Key student activities staff members to lose positions

■ Six Campus Interrelations staffers dismissed effective June 30, 1999, including director of multicultural student affairs, assistant director of student activities.

BY J. M. BROWN
EDITOR IN CHIEF

Six staff members within student activities will lose their jobs effective June 30, 1999.

The Sagamore has obtained a copy of a confidential letter sent by Anna Melodia, director of the Office of Campus Interrelations, to six individuals within her office notifying them that their positions were being eliminated.

The letter, which is dated July 17 and may contain different language for each staff member, was sent to:

- Robert Bedford, director of the Office of Multicultural Student Affairs;
- Freda Luers, assistant director of student activities;
- Wyona Lynch-McWhite, coordinator of special projects;
- Virgie Montgomery, assistant director of administration;
- Jane Petry, assistant director of activity fee management; and
- Jeffrey Stanley, associate director.

The letter states the terminations are due to a reduction in force and are part of a restructuring initiative for the Of-

"I have given my best to this university. How can I afford to just give all that up? I don't know what I'm going to do."

fice of Student Life and Diversity called "Student Life at IUPUI: The Continuing Transformation."

The RIFings (reduction in force) came after earlier inter-office meetings, in which most of the Campus Interrelations staff discussed their views on the reorganization issues. An April 28 memorandum from William Plater, executive vice chancellor and dean of the faculties, soon followed, notifying six staff members that their positions were not part of the new plan.

Melodia further said in her letter that the human resources administration was prepared to assist those being terminated in finding other employment at IUPUI.

"Although I realize change is always stressful, I hope that with this advance notice, the resources available to you on campus and any support I can provide such as job referrals, will make this situation manageable for you," Melodia's letter states. "I appreciate the quality service you have given to this organization and institution in the length of time that you have been here, and I wish you the best in your future career efforts."

A SPORTS SECTION EXTRA:
1998-99 MEN'S BASKETBALL PREVIEW

BY MATTHEW DAVIS
SPORTS EDITOR

It's a whole new ballgame for the IUPUI men's basketball team this year. With their move to NCAA Division I and the Mid-Continent Conference, the Jaguars will play their most competitive schedule in the program's history.

After losing 10 players, including last year's Div. II Player-of-the-Year, Carlos Knox, this year's squad looks to make its mark on the Mid-Con without a yet-to-be proven leader. Knox, IUPUI's all-time leading scorer, led last year's team to an 18-9 record. With only four returning players, head coach Ron Hunter admits that replacing him hasn't been easy.

"Filling the place of a guy who averaged 30 points per game might be difficult to do," said Hunter. "But the biggest thing we are going to miss from Knox is his leadership." With 11 new players on this year's squad, including seven freshman, three junior college transfers and one Div. I transfer, the Jaguars appear both young and inexperienced. Of the newcomers, only two have had substantial playing experience at the college level.

"Right now we're an inexperienced team and that's probably our No. 1 weakness," said Hunter. "No one in our program has ever experienced 20,000 screaming fans, the intensity of a conference race or an entire season of Div. I competition."

Last year's squad recorded a 1-4 record against Div. I schools including losses to Miami of Ohio, Alcorn State, Butler and Eastern Kentucky Universities. The lone Div. I win came in the last game of the season with a 20-point victory over Florida Atlantic University.

This season's schedule will include contests with Butler and Valparaiso Universities, both of which made the NCAA Tournament last year. The Jaguars will also face two opponents that competed in the National Invitational Tournament when they travel to Dayton and Georgetown Universities.

Derek Williams (right), junior guard, will attempt to lead the Jaguars in their inaugural Mid-Continent Conference season.

Professor writes analysis of Morrison's work

■ In her second book, Missy Dehn Kubitschek, English instructor, offers perspective on author of "Beloved."

BY J. M. BROWN
EDITOR IN CHIEF

A liberal arts faculty member has composed a critical analysis of renowned author Toni Morrison's work.

Missy Dehn Kubitschek, professor of English, who has taught courses on Morrison's work, just released "Toni Morrison: A Critical Companion" through Greenwood Press.

