VOLUME 6 ISSUE 8

AUGUST 2018

From the Desk of the EAD/ADFA

Welcome back to our newsletter! We decided to take a break in July, as our publication would have appeared right in the middle of the clinic closure time, when we surmised that many colleagues would be away from the school.

So, welcome back to all who did have a chance to take a break, to those who have been away at one of the many conferences and workshops, and those who stayed put. Welcome also to our new first year students in all our programs and all new faculty and staff. There was plenty happening during June and July and, already a month into our new school year, much to come.

Our collaboration with the Japan Implant Practice continues to flourish. Starting with just 9

Japanese members in 2010, there were around 60 who joined Dean Williams, Vanchit John, Dean Morton, David Burr and I for our annual mid-June meeting in Tokyo. The entrepreneurs in Japan, Mr. Kihei Tsunekawa and IUSD Professor Emeritus Yoshiki Oshida, as always, organized an energetic program. It may not be well known, but JIP has been a generous donor to IUSD and in particular, the Fritts Clinical Care Center project. In fact, their generosity will be recognized in September, when Mr. Tsunekawa will be inducted into The IU President's Circle.

In another small but significant development, we have achieved a step forward in collaborating with our colleagues at the Tehran University of Medical Sciences (TUMS). After some negotiation, the IU attorneys decided that we may engage in certain research projects and also joint publications. Drs. Thankam Thyvalikakath and Angeles Martinez-Mier are co-authoring a paper with two colleagues from the Department of Public Health at TUMS. We are also hoping to welcome some faculty who would like to engage in sabbatical study here, although obtaining visas is likely to take some time. However, patience is indeed sometimes rewarded!

Closer to home, August 1st saw Chancellor Paydar and EVC Johnson charge the Search and Screen Committee, together with the professional search firm, with the remit for recruiting the best candidate to succeed Dean Williams when he steps away from that office next June. Given the national focus on senior recruitments to dental schools, we anticipate a challenge but are confident that IUSD has characteristics that make it an attractive venue. As the process evolves, there will be an opportunity for widespread consultation and input.

July 1st marked a first for our school, in that we formally welcomed our IU Fort Wayne colleagues in Allied Education to our fold. Nine fulltime faculty in three disciplines, dental hygiene, dental assisting and laboratory technology join our current two allied health programs here. Several of us have been up to Fort Wayne in order to help onboard and incorporate the faculty and programs. It remains a work in progress and one that is evolving well. It is customary for us to hold an introductory program for our new faculty in the late summer/fall each year, and this is currently being planned. Naturally, our IUFW colleagues will be included.

As we welcome new colleagues, we also have to recognize that others have more than earned their retirement. Dr. Tim Carlson, our distinguished and widely respected colleague in Operative Dentistry and long-term Comprehensive Care clinic director, stepped away from his fulltime position on July 31st. Tim has achieved and contributed a great deal in many spheres to the school and countless students both here and internationally through extensive humanitarian projects. As a fitting capstone to a stellar career, he is this year's recipient of the IDA Outstanding Faculty of the Year Award. Normally presented at our annual Faculty Teaching Conference, this award is determined by a complex rubric of criteria and heavily influenced by student input. Congratulations Tim, and we look forward to welcoming you back as a volunteer as you continue to generously share your expertise and experience.

Finally, to close a loop and return to our new dental students, I happened to observe 20-30 minutes of a 2 hour session titled "Practitioner Panel Discussion", conducted as part of the introductory T520 course. Led and organized by Dr. Susanne Benedict and assisted by Dr. Odette Aguirre, the students heard firsthand about the real world of practice from a panel of general and specialist dentists, with experience ranging from 2 to almost 40 years. The enthusiasm of and participation by the students who have yet to get their fingers wet, was impressive. As for all of us, time will fly and they will be out there soon enough!

Hoping you will all enjoy the remains of the summer and the new year ahead.

