Where are all the radicals?

by Bruce D. Barnett

Where have all the radicals gone?

In the 60s and early 70s, college campuses were filled with students who wanted a change. They worked for this change in somewhat odd ways at times, but they worked.

On the college campuses of today, students seem to be somewhat dormant. Could it be that all the necessary changes have occurred in our society? Are we as the educated people of the nation totally happy with the world around us?

I'm not advocating that we charge the administration building and have a sit-down protest. In the first place, most of us don't even know where the building is.

What we need is a constructive movement to let the nation know what we perceive to be the problems and put forth possible solutions to these problems.

The environment, nuclear energy, arms build-up and caring for the needy are just a few examples of the types of problems we face today and will in our future. We are caught up in the dull routine of attending classes and going to parties, not even worrying about tomorrow and what it will bring. Among us we have the resources to solve many problems of the nation, or at least get a good start on them.

College students in the 80's are too busy trying not to cause problems. I would hope that it would not take a war to get the college students of this nation fired up as in the 60s.

We do not live in a perfect world and should be doing as much as possible to let people know how we feel and what changes we would like to see. Elections are not the only way to make changes in the policies which effect our lives.

Protest today for a better tomorrow.

Debate team wins numerous awards

by Bruce D. Barnett

During a recent tourney held at Rose-Hulman on Nov. 7, the IUPUI Debate Team continued their winning ways by capturing the top three trophies. The top awards included the Best Unit, Best Negative Team and Best Affirmative Team.

The undefeated novice affirmative team members are Cassandra Hughes and Keith Owens. The negative team is made up of Gael Richardson and Bill Bankston.

In addition to the team trophies, all four members placed in the top eight among the speakers: Keith Owens, second place; Cassandra Hughes, fifth place; Gael Richardson, seventh place; and Bill Bankston, eighth place.

On Oct. 17, IUPUI held a tournament, starting the new season for the debaters. At this tourney the team won several trophies and speaker awards including First Unit trophy, won by Cassandra Hughes, Keith Owens, Cliff Courtney and Bill Bankston.

First Negative Team trophy was awarded to Cliff Courtney and Bill Bankston. In addition to these team trophies, several members won speaker awards. These included Cliff Courtney, first place; Keith Owens, second place; Bill Bankston, fifth place; Gael Richardson, sixth place; and Bill Bush, eleventh place.

Dr. David Burns, advisor to the team, considered these results quite excellent since most of the team members are competing in their first season of debate. So far this season, the team has managed to win two First Unit trophies, two Negative Team trophies, one Affirmative Team trophy and eight Speaker Awards.

The next chance the team has to show their debating talents will come at Otterbein College in Ohio, where they will compete in junior varsity and novice debates.

Speech finalists named

Speech Night semi-finals were held Monday evening and seven students were selected from a group of 35 to participate in Speech Night Finals, to be held Monday, Nov. 23, in Lecture Hall Room 101.

The seven C110 students who will be speaking in the finals are: Randal E. Curnutt, Richard D. DeHerdt, Denise Hayden, Edward L. Schwab, Matthew J. Simpson, John M. Thackston and Bob R. Tilley.

Jump scholarships awarded

Eight law students have been named recipients of Forrest E. Jump scholarships. The fellowships were established by the will of Frieda E. Jump, Kokomo, in honor of her late husband, former Howard Circuit Court Judge Forrest E. Jump. In her will she designated that $500,000 be used to establish the scholarship fund. Only earnings from that money are used for the scholarships. The first-year law students will receive $3,000 each.

Indianapolis Law School

recipients are: Richard W. Fields, Columbus; Mark R. Galliher, Muncie; Brian C. Hewitt, Indianapolis; Steven K. Huffer, Indianapolis; Mary T. Irwin, Belleville, Ill.; Alan K. Mills, Kokomo; James O. Perrin, Evansville; and William M. Thompson, Brook.

Observations

Racks not rest areas

Surely all students at IUPUI have, at one time or another, observed the maintenance personnel working diligently at their jobs. Because they're here, our campus is kept clean inside and out.