While relating biographical information on the author of "Beloved" and "Paradise," Kubitschek's piece also offers a perspective on plot points and themes as well as insight into how Morrison desires her work to be read.

Although Morrison is not her favorite author, Kubitschek admires the subjects the novelist tackles.

"I love her honesty and intensity," Kubitschek said. "She has a terrific imagination, and takes me to places I'd never get to on my own."

Kubitschek is particularly fond of "Beloved," as it gives readers such a vivid, yet fictional twist of the "psychic aftermath" of slavery, she said.

She is not, however, a fan of Oprah Winfrey's recent film adaptation of the novel, which also stars Danny Glover.

"It's not a very good movie," Kubitschek said. "I have put it on my syllabus, but it's only fair (in quality)."

"Critical Companion" — which is not available in bookstores but can be purchased through Amazon Books on the Internet at www.amazon.com — was written for undergraduates and advanced high school students,

Marquette University honors IUPUI professor

A longtime IUPUI faculty member in law and liberal arts has been named the Robert F. Boden visiting professor of law at Marquette University. David R. Papke, the R. Bruce Townsend professor of law and professor of liberal arts at IUPUI, will hold the Boden position throughout this fall semester. It was created in memory of Boden, dean of the Marquette University Law School from 1965 to 84.

In addition to teaching, Papke's role at Marquette includes a Nov. 4 lecture on "The Courtroom in American Culture."

Papke has served in a number of positions at IUPUI since 1983 and is internationally recognized for his research and writing in the areas of law and American culture.

Papke's most recent book, "Heretics in the Temple: Americans Who Reject the Nation's Legal Faith," was published by New York University Press this year. An Indianapolis resident, Papke was graduated magna cum laude from Harvard College in 1969 with a bachelor's degree in history. He received a master's degree in American studies from Yale University in 1973, a doctor of jurisprudence degree from Yale in 1973 and a doctoral degree in American studies from the University of Michigan in 1984.

To date, more than 1,000 students have been selected for NSEP scholarships for study in more than 65 countries including China, Russia, Japan, Brazil, South Africa and Egypt.

Students in fields of study critical to US national security — such as engineering, applied sciences, business, economics, international affairs, political, policy, social sciences, health and law — are particularly encouraged to apply. The deadline for submission of applications is Feb. 8, 1999.

To obtain an application, call the NSEP office at (800) 618-NSEP.

Jobs

Some of those terminated said although they knew the dismissals were on the horizon, they don't agree with what the administration has handled the restructuring.

Montgomery, who has worked in student activities at IUPUI since 1973 and is three years from retirement, said the administration doesn't see how the terminations will affect students.

"One of the rewards you receive by working in this field is when students come back and let you know what a difference you've made in their lives," Montgomery said. "I have given my best to this university. How can I afford to just give all that up? I don't know what I'm going to do."

Luers, an eight-year veteran of student activities service at IUPUI, believes the changes Melodia and other administrators want to make for the department are positive, but the decision to do away with her job naturally upset her.

"I hope I've made an impact on students. That's why I'm here," Luers said. "Our accomplishments have been good. I do not want students to suffer because of this."

Petty said she agrees with the reorganization of Campus Interrelations as it pertains to improving student services, but said after 10 years of university service, she expected more from IUPUI.

"I don't think it's that we are being punished for not following any directives from administration," Petty said. "I love working here, but I don't like how it was all handled."

"They've said they want to do a national search to find top-notch people to fill new positions," Petty continued. "Are they saying we're not those people? They want our input now, but it's hard when I know I won't be here after June."

Some of those terminated said they've heard only three positions will be created to replace the six that were eliminated, but that they were told by superiors that they were welcome to apply for those positions.

"There is no way three people will be able to serve the students in the capacity that we all have," said Montgomery, who is a former staff council president. "It's been rough to stay here. I've paid my dues, and it's not always been a bowl of peaches and cream."

Montgomery is concerned the elimination of Luers and Bedford's positions will be a detriment to all students, but specifically to African-American students. Students of color need to see staff members and advisers who look like them, she added.

