SALARY PAYMENTS

For IUPUI faculty members on academic-year (10-month) appointments, the following announcement from the Office of the I.U. Vice President and Dean for Academic Affairs is relevant:

This schedule for salary payments to persons on academic year appointments has been adopted for the remainder of 1971-72:

Nov. 1	March 1
Dec. 1	April 1
Jan. 1	May 1
Feb. 1	May 22 (Commencement)

This payment schedule supersedes the one announced last spring in which the last salary payment for the first semester occurred on December 22, instead of January 1. The change is in response to requests by faculty members who observed that a tax advantage will be realized by deferring this payment until after the 1972 calendar year begins. A December 22 payment would have resulted in eleven rather than ten salary payments this year, resulting in a higher taxable income for 1971. The January 1 paycheck will be distributed on Monday, January 3.

In most cases, 1/12 of the fringe benefit deductions are being taken during each of the ten payment periods. When an employee is reappointed for the following academic year, a fringe benefit deduction for the two summer months as well as the first month of the academic year is taken from his September 15 paycheck.

LECTURE--NOT NECESSARILY A BAD WORD

The effectiveness of the lecture in the educational process is a controversial subject. In an effort to illustrate what can be done with the lecture hour, a group of sophomore medical students under the direction of Dr. Donald J. Niederpruem has arranged a series of presentations called "Grand Rounds in Innovative Teaching."

The symposium is being sponsored by the Department of Microbiology and Dr. Glenn W. Irwin, dean of the School of Medicine. Several noted educators will participate in the series, on Wednesdays at 4 p.m. All IUPUI students and faculty are encouraged to attend. The schedule is on the following page:

November 17	Emerson Hall	Dr. J.R. Snyder Dept. of History University of Wisconsin
December 1	Emerson Hall	Dr. Walter Konetzka Dept. of Microbiology Indiana University
December 8	326 Med. Sci.	Dr. James Trosko Dept. of Human Development Michigan State University
December 15	Emerson Hall	Dr. Chiscon Dept. of Biology Purdue University

INVOLVED ONES

Several faculty members of the Graduate School of Social Service participated in the 80th Annual Indiana Conference on Social Welfare last week. The three-day conference was held at Stouffer's Indianapolis Inn and the Marott Hotel.

Mrs. Diane Brashear, assistant professor, conducted a general session on "New Directions through Legislation--Political Advocacy for Social Workers." Miss Ethel Swengel, associate professor, chaired a workshop on "Early Childhood Intervention--Mothering Disabilities." Hattie Byland, second-year student at the school, and Mrs. Brashear conducted an institute on "Some Things Social Workers Should Know About Sex." Other participants included Ron Branca, student, and Alan Gordon and George Pardo from the faculty.

ATTENTION, SPORTS FANS!

The IUPUI Hyphens, nationally ranked speed-typing team, squeaked through with a half-space to edge Virginia Asterisk* Friday by a heart-clutching 111 to 110 score. As Coach P.J. (Fingers) Jabbish reported, "We got in the last word." The undefeated Hyphens will meet Detroit State Friday at 8 p.m. here at home on Relevant Field.

MARK YOUR CALENDARS!

Monday through Wednesday -- The School of Medicine Library is offering short orientation sessions for secretaries or messengers. The one-hour seminars are scheduled for 10 a.m. each day. If interested, please contact Mrs. Marcile Lannom, secretary.

Tuesday -- IUPUI French Club "soiree" will be held at the home of Miss Margaret A. Cook, assistant professor, 1734 North Coolidge, from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. Any interested IUPUI staffer, faculty member or student is invited to attend. For further information, call Linda Levison, adviser, at Ext. 3906.

Tuesday -- Paul Sharits, noted experimental film director, will talk about films at 4:30 p.m. in the Herron auditorium. He has been called "one of the most important of the new generation of film makers in America." His film, "Razor Blades," which will be shown at the session, was produced in association with the American Film Institute. It has been described as a "twin-screen flicker that boggles the mind and eye." Sharits, who received a MFA in visual design from I.U., now is on the faculty at Antioch College. This is the second of this year's series of free lectures sponsored by the Herron School of Art.

Tuesday -- The IUPUI Geology Club will meet at 4:30 p.m. in Room 435 of Cavanaugh Hall. Next Sunday (November 21) student and club member Steve Ziker will lead a group of spelunkers into the depths of Buckners Cave on a training exercise. Sign-up sheets are posted by Room 433 in Cavanaugh Hall.

Wednesday -- Department of Medicine Rounds with Visiting Professor will feature Dr. Eric Reiss, chairman and professor in medicine from the Michael Reese Hospital and the University of Chicago Pritzker School of Medicine. At 11 a.m. he will discuss "Parathyroid Hormone Secretion in Renal Failure." He will speak in Meyers Auditorium at General Hospital.

Wednesday -- "Man's Search for the City" will be discussed at the second Dimensions of Modern Man colloquium Wednesday at 8:15 p.m. in Lecture Hall Room 104. Faculty participants include Dominic Bisignano and Frances Rhome of the English Department, co-editors of a soon-to-be-published book of readings on the city, and Miriam Langsam, American historian affiliated with the Department of Metropolitan Studies. The Dimensions of Modern Man series is co-sponsored by the Department of Philosophy and the Philosophy Club. It is being co-ordinated by Edmund F. Byrne, assistant professor of philosophy.

Thursday -- General Faculty meeting will be held at 4 p.m. in Lecture Hall Room 101.

Thursday -- Dr. Hisao Fujita, professor of anatomy at the University of Hiroshima (Japan), will speak at 11 a.m. in Lilly Auditorium of General Hospital. His topic: "Fine Structure of the Thyroid Gland, With Special Regard to the Ontogenetic and Phylogenetic Aspects."

Friday -- IUPUI History Club Movie--"The Battle of Algiers" (1966) -- at 8:15 p.m. in the Roof Garden Lounge of the Union Building.

Monday, November 22 -- The Graduate School of Social Service will present the second colloquium of the fall semester entitled "New Directions in the Delivery of Health Services in Indianapolis and in the Nation." It will be given at 3:15 p.m. in Lecture Hall Room 102, followed by a reception in the faculty lounge of Cavanaugh Hall at 4:30 p.m. Speakers will be Mildred Arrill, consultant in occupational mental health with the National Institute of Health; Tim Byers, student co-ordinator at the Southside Community Health Center, and Eugene D. Selmanoff, associate professor of sociology in the School of Nursing.

Wednesday, November 24 -- Dr. S. Gero, noted Hungarian medical educator, will speak on "The Lipid Deposition in Arteries" at 9 a.m. in the Lilly Auditorium of General Hospital.

Tuesday, November 30 -- Special meeting of the IUPUI Faculty Council will be held at 3:30 p.m. in Lecture Hall Room 101.

PLAN AHEAD

Tickets are still available for the two Madrigal Dinners, to be presented December 2-3 in the Union Building. There are many good seats left for the Thursday night performance, and some remaining for Friday. Both shows start at 7 p.m. Tickets are $4.75 each, including tax. If interested, call the Union Building Catering Office, Ext. 7358.
