News Briefs

The Financial aids office will be closed Friday, Oct. 22, for a staff training day. Because all staff will be involved in training, there will be no phone deliveries or student service for the day. The office will be open Monday, Oct. 25 as usual.

Student Affairs Week conducted by the IUPUI Student Assembly will give all students the opportunity to talk with their student senators. During Oct. 25-29, senators will be stationed in lounges, lounges and libraries waiting for input, opinions, gripes, suggestions, complaints and brilliant ideas. A rewritten constitution and bylaws must be ratified by the student body; topics including a future student center, parking in dorm areas and the soccer team are to be discussed; and feedback on the Fall Festival and ideas for Spring Fever Festival are also on the list for talk sessions.

Spring semester course reservation begins when seniors register Nov. 1. They will be followed by freshmen Nov. 2, 3 and 4, juniors Nov. 5 and 8, and sophomores Nov. 9. Graduate degree students register Nov. 10 and nondegree and transient students register Nov. 11 and 12. Students register alphabetically and can find their scheduled time listed on flyers which are posted around campus. See page four for more information.

Student government leaders oppose tuition increase

by Tom McCaia

Tuition will increase beyond the means of the average college student under a proposal made by the Indiana Commission for Higher Education (ICHE), students representing IUPUI and IU-B claimed last week. The representatives attacked the commission's recommendation to increase tuition to pay 35 percent of construction costs for new academic buildings. The proposal, released Oct. 8, provides for capital improvement expense to be added to the tuition students already are paying. Tuition would not increase at a flat 35 percent rate but students could expect steadily rising fees if the proposal is adopted.

"Even though this change of policy would result in relatively small increases per year, their cumulative effect would be disastrous," said IUB Student Association President D.J. Bolinger.

"The recommendation is a radical change of policy, and one which will burden students for generations," he added. "Tuition currently pays about one third of the university's operating expenses for salaries, equipment and maintenance. The average student cannot afford to carry a 35 percent capital cost increase added to the 35 percent operations cost which students are already paying," charged IUPUI Student Assembly President Stuart Kweser.

The proposal is "unreasonable and unrealistic," he added. "It's time the state legislature opened its eyes to the reality that students face," ICHE recommends to the (continued on page 2)

Soccer coach pushes for spirit

by Laura Burris and Todd DeGreff

"It's time," he keeps saying. Charlie Wilkinson, IUPUI soccer coach and state commissioner for under-19 youth soccer, has a five-year plan. In one generation of students, he intends to do what he can to help IUPUI solidify its identity.

His plan started in January of this year, when he was approached by an intermediary and asked if he would like to start a varsity soccer program at IUPUI. In March, he said yes, but with the proviso that he have a free hand to build his program in an unconventional manner. He didn't want it to be a bridge between academics and athletics, he wanted his program to be an interface between athletics and the community.

Wilkinson went to Metropolitan State University in Denver and University of Calgary in Alberta, Canada to take classes and to play soccer, but he didn't learn only academics and athletics at college.

"I made friends there. I grew up there. I learned to be a social creature. That aspect, that social life, is missing from IUPUI. There is no 'maypole,' no common source of pride and identification for the students. People don't come here to attend a university, they come here to attend classes.

Wilkinson points out that students from West Lafayette or Bloomington are proud to attend purdue or IU, and contrast this with IUPUI's "divided loyalties." At the Oct. 14 IUPUI Student Assembly meeting he attended to promote his soccer program, he noted that some senators introduced themselves as being from "... the IU School of Business" or "... Purdue School of Engineering.

"You have to ask someone from Indianapolis twice before they'll admit they go to IUPUI, and it's time for that to change. This is a great place to be - look around! There's so much potential here it scares the hell out of me - why not some IUPUI loyalty? This divided loyalty is such a waste of energy - let's put it all together.

Wilkinson believes that the point of focus for this newfound pride can be sports - soccer in particular - and he's invested a lot of his energy in that belief. He has contacted all the radio and TV stations and newspapers in the area, and made personal visits to the Student Assembly president and the Sagamore to tell his story and attend meetings of the Faculty Council and Student Assembly.

He wants to change the students' image of their own university, and he thinks soccer can help.

"Soccer events on college campuses aren't just sporting events, they're social events." The first opportunity for students to join Wilkinson's five-year plan and express their pride in IUPUI will be Indianapolis Soccer Weekend, Oct. 29-30. Wilkinson calls this "Day one of intercollegiate soccer in this community."

Indiana General Assembly priorities and funding methods for state university budgets. It made its proposal after considering 1983-85 budgets submitted by the six state universities.

The commission did not address how the fee would be calculated and charged or whether students would pay only for capital improvements at their own campuses. The commission also did not estimate how much tuition increase a student could expect to pay, or how often increases would occur. It also is not clear whether each increase would become a permanent part of the base tuition rate.

Those are trustee decisions, noted Kent Waldon, director of financial affairs for ICHE. "It would be inappropriate for the commission to speak regarding the collection of fees," he said.

IUPUI's top administrative official also is opposed to the commission's proposal. "It's asking... too much of our students," said Dr. Glenn W. Irwin Jr., IU vice president for Indianapolis. New buildings are needed at IUPUI, he added, and it would place "an enormous burden" on students to bear these costs.

It should be emphasized that the commission's proposal is simply that. Final decisions regarding university budgets must be made by the legislature and Governor Robert D. Orr.

Those decisions will determine the impact IUPUI students will feel. The amount students would pay for proposed construction would be determined by the IU Board of Trustees, if the commission's plan is adopted.

Keefer and Bolinger indicated that their priority in this matter is student awareness. They hope an informed student population will influence the legislature to reject the commission's proposal and find other funding methods.