Welcome New Faculty

This summer several new faculty joined the Indiana University School of Dentistry. Dr. David Albright joined the department of Orthodontics and Oral Facial Genetics on July 16 as a visiting clinical assistant professor. Dr. Albright, a medal veteran of the United States Airforce, has been in private practice as an orthodontist since 1999. While in the Air Force from 1985-1994 he served as a general dental officer, delivering at such a high level consistently that he earned the First Oak Leaf Cluster in recognition of his meritorious service. Dr. Albright graduated from the IU School of Dentistry with a DDS, as well as MSD and Certificate in Orthodontics. Among his former teaching roles, for IU Northwest he was an extramural volunteer working with dental hygiene and dental assisting students, giving them real world experience in a private practice setting. Here his teaching role involves didactic and clinical instruction in the orthodontic curriculum, supporting evidence-based learning and clinical care and supporting counseling and mentoring.

Our Biomedical and Applied Sciences department gained two faculty members, both of whom were announced in December, but now have arrived: Dr. Yasuyoshi Ueki, formerly of the Department of Oral and Craniofacial Sciences at the School of Dentistry at the University of Missouri-Kansas City, joins us as an associate professor with tenure. His primary responsibilities include continued successful development, implementation, and expansion of his program of research, including acquisition of external funding, collaborations with IUSD faculty and faculty within the IU School of Medicine and other areas on campus. Currently Dr. Ueki serves as the principal investigator for an ROI grant, "Mechanism of Bone Resorption in Periodontitis," aimed at expounding on the pathogenesis of bone loss associated with periodontitis. His primary research interest is in cellular research interest is cellular and molecular mechanisms of TNF-alpha production in macrophages and osteoclast differentiation. Dr. Ueki's professional service includes currently being a member of the Japanese Biochemical Society, the American Society of Bone and Mineral Research, the American Association of Immunologists, and of the editorial board for Bone. He received is MD and PhD from Okayama University Medical School in Japan.

Dr. Tetsuya Yoshimoto, who received his DDS and PhD from Hiroshima University in Japan and, on a Japanese scholarship is completing his research project "The role of TGF-beta on periodontitis," will be under the leadership of Dr. Ueki as a visiting international scholar.

IUSD Faculty Transitions

Movement—transition—is a powerful agitator for individuals and organizations seeking growth and development. Over the past couple of months faculty movement has been felt at the IU School of Dentistry. Dr. Pamella Shaw, formerly of our Office of Diversity, Equity and Inclusion, on June 30 concluded over eight years of service as the Associate Dean for Diversity, Equity and Inclusion here at IUSD. Dr. Shaw's passion for and dedication to current and prospective students of IUSD were unmistakable. No less deniable were her consistent sacrifices to ensure the successful matriculation of IUSD's students in addition to the administrative, educational, and personal efforts she constantly exerted to create an inclusive and supportive environment and culture for students as well as IUSD's employees.

Dr. Achint Utreja also concluded service with IUSD on June 30. Throughout his four years of service in the department of Orthodontics and Oral Facial Genetics he served as an assistant professor and as director of the Pre-Doctoral Orthodontic Program. In 2015 he became director of the Mineralized Tissue Histology Research Laboratory in IUSD's Orthodontics and Oral Facial Genetics department. Dr. Utreja's contributions to our students and through his service—in roles such as a reviewer for New Curriculum Development (Community Based Dental Education, Interprofessional Education), being a member of the Graduate Student Research Committee, and an officer of the Indiana Section of the American Association for Dental Research—well beyond these past four years will be felt.

Dr. Theresa Gonzalez, effective July 1, became IUSD's director of Clinical Quality Improvement. (CQI) In this CQI role, she will have responsibilities that include review of IUSD's current Quality Assurance (QA) program and serving as liaison between departments to coordinate common processes and procedures in QA-related clinical operations.

Effective August 1, Comprehensive Care and General Dentistry had two of its adjunct faculty transition to full-time clinical assistant professor positions with a focus on third and fourth year predoctoral dental student clinical instruction and mentoring: Dr. Michael Sovanich and Dr. Jeffrey Steele. Both also will be clinic directors. Dr. Sovanich additionally has the role of director of the Screening/Intake Emergency Clinic. Dr. Steele additionally has the role of director of the Global Service Learning Program, making his appointment joint with the department of Cariology, Operative Dentistry and Dental Public Health.