Their job, though, does not include having a leisurely break in the comfort of a Sagamore newspaper rack.

This event apparently has occurred several times. The latest incident, as far as we know, was a couple of weeks ago when the photo above was taken.

Let it be known that we don't like seeing our hard work being used to comfort anyone's backside, especially when the newspaper is still on the rack.

Those racks are the property of the Sagamore and not the university. If one of them is broken, we have to pay to replace it unless we catch the person responsible.

The Sagamore would greatly appreciate any consideration the maintenance personnel could express to us. Thank you.

Registration needs reform

Dear Editor:

Last week I again went through the agonizing registration process. I waited in line for an hour and a half, with the line being the entire square parameter of Cavanaugh Hall.

As in any large line, it's terribly frustrating to see students cutting-in after waiting that long a period of time.

I have never been able to understand, due to the enormous enrollment at IUPUI, why they have not gone to a mail-in or computerized registration system. Both preregistration and regular registration is a dreaded and painful process for students and those working to get us registered. It is ridiculous to have to go through the present system!!!

Has any consideration been given to developing a better system? If not, why not?

Time waits for no man

Regarding the letter from Chris Buiting with his suggestion on setting the campus clocks back 10 minutes, does that person think that employers will do the same so that they can get to work on time? Nonsense.

P.W.

Solution to problem offered by Dean

To "Computer Crazed:"

When you have a problem with an instructor, IUPUI has a system for dealing with it which is more effective than an anonymous letter to the Editor of the Sagamore.

1. Discuss the problem with the instructor. The faculty member may be unaware of poor classroom delivery or unclear assignments, for example, and willing to make necessary changes when the need is indicated by a student.

2. If the matter cannot be resolved with the instructor, it should be taken to the Chairperson of the Department offering the course. That individual is responsible for the education delivered by that Department and cannot personally monitor every instructor. He (she) therefore values student reports. Department Chairpersons usually take these complaints very seriously. I have known instances in which a poor lecturer was assigned to work with other faculty to improve his/her performance, classes have had visits from the Chairperson to evaluate complaints and an inadequate lecturer was replaced.

3. If the Chairperson does not respond in a manner which you feel to be thorough and fair, you may appeal to the Academic Dean of the School which offers the course.

4. If none of the above interviews secures what you consider to be appropriate action, you have the right to appeal to Edward C. Moore, Dean of the Faculties, who is very responsive to student opinion.

You indicated that you "have gone to the dean once and received a royal brush off." Since I am the Academic Dean of the School of Science and have never heard your complaints until I read them in the Sagamore, I disagree with your allegation. Moreover, no student ever receives a brush off of any kind in my office. If you continue to feel unfairly treated, I invite you to make an appointment to see me.

Tutor training

Any student who desires to tutor should take advantage of a new course being offered this spring semester.

Education U495 is a seminar in leadership development, focusing on training students to be effective tutors.

It is a one-credit course and requires the permission of the instructor.

For further information, contact Norman Merkler, Cavanaugh Hall 306, 264-3986.

Speak out against hunger

The Metropolitan Indianapolis Campus Ministry will sponsor a letter-writing campaign against world hunger Nov. 23, and 24, in the basement of Cavanaugh Hall. Everyone is asked to donate only their time to send post cards to senators and congressmen regarding the current policies on world hunger. Post cards, addresses, and suggested messages will be available at the table 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Accounting Club

The IUPUI Accounting Club elected new officers, as follows: Lois Thomas, president; Ginny Kirshchner, first vice-president; Thomas Browne, second vice-president; James Walker, treasurer; and Veronica Sanders, secretary.

The next meeting will be held Nov. 18, at 4 p.m. in room 3005 of the Business/SPEA Bldg. The scheduled speaker is Bob Engle of Coopers & Hybrand. All interested people are welcome.

