Restaurateur given award by IUPUI group

Claude B. Kendall, owner of Key West Shrimp House and C.B. Kendall's Musicales Restaurant, both in Indianapolis, was named the 1985 Indiana "Food Service Executive of the Year" by students in the Department of Restaurant, Hotel and Institutional Management at IUPUI.

This award, started by students in 1970 at IUPUI, was given to Kendall "in recognition of excellence in food service," according to Raymond A.

dault, chairman of the department.

Sagamore gets new Editor-in-Chief

The Board of Student Publications announced last week that Joyce K. Jensen will become Editor-in-Chief of the Sagamore, effective May 1, 1985.

Jensen, a junior writing major, will replace Michael Thackston, Editor-in-Chief since May 3, 1984.

Jensen is currently Opinion and Editorial Editor of the Sagamore, which she has held since May 1984.

Sagamore given awards by college press group

The Sagamore won several awards at the recent Indiana Collegiate Press Association convention, held at Valparaiso University recently.

The Sagamore won a total of four awards, including a second place in cover design and a second place finish in the editorial category, for Joyce K. Jensen's "Cheating Yourself" editorial.

The newspaper also won a second place award for best make-up of a single issue.

Staff photographer Tom Strattman won a third place

Doctor gives tips on avoiding heart attacks

by Mario Morone

The IU Medical Center's new cardiology supervisor has some simple advice on how to avoid heart attacks.

Dr. John F. Williams Sr., IU's most recent addition to its cardiology staff, advises patients against the evils of smoking, cholesterol and laziness.

"Don't smoke," Williams says. "Reduce the fat and cholesterol amounts in your daily diet and don't get sedentary (lazy)."

Williams, former president of the American College of Cardiology, joined the medical school staff recently as a professor of medicine.

He will head the cardiology section of the Richard L. Roudebush VA Medical Center and become senior researcher at the Krannert Institute of Cardiology.

A 1958 graduate of the IU School of Medicine, Williams says he is happy he returned to the school.

Festival brings bands, dancing

Dust off your dancing shoes IUPUI, this week you'll be jitterbugging and waltzing to the music of Bruce Springsteen, The Beatles, Billy Idol and others at the 1985 Spring Festival.

Sponsored by the Student Assembly, the festival will boast six local bands performing live on the grounds near the library mall, from noon to 1:15 daily.

Monday at the mall, Blue Hue & the Colour Tones, will perform tunes from such groups as ZZ Top, Rod Stewart, Bruce Springsteen and Phil Collins.

On Tuesday, Quasar, a local reggae band, will present music by Bob Marley, Chi-Lights, Otis Redding and Men At Work, as well as their own original tunes.

Wednesday, at the Herron School of Art, fans of The Pretenders, Missing Persons, The Clash and Billy Idol, will be visited by Tourist, a New Wave band.

Back at the library mall on Thursday, The Late Show will give Fifties and Sixties music fans a treat with the best of The Beatles, Monkees, Who, Kinks, Buddy Holly and Elvis Presley.

Finally, this Friday, Jeff Bowen and the Colors will perform at the free Spring Festival Sock-Hop dance in the IU Natatorium Main Gym.

The Colors will present music by Julian Lennon, Philip Bailey, Billy Joel, Toto, Don Henley, Bryan Adams, as well as original tunes from their latest album.

Fed ruling imperils campus expansion: official says

by Mark J. Goff

A federal judges' recent ruling jeopardizes plans to both renovate Lockfield Gardens and expand the IU Medical Center, one university official said last week.

"The decision (made by Judge S. Hugh Dillin) impacts on a number of construction projects that the university has in mind, specifically expansion of the Medical Center, as well as the city's plans to use Lockfield for athlete housing," said Robert Baxter, special assistant to Vice President Glenn W. Irwin.

The Medical Center expansion project will be delayed, Baxter said, because the land needed is still tied to the Lockfield renovation plans.

Latest proposals call for Lockfield to be used for athlete housing during the 1987 Pan American games, and afterwards turned over to the housing market.

