Nursing student activity fee

Where does the money go?

by Anita Peachee
Nursing students at IUPUI have come to the Sagamore with questions concerning a $5.00 fee tacked onto their individual semester tuition. The newspaper has come up with some facts that may answer these questions.

According to Mrs. Barbara McQueen of the Bursar's office, in August of 1972, former chancellor Maynard K. Hine directed that activities fees were no longer to be collected by the various schools. However, the nursing school was just one of the schools which requested they be allowed to retain their activity fee which is the five dollars in question.

The request was, of course, granted and the nursing school has since collected $5.00 a semester from every full-time nursing student except those enrolled in the summer session.

There were 995 full time nursing students registered in the school of nursing in the fall of 1974. According to the registrar's office, this number is constantly rising. For the benefit of simplicity, though, say there were 1000 nursing students enrolled full time. For two to four years (the lengths of programs offered by the nursing school) at five dollars a head, those students would pay a total of $20,000 to $40,000 into this activity program. This is a substantial amount of money to be spent solely in "activities".

Assistant Dean of the School of Nursing, Berdellus Carter, suggested asking Dean Elizabeth Grossman about the usage of the money collected. Dean Grossman wasn't in her office, however, her secretary was patient and she suggested a visit to Mrs. Dorothy Medcalf, administrative assistant to Dean Grossman.

Mrs. Medcalf cited some of the activities for which the money is collected. These include the capping and pinning ceremonies, annual student picnics and various orientations. In examining these activities, it was found capping ceremonies have been discontinued, the pinning ceremonies rumored on their way out also, and the picnics and orientations are quite modest in terms of total expenditures. Combine these three items with the fact that nursing students are responsible for purchasing their own pins and there is a question left of where does the rest of the money go?

The next person consenting to answer questions was Mrs. Harriet Becker. She was very kind and explained the Nursing Student-Faculty Government (herein referred to as NSFG) was in charge of distribution of the money for spending.

According to Mrs. Becker, the NSFG is a committee elected by the nursing students and consists of four student members and four faculty members and includes an appointed representative of Dean Grossman. The board meets once a month and is open to students to see just where their money is going. However, the questions of how many nursing students attend these meetings, are they really knowledgeable of how their money is spent, and do they know whether it is indeed spent wisely have yet to be answered.

Where exactly does this money go? Some of it originally went for the capping ceremonies, however that has been discontinued. Some of the money also pays for the pinning ceremonies, which may cease also. There was also a hotel rented outside the school campus for the conducting of these ceremonies instead of conserving that money and performing the pinning at facilities within the campus area.

There is also some money donated as financial support to groups whose requests are deemed reasonable. These organizations include some groups such as the Indiana

Nursing Association but could also include an organization the nurses may not be involved in, agree with, or even know about.

Should nurses be required to pay their money into agencies without their direct approval? And what about the nursing students who don't complete the program, is a refund available to the student? If so, why isn't the procedure known to all nursing students? Is the money really necessary for the activity functions within the school? Is the money being used for what it was requested?

There are too many questions here to be ignored. An investigation of these questions as well as the whole concept of the activity fee would seem to be in order. Is indeed the fee a sensible, fair way to raise activity money, or is it money paid by requirement under a name which does not fit its uses? We know a few nurses who would like that answer.

In researching some of the stories that have been and will be printed in the Sag, we observed an interesting phenomenon. Many of the people (both in and out of authority) were unwilling to tell us anything other than common knowledge. Reasons (excuses) varied from "setting a dangerous precedent" to "it will be necessary to get clearance to release that information." On the other hand, these individuals were often eager to listen to any tidbits of information which we might be privy to that had not reached their ears.

This isn't an uncommon occurrence in our society. It took a Federal law to force federal agencies to divulge information that would have otherwise remained sacrosanct in the puzzle palaces of bureaucracy. It is important to note that it took the passage of a law to release information, not to keep it secret.

We point out the above to illustrate what seems to be an ever increasing urge on the part of bureaucracies, both large and small, to protect the information they have created or collected. In what seems to be a reaction to this protective urge, assaults have been and are being mounted against secret keepers everywhere to force the release of information. Unfortunately, these assaults are uncoordinated, confused, and often too broad in their application for truth. What this all boils down to, in our opinion, is the beginning of a new period of witch hunts.