Feliz Navidad

Feliz Navidad Fiesta will be Dec. 4, 8 p.m. at 311 N. New Jersey. Activities to take place will be: a pitch-in dinner, slide show (Fiesta '81, Latin American countries), dancing and surprise gifts. All drinks will be 25 cents. Admission is $1.00. Call 264-7294 (Marta). The event is sponsored by Universitarios Hispanos.

Film, discussion offered

The Catholic Student Center will sponsor a program entitled "El Salvador: A Christian Response," Dec. 1, at 7:30 p.m. at the center, 1309 West Michigan, across from the Student Union. For more information, call the Catholic Student Center, 264-4987.

Interest rates panel

The Economics Club will sponsor a panel of financial economists on the subject of forecasting interest rates, Nov. 23, 3:30 p.m. in the Business/SPEA Bldg., room 3014.

Thanksgiving celebration

There will be a special "Thanksgiving Celebration" Nov. 25, 12:10-12:50 p.m. in the main lounge of Ball Residence. The speaker will be Rev. Waldo Savage, pastor of the First Congregational Church. The liturgist is Rev. James Stender, campus Lutheran pastor. The Metropolitan Indianapolis Campus Ministry is sponsoring the event.

Debaters needed

Dr. David Burns of the Communications/Theater Dept. and faculty advisor to The University Forum is looking for qualified undergraduate students of IUPUI to participate in Intercollegiate Debate Tournaments in the spring '82 competition. Interested students are urged to contact Dr. Burns at his office in the Cable Bldg., room 217.

PSU will meet this week

The next Progressive Student Union meeting will be held Nov. 19, at 7:45 p.m. in CA 227. Anyone may attend this meeting.

Baby co-op

A new student group, Babysitting Co-op, is interested in obtaining members for the group. Members would be required to babysit for others for the same number of hours they require sitting for their own children each week.

Interested students should contact Lynn Galovic, 299-5061.

Volunteer help needed

The Indianapolis area St. Vincent de Paul Society urgently needs students to assist in collecting and distributing clothing and household goods to the poor of the community. If you can help for a four-hour shift one Saturday every two months, call the Catholic Student Center, 264-4987.

Men ready to improve on first winning season

by Ann Miller

There is an optimistic, yet cautious, "wait and see" mood in the Metro camp for 1981-82, the year following the team's first-ever winning season. A few question marks still remain, but third-year coach Mel Garland maintains that "if normal progress and improvement are made, and the new people play up to their capabilities," he thinks his IUPUI Metros will improve over last year's mark, despite the tougher schedule.

Last season the Metro duckling finally turned into a swan, finishing 14-12, nearly making the NAIA District 21 playoffs. In addition, the squad placed two men on the district all-star team, graduate Mike Herr and Ron Angevine.

Garland has the basis for molding another possible contender, with three starters returning. The guard positions are solid and set. Angevine, the youngest player on last season's all-stars and the Metro's leading scorer (16ppg) returns for his junior year. His partner in the backcourt is senior Kim King (10.7ppg) who, sometime this season, should eclipse Julius Norman's point total to become IUPUI's top career scorer. To his coach, Angevine looks just as potent as ever, and King has made great strides in his defensive game. This is possibly the most experienced pair of guards in the district, and Garland is relying on their offensive punch to carry the team, at least at the beginning of the season.

The third returner is senior captain Reggie Butler, a fourth-year starter at center. The lanky (6-8, 180 pound) Chicagoan averaged almost 9 ppg and led the team in rebounding (142) while battling foul trouble all year. He will anchor the Metro's otherwise uncertain front line.

All three veterans will be looked to for leadership by the rest of the team. Warns Garland, "If we don't get the stability from our returning lettermen, it will give us problems that we don't want to have, especially early in the season."

"But the veterans are the least of my worries," states Garland. "We need to fit in the new people, and the people who don't have the experience from last year." Graduation robbed the team of only one full-year starter, Herr, but it depleted the middlemen depth — the 6th, 7th, and 8th men — so vital to the success of any squad.

