Fee hikes explained

by Paula L. Reynolds

The rate increase voted on by the Board of Trustees will cause all tuition fees to be higher for the fall semester, 1982. In order to help students prepare for the increased costs, the bursar’s office is taking early action to let all students know precisely what fall fees will be.

“We are concerned for the students. We want students to be aware of and prepared for the increases in fall tuition so that they can make plans over the summer. We don’t want people to be surprised,” Mr. Tom May, assistant bursar, explained.

 Increases in per-credit-hour course fees will affect all students. Resident undergraduate fees will be increased from $34.50 to $40.25 and resident graduate fees will be increased from $50 to $57.50. Non-resident undergraduate fees will be increased by $20.75 from $85 to $106.75 and non-resident graduate fees will go up $26.25; from $131.50 to 157.75.

May noted that the rates for graduate students are the same for both campuses (Bloomington and Indianapolis), however, undergraduate rates are slightly lower for IUPUI. Although fees may be slightly lower for IUPUI, the rate hike will make a larger dent in the pockets of IUPUI students.

“This will definitely make an impact,” May commented. “The amount and variety of financial aid may be cut back, and combined with the increases, this may cause some students a real financial squeeze. However, it is impossible to estimate how it will affect fall enrollment,” May added.

Fee increases are not limited to per-credit-hour costs. Lab and nursing clinical fees will cost $7, up from $5. Education students who previously paid $17 will now pay $19 for field experience. Also, practicum fees have been raised from $34 to $36. In addition to this, student teachers who previously paid $30 will now be charged $70 instead of $60.

Medical and dental students who pay a flat rate will also be charged more in the fall. Students under the medical program face a $500 increase for the academic year. Tuition has been raised from $2500 to $3000.

Non-resident students will be charged $7,200 instead of $6,900. Fees for the DDS program have increased by $1000 from $1800 to $2800 for the academic year. Non-resident rates have gone up from $4500 to $6000.

Another major change to occur this fall is that students auditing a class will pay the full rate rather than receiving a price break.

The Board of Trustees also ruled to raise the service charge for personal deferments. Personal deferments are a service offered by the bursar’s office at the time of registration. Currently there is a $5 service charge which will be increased to $10. The remainder of the policy will not be changed. Students wishing to make a personal deferment must pay 40% down plus the service charge, parking fees, activity fees and any other charge not related to courses.

Townhouses recent target

Campus residents suffer crimes

by Michael W. Meiring

While two children hid under a bed upstairs, an IUPUI student faced an unwanted intruder. Wielding a gun, a man demanded money and cigarettes — and then raped her.

According to IUPUI Police Chief John Mulvey, this is one of six incidents which has occurred since October of last year at the Graduate Student Townhouse complex, on the west side of the campus.

Only one of the incidents was a case of rape. The others were attempted rape, two burglaries and two robberies. The police department believes the two assaults were committed by the same man. "We've got two descriptions and they match," said Mulvey. Although Mulvey said police reports of all the incidents were sent to the campus housing office, Maggie Dorsett, associate director of housing, said she can recall "only three" incidents. She said two were attempted assaults and the third was a rape.

Prior to the rape, Dorsett's office sent out a warning letter to the residents of the townhouses reminding residents to lock their doors because crime was on the increase for another crime soon. "Everyone's afraid another attack might happen anytime," she added.

The rape victim, who requested not to be identified, said the warning letter was not helpful. According to her, there was no mention of any specific assaults or other incidents. She felt if she had been notified earlier and more specifically, she probably would have been more alert.

"It was my understanding that housing put one [warning letter] out but it was a general crime watch notice," Mulvey noted.

The crimes have occurred approximately two months apart and this last one happened in February. The anonymous victim claimed the resident is concerned the pattern calls for another crime soon. "Everyone's afraid another attack might happen anytime," she added.
PSU brings uncommon speaker to IUPUI

Barry Commoner, eminent ecologist, author, and political activist, will deliver an Earth Day '82 address at IUPUI Thursday, April 22. Commoner will discuss survival of political, economic, and environmental -- in the 1980's during his 8:30 p.m. talk in Lecture Hall Room 102.