Dr. Kafrawy In Memoriam

Dr. Abdel Hady Kafrawy (aka Abdel H. El-Kafrawy, Abdel H. Kafrawy, AH Kafrawy, Kafrawy, The Wizard) passed away Sunday, July 8, 2018. A small service was held at their home that evening and he was buried in Oaklawn Memorial Gardens on Monday, July 9. He is survived by his wife Amal of 46 years, sons Sami and Osman, along with Osman's wife and children, all of Indianapolis.

Dr. Kafrawy retired from the IU School of Dentistry in December 2000 after serving on the faculty of IUSD for 31 years. He obtained his BDS degree from Cairo University, Egypt (1958) & attended Cairo University School of Medicine before obtaining his MSD degree in Oral Diagnosis/Oral Medicine from IUSD in 1962.

Dr. Kafrawy was the kindest, most humble man you could ever hope to meet. He was a very slight man with a very soft voice, a warm smile & a huge heart. He was truly a genius, whose passion for scientific knowledge led him to buy a new book at least once every couple of weeks, walking to the IUPUI Union Building bookstore, even in the harshest of weather, to do so.

He had an addition the size of their rather large living room added to their home to hold his library, and it didn't take long before he was out of room on those wall-to-wall shelves! He had a photographic memory and could pinpoint where he'd read about practically any subject to the book/journal, page, column, and paragraph.

If you were fortunate enough to have either worked with him, or to have taken his classes, those are experiences you are unlikely to ever forget.

The family would appreciate any cards or letters. Julie LeHunt of the department of Oral Pathology, Medicine and Radiology will gladly collect those cards and send them on Friday, August 10. To contact Ms. LeHunt please email her at jlehunt@iu.edu or visit her office in DS 110 of IUSD.

Upward Bound Impact

For the past five years, IUPUI has offered the federally-funded TRIO program called Upward Bound. Upward Bound is designed to reach first-generation, low-income juniors and seniors who have the potential to succeed in college but may need college preparatory help in subject areas such as English, foreign language, science, math, and study skills. The program is also structured to give participants exposure to professional jobs. The IU School of Dentistry has been an active supporter of IUPUI's Upward Bound program since its inception, with primary support and coordination coming from the IUSD Office of Staff Human Resources, the IUSD Office of Diversity, Equity and Inclusion, and secondarily from the IUSD Office of Faculty Affairs.

This summer, Dr. Tawana Ware of IUSD's

department of Pediatric Dentistry, agreed to serve as a supervisor and mentor. During the interview process, Upward Bound participant Herica Ramirez, had her heart set on working in the School of Nursing. Results from the selection process, though, brought her to the IU School of Dentistry, which was not at all in her plans.

During the five weeks the two worked together, bonds between the Ms. Ramirez and Dr. Ware as well as with others of the Pediatric Dentistry team clearly resulted in indelible impressions upon Ms. Ramirez, who initially thought her five weeks were going to be "boring." After an exciting start as a temporary afternoon participant in the Office of Diversity, Equity and Inclusion's "Bridging the Gap" summer program, it was immersion into the energizing world of pediatric dentistry. From exposure to what it is like to work in the front office of a clinic, to helping prepare kits for restorative treatments, to completing daily reflection exercises and preparing and discussing her vision board project by Dr. Ware, Ms. Ramirez's summer Upward Bound experience exceeded even what she thought she might have gained from the School of Nursing. In her words, each day she came, she felt welcomed and that her experience and contributions mattered. The highlight for everyone, was Ms. Ramirez's working with Abby Morgan of Dental Illustrations to create the flyer seen to the right. This is outreach that changes lives!

