"FFA Alumni—
Supporters of Agricultural Education"

SUMMER 1993

President's Message

Mark Williams, Oviedo, Florida

The main purpose of the FFA Alumni is to support and promote the FFA Organization, FFA activities and agricultural education on the local, state and national levels. Most of you already know this. That is why you became an Alumni member. But perhaps you have not thought about the larger role your support is playing. Another of our stated purposes is to promote and maintain an appreciation of the American free enterprise system. In my opinion, this is as important a role to support as the main purpose of our association.

Why, you might ask? Well, in my opinion, it is the free enterprise system and the entrepreneurial spirit that built our great agricultural and agribusiness system, as well as being the basic component to our economic strength which built this great nation. I believe it is not only important for us to maintain our free enterprise system and the individual entrepreneurial spirit, but to nurture and develop it to ensure the continuance of our economic strength and way of life.

Actively supporting your local and state affiliates is doing more than you think. If your asking yourself how, let me give you a few examples.

I know many FFA Alumni members have purchased a steer that has been raised, shown and then sold by an FFA member. Perhaps you have purchased plants from the school nursery which were produced by students of the horticulture program. These are just a few examples. But what better way do we have of introducing our students, the future backbone of our free enterprise system, to the reality of how it works.

I think the entrepreneurial spirit, which is to learn something well, work hard to develop it, apply the leadership to get it done and then reap the benefits of your hard work, is something that must be understood by our young adults if our nation is to continue to be the economic super power that we are.

I feel it is very important for YOU to be active and involved in your local and state affiliates. Don't just pay your dues to be able to say your a member. Get involved in some of the many activities that your affiliate can do to support agricultural education, the FFA and our free enterprise system.

Saved Another One

by Paul Wegmeyer

Immediate Past Michigan FFA Alumni President

Talk about a testimonial ... If you ever wondered about the effectiveness of getting people together around a common cause, ask the folks in Whittemore-Prescott. When it appeared their agriscience program was about to be closed because of a teacher retiring, these people in rural northeastern Lower Michigan had a different idea. An idea that if they got together and formed an FFA Alumni Affiliate, they could save their FFA program. They were successful.

It all started with a phone call to our Michigan FFA Alumni office from a concerned chapter FFA officer who wondered if there was anything the state FFA Alumni could do to help save their program. Soon thereafter, I found myself on the road to an evening meeting of parents and past students. Over 30 people were gathered in a tiny classroom when I arrived. After the retiring teacher reviewed the status of the FFA in terms of programs, activities and enrollment, I discussed what FFA Alumni is all about — what we do at the national and state levels, and why it is important that a successful agriscience program be complimented by a strong, local FFA Alumni.

The vote to affiliate was unanimous! Those in attendance prioritized four immediate concerns that would become their program of work. The first included scheduling a meeting with the school board president and school administration to "educate" them on the wants and needs of the community. Within a week, I was back on the road to Whittemore-Prescott with our Michigan FFA Projects Consultant to sit in as resource people. The new Alumni leaders held an open, positive discussion for nearly two hours. A plan of action to save the FFA was developed. Phone calls were placed into the state department of education, and a biology teacher was certified to become the new agriscience teacher. Then, the school principal asked if the Alumni could find a volunteer FFA advisor to help with the FFA students. An Alumni member immediately stepped forward. It became very clear to the community, FFA was alive again in Whittemore-Prescott.

It's amazing what can happen, when you don't care who gets the credit. When people get together to work diplomatically with school board members and school administrators to save a program, good things happen for kids, and in this story, an FFA chapter was saved. What an exciting honor it is to be a state FFA Alumni leader and to know that what we do really does make a difference for the future of the FFA. I have seen new affiliates started for a number of reasons. But this one was different. Perhaps what happened at Whittemore-Prescott, Michigan, is an example of what needs to happen throughout the nation. Rather than let their program close, these folks united to develop a solid plan, a diplomatic strategy of support, and then executed it with precision. When you see an amazing success story like this one, it makes you feel certain that we need an FFA Alumni affiliate complimenting every FFA chapter in every state.