Besides the loss via graduation of Herr, part-time starter Haywood Garrett, Joe Leonard and designated clock-killer Randy Wilkes, the team is missing Larry Joplin, currently scholastically ineligible, and Kevin Brauns and Terry Stephenson, who chose not to play basketball this year although both are still students at IUPUI. All this has left gaping holes in the lineup, particularly at forward.

But Garland has two new cards up his sleeve that may turn his three-veterans-of-a-kind into a full house. The first is a 6-4, 200-pounder by the name of Tony Hawkins. Hawkins, says the coach, is "the power forward we haven't had the last couple of years." A transfer with but one year of eligibility left, Hawkins can score, rebound, play defense, has great leaping ability, is unselfish, quick — well, the only thing Hawkins seems to be missing is a big red letter "S" on his chest. OK, he may not be that good, but he is extremely impressive.

According to Garland, the 6-5 McKay possesses excellent basketball skills and is the team's best passing forward. In practice last Thursday, the freshman proved to be the best passer on the team, period. For instance, on one scrimmage play, McKay, at the top of the key, spied Hawkins snaking his way along the baseline. A split-second later McKay deftly hit Hawkins in mid-twist beneath the basket for an easy lay-in.

As for his scoring abilities, McKay positions himself well inside and shows good shot selection. However, both Hawkins and McKay need some game experience. McKay, in particular, has yet to adjust to the rougher collegiate style of play on the boards. "I'm pleased with his progress," Garland remarks on McKay, "But I'll be even more pleased when I see an 'angry' look on his face..."

Besides these two men, the Metro mentor has three sophomore wingmen to call on who saw limited action last campaign: 6-3 Jay Jump, 6-5 Scott Boles, and Tim Overdorf, also 6-5. Garland singles out Overdorf as the Metros' most improved player. Since shedding twenty pounds over the summer, he is moving and jumping much better than last year. Boles has also shown improvement. Two new players, both sophomores, join the others in contention for a forward spot, 6-4 Keith Boyd (Indianapolis Northwest) and Beech Grove's Tom Egan, 6-3.

A month before school began, Garland had been concerned about his depth at guard. But late in the summer he picked up Chatard's Aaron and Daron Thompson, along with 6-2 Decatur, Illinois freshman Mark Morris and John Hankinson, a transfer from Lake Michigan Junior College. All have shown potential, but in different areas. The 6-1 Thompson twins are among the best defensive men on the team, while Hankinson, the smallest Metro at 5-9, and Morris have more developed offensive skills. Who plays depends on the game situation, and on who gives the best overall performance "under fire" in the early season.

Garland believes this year's edition of the Metros is quicker, and better defensively. Barring major difficulties in the early going, he anticipates no changes in his game plan. Offensively, he is sticking with a motion offense, with the inside men having no set positions. Once again, the Metros will be pressing their opponents with a trapping pressure defense.

Garland's biggest headache is the inexperienced front line and the questionable rebounding ability of his team. The Metros have been consistently out-rebounded in the past two years, although the cumulative gap between the team totals and their opponents' totals closed considerably in the last campaign. How well the Metros do this year depends on how aggressively they crash the boards, and how soon the new players can mature and fit in to Garland's scheme of things.

The IUPUI schedule leads off with a pair of games this weekend at Fort Wayne. On Friday night the Metros square off against IU-PU Fort Wayne. The Tusker's Rickie Smith cracked the list of top ten scorers in NCAA Division III in 1980-81, finishing with a 23.2 ppg average. IUPUI remains to play Purdue-Calumet on Saturday.

The home opener is Nov. 24th, at Market Square Arena versus defending district champion Hanover. Hanover, an NAIA quarter finalist, retains the services of Joe Brunk, who was named to the all-tournament second team at the NAIA Finals in Kansas City last March. After this 4:45 p.m. preliminary, the Indiana Pacers take on the New York Knicks at 7:30 pm. Over Thanksgiving break, the Metro squad hosts Cedarville at MSA on the 27th. The Pacer opponent that night will be the incomparable "Doctor", Julius Erving and the Philadelphia 76'ers.