As in the crusades of old, much evil can be done in the name of good. By capitalizing on an honest desire of the common citizenry to maintain the integrity of themselves and their country, status seeking individuals (in and out of politics) will research, investigate, or just keep on digging until they find something that will somewhat justify their efforts. Just as McCarthy found a couple of communists during the massive purges of the 50's so too will today's "heroes" find some corruption, some evil-doers, some atrocities.

We point, with the finger of justification, to the trend in "revelations" about everything. From Senator Gurney's (R-Fla.) supposed corruption (he was found innocent) to the still unwinding tales of the unauthorized antics of the CIA, FBI, IRS or (insert the initials of any government agency) the manufactured cries of outrage emanate unceasingly from the Gothams of America.

It is not the case that we are suddenly living in a puritanical age where these revelations do not make moral sense. It is the case that if someone keeps yelling about a fire in your home you'll come to believe him even if the only proof he has is the pilot light on your stove.

It is not the purpose of this editorial to ridicule or slight those real discoveries of questionable behavior by certain individuals or organizations such as the drug tests of the CIA. It is however important for us, the men and women who will make the decisions of tomorrow, to realize that manipulation is not something that necessarily begins with "Good morning, Mr. Phelps". The close examination of statements that are offered to us as truths is warranted if we are to make our judgments as intelligent human beings.

It sounds corny and melodramatic when you say things like "decision makers of tomorrow" or "examining truths" but the reminder is worth it. The college experience is more than the accumulation of random bits of information or the award of a diploma. It is an exercise to develop the skill to think for ourselves. And there are too damned many people in the world now who are asking to do it for us.

LETTERS

Dear Editor,

I would like to pose a question to the University. How is changing free parking to pay parking going to help beautify the campus?

It seems to me that buying a permit to park on a lot that is made of nothing but gravel with inlaid beer bottles, trash paper, and other assorted pieces of trash (including partially exposed concrete abutments) is like renting a home that is decorated in early junk.

Now don't misunderstand what I am trying to say. Permit parking is necessary and good in most respects. But when you pay for a permit you expect some return for your money such as a thin layer of pavement, lined parking slots complete with bumpers, illumination of the area, and some semblance of security precautions. Changing the color of a sign doesn't do a hell of a lot to beautify anything.

It appears that some university officials are all out for the university rather than having all parties concerned in mind. I think it is time for the higher-ups to step down and communicate with the students (and others) about their needs at IUPUI. With all the things that this university has going for it, it would be a shame to let common greed affect the relationship between the students and the administration.

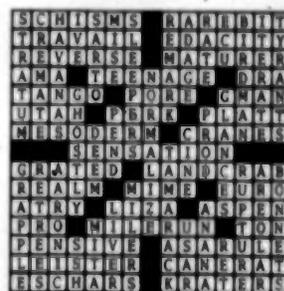

John Dobran

An open letter TO ALL STUDENTS, FACULTY, & STAFF:

It has been brought to my attention that many people feel the present condition of the parking lots and parking policy in general is somewhat questionable. I will be in the S.A. office (001-C Cavanaugh Hall) on Friday, September 12, 1975 from 10:00 a.m. till noon to get any input from students, faculty and staff regarding these matters.

Sincerely,
Jack Davis

The Younger Generation at IUPUI

Day Care, What's happening?

by J. C. Starker

There were a number of questions rumbling around in my mind when I started the interview with Ms. Kathy Gogola, Director of the IUPUI Day Care Center. For instance: What kind of program could be set up for children who were scheduled for two or three hours per week; How many helpers were needed to supervise the activities; Who were the helpers; Why did the children have to be at least two and potty trained; What kind of facilities were available for this kind of program; and, the age-old IUPUI question of "Where could I park if I brought my children to this building?"

First of all, Ms. Gogola is an engaging person, easy to talk with and confident in her abilities to deal effectively with our younger generation. She has had two and a half years experience working with preschool age children and has a teacher's license. She graduated from Purdue University with a BS degree in Speech Therapy.

We sat down at one of the child-sized tables and began discussing the program while trying to adjust our legs to a shorter position in life.

