Description of the Survey

To gauge student demand for an MSCJPS we conducted a short paper survey in all SPEA criminal justice classes taught by full time faculty in the Spring Semester of 2008 (see Appendix B for the full text of the survey). Although this sample of students was not random, we chose it because it likely contained the greatest concentration of students who might pursue graduate studies in criminal justice at some point in the future. In all, 242 students responded to the survey, of which 194 listed themselves as CJ majors.

Table X describes student responses to questions relating to their preferences for an MSCJ degree. The results on the left side of the table include respondents who self-identified as CJ majors, whereas the right-hand side of the table includes responses of CJ majors with self-reported GPAs of 2.75 or higher. We chose to include this subsample because these students have a reasonable likelihood of meeting entrance requirements for graduate programs.

The level of support for an MSCJ is quite strong among CJ majors generally and even stronger for those with strong GPAs. Approximately 80% of respondents would prefer an MSCJ to another graduate degree, and more than three quarters of respondents would prefer an MSCJ to a concentration within another degree such as the MPA. More than 90% believed that an MSCJ would be helpful to them for career advancement and more than 85% stated that they would prefer to get an MSCJ from IUPUI rather than attend another school. Focusing on CJ majors with a self-reported GPA of 2.75 or greater (n=128), 64.1% (n=82) anticipated attending graduate or law school and 73.4% (n=94) stated that they had considered graduate school. It is important to note that we believe that this likely underestimates the level of support for the proposed degree because the survey does not include information on the significantly shorter time to completion with the proposed 36 hour degree versus the 48 hour MPA currently offered. In addition, we also polled current MPA-CJ concentration students (in SPEA J502 Spring 2008) and 100% (9/9) stated strong preferences for an MSCJ versus the current MPA with a CJ concentration. In fact, several wanted to know how long it would take to get the program up and running so they could switch. Thus, there appears to be strong support for such a degree among both the current undergraduate and graduate students.

Student Demand Survey

WE ARE INTERESTED IN GAUGING INTEREST IN AND DEMAND FOR A POTENTIAL MASTER OF SCIENCE IN CRIMINAL JUSTICE AND PUBLIC SAFETY. PLEASE CHECK THE BOX THAT IS THE BEST RESPONSE FOR EACH QUESTION.

1. Are you a criminal justice major? ☐ Yes ☐ No
2. Please indicate your status: ☐ Full time ☐ Part time
3. Please describe your current class standing:
☐ freshman
☐ sophomore
☐ junior ☐ senior
4. What is your overall grade point average? _____
5. Have you ever considered pursuing a Master's degree? ☐ Yes ☐ No
6. Do you anticipate going to graduate school or law school at some point? ☐ Yes ☐ No
7. If so, what major or field of study would you pursue? _____

USING THE SCALE BELOW, PLEASE INDICATE THE EXTENT TO WHICH YOU AGREE OR DISAGREE WITH THE FOLLOWING STATEMENTS:

Strongly Agree	Agree	Disagree	Strongly Disagree
1	2	3	4

- _____ 8. A masters' degree would be helpful for advancement within criminal justice agencies.
- _____ 9. I would prefer a masters' degree in criminal justice or public safety rather than another graduate degree.
- _____ 10 I would prefer a masters' degree in criminal justice or public safety over another degree with a concentration in criminal justice.
- _____ 11. I would stay at IUPUI to pursue a masters' degree in criminal justice or public safety, if one was offered by SPEA rather than going to some other school.

THANK YOU FOR RESPONDING.

SYLLABUS: RISK ANALYSIS FOR PUBLIC SAFETY

SPEA-J 528 FALL 2010

Description: An examination of theoretical foundations of risk analysis including the history of risk analysis, risk assessment, perception and communication; models for decision risk decision making, techniques for generating alternative courses of action in risk analysis and definitions of risk and opportunity theory will be examined. Within a context of local, state and federal regulatory guidelines, risk analysis and risk management will be investigated against a background on public safety and homeland security issues.