Season tickets can be obtained by calling Metro Athletics 264-2725. Student season tickets are just $30.00, which includes first-come-first-served seating at Market Square Arena for all Metro games plus a $10.00 seat for the subsequent Pacer games. Price for faculty, staff, and other non-student tickets is $50.00.

Women hope for success with returning veterans

by Matt Shrum

With the wealth of talent returning this year, one could hardly blame IUPUI women's basketball coach Kathy Tucker for looking forward to the upcoming season.

Returners for the Metros include Judy Cummings, a 1979 Indiana All Star and the all-time leading scorer in the state for girls high school basketball. She also led the Metros and the state in scoring last year.

One of the Metros' newcomers is Sue Baas from Southport High School, an All Star teammate of Cummings. Both will be sophomores in eligibility.

Other returners for Coach Tucker are junior starting guards Chyrell Saunders and Barb Spears, juniors. Saunders is a 5-11 point guard out of North Central High School while Spears is a 5-8 shooting guard from Perry Meridian.

Incoming freshman at guard positions are Tracy Taylor, 5-5, from Terre Haute North and Kris Ewoldt, 5-4, from Speedway.

Veterans at the forward position for the Metros are Kim Galyan, sophomore, and Marty Kalb, junior. Both are 5-9 from Plainfield.

Lisa Baker, 5-8 freshman from Avon, and Nancy Plummer, 5-10 sophomore from Ben Davis, are the Metros top newcomers at forward.

Cummings, a 5-11 Brownsburg High School graduate, started at center for the Metros last year and averaged 25 ppg which led the state in women's college basketball.

Possibly the Metros top incoming freshman is Chris Nichols, 5-10, out of Marion Bennett. Nichols set school and conference records in scoring at Marion and was named first team all-state her senior year. Sheila Smith, a 5-10 freshman from Ben Davis, will also see action this year for the Metros at forward.

Karen Secor, a 5-2 guard from Avon, is the Metros' only senior. Secor was a part-time starter at guard last year for Coach Tucker.

The women will open their season Dec. 4 at Marian in the Indy Classic. IUPUI will play Marian in the first game while Butler, the defending state champions, will play Indiana Central University in the other first round game.

Butler and Indiana Central figure to be among the Metros top competition in the AIAW Division II championship.

After the Indy Classic, IUPUI will host IU-SE Dec. 8 at Pike High School. The Metros will then play their next six games on the road before returning home to face Taylor Jan. 21 at Pike. The following two days IUPUI will spend in Anderson for a tournament.

Coach Tucker lost just two players to graduation but they happened to be her starting forwards, Judy Pluckebaum and Tina Massengale. Baas figures to claim one of the starting positions while Galyan or Kalb could start at the other forward position.

Employment opportunities

The Higher Education Learning Preparation Program is currently recruiting possible tutors for summer and fall 1982. Applicants will be required to enroll in Education U495 during the spring semester. Interested students must have "B" or better in the subjects in which they desire to tutor, and have a cumulative grade point average of 2.5 or better in order to be considered.

Employment applications will be accepted at the H.E.L.P. Office, Cavanaugh Hall 306 after March 26th. For more information, contact Generosa Mendoza, 264-2666.

Speaker analyzes pro-life

Dr. Charles J. Stewart, Professor of Communication, Purdue University, will deliver the 9th Lecture in Communication sponsored by the IUPUI Department of Communication & Theatre. Nov. 23, at 3:15 p.m. in the Cable Building (SI 226). Dr. Stewart will trace the history of the Pro-Life movement, noting the principal themes, its allies and its opponents, and the rhetorical strategies used to gain the widest and most dedicated public support. An informal discussion will follow the formal lecture.

Season tickets available

Season basketball tickets are now on sale in the Union Bldg., mezzanine level. The price of the tickets is $30.00 for entrance to 13 games. Ten game tickets include Pacer tickets. Three games are at Indiana Central University. The first home game is scheduled for Nov. 24.