Ms. Gogola stated that there are now two rooms available for the Day Care Program at Public School No. 4 and that only twenty-five children may be scheduled for either of the rooms during any hour period. At the present time there are approximately forty-five children enrolled (the flyer lists a capacity of 75) and all these do not attend during the same period. The rooms are airy and lined with shelves which house a multitude of play things, including paper bricks, dolls, blocks, balls, tea sets, and games. I also noted a tricycle, two, wild rocking steeds, ironing board with iron, a knee-high kitchen, and a large selection of children's books.

When asked what kind of program had been set up for the children, Ms. Gogola said that the schedule was flexible although most of the children are now scheduled for the morning session or afternoon session. The program has use of the indoor gym at the school and there is an outdoor play area. Ms. Gogola told me that many of the activities, such as painting, are scheduled so that a child who attends for three hours on Friday will be able to express himself-herself in this manner. Program activities range from arts & crafts to coordination control. In addition, math and reading readiness have been scheduled for the older children. Ms. Gogola stated that the program has dealt with quite a number of science projects including planting seeds in the spring and discovering the wonders of a cocoon.

"The children seem to be interested in projects concerning the air and water," Ms. Gogola said. She also mentioned that the staff tries to select times when the majority of children are scheduled for day care to work on their major projects.

A snack of graham crackers or cinnamon crisps is served during the morning session, but there are no drinks available. "We do have water," Ms. Gogola explained with a smile. Parents are asked to send a sack lunch if their child will be present during the lunch period. At this time there are no facilities for preparing food on the premises, but there is a refrigerator. Parents may send milk or juice in a thermos.

At present there is a staff of six helpers who are participating in the center as part of the IUPUI Work-Study program. Two of the helpers are nursing students, three are in education, and one is majoring in psychology. Dr. Mannon supervises the Day Care Center, and Mr. Mike Wagoner, Director of Student Activities, assists.

When asked about accepting children under two, Ms. Gogola answered that state regulations require a day care program provide baby beds with protective bars and also adequate washroom facilities for changing diapers, etc. This would mean one of the rooms now occupied would have to be used to meet the regulations.

"I would like to see us have the facilities to do this," Ms. Gogola said, "and maybe someday that will happen, but right now it is not feasible."

Ms. Gogola stated that she would be happy to talk with parents concerning further rules and regulations and would pass out a sheet with the items listed.

I later contacted Mr. Mike Wagoner in regard to the matter of paying fees in advance for child care. He stated that this system had proven to be most effective in planning for activities at the center.

"There is less likelihood of children not showing up for the program. In this manner we know how many children to plan for and how many more we can accommodate."

Cost of child care is 50 cents per hour you agree to use the service, payable by the month in advance.

Ms. Gogola said there are no plans at this time to keep the day care open for evening classes. Doing so would encompass many new problems and at the present the program is involved with the day schedule. The center is open from 7:45 to 3:45 Monday through Friday.

Last year there were a few complaints because the entrance into the building was locked when parents brought their children to the center. This year there will be a buzzer at the north door entrance which will be connected to the day care rooms.

In this reporter's opinion, the IUPUI Day Care Program appears to present an interesting and informative schedule for the younger generation. The activities are varied, the atmosphere is casual without being lax, the staff members are progressive, motivated workers and the facilities are adequate. I support the program without hesitation, and recommend its use for children of IUPUI students.

At the close of my interview with Ms. Gogola, I uncramped my legs and asked the final question. "Is there someplace to park near here?" It was at that moment I discovered there were parking facilities by the building and I had walked the three blocks from Cavanaugh for nothing but the exercise.

Oh, to be a child again with muscles that are used regularly.

There will be an organizational meeting for all men interested in participating on the IUPUI wrestling team on Wednesday, September 10 at 4:30 at the School of Physical Education, 1010 W. 64th Street.

Dr. George Belshaw, wrestling coach, asked that anyone unable to attend the meeting should contact him through the IUPUI Athletic Office at 264-3764.

The team has a much improved schedule over last year and includes matches against Notre Dame, Indiana Central, and the Purdue Lafayette Reserve Team.

PHOTO CLUB HAS 2nd MEETING

The I.U.P.U.I. photo club will hold its second meeting of the 1975-76 school year on Tuesday, September 9th at 4 o'clock p.m. on the mezzanine of the Student Union building.

This will be the club's second call out meeting, held for the convenience of downtown campus members. Meeting times and location, election of officers, club policy and procedure for access to club facilities will be discussed.