When Federal Judge S. Hugh Dillin refused to alter his 1978 ruling prohibiting the city from renovating Lockfield for lower income groups other than the elderly, it eliminated the project's eligibility for Industrial Revenue Bonds (IRB's).

According to Baxter, the bonds are a financing device

Dorm closing soon

Student dorm to become offices

by Tracy McQueen

While the IUPUI campus continues to grow, its campus housing is diminishing.

According to David M. Paul, director of campus housing, "it's all but certain" that the Single Student Dormitory will be converted to an office building this summer.

In general, residents of the dormitory were upset upon learning of the new plans last Wednesday.

"It amazes me how little concern the high administration has for students who live on campus," said Cheri Lee, a representative for the Student Council of Residence Life (SCRL).

Although residents do not approve of the decision, they plan no protests against it, a SCRL member said.

Kevin N. Shields, president of the organization, said "There is really nothing we can do. The administration has already made its mind up that this (dorm) will go to office space. I can't see how they can possibly make up for the loss."

One hundred and fifty students will be displaced if the plan is carried out. Last year, 100 students had to give up their rooms to make way for the Hudson Institute, a New York-based research organization.

David Paul said the housing department will attempt to make up for the loss by converting the first floor of the Warthin Apartments into rooms for approximately 30 students.

Space for 20 students is being added to Ball Residence. The second floor of Ball will be exclusively for men, while the third and fourth floors will be for women.

Converting the building into a coed dormitory will cost anywhere from $10,000 to $20,000, according to university estimates.

Whose facilities are they, anyway?

by Matt Shrum

Below the press box of the Track and Field Stadium there is a new sign that reads Indiana University-Purdue University at Indianapolis.

Maybe that does not seem like that big a deal to the average student but look around at 'our' world class facilities. On the scoreboard of the same track stadium, the sign says Indiana University Track Stadium at Indianapolis.

On the windows of the Concourse in the Natatorium, IUPUI is interchanged with, in red, Indiana University Natatorium. On the scoreboard of the Natatorium proclaims Indiana University Natatorium at Indianapolis.

As an individual who has no real connection to Purdue University I am tired of this. This is I-U-P-U-I not I-U-I. They are IUPUI facilities and should have the name IUPUI.

IUPUI has a serious name recognition problem. With all of the international athletic competition we have had here, it seems that people should know IUPUI just from just from ABC's Wide World of Sports.

The connection between IUPUI and these facilities are not being made, though. This year I have been to Orlando, Fla., and Kansas City, Mo., with IUPUI athletic teams, and although people know of the facilities in Indianapolis, they are not putting them together with the name IUPUI.

While I was in Florida the week before Christmas with IUPUI's women's basketball team, I was interviewed by a Florida radio station at halftime of one of the games.

This was at the same time that the announcement was made concerning Indianapolis hosting the Pan Am games. The announcer talked to me about the facilities at IUPUI and then asked me if any of the Pan Am events would be held at IUPUI.

This announcer had seen the Track and Field Stadium and natatorium on television. But, I am not convinced. I ever got across the point that these are IUPUI facilities. After all, on television all the audience sees is this big scoreboard that says Indiana University at Indianapolis.

At the end of the interview, the announcer said, "So some of the events will be held at IUPUI." And I replied, "Pretty much all of the events will be there."

It is nice to see that Indiana University-Purdue University at Indianapolis sign at the Track and Field Stadium. My only question, though, is: will it disappear before the Pan Am games?

Swing into spring

by Brian O'Connor

Those of you who have read my previous columns have probably sensed how much I value excellence. It's something to be sought vigorously, and once achieved, to be treasured, supported, and applauded.

Now, every university has its areas of excellence, and IUPUI is no exception. But since it's spring, and since I'm an avid sports fan, I'd like to tell you a little about women's softball, in the hopes that I can entice you out to support the excellent IUPUI women's softball team, which is a national powerhouse (they placed in the top five in the last two NAIA national championships, and hope to do better this year).

