RX FOR PHARMACY: CHANGE OF SCENERY

Pharmacy's new headquarters in University Hospital (Room N109A) will open its doors Friday (April 18) at 1 p.m. to welcome members of the Medical Center community during an inaugural open house.

"We want everyone to come see our new area," says Allen V.R. Beck who, after 30 years as chief pharmacist, has accomplished the first stage of a plan to modernize the pharmaceutical facility--enabling it to provide the most modern services to the I.U. medical staff and their patients.

"This department now has the physical capacity to serve the Medical Center, as it now stands, through its next 10 to 15 years of growth," Beck says.

The new pharmacy extends over 4,300 square feet on the first floor of University Hospital and 9,500 square feet in the basement area adjoining the hospital. A conveyor system ties the two areas together, then branches out to provide a more accessible delivery system to all the hospital floors. The conveyor also receives all unused medication from the floors and returns it to a basement holding room.

One of the most promising new services of the pharmacy is the Drug Information Center. The new 3M "500" Reader Printer unit projects microfiche data on a screen and it can make a copy of the projected data so it can be sent to the inquiring physician or pharmacist.

The pharmacy subscribes to a microfiche service which sends them selected material as it has appeared in any of 160 medical journals. This information is cross-indexed according to disease or drug names by a numerical filing system. Assistant Chief Pharmacist Rudolph Choich mans this unit.

Other new facilities help the pharmacists provide faster, more efficient service to the hospitals. Four I.V. additive and hyperalimentation centers provide a sterilized atmosphere required to prepare intravenous dosages.

Lektreiver filing systems handle files, drug and medical publications, as well as medications in the working areas of the pharmacy. Walk-in vaults and refrigeration units insure the safety of narcotics and controlled substances.

An elaborate storage system keeps the medications and supplies within easy reach while maintaining a high security level. With this system, twice as much can be stored in the same floor space usually given to regular stationary shelving.

Beck and his enthusiastic staff will be on hand Friday to show off their modern, innovative facility.

IUPUI ARCHIVES ESTABLISHED

Vice-president Glenn W. Irwin, Jr. has authorized the beginning of an archives collection to be based in the University Libraries, 420 Blake Street. Mrs. Jeannette Matthew will supervise the program as archivist and special collection librarian and will be responsible for developing a systematic university archives program. Miss Priscilla Brown, News Bureau assistant editor, will also be directly involved with the program.

Since the archives eventually will contain the university's significant legal, administrative and historical records at Indianapolis of long-term or permanent value, anyone having items of this nature should contact the Office of the Vice-President or Mrs. Matthew (264-8278).

Examples of such materials are council and committee minutes, reports and records; papers of chancellors, vice-presidents, etc; faculty, staff and student publications; thesis material; student government records and publications; official publications; state and local government reports relating to the Indianapolis campus; oral history, tapes and records.

Most of the staff's initial effort will be to locate what is now available, preparing retention plans and devising procedures. Special attention will be given to supporting the university's bicentennial programs and anniversaries in the Schools of Medicine and Dentistry.