LOST BOOKS IN BOOKSTORE

J. Meyers of the IUPUI Cavanaugh Hall Book Store has indicated that some students have left books lying on the tables at the store entrances. Currently there are several unclaimed books which have been forgotten, misplaced or lost there. If you have lost a book, see Mr. Meyers. You may have left it in the bookstore.

Vending at IUPUI

Two examples of the congested traffic that is common during the 5 p.m. rush to get to classes. Everyone knows that urban universities have special problems but this is ridiculous.

Ed. Note: On August 15, the vending contract for IUPUI was awarded to Modern Vending Co., Inc. replacing Calderon Bros. Vending, Inc. as IUPUI's vendor. Questions by the students, faculty, and staff have prompted us to investigate the business of vending at IUPUI in order to ascertain answers to these questions and clarify some long standing misconceptions about vending at IUPUI.

by Don Curtis

More than $784,000 was spent last year on vended products at IUPUI. Vending industry spokesmen have stated that, to the best of their knowledge and in terms of gross sales, the IUPUI vending business is the largest single-vendor automated vending machine operation in Indianapolis and possibly the largest in Indiana.

Mr. Elliott Nelson, President of Modern Vending Co., in an August 13 interview, stated, "The providing of high quality merchandise at the lowest possible price, while paying a fair commission to the customer and maintaining excellent machine location service, form the prerequisites of any successful vendor."

In view of Mr. Nelson's statement, this article will review and analyze the manner in which IUPUI awarded a five year vending contract to Modern Vending Co. on August 15, 1975.

VENDOR EVALUATION

Completed bids were received from five vendors. Mr. Robert Neel, IUPUI purchasing agent, Mr. Arthur Lautzenheiser, IUPUI business manager, and Mr. R. M. Priest, IU director of purchases and stores, reviewed the bids. According to Mr. Neel, the bids submitted by Modern Vending and by Calderon Brothers were considered to be the first and second best bids respectively. In order to compare the two companies' service and maintenance capabilities, visits were made to their business locations. Mr. Priest viewed Calderon's facilities and Mr. Neel accompanied by Mr. Lautzenheiser toured Modern's warehouse and offices. Later, they compared their observations. According to Mr. Neel, none of the three inspected both businesses.

I asked Mr. Neel if he believed that a valid site inspection could be made, in the absence of a standard evaluation form, without personal visits to both locations. He replied that he thought so because he respected the judgment and experience of Mr. Priest in such matters.

During the visit to Modern's offices, Mr. Neel and Mr. Lautzenheiser compared samples of both companies' sandwiches, which, according to Mr. Neel were made available for their inspection by Mr. Nelson. I questioned the appropriateness of allowing Mr. Nelson to supply his competitor's food. Mr. Neel replied that if he had had any doubt of Mr. Nelson's honesty, he would have purchased sandwiches from Calderon's machines on campus, but he did not find that necessary.

I questioned Mr. Neel further on this means of food comparison. He reported that while none were actually tasted, the plastic-wrapped sandwiches of both companies were viewed simultaneously. He added, Modern's appeared to be larger.

I wondered at this point if food quality could accurately be determined by comparing the size of items. I asked if a standard size sandwich had been specified by the university; if a comparative ratio of beef to fat in ground beef patties had been analyzed; if a comparison of the amount of bread to meat and-or sandwich spread had been considered. In answer to my questions, Mr. Neel replied that the university saw no need to become that specific in the bid specifications and suggested that such questions created more problems than they helped.

Yes, Martha

We do have a Student Association

by Senator Steve Vinson
When the IU and PU extension joined to form IUPUI in 1900, university administrators were faced with the problem of combining the separate student organizations into one. Just as the Sagamore was formed from the two previous student newspapers, so was the IUPUI Student Association formed.

The Student Association has been patterned after its U.S. governmental counterpart. First, just as the U.S. Congress produces legislation of relevance (?) to the citizens of the United States, the Student Senate reviews the problems and needs of students and takes legislative action to resolve these problems and fill these needs. The Senate is made up of thirty Senate seats: Fifteen at large and fifteen divisional seats. The at large Senate seats represent the whole student body, and the divisional seats represent each school. Each spring these Senators are elected by the constituents. The Speaker of the Senate is the Vice-President of the student body, currently Jack Davis.