Philosophy Club

The IUPUI Philosophy Club will meet in the Faculty Lounge, 507 Cavanaugh Hall, at 8:30 p.m. Nov. 19. Professors Edmund Byrne, Donna Dial, and Stephen Sachs will read brief selections from their own poetry and will discuss the meaning of poetry in general.

Refreshments and conversation will follow. All are invited.

Film series schedule

Following last week's showings of Kurosawa's "The Seven Samurai," the IUPUI Film Series will present the American remake of that story, "The Magnificent Seven." It will be shown Thursday, Dec. 3, in the Union Building cafeteria at 8:15 p.m., and Friday, Dec. 4, in Lecture Hall 101 at 8:15 p.m. Admission is free. The series is sponsored by the Student Activity Fee Fund.

'Time Bandits' adventure in fantasy

by Roger K. Bechtel

A group of dwarfs that works in the Supreme Being's shrubs and trees department steals a map of the Universe and locates all the holes in time. By accident, they fall into the closet of a twelve year old boy and take him with them on their quest to steal the riches of the ages. Along the way they meet Napoleon, Robin Hood, King Agamemnon, an ogre sorely in need of a chiropractor, and a menacing Evil Genius.

If you're the kind of person who enjoys suspending disbelief for a couple of hours and traveling to a world of fantasy, you'll find "Time Bandits" fantastically entertaining.

Terry Gilliam, of "Monty Python" fame, is the director, collaborating with another member of the flying circus, Michael Palin, to write the screenplay. Their collective imaginations have created a film that takes a hilarious sloop through time, stealing a treasure-chest full of laughs.

"Time Bandits" is, of course, earmarked by the traditional "Monty Python" non sequitur humor. But unlike its predecessors ("Monty Python and the Holy Grail," "Jabberwock," and "The Life of Brian"), "Time Bandits" goes beyond a series of comic scenes which are only loosely connected. It is a first-rate adventure film, full of grand spectacle and breathtaking action. The young boy, Kevin, is a wonderful vehicle that allows the audience to step into the movie and be as suprised as he is when he finds out why Napoleon kept his hand in his coat, or what Robin Hood's operation was really like.

The film is British, and is filled with some of England's finest performers. The characters are outrageous, and it is obvious that the actors were having great fun. The result is some delightful performances. Among the more memorable are David Warner as the Evil Genius, Ian Holm as the paranoid Napoleon, Sean Connery as the regal King Agamemnon, and Ralph Richardson as the matter-of-fact Supreme Being. But the dwarfs steal the show as they team up to pillage the world by galloping through time.

"Time Bandits" may not be a movie for everyone. It has the unique flavor that only the creators of "Monty Python" can deliver. If you liked "Monty Python," you'll love "Time Bandits." If you didn't like "Monty Python," see "Time Bandits" anyway. This one may change your mind.

Rebirth sparked by dance troupe

by Larry Goldsberry

Conveying a thought, idea or emotion non-verbally is the forte of American modern dance.

Locally, a renaissance in modern has been sparked by the city's resident dance company called Dance Kaleidoscope. Nina Ryan, public relations assistant for Dance Kaleidoscope, says, "Indianapolis is fortunate to be the home of a repertory dance company as there are no more than two or three in the country."

A repertory dance company, as Ms. Ryan explains it, is very much like repertory theatre. Generally, such a company has only one choreographer. This position in the Indianapolis company is filled by Cherri Jaffee.

As in most endeavors in the arts, it is difficult to have variety and uniqueness while maintaining originality and an established level of quality.

In this regard, Ms. Jaffee, in her capacity as artistic director, has succeeded. Nevertheless, to prevent future dilution or staleness, she began a program which brings guest choreographers to Indianapolis to work with the company.

This month an inspiring New Yorker, Nina Wiener visited and directed the company in a new creation, "Experts from Keno Sabe," which will be performed in the troupe's June concert. The uniqueness of this particular piece is in its fast rhythms and body movements that conjure up visions of Western cliches.
