RILEY GRANTS ANNOUNCED

A dozen scientists and physicians at Riley Hospital for Children have been awarded research grants for a year of study at the hospital.

"The grants, totaling $207,860, will be used for investigations into childhood handicaps and diseases," said Dr. Raymond M. Rice, chairman of grants-in-aid for the Riley Memorial Association. Research awards for the previous two years amount to nearly one-half million dollars.

"I am delighted that the association continues its generous support of individual physician's investigations at Riley Hospital," said Dr. Steven C. Beering, dean of the I.U. School of Medicine.

"I am particularly pleased that the outstanding work in childhood cancer and pediatric surgery is recognized by continued support of research conducted by Dr. Robert Baehner and Dr. Jay Grosfeld and their colleagues," he added.

Riley Hospital is widely recognized as the fourth largest center for treatment and study of childhood cancer in North America.

Areas to be studied under the new grants include maternal malnutrition, small bowel transplantation, dwarfism, hypertension and susceptibility of infection in child cancer patients.

Two of the 1975-76 awards are fellowships to Dr. Baehner and Dr. Joseph F. Fitzgerald.

Research awards were made to Dr. Morris Green, Dr. Catherine G. Palmer, Dr. Robert M. Weetman, Dr. David W. Allman, Dr. Sudhir K. Anand, Dr. Baehner, Dr. Laurence A. Boxer, Dr. Fitzgerald, Dr. Robert C. Karn, Dr. Grosfeld, Dr. Richard E. Lindseth and Dr. James D. Northway.

"As part of a major university, Riley Hospital has an obligation and a compelling charge to discover new information and to communicate results of research to practitioners in their offices and in community hospitals," said Dr. Green, physician-in-chief of Riley.

The Riley Memorial Association gives the greatest annual amount of any private organization contributing to the university's research funds. The Riley money is primarily for financing pilot studies that afford the researcher an opportunity to do the original work.

The Riley research program begun in 1949 was the pilot program out of which grew the multimillion-dollar research activities at the I.U. Medical Center. In recent years research grants have exceeded $200,000 annually.

CALENDAR CHECK-OFF

Exhibits -- Pharmacy displays this week in University Hospital will be Dorsey Laboratories on Wednesday and Warner Chilcott Laboratories on Friday. Hours are 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Grand Rounds -- Dr. Denis P. Burkitt, member of the external staff of the Medical Research Council of Great Britain, will speak on "Diet and Diseases of Modern Western Civilization" during grand rounds at 8:15 a.m. Wednesday in Myers Auditorium of General Hospital. He was the first to describe Burkitt's lymphoma.

Everything You Wanted To Know -- Orientation sessions about the facilities and services of the School of Medicine Library are under way. The last ones will be this Thursday from 3 p.m. to 4 p.m. and the following Tuesday (September 9) from 4 p.m. to 5 p.m. in Room 205 of the Medical Science Building. Any interested Medical Center patron is invited.

Fun 'n' Culture -- Hot dogs, popcorn, bratwurst, beer, the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra, rock music, dancing, scores of artists and their works--such is the fare promised at the 1975 Penrod Arts Fair, An Afternoon at Oldfields. The date is Saturday (September 6) on the grounds of the Indianapolis Museum of Art. Price is $10 per family, $5 per person.

Coming Up -- Thursday, September 25, is the deadline for reservations for the September luncheon meeting of the IUPUI Faculty Club. Purdue President Arthur G. NEWS 'N' NOTES FROM HERE 'N' THERE

Scheduling -- The School of Medicine Library schedule for the Labor Day Weekend is 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday, noon to 6 p.m. on Sunday and closed on Monday. Effective Tuesday (September 2), the library schedule will be 8 a.m. to 11:45 p.m. Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Saturdays, and 1 p.m. to 11:45 p.m. on Sundays.

Special Edition -- Through a generous gift in memory of Mr. Herbert Barnett by his friends, the IUPUI Library has received a Babylonian Talmud, an 18-volume deluxe edition reprinted in the Netherlands. (The original edition was published in London in 1935 by the Soncino Press.) The new acquisition is especially attractive, with leather-like maroon cover, onion-thin pages and gilded edges. The set will be available in the library's reference collection.

There for the Asking -- The Office of Hospital Education's catalogue for the fall educational and informational programs is available for all interested employees. For more information, contact the office in Room 384, Clinical Building, Ext. 8119.

A-OK -- The Committee on Accreditation of the American Psychological Association has voted to continue the internship training program in psychology at Larue D. Carter Memorial Hospital on full-approval status. Dr. Robert L. Ten Eyck is director of the program which has trained 10 psychologists since it started two years ago. The interns have come from Indiana, Florida, Texas, South Carolina, Oklahoma and Kentucky.

Help -- The IUPUI Child Care Center could make more use of any used wheeled toys you may have around the house. Please donate to the Student Service Center, Ext. 3932. P.S. As a result of their last appeal, they received not one, but two refrigerators. Many thanks!

Taking the Bus? -- Effective Tuesday (September 2), the hours for processing Metro half-fare program identification cards will be from 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. For any Metro information, call 635-3344.

Thank You -- Mrs. Josephine Wilkins, patient representative of Patient Accounts, would like to thank the administration and employees for their flowers and expressions of sympathy at the recent death of her husband, Stanley O. Wilkins. An artist, cartoonist and animator of Hollywood film and television strips, Mr. Wilkins was an animator of teaching films for physicians and medical students at the Medical Center from 1969 until his retirement in 1973.

Opening -- Part-time project co-ordinator needed to administer a continuing education project, "Respiratory Care in Nursing Education," through an NLN-accredited School of Nursing; must have master's degree in nursing. Contact Jean Schweer, I.U. School of Nursing, Ext. 7779.