Former FFA Member Designs Specialty Bag Featured for FFA Alumni Fund Raising Program

Bryan C. Foreman received the 1993 "North Texas Small Business of the Year" award. Foreman was president of the Bullard, Texas FFA Chapter in 1968. In 1988, while working as a sewing machine repairman in a Tyler sewing factory, he started a part-time sewing operation in a garage. Bryan Foreman is now president of Bags Specialty Products, Inc., has 20 employees and produces the Hide 'N Seat Pack. This pack is one of the featured items by Free Enterprise Fund Raising for FFA Alumni fund raising. He states, "no matter what business you pursue, your education from agricultural education and FFA will always be a valuable tool. One thing I will always use is the parliamentary procedure practices that I learned in the FFA." He is looking forward to working with FFA chapters to raise money with his Hide 'N Seat Pack, a stadium cushion that becomes a barrel tote bag.

FFA Alumni Sponsors PAS Awards

The national conference was held in March in Moline, Illinois.

"FFA Alumni—50,000 in 2000"

FFA Alumni membership set a record of 35,396 members for 1992. As of June 1, 1993, membership is 1,659 greater than the same month of 1992. The FFA Alumni membership motto for 1993 is "Every Member - Get a Member." You play an important role in the FFA Alumni growth, and we hope you will continue to provide leadership in building a strong community-based organization in support of agricultural education. Contact Woody Cox 703-360-3901.

Tour of Agriculture for Congressional Staff

BASF, as a special project of the National FFA Foundation, is sponsoring a public affairs agricultural industry tour. The tour is being coordinated by the NVATA and the National FFA Alumni. The tour focuses on key congressional staffers of urban representatives and senators who have within their ability the power to positively influence agricultural and agricultural education policy issues. The tour will feature agriculture production and agribusiness industry on the Delmarva Peninsula. This area, located close to Washington, D.C., offers an extremely diverse agriculture base to view. Portions of three states make up the geography of the area. The primary objective is to raise the level of understanding of urban policymakers on the challenges and needs of the agricultural industry.

Local and State FFA Alumni in Action

Oklahoma FFA Alumni Sponsors Leadership Camp

More than 800 FFA members will participate this summer in the Oklahoma FFA Alumni Leadership Training Camp at Camp Tulakogee near Wagoner. Members may choose between four sessions of four days each. For every ten FFA Alumni members in an affiliate, an FFA member may attend camp at no charge.

"The Fire Inside" is this year's camp theme which focuses on teamwork, self-image, goal setting, FFA opportunities and leadership development. FFA members engage in action-packed activities which instill positive attitudes, communication skills, character building qualities and citizenship responsibilities.

The camp will be conducted by the eight 1993-94 state FFA officers. Each officer receives a cash scholarship and a life membership to the Oklahoma and National FFA Alumni.

Fort Valley, Georgia Sponsors Welding Contest

The Fort Valley, Georgia FFA Alumni Affiliate is sponsoring an invitational welding contest for area FFA members. The FFA Alumni will provide staff and electrodes for the contest. The Bluebird Body Company (a school bus body company) will provide the welders and judges. The contest will include a written test on arc welding and a 25-minute welding skills demonstration by each FFA member. The FFA Alumni will present plaques and certificates to the winners.

Kentucky "News"

The Scott County, Kentucky FFA and FFA Alumni grow a garden to provide vegetables for the senior citizens in their area. They "adopt" local nursing home residents to visit and remember on birthdays and holidays. They also sponsored a snow skiing trip for FFA members to Wisconsin.

Virginia FFA Alumni Sponsors Donation Drawing

The Virginia FFA Alumni Association is sponsoring a donation drawing (raffle). The raffle will commence on September 1, 1993, and tickets will be available through May 1, 1994. First prize is a 1994 Chevrolet S-10 Sport truck valued at $16,750. Second prize is an 18 hp Ford lawn tractor valued at $4,750. From the raffle, 15 percent will go to the FFA/Alumni/Young Farmer chapters and the remainder to the Virginia FFA Foundation Endowment Fund. The drawing will take place at the June 1994 Virginia FFA Convention.

Montana FFA Alumni Conducts First Auction

The Montana FFA Alumni held a silent auction during their state convention that raised $468 for FFA scholarships. The top items sold included the state FFA president's gavel and a one-day fishing trip with Leonard Lombardi, State FFA Advisor. A goal of $1,000 has been set for 1994 for FFA scholarships.