Barry Commoner gained national prominence as one of the leading spokespersons for the ecology movement with his 1969 book, The Closing Circle. In featuring him on its cover, Time Magazine dubbed Commoner "the professor with a class of his own." Commoner's more recent activity and research have made him an advocate of solar energy, a position argued for in The Poverty of Power and Politics of Energy.

In addition, Commoner has been a long-time opponent of nuclear weapons. In the late 1950's he helped establish Scientists Institute for Public Information which publicized, for the first time, the health hazards posed by atmospheric testing of hydrogen bombs.

Commoner's own research concerning radioactive Strontium-90 contributed to passage of the 1963 Limited Test Ban Treaty, which outlawed atmospheric nuclear testing by the superpowers.

In 1980, Commoner went beyond his earlier commitment to simply provide scientific information to the public by participating in the founding of the Citizens Party. Campaigning on a platform which advocated solar energy, economic democracy, and opposition to nuclear weapons, Commoner was chosen to head the Citizens Party's national ticket in the November, 1980 Presidential elections. Commoner and his running mate, American Indian spokesperson LaDonna Harris, appeared on the ballot in 30 states.

Commoner currently heads the Center for the Study of the Biology of Natural Systems in Brooklyn, New York, which is dedicated to studying the relationship between ecology and economy in an urban environment. He maintains his close affiliation with the Citizens Party and continues to lecture widely on the dangers of nuclear power and nuclear weapons.

Commoner has a regular broadcast, which is heard on many public radio stations.

Commoner's visit to IUPUI is being sponsored by the IUPUI Progressive Student Union.
Congratulations guys!!

The 1982 William L. Garrett awards were handed out last Friday evening and there are three winners we would like to give special attention to.

Before we mention names, let’s define the Garrett Awards. The awards are presented to the five most deserving students involved in activities in a given year. Winners must have demonstrated leadership and service to the university.

Among this year’s list of winners are three students who also happen to be Sagamore staff members. (see story on page 6)

Tom McCain, second place; Dana Bagwell, third place; and Bruce Barnett, third place filled the requirements very well. All three have also worked hard in areas other than the Sagamore.

We are very proud of all of you.

Letter careless with grammar

To the Editor: I would like to make a few comments regarding the letter that criticized the bookstore’s careless pricing. I think the author of the letter needs a refresher course in W131.

The last paragraph (sentence) was as follows: “I would advise the bookstore to charge the customer for the price listed not the new raised one or their libel (sic) to find themselves in hot water with someone who is a lot more pissed off than I am.”

Try to read that sentence without my pauses for breath. The phrase ‘not the new raised one’ should be set off by commas. Also, the word ‘their’ is a pronoun which is used to show possession. Using ‘their’ in this sentence is nonsensical. I would like to see how someone could own ‘libel’.

Speaking of ‘libel’, the Random House Dictionary defines it to be a defamation by written or printed words. In other words, ‘libel’ is a defamation of character. However, the word ‘liable’ means likely or apt. I would bet that the author meant this: I would advise the bookstore to charge the customer for the price listed, not the new raised one, or they’re liable (sic) to find themselves in hot water with someone who is a lot more pissed off than I am.

How can a person expect to be taken seriously if he or she can’t even use basic English? By the way, I am not an English major!

Bias has no place in reporting

Whatever happened to objective news reporting which allows the reader to formulate their own views and opinions based upon clear, accurate, factual conveyance of information via the newspaper as a media for informing, enlightening it’s [sic] readers? Laura Burris, in her article on the Schlafly/DeCrow debate sits as a ‘judge and jury’ over the issues and the presenters [sic]. As a reader [I] would prefer for both sides of this issue to be presented clearly, fairly and openly — thus allowing me to evaluate the information and draw my own conclusions.

The extraneous comments, although humorous at times, regarding the audience response, are inappropriate in valid Newsreporting [sic]. If Ms. Burris feels the need to define and express her personal views & opinions then let her write an editorial rather than ‘slanting’ a worthy news article solely to persuade her readers to agree with her personal biases.

By the-by I do agree with Ms. Burris’ viewpoint.

Bike supporters want new parts

Got a spare public address system sitting in your back room? A press box? How about a parking lot?

Those are just a few of the items that the Indianapolis Mayor's Bicycle Task Force is trying to come up with to install at the city's new velodrome, currently under construction on the northwest side of town.