"I've been around here for a lot of years, and I've seen people come and go," Montgomery

Business school names research associate new services director

STAFF REPORT

Jane L. Lambert has been named director of student services for the IU Kelley School of Business.

Lambert oversees recording and advising in the business school's undergraduate program, assists academic program coordinators with class scheduling and ensures the effectiveness and quality of academic programs and activities. She also teaches in the business school.

Lambert has worked in a number of capacities in the IUPUI system for more than a decade. Most recently, she was a research associate for the Office of the Vice Chancellor for Planning and Institutional Improvement and the Office of General Education.

Lambert received a bachelor's degree in business administration from Ferris State University and a master's of business administration degree from IU-South Bend.

said. "And black people don't get promoted too often on this campus."

Plater said he expects the new positions to be defined and filled by July 1, 1999. He said the new positions were not redesigned around the current staff because those people may not have the particular experience and knowledge for those redefined job descriptions.

"We can't have a clean start by defining (the new positions) around the people who are already in place," Plater said. "They were all given ample notice and are free to apply for the new positions."

Melodia did not return The Sagamore's calls.

Renowned authors to present keynote address at third annual festival

The Polis Center will sponsor upcoming "Spirit & Place Festival," which will feature mock trial, exhibits, performances.

By Jill Hundery Staff Writer

The 3rd annual Spirit & Place Festival, coordinated by The Polis Center, will be Nov. 13 through 16 in various locations throughout Indianapolis.

This year's festival, "Spirit & Place: A Gathering of Voices" will feature three nationally-renowned authors, a mock trial and a variety of performances, exhibits, lectures and public discussions.

Presenters will focus on how their spiritual beliefs and the places they have visited have made an impression on their lives and thoughts. Those authors presenting the keynote address at Clowes Memorial Hall at Butler University Nov. 15 will include Peter Matthiessen, author of "Lost Man's River," Reynolds Price, "Roxtana Slides," and Maxine Hong Kingston, "The Woman's Warrior: Memoirs of a Girlhood among Ghosts."

The authors will bring their own cultural and spiritual demographics to the conversation. Each has traveled to and lived in various international locations.

"It will be a public conversation to engage people and a fascinating vehicle for the audience to become familiar with the authors," said Heather Nakonezny, festival coordinator.

Sallyann J. Murphy, an Indiana resident and author of nationally acclaimed books "Bean Blossom Dreams" and "The Zen of Food — A Philosophy of Nourishment" will host the keynote event.

Another keynote event will be the mock trial, "Arts on Trial: The People vs. The City of Indianapolis," which will be presented with the assistance of Nuvo Cultural Institute at Laikin Auditorium Nov. 14. The hypothetical trial is based on the notion that, with Consetco Fieldhouse on the verge of opening, city leaders announce they want to build a contemporary art facility at the old Market Square Arena location instead of the fieldhouse despite citizens' disapproval.

Authors participating in the Spirit & Place Festival

The theatrical trial will set a stage for dealing with the question of exactly what role art plays in Indianapolis. The actors are actually Indianapolis activists, members of the community and Federal Judge Sarah Evans Barker.

David Bodenheimer, director of the Polis Center, was the founder of the first festival three years ago. The first festival focused on literary art and humanities to create opportunities for the public to search and converse in regards to the correlation between spirituality and the community.

The festival aims to increase the amount of participation among artists and institutions in the community. Additionally, it strives to encourage people to think about the fundamental values that shape Indianapolis. Nakonezny would like to see the participation of students, faculty and the community in festival events.

There will be more than 20 events scheduled for the festival, for which free tickets are available. Contact Clowes Memorial Hall Box Office or TicketMaster for tickets to the keynote discussion. For additional information or tickets, contact the Polis Center at 274-2455.

Jaguars

Also featured on the Jaguars non-conference schedule is the University of Houston, currently coached by former NBA star Clyde Drexler.

Hunter admits he purposely created the tough non-conference schedule in order to prepare his team for the Mid-Con season.