Course Information: This new public safety graduate level degree fills the need for a theoretical framework course, in particular, on risk analysis, risk assessment and risk management. It consists of graduate sessions over 15 academic weeks, requiring a midterm, final and a research paper.

Course Sequence: Weeks:

1. Risk— Introduction, Definition and Discussion of Terms
Kinds of Risks---Natural and Man-Made and Risk Analysis Theory
2. History of Risk Analysis and Assessment
Perception and Communication of Risk
3. Models of Risk Analysis and Assessment
Strategies of Risk Assessment and Analysis
4. Strategies for Global Risk Assessment
Risk Surveys and Design
5. Quantitative Risk Assessment and Analysis
Analytical Tools of Risk Analysis and Assessment
6. Threats, Vulnerabilities, Consequences
Federal, State and Local Differences in Model Risk Assessment and theory
7. Midterm
8. Risk Behavior and Assessment During Emergencies and Disasters
Asset Based Risk Assessment versus geographic Based Risk Assessment
9. Decision Making Matrix in Risk Assessment
Risk Decision Making: Case Studies
10. Individual Risk and Assessments
Organizational Risk Assessment
11. Chaos Theory and “Analytical “ Luck
Mitigation of Risk at Community and State levels
12. Mitigation of Risks at the Federal Level
Communicating Risk and Risk Legacy Theory
13. Life Cycle of Risk Analysis and Assessment
Risk Assessment of High Consequence Events

14. Risk Assessment Consequences: People, Property and Infrastructure

Improving Risk Assessment in Crisis

15. Final Exam and Research Papers Due

Readings: One text, Terje Aven, Risk Analysis: Assessing Uncertainties (New York: Wiley, 2008) will be used plus David Vose, Risk Analysis: A Quantitative Guide (New York: Wiley, 2008), and six case studies, plus four articles from the Journal of Risk Research and SRA Risk Analysis. ### IUPUI - SYLLABUS School of Public and Environmental Affairs SPEA-J 524 Crisis Management for Public Safety

General Description:

This course is designed to improve critical thinking skills and the development of concepts and techniques to manage crises. The course will examine the National Response Plan, National Incident Management System, organizing for response, managing the response organization, managing in a turbulent environment, crisis decision making and communications which can be used in dealing with emergencies and disasters. An examination of current approaches to crisis identification, issue management, and crisis management through a mix of discussion, lecture, and presentation by applying research, theory, and case examples to situations with a goal of developing crisis, contingency, and incident management plans along with issue identification and strategic response sets to crisis situations.

Course Objectives

At the conclusion of the course students will be conversant with current disaster management doctrine and will have demonstrated, through discussions, quizzes, exam, and practical exercises, the acquisition of the knowledge, skills and abilities to:

- Be aware of the National Response Plan(NRP) and National Incident Management System(NIMS)
- Effectively use the Incident Command System (ICS)
- Positively contribute to a disaster management team
- Contribute in the emergency planning process
- Effectively engage in leadership activities
- Emulate the attributes of an effective decision maker
- Efficiently communicate in an emergency
- Understand the key tasks involved in working with other public safety agencies, non-government organizations (NGO's), volunteers and citizens
- Participate in a formal critical infrastructure hazard risk assessment activity
- Actively participate in the process of developing a hazard risk mitigation plan
- Assist in the development and presentation of realistic, risk based lectures, training programs and exercises to protect vulnerable civilian populations from a cataclysmic event

Texts and Readings

Worst-Case Scenarios by Cass R. Sunstein. Harvard University Press, 2007.

The National Response Plan, the National Incident Management System, and the National Critical Infrastructure Protection Plan are required documents. Additional reading will include articles and reports addressing a variety of applications of crisis management, leadership, and case studies. A required text is TBD.

Course Requirements

Group Project: Students will be required to conduct a threat analysis and develop a comprehensive protection plan.

