman's broad expertise in museums is the result of varied experiences in the field that include curator of exhibitions at the Hudson River Museum. Also in New York City, she was assistant registrar at the New York Historical Society and was an exhibition assistant at the Whitney Museum of American Art. She holds a master's degree in art history from Boston University. Hilgeman grew up in the arts community of Indianapolis as the daughter of Paul Hilgeman, a trumpet player in the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra for 30 years.--M. Hopper

O'CARROLL TO LEAD THE O'METROS FOR LUCKY SEVENTH YEAR

Irish or not, staff, faculty and students are invited to join the IUPUI O'Metro Athletic Club for its seventh year of participating in the St. Patrick's Day Parade downtown on Mar. 15. Everyone is meeting in or near the Elbow Room, 605 N. Pennsylvania, at 11 a.m., where you can buy lunch, get a green derby while the supply lasts and join the revelry. Nearby, Rodger Birchfield's antique fire engine, the Metro Club parade entry, will get final decorating touches, and IUPUI paraders have bushels of candy to toss to the waiting crowd. The parade begins around 11:30 a.m., and Mike O'Carroll, vice president for community development for the Lilly Endowment, Inc., and president of the O'Metro Athletic Club, will head up IUPUI's entry. Barry O'Smith and others from the IUPUI Alumni Office are handling arrangements and they welcome everyone to the wearin' of the green.

SYKES SPEAKING Details will come later, but faculty and staff are urged to mark their calendars now to hear "provocateur for excellence" Charles J. Sykes give the keynote address at the annual Edward C. Moore Teaching Symposium, Apr. 19 at 9 a.m. He wrote ProfScam and is a strong critic of faculty activities.

MAYNARD MENDS "SLOWLY" AND SENDS THANKS

Maynard K. Hine, chancellor emeritus of IUPUI and former dean of the School of Dentistry, thanks all his friends and associates on campus who have sent him get-well wishes since he was hospitalized after falling on the ice in February. He regrets that he is unable to acknowledge all the messages individually. Dr. Hine is undergoing physical therapy and reports that while he has responded well to treatment, progress so far has been "frustratingly slow." While in therapy, he will stay at Americana North, Williamsburg Wing, Room 267, 8350 Naab Road, Indianapolis 46260. Dr. Hine was IUPUI's first chancellor (1969-1973) and for 23 years before that was dean of dentistry.

HEALTH PROFESSIONAL WHO OPPOSES WIDESPREAD AIDS TESTING BEGINS SECOND BOOK

IUPUI faculty member Jerry Durham, left, who is writing his second book on AIDS, thinks that health care professionals should not have to reveal their infection with AIDS, and he also opposes widespread testing for health care practitioners and patients. "Based on scientific evidence about the likelihood of transmitting the virus either from patient to health care worker or vice versa, I don't think that widespread testing is warranted," said Durham, who is executive associate dean for academic programs in the School of Nursing. His conclusion is contrary to a recent recommendation by the American Medical Association and the American Dental Association that AIDS-infected doctors and dentists warn their patients about their disease or give up surgery. He points out that among the 150,000 reported cases of AIDS in the U.S., between 5,000 and 6,000 represent health care workers, only 37 of them became infected by accidental needle punctures through their work. He thinks this and other supporting data do not justify the disruption to people and the costs of widespread testing. "The risk of HIV transmission in the health care setting is extremely small if the guidelines are followed," he added. Durham recently presented a paper on AIDS policy planning for health-related professional schools at a conference in New Jersey. He is co-editor of a prize-winning book, "The Person with AIDS: Nursing Perspectives," a guide for nurses who work with AIDS patients. With a co-author he is completing a second edition of the book and is writing another about women and children and AIDS.--S. Matthys Roob

HERRON'S ANNUAL STUDENT SHOW OPENS WITH A PUBLIC RECEPTION MAR. 15 in the gallery, 7-10 p.m. The school's faculty selected pieces for the show that runs through Apr. 5. (The senior show is later.)

JOB FAIRS MATCH GRADS WITH RECRUITERS

The University, as well as the School of Nursing, are planning big job fairs that will give seniors and recent grads a leg up in the job market.

"Nursing Employment Opportunity Days" is Mar. 20-22, 9 a.m.-4:30 p.m. on campus. College and university students from IUPUI, IUB, Anderson, DePauw, Marian and Indianapolis are expected. The fair is free. For more, call James Schellhammer, associate dean of student affairs, 4-0418.

Also, the FBI is looking for a few IU grads and so is the FAA, the State of Indiana, Taco Bell and Kroger--just to mention a few of the employers with jobs to offer in the first systemwide "Indiana Collegiate Job Fair" set for the Convention Center Apr. 5 from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. Employers have already registered and said they are looking for graduates in many majors, but there appears to be a high demand for graduates from business, accounting, liberal arts, as well as science and engineering. Suzanne McKeever is handling workshops and registration for the IUPUI campus. Call her at 4-3215.

THE 39TH MODEL UNITED NATIONS ASSEMBLY was proudly hosted by the School of Education last week, Mar. 6-7. It began with the traditional parade of costumes and got down to the serious business of more than 470 youth/delegates from 19 area high schools discussing such things as Middle East relations, democracy, international politics and moral leadership in global issues. The keynote address was given by George F. Irani, political scientist and director of international studies at Franklin College, who talked about the role of the U.N. in the Persian Gulf crisis.