"The secret to winning a conference title is to win your home games and split on the road," said Hunter. "If we can accomplish that, we'll have a good chance of winning the Mid-Con."

The Jaguars finished last season with a perfect 12-0 record at home and, according to Hunter, much duplicate that effort to be in contention for the Mid-Con title.

"A lot of our guys are anxious to get a shot at Georgetown, Dayton and Houston," said junior guard Rodney Thomas. "Playing those teams will give us a chance to see how we compare to a program of substantial caliber."

With only four upperclassmen, the Jaguars are searching for a leader.

A key returning upperclassman is Derek Williams. Williams, a guard from Indianapolis, started 17 games last season while averaging 4.5 points per game. As a defensive specialist, Williams was second on the team last year in steals (50) and assists (61). He also holds the school record for most steals in a single game.

The second starter returning is this year's team captain, Don Carlisle. Carlisle, a sophomore guard from Indianapolis, averaged 6.3 points and 4.8 rebounds per game last season. Carlisle was the third leading scorer on last year's squad, and Hunter will look to him again this year for leadership and production.

"We've only had two sophomore captains in the history of our program — Knox and now Carlisle," said Hunter. "We are expecting a lot out of him this year."

Thomas, a junior from Muncie, Ind., also returns this season. Thomas averaged six points per game and shot 43 percent from three-point range. He also set a school record by hitting 13 threes in a single game his freshman year.

The four returning players accounted for only 23 percent of IUPUI's total offense last season. But Hunter feels filling the scoring void left by Knox's graduation will not be a problem.

"Instead of one guy getting 30 or 40 points per game," said Hunter, "we'll have three or four guys get 11 or 12 points."

According to Hunter, depth is the biggest difference between this year's team and last year's squad.

"Our depth will make it much more difficult for other teams to prepare for us," said Hunter.

"There's no difference between our No. 9 guy and our No. 11 guy," Hunter continued. "Last year we had Knox and then everybody else. This season I feel comfortable playing 10 guys."

With a token glance through the young roster, it's easy to spot one of the Jaguars' primary weaknesses — size. Only three players top the 6-foot-8 mark this year.

"Our inside strength and size are obviously our top weaknesses," said Williams. "But our quickness at all positions can compensate for the lack of height."

The Jaguars' biggest body, Katoni Waller, is a 6-foot-8, 255 lbs. transfer from Keystone College.

According to Hunter, Waller has been impressive in the first few weeks of practice and will make an immediate impact for the Jaguars this season.

"Waller is the most physical player we have," said Hunter. "We list him at 255 lbs., but he might actually be around 290 lbs. He has the potential to be one of the best post players in the Mid-Con."

Another big man the Jaguars will call on to fill the center position is 6-foot-8 freshman, Josh Fitzwater, a native of Crawfordsville, who averaged 23 points and 10 rebounds per game his senior year of high school.

Don Carlisle is only the second sophomore in IUPUI basketball history to be team captain. Carlos Knox was the first.

"Fitzwater has been one of the biggest surprises for us thus far," said Hunter. "He's a very skilled player who knows the game really well."

With the lack of height and a dominate inside threat, the Jaguar guards will play a crucial role this season. Their defensive ability, coupled with their quickness, look to spark an up-tempo type of game.

According to Hunter, two newcomers, Brian Ponder and Matt Hermes, will stabilize the Jaguar backcourt. These two guards will bear a majority of the scoring responsibility this season.

Ponder, a transfer from Owens Community College, averaged 17 points, six rebounds and six assists last year. Ponder was named to his all-conference squad and was also an honorable mention selection on the junior college All-American team.

"We are really looking for big things from Ponder this year," said Hunter. "He creates well with the ball and is an excellent shooter. He has the same kind of talent Knox had."

Hermes, a transfer from Drake University, saw his last season.

"Hermes might be our best all-around offensive player. He is simply an excellent scorer," said Hunter.

Two additional new Jaguars who look to make an immediate impact are freshmen Jovan Fisher and Shaun Clarke.

Fisher, a 6-foot-6 forward from St. Louis, averaged 20 points and eight rebounds per game his senior year of high school.