Next, the Executive Council of the Student Association implements legislation passed by the Student Senate, appoints students to fill vacant Senate seats, and acts as a liaison between the student body and the administration. This branch of the SA is headed by the student body president, currently Hal Smith. Finally, the Student Court is responsible for conducting student elections and for interpreting the SA Constitution. It is the hope of the Student Association that the court may someday hear student grievances and appeals. The chief justice of the court is currently Edith Cheeseborough.

The Student Association has two offices where it stores its bureaucratic paperwork. The central office is located in the University Quarter, CA 001C in the basement. The phone number is 264-3907. At 38th Street the office is in the Student Service Suite, room KB 60, phone 923-1321, Ext. 208. The Central Office is manned from 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. with people willing to listen to students with grievances or problems. Messages may be left at the 38th Street office when Senators are not present.

Though the Student Association is by no means perfect (for example, last year it established a Food Co-op which offered tremendous negative savings to its users), it has accomplished some amazing feats. Last year, the SA opened a day-care child center for IUPUI students. Recently, in conjunction with the Handicapped Student Board, it has obtained a special parking sticker for handicapped students at the regular student semester rate.

Currently, the student association is sponsoring the following projects, events, and services:

- 1) The Urban Conference
- 2) Women's Day
- 3) The Afro-American Conference
- 4) Handicapped Awareness Day
- 5) The Student Leadership Workshop
- 6) Honors Day
- 7) The Coffee and Doughnut Service at Cavanaugh Hall (most likely to be resumed in the near future)
- 8) The Monthly Student Organization Leaders Teas
- 9) The Day-Child Center
- 10) Student Surveys in the month of November and April
- 11) The Book Exchange (Co-op) - with Alpha Phi Omega Fraternity

In addition, the Student Association holds regular meetings with Vice-President Irwin and is a member of and gives support to the Indiana Student Association which lobbies the Indiana Legislature, on student's behalf.

This year, the Student Association will work toward the following goals:

- 1) A Student Tenant Handbook
- 2) Extension of the Day-Care Child Services
- 3) A Student Legal Aid Service
- 4) More student input to decision making processes at IUPUI
- 5) Formulation with Metro of express bus routes linking the IUPUI campuses to the Indianapolis community

Look for these and other SA sponsored services.

By the way, the Student Association Motto for this year is, 'Your Student Association Wants To Help.' We really do.

Mobius Repertory Company at the Showcase Theatre

by Martin D. Rynard

This play is definitely not the average run-of-the-mill type play that is often viewed in Indianapolis. This play does not contain all the elements of a well written drama. This play is not even performed well. In spite of all this negative comment, this play is the zaniest play I have ever seen performed on a Hoosier stage.

"You're being watched" takes place in a Psychiatrists office. The play begins somewhat like "Marat Sade", but after the beginning the similarity stops. The play is so mad that at times you wonder if you are not the one who is crazy. At times you begin to wonder who is audience and who is cast. People jump out of their seats and fight with the cast on stage.

The play moves very fast but, I feel, it could be improved by the use of more discipline on the part of the cast and director. I realize that "You're Being Watched" is probably never performed the same way twice, but many of the actors showed very little control over their characters and where the play was going.

The use of "obscene" language (whatever that is) does not seem natural to the actors. In fact, I found the language distracting from the play. Not that the language offended me, but the language often upstaged the content of the scene.

Should you see this play? I'm not sure. If you offend easily—don't see it. If you offend moderately—see it, but expect to be offended. If you don't offend easily—see it. If you're a little crazy yourself—you'll love it.

Although "You're Being Watched" will probably be over when you read this, "Ceremonies" will be playing at the Showcase. "Ceremonies" was reviewed last week and I found it to be a very enjoyable evening. "Ceremonies" contains a number of one-acts and scenes which vary in content. Everything from comedy to tragedy is performed. See it—

Two blank spaces appeared at the right of each item in which the bidder was required to supply, first, the commission percentage, and second, the vending price.

The diverse manner in which this form was completed by the vendors and evaluated by the university suggests several problems for a fair and accurate appraisal.

The Sagamore is not suggesting that the university did not select the highest bid on the basis of commission, but will point out apparent incongruencies and ambiguities in the relationship of commissions to vend prices with a comparison of several items on the two highest bids.