IUSD Students @ NDA Convention

Four of IUSD's students were attendees and participants at this year's Student National Dental Association (SNDA) convention, which was held in conjunction with the NDA convention from July 11-15 in the Rosen Centre Hotel in Orlando, Florida. The NDA holds the distinction of being the world's largest and oldest health organization of minority health professionals. Now in its 105th year of offering professional development opportunities, networking venues, awards and recognition ceremonies, the SNDA has officially had a presence at the national convention for 45 years. Two of this year's four attendees were Brooke Scott and Shanika Maddox, both DDS candidates for the class of 2019. The IUSD Office of Faculty Affairs (OFA) had an opportunity to inquire about their experience.

OFA: Ms. Maddox, would you share with us what you hoped to gain by attending the convention? Relatedly, how did that hope compare to your actual experience and outcomes?

Ms. Maddox: I wanted to learn more about the business aspect of dentistry as well as gain knowledge about the struggles that minorities have faced in this field. The SNDA conference was one of the most empowering events I have ever attended in my life. The women that spoke changed my perspective on what it means to be a minority in the field of dentistry as well as introduced us to a number of support groups financially and mentoring wise.

OFA: Would you recommend this opportunity to any other student(s)?

Ms. Maddox: Yes! This is an opportunity of growth and network. I met so many influential people as well as people who are willing and have a passion to mentor and guide me with any questions I may have.

OFA: What surprised you about the convention, if anything?

Ms. Maddox: The amount of helping hands available. The amount of people who truly want you to be successful and are willing to do anything to help you get there.

OFA: More broadly speaking, how valuable was attending the convention to you?

Ms. Maddox: It was very valuable. One of the most memorable experiences I have had in dental school.

OFA: What else would you like to share about your attendance (and/or participation) from a personal, social, academic, or professional perspective?

Ms. Maddox: Attending this conference made me realize how special diversity is. Being able to meet new people and realize you are not the only person feeling a certain way was great support and empowerment. I wish Indiana University would allow a SNDA chapter in our school. Diversity is very important and it's not just about one ethnic group, but SNDA provides so much guidance and is a great support group to ensure our success during and after dental school.

OFA: Ms. Sott, would you share with us your thoughts and reactions as an attendee of this year's SNDA?

Ms. Scott: During the conference I hoped to learn more about going into private practice and the obstacles and advice that different dentists around the country had. I also wanted to network with both dentists and dental students. All these [goals] were accomplished during my experience.

I contributed to the convention by volunteering to be in a fashion show and model for a scrubs company. I also participated in the recruitment fair for the undergraduate students representing IUSD. From the fashion show I learned a lot of issues in the work place when it comes to dental offices as far as the attire and how there are conflicts between the doctors, the staff, and the patients as far as temperature etc. This is actually what motivated the scrubs company to make a wardrobe that reached the needs of everyone in the office. At the recruitment fair I learned how few people know about IUSD.

I would recommend this to anyone interested. We were able to do a lot of networking, attend beneficial seminars, and also have a lot of fun with new friends

The convention was valuable; it was relieving to see that students at other schools struggle with similar things we do, and that we actually have it better off than some schools in some ways.

Academic Dental Careers Fellowship

It has been less than one year since she joined IUSD as a faculty member; however, Dr. Allison Scully is wasting no time in contributing to what makes the IU School of Dentistry an institution where faculty inspire and a culture of perpetual discovery shapes our vision. This summer she accepted the responsibility of being a co-liasion for the Academic Dental Careers Fellowship Program (ADCFP). The other co-liasion is Dr. Joan Kowolik. With the environment becoming tougher for recruiting top talent in dentistry to academia, this fellowship program creates another viable talent pipeline. Through ADCFP (<http://www.adea.org/dentalfellow/>), dental students (fellows) connect with faculty mentors to gain practical insight into academic dentistry, accomplishing key objectives such as exploration of career pathways into academic dentistry and enhancement of faculty's ability to foster a culture of teaching and research excellence. To become either a fellow or a faculty mentor, please contact Dr. Scully at scullya@iu.edu.