Clarke, a guard from Vaughn Ontario, Canada, averaged a triple-double his senior year of high school with 19 points, 11 rebounds and 10 assists. Clarke is the first Canadian player in the history of the men's basketball program.

Fisher and Clarke are just a part of the offensive attack which will revolve around one of the Jaguars' primary strengths — shooting.

"We are a solid shooting ball club," said Hunter. "I have never had this many shooters on a team before."

When other teams prepare for us," Hunter continued, "they won't be able to stop just one or two players. Since everybody on our team can score, they are going to have to find different ways to stop every body."

The Jaguars led opponents in nearly every statistical category last year including assists, blocks, steals and rebounds. IUPUI also outshot their opponents last season from the field, free-throw line and three-point range.

But with a new team and a different level of competition, the Jaguars aren't certain what to expect heading into the season.

"If I'm not sure what to anticipate this year," said Hunter, "Our transfers have excellent skills but they haven't proven they know how to win at the college level."

Although the Jaguars were picked to finish last in the conference and will be the underdog heading into the majority of their games this season, Hunter feels his team will make a Mid-Con mark before the year is through.

"If a team beats us this season, it's going to be due to their talent," said Hunter. "We will not lose a game this year because we were outshouted or because we weren't competitive."

They might be small, young and inexperienced, but with their shooting ability, quickness and new level of competition, this year looks to be an entertaining one for the Jaguars.

"Our depth will make it much more difficult for other teams to prepare for us."

Cultural arts gallery to feature 'Science as Art'

In its second season, The IUPUI Cultural Arts Gallery will feature an exhibit by California artist Susan Rankaitis. Titled "Science as Art," the exhibit will open Nov. 9 and will feature a collection of abstract photographic collages that combine imagery from science and nature.

Rankaitis holds the Fletcher Jones Chair in Art at Scripps College. She also teaches drawing, mixed media and contemporary discourse, and is well known for her complex theory involving contemporary art and its relevance to science.

Over the last six to eight years, she has been doing research in an effort to find areas where contemporary art and current science may overlap visually.

"We want to link as many academic programs as possible with student activities," said Wyona Lynch-McWhite, coordinator for special projects in Campus Interrelations.

The exhibit will also feature artwork by members of the Math as Art class: M290. This course is offered through the School of Science and is taught by Marc Franz, who is scheduled to speak at the exhibit's opening reception, which will be from 3 to 5 p.m. Nov. 9.

The objective of presenting "Science as Art" is designed to interest students who are not art majors. It is also a way of introducing the gallery in an effort to increase active student participation.

The exhibit will be displayed through Dec. 20 in the gallery, which is located in LY 115 of the Student Activities Center on the first floor of University College.

For additional information, contact Wyona Lynch-McWhite in LY 002 or call 274-3931.

'Show Boat' docks in Indy

■ Legendary Broadway hit by Hammerstein II, Kern playing at Murat Centre.

By MATTHEW DAVIS
SPORTS EDITOR

First hitting the stage in 1927, "Show Boat" captivated audiences with extravagant sets and costumes, catchy tunes and magical performances.

Now over 70 years later, the American musical classic continues to do the same thing through the 1998-99 Mastercard Indianapolis Broadway Season at the Murat Centre. Performances opened Oct. 23 and will run through Nov. 8.

Jerome Kern and Oscar Hammerstein II adapted the story from Edna Ferber's novel and created the first contemporary modern musical. "Show Boat" was the first production to merge the traditional musical comedy with serious themes of that era.

Although humor is scattered throughout the show, the 70-year-old classic is far from a comedy. "Show Boat" is a story of love and celebration of the family. It is a musical masterpiece that realistically portrays the ugliness of racism, marital discord and abandonment.

While "Show Boat" entertains with stories of love, youth and imagination, it is primarily a story of life and what it takes simply to survive.

The magnificent score, which moves fluidly and effortlessly among love songs like, "Make Believe," to the heartwarming "I Have the Room Above Her," to the theme song of the show, "Ol' Man River," is what captures the hearts of the audience. The show's rich music coupled with fabulous dancing is quite stirring.