Texas FFA Alumni Growth in 1993

The Texas FFA Alumni is continuing to grow! Eight new affiliates and three re-activated affiliates have joined the Alumni team this year. The presentation of Washington Conference Program scholarships to the largest affiliate, the largest new affiliate, the largest numerical increase, the largest percentage increase, and the most new life members have been very successful in generating growth. A scholarship was also given through an essay contest for FFA members. The necessary funds were raised at the first Texas FFA Alumni Auction. Another popular service to affiliates was the development of an FFA recruitment brochure which was personalized for each affiliate.

Personal Development is for Everyone

by Andy Markwart, Student Team Leader, National FFA Organization

We all want to feel better about ourselves and lead more dynamic lives. Personal development, along with developing leadership and career success, are the three major areas of focus in the mission of the National FFA Organization. Personal development concepts are woven into each FFA activity so that students walk away each time with a clearer, more confident sense of themselves. One activity that partners state associations and the national organization to deliver personal development to FFA members is the Made For Excellence (MFE) conference. These two-day conferences are helping over 6,000 young people each year shape a productive, fulfilling lifestyle for themselves. Although these conferences are designed for a teen audience, adults can use the same techniques to find direction in their lives and tap into self-motivation.

The process is simple: get a clear picture of yourself, envision how you want your future to be, and begin mapping how to get there. The first step is to take an objective look at our lives. There are a number of excellent tools to help with this assessment including True Colors, Myers-Briggs and the DISC Personality Profile. These tools hold a mirror up to the individual, reflecting natural strengths and highlighting areas that need growth. As people get a true view of themselves, they find it easier to handle peer pressure, which is not something that just affects teens. The next step is to clearly identify goals and what steps are necessary to achieve them. Since it usually takes other people to help us achieve our goals, instruction is given on how to interact with others.

People are happiest when they are living a life balanced between family, work, their spiritual life and recreation. It is valuable to take inventory of where we spend our time so that no one area receives too much or too little attention. This goes a long way in addressing stress management, which is becoming more important as the pace in our lives quickens. A refresher course in personal development can add vitality and focus to anyone's life, whether you're 14 or 65.

College Scholarships Presented

The National FFA Alumni presented four $1,000 college scholarships to students majoring in agricultural education. The 1993 recipients are Benjamin Cummings, Walton, West Virginia; Amy Green, Palestine, Texas; Bradley Jensen, Holdrege, Nebraska; and Kathryn Southwick, Glenns Ferry, Idaho. These scholarships, for future agricultural instructors, are awarded as part of the FFA Scholarship Program of the National FFA Foundation.

The following letter was sent to the FFA Alumni by Thomas Naismith, principal of the Slocum Independent School District in Elkhart, Texas:

"As principal of Slocum School, where Amy Green graduated as Valedictorian, I want to express my gratitude to you for sponsoring the $1,000 scholarships that she will receive. Amy is a most delightful and deserving young lady. In addition to being an excellent student, she has, as a senior in high school, already completed several semester hours of college work. Amy is Slocum School's first ever FFA Area Officer and has been a real asset to our school by helping out in any way she could.

Amy plans to pursue Agriculture Education at Tarleton State University and should make an excellent Vocational Agriculture teacher and FFA advisor one day. Having myself been a member of the FFA, I can appreciate the positive influence that she will have in the future serving as a teacher of Vocational Agriculture. I appreciate the substantial contribution that you have made in helping her pursue her chosen career. Thank you."

Since our spring 1993 newsletter, the following have contributed $100 or more as executive sponsors of the FFA. The number of years of contributions is listed in parentheses. All alumni are encouraged to become executive sponsors. For information, contact the national FFA Alumni office.

Mugs Donated to FFA Alumni

Warsinsky Decorators, Inc., a company that silk screens designs on mugs, donated over 1,000 mugs to the FFA Alumni in June. The mugs will be given to FFA members, used for door prizes and used in other ways to promote agricultural education. Mugs have already been given to FFA members participating in international trips, national officers of the Postsecondary Agricultural Student Organization, and students coming from other countries to the United States as part of the FFA exchange program. Ed Warsinsky shared that he intends to make this an annual contribution to agricultural education. Odell Miller, a friend of Ed Warsinsky, made the arrangements for this generous contribution.