The cycling group is working against a deadline, too. All of the velodrome's components need to be in place in time for the July 23 opening of the 1982 National Sports Festival.

"There's no question that the velodrome will be completed in time for the sports festival," said Art Strong, director of the Indianapolis Department of Parks and Recreation. "In order for this to be the country's finest bicycle racing facility, though, we need a few final items. At this point, it's not clear where the funding to finish it the way we want to will come from."

Some federal monies that were to be used for the facility were casualties of last year's budget cuts, Strong said. Letters asking for financial aid are in process of being sent, according to Mark Finch, a task force member. "But Endowment and some other groups have already made some generous contributions," Finch said, "but we still need to raise about $175,000 — or the equivalent — over the next two months."

We're looking for some businesses to donate products that they sell and we need, like communications equipment, lockers, cash registers, whatever," Finch adds. "Cash is ideal, of course, but if someone would rather give us two dozen flagpoles instead we sure won't turn them down."

Anyone interested in contributing should call Strong at 924-9151 or Finch at 634-0227.

Student Activities recognizes honorees during banquet

by Pam Koona

"We are all in this together," as suggested by Dr. Edward C. Moore, was the overall theme for the eighth Annual Student Activities Honors Banquet, held Thursday, April 15, in the Champions Room of the Indianapolis Sports Center. Dr. Moore, along with other guests, Student Assembly members and administrators agreed that university cooperation was one of the key factors for a bright future at IUPUI.

Master of Ceremony Mike Hanna, introduced guest speaker Theodore Boehm, president, Indianapolis Sports Corp., who declared that Indianapolis would soon become the "national amateur sports capital of the U.S.," thanks mainly to IUPUI's natatorium building. The natatorium is the site for the 1982 National Sports Festival.

Serving as board chairman for the summer festival, Boehm indicated although the Olympic Committee allotted a $4 million budget and sponsors, and local media and other public relations were all helpful, there was "no way this could've been done without the cooperation of the university.

Remarks by David Craig, outgoing student body president stressed communication. When asked about this year's accomplishments, Craig said the Student Assembly had improved university communications. He also thanked the administration for all of its help.

The banquet, sponsored by Student Assembly in acknowledgement of all who contributed to IUPUI's successful progress, honored the following:

- Senator of the Year — Paul Fort
- Outstanding Educator — Dr. Gary Krepas
- Top Administrator — John Kragie
- Extra-Mile Award — Karen Ilardi
- Lola L. Lohse Award — Jean Hutton
- Student Services Award — Jeannece Hight, George Carter, William L., Garrett Award — 1) David Craig, 2) Tom McCain, 3) Lana Allen, Dana Bagwell, Bruce Barnett, Circle City Circuit Scholarship Awards — Kimberly Ann Galyan, Jacqueline A. Green, Daniel C. Lefever, Patricia B. Lahay.

At the banquet's conclusion, Craig and Hanna, outgoing student body vice president, oversaw the installation of the new President and Vice President for 1982-83, Stuart Keefer and George Graves, respectively.

The Department of Communication and Theatre held its twenty-third semi-annual "Speech Night Finals" on Monday, April 19 in the Lecture Hall at IUPUI.

Featured speakers represented the best of speech CI10, Fundamentals of Speech Communications. Each class chose a representative speaker to compete in the semi-final round of speeches held last week.

Forty-one individuals competed for the six final positions. All the speeches were of a persuasive nature and delivered extemporaneously. Judging was done by other students from other classes. Topics were chosen by each speaker.

The "Finals" were presided over by Dr. B. Bruce Wagener who also acted as moderator.

Two of Dr. Wagener's Oral Interpretation class students, Mike Perry and Paul Siddens, provided the audience with a pleasant and entertaining interlude while the critic-judge tabulated the final standings.

M. Ann Wilcox was selected as the critic-judge for the final round. Wilcox has been an attorney at law for over five years and is presently concentrating her practice on courtroom litigation. Wilcox received her law degree from Indiana University Law School, Indianapolis. While a student at IUPUI, she was an active member of the debate team. Recently Wilcox was honored as the outstanding alumna of the year by the School of Liberal Arts.

Earlier in the day, Wilcox spoke at the Cable Building to a very enthusiastic and receptive audience on the topic of "Language, Communication, and the Law." Wilcox's lecture was a part of the continuing "Distinguished Speaker Series" and her talk was followed by a question and answer session.