If you've never seen a well-played women's fast pitch softball game, you're in for a shock. It is a different from "picnic softball" as Olympic level volleyball is from "beach volleyball." In addition, fast pitch softball is an entirely different game than baseball. Let me explain.

First of all, it is a game of quickness, agility, and strategy in which the pitcher is dominant (the really great pitchers win 5 to 10 times more games than they lose, and no-hit games are not uncommon). This is dictated by the size of the diamond. For example, the distance between bases is 60 feet (it's 90 in baseball), so the game is more compact.

More importantly, the pitcher stands only 40 feet from the plate (versus 60 feet 6 inches in baseball). Given that some pitchers can throw a softball accurately at upwards of 90 miles per hour (as fast as some major league pitchers throw their fastballs), the batter has a problem just making contact with the ball. Her problem is compounded by the fact that a good pitcher can make the ball sink, rise, curve, and flutter.

Theoretically, the way to beat such a pitcher is to avoid big, powerful swings (which can be foiled by the ball changing direction at the last instant) and just try to slap the ball into the outfield, or get on base by bunting. Defenses are set to prevent this, with both third and first basemen playing well in towards the plate, elaborate strategies have been developed to ensure that defensive plays are properly made.

I guess what I like best about women's softball is its intensity and the enthusiasm of the players. When two really good teams play each other, every pitch is important and exciting, every baserunner a potential game decider, and any error, confusion, or break in concentration can be fatal.

If you haven't seen the IUPUI women's softball team play, you really ought to give it a try. The ladies are really fine athletes who are well coached and highly disciplined. The IUPUI facilities are good as any, and the price is right. Finally, you have a bonus this year, since the NAIA national championships will again be held at IUPUI (May 16-18). If you attend them, you'll see that our team is as good as any in the country.

Dr. O'Connor is associate professor of anatomy at the Indiana University Medical Center.

'Greeks' bring fraternities to campus

by Mario Morone

A plan by the Faculty Advisory Committee to place a fraternity and sorority on the IUPUI campus next fall has been accepted by the administration.

Although details have yet to be ironed out, a group headed by Mike Wagoner, Director of Student Activities, has made progress in bringing a Greek organization to the school.

A survey conducted by the Student Affairs Office in August 1983 revealed that 54 percent of students were interested in joining a fraternity or sorority at IUPUI.

Students said they were also willing to commit time, effort and money to make the social organization a success.

Phi Nu Fraternity, a women's organization, has accepted the committee's invitation for the fall.

Alpha Sigma Phi, Pi Kappa Phi and Delta Sigma Phi have been asked to decide among themselves which will set up residence for males. The decision's deadline is April 30.

Meeting with these national organizations, the committee learned that each believed IUPUI to be an appropriate location for fraternity and sorority groups.

Patricia Boaz, Acting Dean of Student Affairs, said, "We do not feel capable of handling more than one of each the first year, but if everything goes well, we could add one fraternity and sorority each year."

"Regardless of what students want, chapter houses will not be available at the present time due to expensive building and maintenance costs," Boaz said.

"Regardless of what students want, chapter houses will not be available at the present time due to expensive building and maintenance costs."

—Patricia Boaz, Acting Dean of Student Affairs.

Boaz will be going to Bloomington in the near future with outgoing student body president Stephen Akard and incoming president Martin Dragonette to discuss rules and regulations concerning the social organizations.

They hope to organize a Panhellenic Council with Dick McKagan, Director of Student Activities in Bloomington.

Individuals joining the fraternity and sorority will be making key decisions on social events, leadership development and service projects.

Boaz said Mike Wagoner "was originally designated for the job, but his previous commitment to the Student Assembly Organization and lack of funds will leave the position to be run by a faculty group."

Members of the group include: Gerald Arfio, S. Sue Barrett, Scott E. Ebenbeck, Donald Fleener, Lincoln Lewis, Rebecca Markel, Ronald Montgomery, James Seubert, James Smurl and B. Bruce Wagoner.

ROTC repelling off Cavanaugh this week

What would it take to get an average student to jump off the side of Cavanaugh Hall?

Not passing mid-terms, losing loved ones, or just the fear of finals?