The manner in which commission to the university is figured can be explained by the following example: a 10 per cent commission on an item vended at 30 cents yields the university 3 cents per item. It should be noted, however, that a 10 per cent commission on a 35 cent item yields the university 3.5 cents per item. Therefore, the university makes more money on a higher priced item, but the consumers (you and I) have to come up with that extra nickel.

The value of commission-price becomes more difficult to determine when neither is identical. It is with this relationship that the bids appear to become distorted. On item 'f', in the above list, Modern's bid includes a fourth item, snacks, listed at an 18 per cent commission at a selling price of 20 cents, yielding 3.6 cents per item to the university. Calderon brothers included snacks in a separate line item at a selling price of 15 cents at a 15 per cent commission, yielding 2.23 cents per sale to IUPUI, but saving the consumer 5 cents per purchase.

The 1.37 cent difference in commissions subtracted from the 5 cent price increase yields a 3.63 cent additional profit to Modern.

This profit advantage from higher prices on similar items is either reflected in higher commission offerings on same price items or deposited in Modern's bank account.

Similar disparities appear in item 'h', ice cream novelties. Calderon offered 15 cent ice cream at a 15 cent commission. Modern bid 15-20 cent ice cream at an 18 per cent commission, however, every machine at IUPUI on August 21, offered 20 cent items exclusively.

The same price inspection revealed that although Modern's pastry bid was 18 per cent on 25-30 cent items, only 30 cent offerings were available. Calderon's pastry was bid at 25 cents with a 15 per cent commission.

Item 'j' introduces an additional facet of complexity to the bid comparisons. This item includes sandwiches, canned foods, salads, and desserts. Modern quoted a 6 per cent commission on items ranging from 35 cents-75 cents. Calderon's bid was for a 3 per cent commission on items priced from 25-70 cents.

The price check taken on August 21 revealed that for seventeen identical types of sandwiches and food items, Modern's offerings were 5-15 cents higher per item than the prices of Calderon's food items vended at IUPUI on August 12, when Calderon's machines remained in service. The average price increase for the seventeen items was 7.5 cents.

There is a new group being formed on campus this year. This is a special group, open to special people with certain qualifications. First, one must be a female; and an attractive one. Second, one must be willing to accept responsibility. Finally, any female interested, must be interested in basketball, and in playing a major role in the success of our IUPUI Metros.

The duties of the Metroettes, as they are called, are wide and varied. A select group of them will be needed to dance at half-time, under the guidance of a choreographer. Other girls will be needed to distribute the warm-up suits and to assist players in pre-game practice.

Metroettes will be used in publicity, and in relaying statistics to the press. Some girls will sell programs or become usherettes. Metroettes will be used as hostesses also. Area businessmen who support our Metros, will also be using the girls for various activities.

Tryouts will be held, for all the campus lovelies on October 13 at 7:00 p.m. If you feel you qualify, call 264-3764 for more information. You must sign up before Oct. 13.

Too many members of this study body complain that there are not enough activities to keep their interest in the school.

Our athletic department is young, but growing. This department also has many opportunities for you to get up from the euvre tables and get involved in something more significant.

Presently, tryouts are scheduled for basketball, cheerleading, and Metroettes. Call the Normal College (264-3764) and ask about intramurals. This year eleven intramurals are offered.

Likewise, support will be needed in attending our various sporting events. Season tickets are now on sale for the Metros basketball team. For you penny-pinchers, attending any of the eight soccer games is absolutely free.

In order to become a "big-league" university, IUPUI must have your support. The Sagamore will keep you posted on tryout dates and game schedules. Buy your season tickets, get your intramural teams together, tryout at every opportunity, be active now.

Coach Kirby Overman has announced that tryouts for the IUPUI Metros will begin October 15. Those who plan to try out are required to phone 264-3764, and leave their names and other various information with the secretary. Also, team hopefuls need to pick up a physician's examination form at the Normal College (1010 W. 64th St.) and have it completed before tryouts.

Those who are interested will be pleased to know that the Normal College will open its gym doors for anyone desiring to work out and get in shape on Tuesday, September 2nd. Doors will open at 4:30 and close promptly at 7:00. Workout sessions will continue Monday through Friday for the remainder of September.

This practice is open to anyone enrolled at IUPUI. Coach Overman has planned running and weight-lifting for the program. This is not an official practice, but a conditioning program for anyone yearning the exercise.