Final Paper: Students will complete a final paper involving research and writing a paper on the application of crisis management in a public safety context. Proposals for other types of papers or projects will be considered and may be pursued with the authorization of the instructor

Examinations: Midterm and final examinations covering crisis management concepts, techniques, strategies and public safety applications.

Course Schedule: TBD

SPEA SYLLABUS

SPEA-J 520 Mapping and Analysis for Public Safety

General Description

This course provides the skills for mapping and analyzing data on crimes, fires, emergency responses, and other incidents for law enforcement and other areas of public safety using geographic information systems. The course covers basic concepts of mapping and geographic information systems and addresses the use of geographic information systems for the analysis of such data.

A major part of the course involves learning to use ArcGIS geographic information system software for public safety mapping and analysis. An introduction to the use of specialized analysis software is also provided.

Course Objectives

At the conclusion of the course, students will be able to do the following:

- Understand basic mapping and geographic information systems concepts
- Create a variety of maps, including thematic maps, using ArcGIS
- Produce finished map products suitable for presentation
- Know various sources of GIS data and how to get those data into a GIS
- Geocode incident locations from address data
- Query and select incident data by attribute and location
- Perform analysis of incident data using buffers, spatial overlays, and other geoprocessing tools
- Create incident density surface maps and perform hot spot analysis
- Perform network analysis for emergency response

- Use GIS to aid in facility location
- Understand how GIS is applied in a wide range of public safety contexts
- Manage the GIS function in a public safety context

Texts and Readings

Given the rapid rate of change in this field, suggested texts are only examples of what might be used when the course is offered.

Tim Ormsby, Eileen Napoleon, Robert Burke, Carlyn Groess, and Laura Feaster. Getting to Know ArcGIS Desktop. Second edition updated for ArcGIS 9. Redlands, CA: ESRI Press, 2004.

Keith Harries. Mapping Crime: Principle and Practice. Washington, DC: National Institute of Justice, 1999.

Nancy J. Obermeyer and Jeffrey K. Pinto. Managing Geographic Information Systems. Second edition. Guilford Press, 2007.

Additional reading will include articles and reports addressing a variety of applications of geographic information systems and spatial analysis in public safety settings. Because these should represent the current state-of-the art, it does not make sense to identify such readings for the new course proposal. Indeed, these readings should be updated each time the course will be offered.

Course Requirements

Labs: The course will meet on a regular basis in a computer lab for purposes of learning the use of the geographic information systems software. Students will be required to participate in all lab sessions. If a student is forced to miss any lab, the student will be required to make up the work covered in the lab and submit the appropriate material documenting that work.

GIS Assignments: Regular assignments will require the use of the geographic information system to perform a variety of mapping and analysis activities. Students will complete these assignments outside of class.

Final Paper or Project: Students will complete a final paper or project that involves either (a) researching and writing a paper on the application of geographic information systems in a specific public safety context; or (b) developing a geographic information system application to address a specific public safety problem, either real or hypothetical and preparing a report on the application. Proposals for other types of papers or projects will be considered and may be pursued with the prior authorization of the instructor

Examinations: Midterm and final examinations covering geographic information systems concepts, understanding of methods of analysis, and public safety applications.