JUDGES AND VOLUNTEERS STILL NEEDED TO HELP WITH 1991 SCIENCE FAIR

Michael Cohen still needs help from faculty and staff for the 1991 Central Indiana Regional Science and Engineering Fair on campus Mar. 23-26 in the Conference Center where the thinking feats of young people in grades four through high school will vie for awards. Cohen, professor in the School of Education, is directing the fair and needs judges and officials (go-fers) who can help set up, coordinate the judging and assist in the awards ceremony. You can work two-hour blocks, 10 a.m.-8:30 p.m., any day of the fair. The participants will focus on such global issues as oil spills, reducing landfill waste, predicting earthquakes and much more. Exhibits for grades 4-6 are Mar. 23-24; for grades 7-8, Mar. 25 and for high school, Mar. 26. For those who want to see what our young people are doing, public viewing of exhibits is from 5-7 p.m. daily, followed by an awards ceremony. To volunteer, call Mike at 4-6814 or call Golam Mannan, 4-6835.

NEWS 'N' NOTES FROM HERE 'N' THERE

India is Not Hungry--Last week's Green Sheet noted that India has pledged a lot of food to Russia this winter, but no country pledged food to India. There is a good reason for that, explains H. Jayaram from the School of Medicine. India is feeding itself, needs no food assistance and is no longer "hungry" as the editor errantly assumed.

Deadlines Near--The time to apply for several scholarships on campus nears. The IU Women's Club is offering three scholarships to returning women students more than 21 years old. The deadline to apply is Mar. 20. Call 4-7611. The IUPUI Adult Merit Scholarships of $1,000 renewable are available to good students more than 30 years old. Apply before Apr. 2. Call the Undergraduate Education Center, 4-2237. The Woman's Press Club of Indiana has an Apr. 14 deadline for journalism students to apply for the Hortense Myers and the Louise Eleanor Ross Kleinhenz scholarships. Call the Dept. of Journalism, 4-2773.

HP Recycling Helps Us All--If you have a Hewlett-Packard laserjet printer, HP will send you a kit to return the empty toner cartridge for recycling and also will donate 50 cents per returned cartridge to the National Wildlife Federation and the Nature Conservancy. When you send back the used plastic cartridge, HP will reuse some components and melt what is left into new parts. The land, us and animals win. For your kit, HP Part 5952-2368, call the Customer Information Center, 1-800-752-0900. Tony Ceccanese in Computing Services brings this timely message to our attention.

Tickets Ready--The 1991 NCAA Div. I Women's Swimming and Diving Championships will be in the natatorium Mar. 21-23. All seats are reserved. For tickets, call 4-6787.

For Turtles II, Too--Mail orders for the $5 tickets to the Mar. 21 Indianapolis premier showing of "Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles II," which benefits Riley Hospital, are due by Mar. 15. Send checks to the Cheer Guild, RI 403D.

Workshop on Going Places--Biweekly employees interested in the transfer and promotion processes at IUPUI can register now for the free workshop offered by Human Resources Administration. The workshop is Mar. 13, noon-1:15 p.m. in the Roof Lounge, Union Building. To register or for more information, call 4-8931.

Wayne Stater Speaker--Kalappurackal C. Joseph, M.D., assistant professor of psychiatry at Wayne State University and clinical director of the Affective Disorders Unit, Lafayette Clinic, Detroit, will present a psychiatric research seminar, "Use of Brain Mapping for the Demonstration of Cholinergic Supersensitivity," Mar. 14, noon, Institute of Psychiatric Research, 791 Union Dr.

SIGMA THETA TAU NAMES NURSING LIBRARY AFTER VIRGINIA HENDERSON

Ninety-three year old Virginia Henderson, shown here seated right, renowned across the globe for her extraordinary contributions to nursing, is shown signing a contract to have the new Sigma Theta Tau electronic international nursing library named after her. She also agreed to participate in a 1997 international celebration of the nursing association's 75th anniversary, and her own 100th birthday. The library is in the new International Center for Nursing Scholarship at IUPUI and features a unique data base that can be accessed globally by phone and computer. Henderson lives in New Haven, Conn. She has taught nursing since 1921 and is research associate emeritus of Yale University School of Nursing. Seated with her is Billye Brown, president of Sigma Theta Tau International. With them are other representatives from the nursing society.

SIX IU FACULTY MEMBERS SUCCESSFUL IN OBTAINING GRANTS will be part of a panel for a teleconference "The Successful Grant: NSF, USDE and NASA," Mar. 22, 10 a.m.-noon in LE 105. Samples of successful proposals will be available. Sponsor is Research and the University Graduate School (RUGS) at IUB. For more, call Ann Kratz, 4-8285.

FACULTY AND STAFF CAN ENROLL THEIR CHILDREN IN THE YOUNG SCHOLARS PROGRAM AT IUPUI this summer. The program is designed to stimulate creative exploration in learning for gifted and talented children in grades 3-10 in the fall. For more information or a brochure, call Marie Rankin, 4-3334.

PEOPLE WHO HANDLE FINANCES FOR FOREIGN RESEARCHERS OR STUDENTS are invited to a workshop, "U.S. Taxation of Foreign Students and Scholars: Issues and Answers" Mar. 14, 9:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m. in University Place. The cost is $20 for members of sponsoring agencies and $30 for others. Call Raymond Gude, IUPUI International Affairs, 4-7294.

FINALLY...

...Trish Moore is offering a reward for a tennis bracelet she lost near I.U. and Wishard Hospitals. It was a gift and is made of genuine sentiment and imitation diamonds and sapphires. Call her at 630-7605.

...David S. Zee, professor of neurology at Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine, presents a physiology and biophysics seminar, "Disconjugate Ocular Motor Adaptation in Monkey and Human" Mar. 13, 4:30 p.m., MS 205.

...Kim Cox, RN, MSN, presents "Successful Conception" in the next Women's Health presentation Mar. 12, 11 a.m.-noon, UH N436. Register by calling 4-8842.

green sheet

*News Bureau
Indiana University-Purdue University
at Indianapolis
355 Lansing Street
Indianapolis, Indiana 46202