"The NCAA rules prohibit practice until October 15. At that time, our tryouts will begin. There will be no cuts for the first three days, so any walk-in has a good chance," stated Coach Overman.

For expert calculations, count on these Texas Instruments

Scientific calculators especially for you—engineering students—anyone! with the need of a machine with the expertise to solve the most complex problems. All lightweight portables. All with AC adapter/charger.

The New SR51A 149.95

It's programmed for engineering conversions! The full-function scientific calculator you've been waiting for—

- Performs all the classical slide-rule functions plus linear regression, mean, variance and standard deviation
- Features algebraic keyboard with dual function keys that increase the power without increasing the size
- Has bright 14-character display—display provides overflow, underflow, error indications
- Three user accessible memories permit storage, recall, sum, product operation
- Plus many, many more features which are new and unique to this machine

(Not Shown) The SR50A, 99.95 A pride of Texas Instruments provides all the classical slide rule functions—simple arithmetic, reciprocals, factorials, exponentiation, roots, trigonometrics and logarithmic functions, all in free floating decimal point or scientific notation. 14-Character display

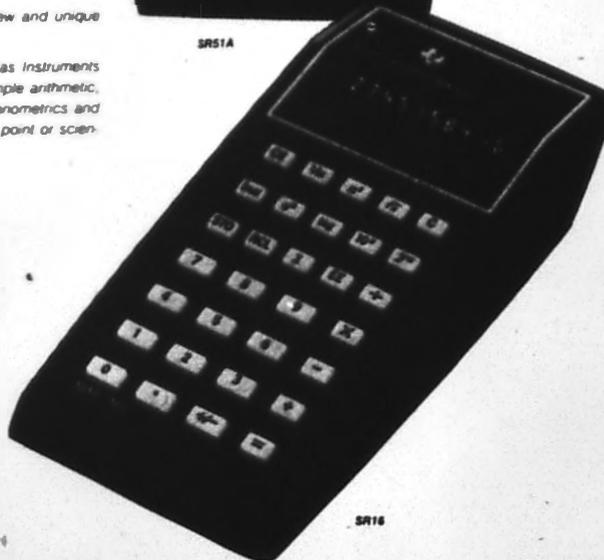

The SR16 69.95

A multi-function scientific slide-rule calculator—

- Solves simple arithmetic as well as complex technical problems
- Includes keys for expanded, calculating capabilities
- Displays numbers in full floating decimal point or scientific notation
- And much, much more! For so economical a price!

A weekly listing of important calendar items and notices of interest to the university community. Please submit items to the IUPUI Information Services Office, 136 Administration Bldg., by 5 p.m. each Monday. Phone 264-2161. The space is paid for by IUPUI.

PRES. HANSEN OF PURDUE SPEAKS HERE

President Arthur Hansen of Purdue will make a rare speaking appearance at IUPUI on Sept. 29 at the regular meeting of the Faculty Club.

The Faculty Club is an organization of faculty and staff members who gather for lunch periodically during the year to discuss topics of special interest.

This month's meeting is in the Metro Roof Lounge of the Union Building, with tickets at $3.50 for non-club members, through Dr. Marvin Ebbert in the Administration Building.

JOB OUTLOOK IMPROVES FOR BUSINESS GRADS

Keep your fingers crossed, business school graduates and those soon to be, but things are looking up for jobs in the months ahead.

That's the cautiously optimistic word from J. Douglas Snider, director of business placement for the IU School of Business.

"After last spring, of course, anything looks good. It was a bleak period. Then the demand for graduates was down about 25 per cent. A fifth of the companies were canceling their recruiting efforts. Those who did come to the campus had only a fraction of the quotas they normally had. The number of companies listing jobs was down by 22 percent, and the volume of job listings had shrunk by 14 percent.

"A last-minute surge triggered by more favorable business economics data helped pry some job offers loose, but even these came too late in most cases to help I.U. candidates who were graduated May 11, too early to get their offers before returning home to face the music for coming home empty-handed!"

But Snider says things are looking better.

"Businessmen are becoming increasingly optimistic which is the biggest factor going for the graduates. Improvements in employment will be gradual—up about 5 percent this fall and perhaps 10 percent in the spring, if all goes well.