Course Schedule

Week 1

Lecture: Introduction to the course; applications of GIS in public safety

Week 2

Lecture: Basic cartographic and GIS concepts

Lab: Introduction to GIS software

Week 3

Lecture: Representing information in GIS

Lab: Displaying features, dealing with projections

Week 4

Lecture: Mapping spatial data for decision making

Lab: Displaying data in GIS, thematic maps

Week 5

Lecture: Presenting spatial data for decision making

Lab: Preparing maps for presentation in a variety of formats

Week 6

Lecture: Sources of GIS data

Lab: Obtaining, converting, and entering GIS data

Week 7

Lecture: Technologies for spatial data collection

Lab: Geocoding

Week 8

Public Service

- Executive Director, AIM, an aftercare program in partnership with Indiana Department of Correction which includes an 8-week life skills component prior to release and the assignment of college students and community volunteers as mentors after release--program was designed as a randomized experiment for the purposes of evaluation and has expanded to a statewide effort serving 800 juvenile offenders each year
- Participation in national Kellogg Foundation project on the documentation of professional service as scholarship
- Developed training curriculum for mentors of children of prisoners. Provided training for programs in Indiana and Wisconsin.
- Served as member of core team for Correctional Practices Assessment Inventory (CPAI) evaluation of juvenile correctional facilities throughout Indiana.
- Member of Steering Committee for Indiana Offender Reintegration Project.
- Member of Steering Committee for Indianapolis site of Multi-City Prisoner Reentry Volunteer Initiative.
- Developed pilot effort to provide mentors to middle-school youths that are in court for truancy—with dramatic differences between the outcomes for those who are mentored and those who are not, the project has now been implemented at a larger scale covering all IPS schools.
- Provided technical assistance and training for mentoring programs in Virginia, Arkansas, Illinois, Arizona, Oregon, California, and Pennsylvania.

Appendix F. Analysis of Demand for Masters Degrees in Criminal Justice

Data

The analysis compares the numbers of Master's degrees awarded in different geographical areas to measures of the potential demand for such degrees, total population and the numbers of persons employed in criminal justice occupations.

Numbers of degrees awarded by institution in criminal justice and related fields from July 1, 2005 through June 30, 2006 were obtained from data collected by the National Center for Education Statistics, Integrated Postsecondary Data Education System. (These are the most current data currently available as of August 2008.) The data were downloaded from <http://nces.ed.gov/ipeds/pas/dct/index.asp> on August 25, 2008. Data were obtained for all institutions (229) awarding Master's degrees in the following categories:

Criminal justice and corrections, codes 43.0102-43.0199
Criminology, code 45.0401

(Those are the IPDES degree codes.) While the proposed degree is for criminal justice and public safety, there are no categories degrees in public safety. Most of the degree categories relating to fire safety relate to fire science or similar technology-based degrees. While there is a category for fire safety management, only one institution awarded Master's degrees (and only 9) in this category. So the decision was made to focus only on criminal justice-related degrees. Data on population, as one measure of demand, were obtained from Census 2000 and were downloaded from <http://www.census.gov/main/www/cen2000.html> on March 21, 2006. Data on the number of persons employed in criminal justice-related occupations were obtained from the Bureau of Labor Statistics for the nation and the states. Because metropolitan area definitions have changed since the 2000 census, the 2006 BLS employment data for metropolitan areas were incompatible with the MSA population data for 2000. Therefore, to make the population and employment data comparable, employment data for MSAs for persons employed in criminal justice-related occupations were obtained for 2000. These data were downloaded from http://www.bls.gov/oes/oes\_dl.htm on March 21 and 22, 2006. Data were obtained for the following occupation categories:

BLS occupation codes included
occ_code	occ_title
21-1092	Probation officers and correctional treatment specialists
33-1011	First-line supervisors/managers of correctional officers
33-1012	First-line supervisors/managers of police and detectives
33-1099	First-line supervisors/managers, protective service workers, all other
33-3011	Bailiffs
33-3012	Correctional officers and jailers
33-3021	Detectives and criminal investigators
33-3031	Fish and game wardens
33-3041	Parking enforcement workers
33-3051	Police and sheriff's patrol officers

BLS occupation codes included
occ_code	occ_title
33-3052	Transit and railroad police
33-9011	Animal control workers
33-9021	Private detectives and investigators
33-9031	Gaming surveillance officers and gaming investigators
33-9032	Security guards
33-9099	Protective service workers, all other

(Those are the BLS occupation codes.) Once again, because the Master's degree data are for criminal justice-related degrees, criminal justice-related occupations were selected and occupations related to public safety were not included.