The members of the ROTC repelling team will soon be demonstrating this act.

The team will be giving a demonstration on the north side of Cavanaugh Hall, April 18, during the Spring Festival.

If the thought of leaping off the side of a building is inviting to you, the ROTC cadets will be having an all-campus open repel May 4, where they will be instructing students.

The location for this event will be released later.

Repelling is currently used for rapid deployment of light infantry in mountainous terrain, where normal movement is not possible.

"very enticing to developers."

The IRB's would allow developers to finance a portion of the project at interest rates below those of conventional loans.

Baxter believes developers who expressed interest in the project in the past will re-evaluate their positions if the bonds cannot be used.

"I think the developers will step back and take another look at the project," Baxter said.

"They may not believe the project is economically feasible without that financing incentive."

The Lockfield project cannot qualify for the IRB's unless city officials ensure that 20 percent of the units will be reserved for low income and minority tenants.

Dillin feels reserving 20 percent of the units for minorities and lower-income groups would add a significant number of poor black children to the IPS school district.

David Carley, director of the Indianapolis Department of Metropolitan Development, said that without the bonds, rents would be higher for those renting the apartments after the games, than if the IRBs were used.

Baxter remains optimistic that some accord can be reached allowing the renovation to proceed as planned.

"Hopefully the city can persuade Dillin to reserve 20 percent of the units for the lower-income groups... which will not have a substantial impact upon the IPS system," Baxter said.

genesis garners awards

IUPUI's literary magazine, genesis, recently garnered several top honors at a state-wide college publications competition held by the Indiana Collegiate Press Association (ICPA).

The ICPA, whose membership includes approximately 50 publications from 30 Indiana colleges, awarded genesis second place for 1984-85. Professor Charles M. Oliver, of Ohio Northern University, served as literary magazine advisor for the contest.

First place in Cover Design was given to IUPUI students Rick Callahan and W.B. McFee.

Mary Nicolini received a second-place award for Best Photographic Art.

Joyce Jensen came away with a first place in the Best Essay category for her piece "Bring it on Back Home," featured in the Spring genesis issue.

R.F. Russell tied for third place in the Best Short Story award category with his story "The Day the Doom Laughed."

In the short poetry category, Kristi Hart captured first place with her work "Communion for the Stillborn."

Robert M. Aull received a first-place award for "Waking Near the Lost Sailors Monument (New Hampshire, 1978)," in the Long Poetry contest.

Aull also placed third in Short Poetry, with his "Another Freight Train Litany."

Copies of IUPUI's award-winning literary magazine are offered free-of-charge at university libraries and bookstores.

IUPUI invites all students to contribute their work for the Fall '85 issue following summer classes.

Block seminar coming

Mystery and suspense writer Lawrence Block will present his seminar "Write for Your Life" in Indianapolis on April 27.

Block is the author of more than 30 mystery and suspense novels. His book The Burglar Who Liked to Quote Kipling won the first annual Nero Wolfe award, and Eight Million Ways to Die, which was the recipient of the 1983 Shamus Award, will soon be made into a movie. In addition he has written two popular and amusing books about writing, Writing the Novel From Plot to Print and Telling Lies For Fun and Profit.

Block's short fiction has appeared in many magazines, including Ellery Queen's Mystery Magazine, Cosmopolitan and Gallery. Block is also a contributing editor to Writers' Digest.

The "Write For Your Life" seminar differs from many similar events. Instead of lectures, readings and critiques, the seminar strives to unleash the writer's creative potential in ways described as "fun, stimulating, traumatic and self-revealing." Although primarily for writers, the seminar has been useful for others in the creative arts.

The seminar will be held at the Rodeway Inn. Cost for attendance is $100 but special rates are available for writers' groups of ten or more people. For further information, write: Larry Block, Write For Your Life, 95 Horatio Street, New York, NY 10014.

IMA classics

The Indianapolis Museum of Art continues its program of presenting fine quality films, and is currently hosting the series "Hollywood Classics -Part I."