2018 Assessment Institute

The 2018 Assessment Institute in Indianapolis will be held at the Marriott Indianapolis Downtown Hotel, October 21-23, 2018. The Institute, hosted by IUPUI, is now the nation's oldest and largest event focused exclusively on outcomes assessment in higher education. It is designed to provide opportunities for: individuals and campus teams new to outcomes assessment to acquire fundamental knowledge about the field; individuals who have worked as leaders in outcomes assessment to share and extend their knowledge and skills; and those interested in outcomes assessment at any level to establish networks that serve as sources of support and expertise beyond the dates of the Institute.

The Institute will begin with a selection of optional Pre-Institute workshops on Sunday, October 21. You may sign up and pay for any of the Pre-Institute Workshops when completing the on-line registration form.

Fees for workshops are in addition to Institute registration fees.

The Institute will begin on Monday, October 22nd with the Rise-and-Shine 20-minute sessions and a plenary session featuring Frank D. Sanchez, President of Rhode Island College. This will be followed by special track keynotes and concurrent sessions. The conference will end at 5:00 p.m. on Tuesday, October 23.

The Institute will feature special track keynote sessions and workshops emphasizing assessment in: Community Engagement; ePortfolios; High Impact Practices; Faculty Development; Global Learning; Graduate Education; NILOA; Learning Improvement and Innovation; STEM Education; and Student Affairs Programs and Services.

The concurrent interactive sessions will provide access to experts in all the tracks listed above plus topics on Accreditation, Assessment in General Education, Assessment in All Major Fields, Assessment Methods, Assessment in Community Colleges, Assessment in Online Courses and Programs, Competency-Based Education and Assessment, Emerging Trends in Assessment, Institution-Wide Data Collection/Use, Leadership for Assessment, and Use of Technologies in Assessment.

In addition, there will be sessions with national assessment leaders, a poster session, Rise-and-Shine 20-minute sessions, and additional learning and networking opportunities. To view the schedule, visit here.

Early registration ends Friday, September 14, 2018, and registration will close on Friday, October 5, 2018 or sooner if registration reaches capacity. Individual and group registration rates are available. Dr. Carlson Retires Strong

What better way is there to retire than to retire as though you are in the best days of your life? Dr. Timothy Carlson, whose career with the IU School of Dentistry covers nearly four decades, as the photo indicates, looks and acts as though his career is just beginning. One might think that after 38 years of teaching, combined with mentoring no less than 237 students, making 33 global service-learning trips, decades of ardent support of student outreach clinic efforts in Indiana, squeezing out time to fit in service on at least 60 graduate student thesis committees, producing 30 publications himself, being on time and relevant for more than 100 local, national, and international speaking engagements, he might be at least somewhat tired—ready to coast a while. Well, that is not the educator, humanitarian, mentor, colleague, friend, and exemplar we have come to know and treasure.

Now the career. The career, arguably, cannot be separated from the individual. The past few lines were just a glance into a life fully lived with purpose—a manifestation of a heart for service through the profession of dentistry. Dr. Carlson loved what he did and those for whom it was done. Over the span of his career, many awards were extended to him in recognition of his compassion and dedication. Just days before his retirement, IUSD had one more surprise award for him: the IDA Outstanding Faculty Member of the Year 2018 award—an extraordinary commendation for one entering into retirement, considering the award recognizes excellence in the overall body of a faculty member's work including teaching, research and service. It is granted to an individual who has demonstrated significant and sustained contributions to the teaching, research and service missions of the School of Dentistry. It is given to the best. IUPUI's administration affirmed its recognition of Dr. Carlson's impact as well, granting him emeritus status, effective July 31, 2018. Congratulations, Dr. Carlson! Outstanding indeed.

The Office of the Vice Chancellor for Research is offering an information session on basic proposal development. This information session focuses on basic procedures for developing successful proposals to external funding agencies that support the research, teaching, and service missions of the university and campus.

Topics to be discussed include clarifying project objectives (e.g., narrowing the scope of research), matching project objectives to funding agencies (e.g., identifying funding opportunities), becoming familiar with funding agencies (e.g., understanding agency missions, application procedures, and review criteria), basic budget construction (e.g., calculating indirect costs), and communicating objectives and methods (e.g., explaining complex ideas in a limited space), all related to persuading agencies to give you money. Food and drink are allowed in the session venue.