Analysis of Degrees in Relation to Measures of Demand

This section analyzes the numbers of Master's degrees awarded in relation to the two measures of demand, population and persons employed in criminal justice-related occupations. Three sets of comparisons are made: Indiana versus the nation as a whole, Indiana versus surrounding states, and the Indianapolis Metropolitan Statistical Area (MSA) versus other large MSAs.

The assumption is made that the Master's degrees awarded in an area would go towards meeting the demand for such degrees in that area. This is necessarily only an approximation. Some students will choose to obtain a degree from an institution in another area (and may return to their original place of residence). Institutions, especially near the border of other areas, may contribute to the meeting of the demand for Master's degrees in those other areas. And some of the larger, more prominent degree programs will attract students regionally or even nationally, thereby contributing to the meeting of the demand for criminal justice degrees over broader areas. We do expect to attract out-of-state students by year 3 of the degree.

One exceptional case exists within Indiana. Calumet College of St. Joseph is located in Whiting, Indiana. Being very close to Illinois, it would be reasonable to assume that they might be likely to attract significant numbers of students from Illinois, at least in part meeting the demand for Master's degrees in Illinois. Under the assumption made above, however, those degrees would appropriately still be considered as meeting the needs in Indiana. However, according to their website, their Master of Science in Law Enforcement Administration/Public Safety Administration (they are changing the name of the degree) is offered at three locations—at the main campus in Whiting, at Illinois Institute of Technology in Chicago, and at the Chicago Police Academy in Chicago. It would seem logical to conclude that degrees awarded to students participating at the latter two locations would primarily be serving to meet demand in Illinois. No information is available as to the numbers of the Master's degrees awarded by that institution that are awarded to students studying at the various locations. The most reasonable assumption would seem to be that equal number of degrees are awarded to students studying at each location. So two-thirds of the degrees awarded should be allocated to Illinois and one-third to Indiana, based upon two of the three locations being located in Illinois. This is how those degrees were allocated in the analyses reported here.

Indiana versus the United States

We start by comparing the number of Master's degrees and the measures of demand for Indiana with the totals for the United States. The following table reports the total numbers of 2006 Master's degrees awarded, total population, and employment in criminal related occupations as reported by the Bureau of Labor Statistics:

	CJ Master's Degrees	Population	Employment in CJ Occupations	Degrees per 100,000 Population	Degrees per 100,000 Employment
Indiana	51	6,080,485	45,420	0.84	112.29
United States	4,470	281,421,906	2,620,040	1.59	170.61

The table also reports the number of Master's degrees per 100,000 population and per 100,000 persons employed in criminal justice-related occupations. For the United States as a whole, the ratio of degrees to population is nearly twice as great as the ratio in Indiana. It is also much larger (though not quite as large) for the ratio of degrees to employment.

Indiana versus the Surrounding States

The next comparison relates the same information for Indiana to the data for the surrounding states:

	CJ Master's Degrees	Population	Employment in CJ Occupations	Degrees per 100,000 Population	Degrees per 100,000 Employment
Indiana	51	6,080,485	45,420	0.84	112.29
Illinois	170	12,419,293	110,600	1.37	153.71
Kentucky	68	4,041,769	13,920	1.68	488.51
Michigan	89	9,938,444	74,350	0.90	119.70
Ohio	295	11,353,140	85,080	2.60	346.73
Mean				1.64	277.16

The ratio of criminal-justice-related Master's degrees to both population and employment is greater in all of the surrounding states than in Indiana. Some are only slightly higher, while other ratios are over twice those for Indiana. The mean of the ratio of degrees to population for the four surrounding states is nearly twice as high as the ratio for Indiana. The mean of the ratio of degrees to employment for the four states is well over twice that of Indiana.

Indianapolis Metropolitan Statistical Area (MSA) versus 50 Largest MSAs

For universities in large metropolitan areas, the populations of those areas can constitute a major part of the market of their degrees. It is therefore appropriate to consider the number of criminal justice-related degrees in the 50 largest areas, along with the populations and numbers employed in criminal justice-related occupations. No Master's degrees in criminal justice were awarded in the Indianapolis MSA.