The films are shown Sunday afternoons through May 19 in the Museum's DeBoest Lecture Hall at 5 p.m.

The selected films represent Hollywood's latter heyday (1941-1953) and include films that were once considered controversial and even shocking. Remaining films in the series are:

- April 21 It's a Wonderful Life (1946)
- April 28 Limelight (1952)
- May 5 Shane (1953)
- May 12 From Here to Eternity (1953)
- May 19 All the King's Men (1949)

Tickets for the series cost $12 for members and $15 for nonmembers. At the door, single admission tickets cost $2.50 from members and $3 nonmembers. Seating is limited and early purchase is advisable. Series tickets may be purchased through the mail or in person, Tuesdays through Fridays, 11 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the Education Center on the Krannert Pavilion's 3rd floor.

Metros win 12th straight; Kellum looks for 200th win

by Matt Shrum

IUPUI's women's softball team advanced to 17-5 last week with doubleheader sweeps of Indiana Central and Huntington College.

The Metros will play at Taylor Tuesday and at Franklin Wednesday before hosting the IUPUI Invitational Friday and Saturday.

Friday, April 12, the Metros hosted Grace College. In that double header coach Nick Kellum was looking for his 200th career victory. Kellum entered the games with a 198-60 career record.

The Metros defeated Indiana Central 6-0, 6-2 and then defeated Huntington 4-0, 5-2.

Cindy Reese highlighted the first game against Indiana Central with a home run. It was Reese's second ball hit over the fence this year and the first time a ball was actually bounced on to New York Street.

Reese has surpassed what Kellum expected.

"I knew that she would be a good player but she has exceeded even my expectations. It is nice to have somebody who can hit the ball out of the park," said Kellum.

Over the last eight games the Metro defense has come around to where Kellum expected.

"Pitching has been real good (the Metros' team ERA is 1.16). Theresa Murray has had two good outings in a row. She hasn't allowed a run in 15 innings.

"The defense has really improved too. Chris Nichols is doing a super job at shortstop. She is getting to ground balls and throwing the runner out that others wouldn't even get to," said Kellum.

The Metros' offense continues to please Kellum as well.

"We don't have an out in the lineup. Anyone can hurt you," claims Kellum.

He added, "Judy DeVoogel has improved her batting average from last year. She gets on base and makes things happen. We need runners on base when Nichols, Reese, Vicki Levinsky and Teresa Allen come up and DeVoogel and Glenna Massey are doing the job."

NAIA eligibility rule leaves IU's Morgan a player without a team

by Matt Shrum

There has been a pretty strong rumor going around for the last month that Winston Morgan wanted to leave Indiana University for IUPUI.

This has gone past being a strong rumor to being a fact. Contacts were made. Morgan did talk with IUPUI coach Bob Lovell but then questions about eligibility came up.

It seems that the NAIA does not automatically recognize NCAA redshirt rules. So last year when Morgan was forced to sit out after playing just six games the NAIA considers that a complete year.

It is not like Morgan had anything to say about it. He did not choose to sit out. An injury that required surgery and up to a nine month recovery period forced him out.

It just seems wrong that the NAIA says that six games constitutes a season. If Morgan had his way I am sure that he would have rather played last year and then right now just have to worry about finishing his nine hours and internship and then graduate.

But life has its funny turns and at this point he is a player without a team. Reports from Bloomington point towards Knight not wanting him to come back next year.

If Morgan were to transfer to an NCAA school he would have to sit out a year and according to NCAA and NAIA rules he no longer has an extra year to sit out.

So Morgan looked to IUPUI and the NAIA but the NAIA claims that six games, even though he suffered an injury that forced him out, constitutes a season.

Maybe the NAIA is getting too far away from the point of intercollegiate athletics. Intercollegiate athletics, especially at the NAIA level, is for the individual—the student athlete—not for the people who sit in their chairs in some office and make rules.

Sure, there have to be rules, but when those rules get in the way of a player's right to play the four full years that he is entitled to, something needs to be changed.

Winston Morgan just wants to play his final year.

Idella Williams steps away from an inside pitch in a recent softball game.