But it's not the plot, the music or the dancing that makes "Show Boat" such a success. The set and costume design is the true attraction of the show.

'Show Boat' first appeared on Broadway in 1927. It is currently playing at Murat Centre through Nov. 8.

"Show Boat" is one of the largest musical theater productions in musical history. The extravagant and lavish set, which includes over 1000 costumes and props, took 20 semesters simply to bring the show to Indy.

The production, which employs modern stagecraft techniques such as computer-generated scenery and sound and over 600 types of lighting, results in a breathtaking presentation of 20 scenes that span the course of 40 years.

The vivid display of color, costume design and scenery appropriately links these four decades of American history while correctly portraying each decade's corresponding fashion, values and entertainment.

More than 150 people are responsible for each performance of "Show Boat," including 61 members of the acting company, 20 musicians and 30 members of the wardrobe crew.

But the biggest part of the production, literally, is the show boat itself. Twenty-five-foot-tall and 40-feet-long, it is truly a magical display of spectacular stagecrafting. This floating attraction, named the Cotton Blossom, is a fascinating construction and is the center of attention throughout the musical.

This new production of "Show Boat," currently touring North America, opened in Oct. 1994 on Broadway. It later went on to become the most honored show of the 1994-95 Broadway season by winning five Tony Awards including Best Revival of a Musical, Best Choreography and Best Costume Design.

Now in its fourth revival since its creation in 1927, "Show Boat" offers fine musical theater tradition, overwhelming set and costume design, and enchanting melodies.

"Show Boat" is a powerful representation of classic American musicals.

Volleyball collects 11th win, to face crosstown rival

MATTHEW DAVIS:
THE JAGUAR JOURNAL

■ The men's soccer team recorded a win and a loss last week. The Jaguars defeated Western Illinois 1-0 and were shut out by Valparaiso 2-0. (See story this page).

At the time of publication, the men's soccer team was tied with Howard University for fourth place in the Mid-Con with a 2-2 record. If IUPUI wins over Howard Nov. 1, the Jaguars will qualify in the fourth and final position for the Mid-Con Tournament.

■ The state of Michigan wasn't kind to the women's soccer team last week. The Jaguars were defeated by Western Michigan 4-1 and Central Michigan 2-1. Freshman Karrie Reising attempted 14 shots in the two games but failed to connect on any of them. A pair of freshmen, McKenzie Smith and Cristina Fink, scored the Jaguar goals in the losses as the team drops to 6-9 on the season.

■ The Jaguar volleyball squad recorded its 11th win of the season with a three-game victory at Oakland University last week. Freshman Sara Sparks led the Jaguars with 11 kills and eight digs. Senior Cory Pepperworth added seven kills and nine digs as well.

The volleyball team also dropped two matches last week to Youngstown State University (15-11, 10-15, 15-2, 15-12) and Indiana State University (15-10, 15-13, 15-8). Sparks again led the Jaguars with 40 kills and 19 digs. Sophomore Kristy Burns tallied 25 digs, and sophomore Danielle Adams also added 22 kills and 19 digs in the losses. The Jaguars, now 11-12 overall and 2-5 in the Mid-Con, will host Butler University Nov. 3.

Jaguar athletics department adds three new leaders to coaching staff

First-year coaches, who have collegiate playing experience under their belts, look to improve records, build stronger programs.

BY JENNIFER WILSON
STAFF WRITER

The Jaguar athletics department has brought three new head coaches on board for its inaugural NCAA Div. I and Mid-Continent Conference seasons.

All three coaches, who have extensive collegiate experience as players, will attempt to make the transition to coaching this year.

Jean Delaski played soccer at Butler University for her entire collegiate career while majoring in biology and athletic training.

"I love the game of soccer," Delaski said, "and now that I'm out of school, what better way to be involved than coaching?"

Prior to coming to IUPUI, Delaski was an assistant coach at Butler and worked with youth soccer clubs in the area. Although her coaching experience is limited, Delaski is confident in her new position.