The following table presents the same information as the previous tables—degrees awarded, population, employment—for the 50 largest Metropolitan Statistical Areas in the United States in 2000. The areas are arranged in decreasing order of MSA population:

	CJ Master's Degrees	Population	Employment in CJ Occupations	Degrees per 100,000 Population	Degrees per 100,000 Employment

Mean				1.73	215.20

The ratios of degrees per population and degrees per employment vary widely across the MSAs. The Indianapolis MSA is one of only 4 MSAs in which no Master's degrees in criminal justice or related fields were awarded in 2005-2006. As the twenty-eighth largest MSA in 2000, Indianapolis was the largest area in which no Master's degrees were awarded.

The mean across the fifty largest MSAs of Master's degrees per hundred thousand population was higher than the value for the nation as a whole and the mean across the four surrounding states. The mean across the fifty largest MSAs of Master's degrees per hundred thousand employees was higher than the value for the nation as a whole as well. This suggests that metropolitan areas may be particularly strong markets for Master's degrees in criminal justice.

Estimation of Total and Unmet Demand for Indiana and Indianapolis

The analysis presented above provides a basis for estimating the total and unmet demand for Master's degrees in criminal justice for Indiana and for the Indianapolis MSA. We take the ratios of numbers of Master's degrees to population and employment for the nation and the means for the four surrounding states and multiply those by the Indiana population and employment in criminal justice-related occupations as measures of the potential demand for criminal justice degrees in Indiana. For the Indianapolis MSA, we take the mean ratios for the 50 largest MSAs multiplied by the Indianapolis MSA population and employment in criminal justice-related occupations to produce measures of the potential demand for criminal justice degrees in the Indianapolis MSA. Subtracting the actual numbers of Master's degrees awarded in Indiana and the Indianapolis MSA provides measures of the unmet demand, which can be taken as estimates of the potential demand for additional Master's degree in criminal justice in Indiana and the Indianapolis MSA. This reported in the following table:

	CJ Master's Degrees per 100,000	Indiana/ Indianapolis Population/ Employment	Indiana/ Indianapolis Demand for CJ Master's	Indiana/ Indianapolis CJ Master's	Indiana/ Indianapolis Unmet Demand
United States

Forecasts of Program Enrollment and Degrees Awarded

Looking at the figures for unmet demand, the range of the numbers is somewhat higher for the estimates for the state of Indiana than for the Indianapolis MSA. While the proposed degree program would undoubtedly serve students and meet demand beyond the MSA, we can acknowledge that it would not necessarily be expected to meet all of the unmet demand for criminal justice degrees for the entire state of Indiana. A conservative approach would be to focus on the figures for the unmet demand for the Indianapolis MSA. Then the relevant estimates would be for an unmet demand of 28 to 39 criminal justice degrees. These are still sufficiently high to make it reasonable to use the lower of those two estimates of unmet demand, 28 degrees per year, as the working estimate of demand for criminal justice degrees. Again, this is a very conservative because the proposed degree is for the Master's in criminal justice and public safety, and this estimate of demand relates only to criminal justice.

The estimate of unmet demand of 28 degrees per year, allows for a conservative estimate of 10 new students in the first year and by year 5, 40 new students, some full-time, some part-time. For the 36-credit hour degree, this would be 4 semesters for full-time students and 8 semesters for part-time students (assuming 3 courses per semester for full-time students and 2 courses per semester for part-time students). Although in past years, there were significantly more part-time students in the SPEA IUPUI MPA program, as of fall 2008, 44% of MPA graduate students are full-time (8 or more credits) and 56% of MPA students are part-time. Using this breakdown to forecast program enrollment and degrees awarded Table 1 (appended) shows a five year forecast of credit hours and program majors for the MCJPS.