"Starting salaries will be up, too. What else, with everything else going up? Demand vs. supply won't be the controlling factor, however. If it were, the price would go down. Cost of living and union contracts will govern.

"More women will be available and hired. Minorities continue to be scarce and sought after, at premium rates.

"My advice to job hunters? Hang in there!"

SEARCH IS ON FOR THE TOP YOUNG SCIENTISTS IN STATE AND NATION

If you have family or friends who qualify, you may put them into contact with the Indiana Science Talent Search which is now going on for the 29th year.

HERRON ADDS MA-ED DEGREE

A new master of art education program has been added to the Herron School of Art and students who wish to investigate the program are invited.

The program will have a heavy concentration of studio experiences for teachers, according to the announcement.

Each applicant must have 40 credits in art, a portfolio of work, and letters of recommendation.

LILLY FUND BACKS WORLD ED. CENTER

The Mid-America Center for Global Perspectives in Education is being established in Bloomington under a $600,000 grant from the Lilly Endowment of Indianapolis.

The center will provide information and coordination "to pull together the resources and talents in global education." It will utilize the efforts and knowledge of school programs, university citizens, exchange students, churches, media, world affairs groups to assist pre-collegiate educators and students. The center will serve Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Ohio and Kentucky.

A major purpose of the centers is to help individuals understand and influence the forces that shape their lives, to help individuals relate to international, political, economic and social issues which affect them.

BILLBOARD IS FOR YOU

Items on this page are collected, edited and written by the IUPUI Information Services Office. The material is that which may not appear otherwise in the Sagamore but is of general interest to the students and staff of IUPUI.

Among the regular features of this page is a weekly calendar of meetings, events, etc. for the coming week, and a listing of recruiting visits to the campus by firms and organizations seeking IUPUI students as employees. The recruiting calendar begins in September.

You are invited to submit items for use on this weekly page in the Sagamore, which is paid for by the university. Submit items, in writing, to the IUPUI Info Services-Publications Office, Administration Building, 355 N. Lansing St. Or call 264-2101.

The Indiana Academy of Science is looking for high school juniors or seniors in all science areas who are preferably conducting individual research.

The talent search is being directed by Walter Cory, 103 Morrison Hall, IU-Bloomington. The finalists and their sponsoring teachers will be on display at IUPUI on March 12-13 next year, and the top winners will be honored at a luncheon.

Students may obtain a copy of the guidelines and entry forms from the Bloomington office.

In addition to the Indiana competition, there is a national science talent search which is a separate event. Entry forms for the national are obtainable from Ms. Dorothy Schriver, Director, National Science Talent Search, 1719 N Street, NW, Washington D.C., 20036.

Application deadlines for both competitions is Dec. 15.

IUPUI ARCHIVES IS A NEW CAMPUS OFFICE

The university has established a full-time archives office, and all students and staff are encouraged to use the facility.

Don't throw anything away before you check with the archives, is the advice given by Mrs. Jeannette Matthew, archivist. Mrs. Matthew has been at the university for many years, having worked at the old Downtown Campus.

The archives, located in the Blake Street Library, is committed to collecting, preserving, indexing and making available a wide range of material about IUPUI, the old IU and old Purdue operations in Indianapolis.

If you have something of a historical value, you are invited to call the Archives, 264-8278, before throwing it away. The Archives also wants copies of everything produced by the university or any club, organization or unit. Memos, letters, papers, minutes, etc., fall into that category.

CALENDAR OFFICE ORGANIZED

A single University Calendar Office has been established, to be headed by Dr. J. Marvin Ebbert in the Administration Building.

His office is charged with maintaining a record of events scheduled throughout IUPUI so that people who are planning events can find out what other events are scheduled in order to avoid conflicts.

He is preparing forms which will be used in providing a uniformity of information. He can be reached at 264-7442.

Out there, somewhere, are plenty of strong, athletically inclined persons allowing their muscles to waste into soft flab. Have you always wanted to compete in sports, but too many people tried out for the team? Coach Jeff Vessely wants you to call this number, 264-3764.

Intercollegiate Soccer begins in September. There are positions open and good strong men are needed to play.

Last year the team finished 6-1. The team is hoping to do even better this year.

Spectators are invited to attend and will be welcome. All home games are played at the School of Physical Education, 1010 W. 64th St. Just park in the lot and walk to the rear, by the pond.