ICHE will consider capital improvements and operational budgets for state universities at its November meeting. Shortly after, it will present its recommendations to the General Assembly's State Budget Committee.

IUPUI Bookstores' Third Annual PUMPKIN CAPER

Win One of Three $25.00 Bookstore Merchandise Prizes Here's How!

Simply guess the weight of the pumpkin on display in one of the three participating bookstores. All IUPUI students, staff and faculty members are eligible to enter except bookstore employees. Separate contests will be held in the Medical Bookstore, Union Building; Campus Bookstore, Cavanaugh Hall and the 38th Street Bookstore, Kronner Building.

The winner at each store will receive a $25.00 bookstore merchandise certificate. The contest begins on Friday, October 22. The winners will be announced on Friday, October 29, after 100 p.m.

HALLOWEEN DISCOUNT SPECIAL
On Friday, October 29, any student, faculty or staff member who comes into one of the three participating bookstores in full Halloween costume will be eligible for a 25% discount on the purchase of any gift, apparel or book bag item.
Students paying the price

Public education at the college level could crumble like falling bricks under a proposal made by the Indiana Commission for Higher Education.

The commission wants to increase student fees to pay 35 percent of construction costs on campuses. The proposal is a threat to the concept of low-cost, state-supported education.

It could set a dangerous precedent for students to pay more and more of the cost of a public education. Many students will enroll in fewer courses each semester to save money. Some will leave and never come back.

Students already pay their part. They share the same tax burden as any citizen. Tuition pays one-third of operational costs. And the university uses a portion of course fees to retire bond issues for constructing academic buildings.

Under the commission’s plan, students will pay an extra fee while in school for buildings which they might never use.

The state should accept responsibility for providing public education. It must provide a climate in which searching for new answers can flourish or those who value learning may leave Indiana. It must provide salaries commensurate with the task of encouraging inquisitive minds or universities may lose faculty and staff whose value cannot be measured only in dollars.

If public education increases beyond the reach of the average college student, those crumbled bricks might just as well lay in a pile.

Many students’ hopes for an education will be lying in the same heap. — lan

Bocce in me! IUPUI rolled over DePauw University 8-1 last Monday.

Some intrepid soul, shears in hand, found the Cavanaugh basement men’s room an ideal spot for a barber shop last week. The customer appeared pleased but we don’t know if he left a tip.

President Ronald Reagan signed into law last week a bill restoring Pell Grant benefits to Vietnam and Vietnam-era vets.

We understand someone walked into the Student Assembly office on a rainy day, asking if an umbrella was turned into the lost and found service. When asked the bumerang’s color, the person replied, “I don’t care.”

New course reservation method begins Nov. 1

by Michael W. Meiring

Course reservation has been revamped by the Academic Procedures Committee in an effort to more efficiently register IUPUI's 23,000 students.

"We want to do course reservation in a way that students don't have to wait three or four hours," says Registrar Richard E. Slocum, referring to new procedures to be used during spring semester course reservation beginning Nov. 1.

The new course reservation plan schedules students according to class standing. Seniors are scheduled Nov. 1, freshmen Nov. 2, 3 and 4, juniors Nov. 5 and 8 and sophomores Nov. 9. Graduate degree students will register Wednesday, Nov. 10 and non-degree and transient students register Thursday, Nov. 11 and Friday, Nov. 12.

Any student may register for classes Saturday, Nov. 13 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

According to Slocum, his office began receiving complaints when posters explaining the new procedures were circulated. He says most students are complaining they won't be able to get the classes they need.

Slocum doesn't believe that will be any more of a problem than it has been in the past. Assistant Registrar Stephen D. Browns agrees. "If you really investigate those complaints, you find it's more a case of not getting the time or instructor requested."

If a student cannot make the scheduled time, he or she may call the Registrar's Office and set up another appointment.

"Any scheduled reassignments will be made after their originally appointed times," Slocum emphasized.

According to Slocum, the Academic Procedures Committee felt seniors should register the first day because they are probably not in competition for courses with any underclassmen. Reportedly, the committee also felt freshmen would not compete for upper-level courses with upperclassmen so they were assigned next.

"If there is going to be competition for courses, it will be during junior and sophomore registration," reports Slocum. He doesn't anticipate many complaints.

Students should be aware this is to be a one-time procedure. IUPUI has been systematically working toward a totally computerized registration system for the past few years. Beginning with fall course reservation for 1983, students will be able to pay for their courses by mail, if they do not receive financial aid.

"From our standpoint, we've been doing an automated system by hand for the past two or three years," states Browne.

Academic counselors have been instructed to notify students of this change in procedure and the Registrar's Office has posted the new schedules around campus. A student's class standing will be stamped on the 5 x 8 card.

Slocum says he would like to emphasize these procedures are being used to make course reservation easier for students without sacrificing their courses.

Further questions can be answered or requests to reschedule an appointment may be made by calling 264-3807.
sore finals, the IUPUI soccer team will play the University of Cincinnati in the Track and Field Stadium. Admission is one dollar.

"I want 5,000 students to attend that game. I want to fill that stadium. The game runs from 6 to 8 p.m. and it should be a good place to meet before partying or Halloween night. Token support just won’t cut it — the students have to come out on mass."

Wilkinson’s qualifications include experience as a college player in Colorado and Canada, and stints as a professional soccer player for teams in Calgary and Rotterdam, the Netherlands. Since returning to the United States in 1977, he has coached youth and high school teams in California and Indiana, and designed several soccer programs, though never before at the college level. A former coach at Carmel High School, he currently serves as assistant coach for under-19 soccer for Hamilton County. Players that he has coached on the Striker soccer select team are currently playing at 10 universities throughout the Midwest.