"Steve Franklin, the men's soccer coach, has helped me out a lot since I got here," said Delaski. "He has been my primary mentor throughout my first year."

Delaski, originally from Pearl, Miss., found herself in

Delaski Stanton Andrews

Indianapolis after an impressive recruiting trip to Butler. "I fell in love with Butler the moment I saw it," Delaski said. "It was a small, Div. I school that had everything I was looking for."

After graduation from college, Delaski was uncertain of her next destination. She thought about returning to the south. But after four years in Indianapolis, she felt more comfortable staying here.

First-year coach with a new program and more than 20 freshmen, Delaski worried her team would struggle to win a few games this season.

"My goal coming into this year was to somehow pull my team together and improve every game," said Delaski. "This is obviously a building period."

Delaski and the women's soccer team, currently with a 6-7 record, have established themselves in their first year of existence.

As well as taking over the duties of the softball program, Shonda Stanton has also been named the coordinator of marketing for Jaguar athletics.

"I saw the coaching availability at IUPUI and I immediately sent my résumé over," said Stanton. "They brought me in for an interview and it didn't take me long to make my decision."

Prior to Stanton's arrival, the 1996 graduate of the University of North Carolina at Greensboro spent two years as the assistant softball coach at Ashland University. While at Ashland, she received a master's of education degree in sports science.

Stanton, who also served as an assistant coach with UNC Greensboro, looks to improve on last year's 8-28 mark.

"Our goal is to be one of the top four teams in the conference," said Stanton. "No one expects us to be successful, but this team has a lot of potential."

John Andrews, now heading the Jaguar golf program, graduated from Kokomo High School, where he won the Indiana state championship in 1985.

Prior to his arrival at IUPUI, he spent three years as a professional instructor at Saddlebrook Golf Club in Indianapolis.

Andrews graduated from IU, where he earned All-American honors three times. Since then, he has had extensive playing experience on the Professional Golf Association Tour. Andrews, in his first head coaching position, has led the Jaguar golf team to a 13-28 fall record.

Player of the Week

Sara Sparks, a freshman from Roseton, Ind., led the volleyball team last week with 51 kills and 27 digs. She was also named the volleyball Mid-Continent Conference Player of the Week. Sparks, who currently leads the Jaguars in kills and digs, is the first member of the volleyball team to be awarded this honor.

Soccer team chokes 1-0 win out of Leathernecks

BY JENNIFER WILSON
STAFF WRITER

It was a fiercely chilly night Oct. 23 when the men's soccer team took the field against the Leathernecks of Western Illinois. The Jaguars entered the game still searching for their first home victory of the season.

Western Illinois came into the match leading the Mid-Continent Conference with a 3-0 record and with a chance to seal the conference regular season championship. But with an effective Jaguar defense, IUPUI denied the Leathernecks that moment.

With a 1-0 win, the Jaguars kept their post-season hopes alive.

"We came out tonight and played with our backs against the wall," said head coach Steve Franklin, following the game.

With neither team in the first half gaining any momentum, Western Illinois' goalie did some crafty work to keep the Jaguars scoreless in the first half while the Jaguar goalie, freshman Armando Femia, saw limited action at his end. At the end of the first half, both teams remained scoreless. But with all the action taking place within the Jaguar offensive zone, IUPUI clearly had the upper hand.

The defensive battle continued into the second half as Western Illinois gained momentum. But a solid Femia, who recorded four saves in the second half, kept the Leathernecks off-balance.

As play time wound down, it looked like the Jaguars would be heading to their fifth overtime match of the season. But with two minutes left in the second half, sophomore Aaron Yoder found sophomore Thies Hermann, who scored the decisive goal from 14 yards out.

Hermann now leads the Jaguars with seven goals on the season and is currently fourth in the Mid-Con in that same category.

With the top four teams in the conference qualifying for the tournament, the win was an important one for the Jaguars.

"This win was a life or death situation for us," said Franklin. "If we would have lost, it would have been a long shot for us to make the tournament."

Sophomore back Justin Hines battles a Leatherneck defender in the 1-0 victory Oct. 23.