In addition to ranking the speakers, the critic-judge was responsible for providing a critique of each speech. The judging criteria used by Wilcox included a careful and thorough evaluation of each speaker on the basis of purpose, content, organization, wording, delivery, speaker attitude and general effect.

Wilcox announced the winners: First place: Gayle R. Wagner, freshman, who spoke on "Drunk Driving;" second place: Daniel C. Tingle, freshman, "Nestle Infant Formula in the Third World;" and third place went to Farrell J. Allen, freshman speaking on "A License to Kill... No Recourse to Appeal."

Residents need to take control

I am not doing this to praise the system, but instead to give some credit where credit is due. I am a resident of the Single Student Dorm, and also a constant visitor at Ball Residence. I felt it was necessary for me to make a few comments on the complaints made by a Ball resident.

It is a recognized fact that if you wish things to be different, you sometimes must do it yourself. A friend at IU who also lives in a Dorm, has stated that the residents there who do not want to frolic in the halls all hours, get together and talk with the ones who do.

The majority of the residents are serious students and find no enjoyment in roaming around all hours of the night. Sometimes a floor meeting of the residents is required. "Life at a Commuter Campus" is actually no legitimate excuse for bad conduct. In all societies, the majority rules, and it is up to that society to determine what is accepted behavior and what is not.

The Housing Department at IUPUI does work for the residents. If enough complaints are turned in on a specific individual, the department will ask the individual to leave. This has already occurred in the Single Student Dorm during the past year. There was an expulsion of one individual, as well as the near expulsion of two others. If you want results, then let the department know who the rowdies are, and let them take their chances.

There has been constant remarks made on the appearance of bugs everywhere in the building. Some of us who have lived in Apartment dwellings in the past, can verify that wherever there is multi-dwelling living, there will also be bugs. Maybe you keep your room very clean, but if you have ever looked into your neighbor's room, you may find a different story.

Wherever food is kept, and cooked, bugs will also appear. They follow the scent of food, and just a few crumbs are all that is necessary. I would imagine the university spends a fortune on bug spray during a semester, as the appearance of the spray can is evident daily.

Instead of complaining in the campus paper, go to the Housing Department for results. If you don't like the environment that you are paying for and living in, then attempt to change it with the help of others wanting the same results. I recognize that our little rooms are sometimes very stifling, but that also is of our own choosing. Also, if I see a bug, I quickly grab my handy little can of RAID for fast action. I recommend you do the same.

Metro teams resume competition

by Matt Shrum

After having the previous ten days cancelled due to the elements, the Metro softball and baseball squads managed to get back on the diamonds last week.

IUPUI's softball team went 6-0 last week to raise their record to 17-2. The baseball team dropped to 11-15 with two wins in seven games.

Trudy Bernath raised her pitching record to 15-2 highlighted by a one-hitter and no-hitter in the Metro's double-header sweep over Anderson. Bernath also shut out Indiana State University at Evansville twice last Sunday, 3-0 and 8-0. ISU-E is the defending state champions and the only team to beat Bernath last year.

Judy Cummings, the Metro top returning hitter, suffered a knee injury that will require surgery in the off season. She did receive her doctor's permission to finish the season as long as she can play with the pain.

The softball team will play tonight at DePauw and Saturday at St. Francis.

IUPUI's baseball team has been plagued by inexperience.

Coach Craig Moore starts four freshmen but the Metro have been very competitive as was shown last Sunday in their double-header loss to DePauw.

The Metro lost the first game 10-6 to the Tigers. After falling behind 8-1 early the Metro cut the score to 8-5 with a grand slam home run by Chad Cunningham. IUPUI left the bases loaded at the end of the game.

In the second game the Tigers pulled out to a 2-0 lead. The Metro came back to tie it but couldn't get any more runs across the plate and lost 4-2.

The Metro sandwiched a double-header sweep of Franklin between a single game loss to Butler and another double-header loss to Rose Hulman. Mark Shock hit a grand slam in the Butler game.

Future baseball games include today at Northern Kentucky, tomorrow at Franklin, Friday at Marian, Saturday versus Grace (at North Central), and Sunday vs. IUPUI-Ft. Wayne (at North Central). Monday IUPUI will host Wabash at Bush Stadium.
