Message From the Dean

Dear Alumni and Friends,

It seems that we, as Americans, have been inundated by numbers during the past year. We watched a primary election take place and—if you were like me—you were fascinated by the percentages and predictions that were highlighted in the media, almost on a weekly basis. We watched record amounts of rain result in the highest number of floods in Indiana history. We watched the numbers of the stock market and interest rates rise and fall—and we watched the numbers at the gas pump hit new heights. Everywhere we look, we see numbers.

During the past year—my first as dean of the law school—I have been watching numbers here as well. I have reviewed the school’s tuition income. I have monitored our alumni giving levels. I have examined the LSAT scores and GPAs of our admitted students. As I reflected upon these numbers, I concluded that I should share some of them with you—hence the “By the Numbers” theme of this issue of the alumni magazine.

I think you will find our numbers interesting and illuminating. You will discover, for example, that 133 judges in the State of Indiana are our graduates—and that 40% of the attorneys in the Indiana Attorney General’s office are IU Law-Indianapolis alumni. You will learn that our school has a far more significant impact upon Indiana business and government than any other law school in the state.

You will also learn that we had a very busy spring semester at the school. We hosted our first-ever “Maennerchor Celebration” to honor those individuals who attended law school in that venerable facility. We also sponsored three law review symposia, as well as the inaugural Environmental Law Spring Symposium. Additionally, we bid farewell to Professor Henry Karlson and Associate Dean Jeff Grove, both of whom retired after more than three decades at the law school.

We are also looking to the future and are beginning plans for establishing some new clinics, centers and programs, including an Appellate Advocacy Clinic, a Domestic Violence Program, and a Center for Sports and Entertainment Law. There is a lot going on at your law school. Our activities are on the rise. So are our numbers. Stay tuned and see how they add up.

Very truly yours,

Gary R. Roberts

Disability Conference Looks at Emergency Preparedness

JUST AS FLOOD WATERS AND TORNADOES were impacting Indiana and much of the Midwest, the 6th Annual Conference on Health, Disability, and the Law was held on June 20 on the topic of “Emergency and Disaster Preparedness for Children with Disabilities.” A group of attorneys, social workers, medical professionals, parents of disabled children and others gathered to discuss topics ranging from the level of preparedness of state agencies to what individuals and families can do to prepare.

Keynote speakers Deborah Mulligan, MD, FAAP, Director and Professor, Nova Southeastern University, Center for Children’s Health Policy, and Richard Devylder, Special Advisor to the Director, California Governor’s Office of Emergency Services, spoke and answered questions on a variety of emergency preparedness-related topics.

The annual conference was organized by Heather A. McCabe, ’03 MSW, JD, Director, Public Health Law Program, Hall Center for Law and Health. She was assisted by Professor Eleanor D. Kinney, Hall Render Professor of Law and Co-director of the Hall Center, and Professor Mary Wolf, Director of Clinical Programs. A committee of co-sponsors included representatives from the Riley Child Development Center; Indiana Department of Education; About Special Kids; IN SOURCE: Indiana Resource Center for Families with Special Needs; and the American Academy of Pediatrics.

Inaugural Midwest Family Law Conference Kicks Off on Jazz Fest Weekend

THE INAUGURAL ANNUAL MIDWEST FAMILY LAW CONFERENCE, “Jazzing Up Family Law” was held at the law school on Friday, June 13. The 13th was also the opening day of the Indy Jazz Fest which took place across the street in Military Park.

Hon. James W. Payne, ’72, Director of the Indiana Department of Child Services gave the keynote address on Friday morning (see photo above). Sessions covered topics such as “Greenback Dollar – Family Law, Support, and Poverty,” “Out of Nowhere – Family Law and Relocation,” “In a Sentimental Mood – Constitutional Traditions and Family Law,” “Just the Two of Us? – Family Law Beyond the Duet,” “Ain’t Misbehavin’ – Family Law and Abuse,” “In A Mellow Tone – Ethics and Collaboration in Family Law,” and “Back Home Again In Indiana – Closing Presentations.”

The conference was co-sponsored by Midwest Family Law Consortium Founding Members Indiana University School of Law – Indianapolis, University of Missouri - Kansas City (UMKC), and William Mitchell College of Law. IU School of Law–Indianapolis Professor Jennifer Drobac organized the event which attracted participants and presenters from across the United States. Professor Maria Pabon Lopez of the IU Law – Indianapolis faculty, also presented at the conference.

Professor Gerard Magliocca Receives Fulbright Award

PROFESSOR GERARD MAGLIOCCA will hold the Fulbright-Dow Distinguished Chair at the Roosevelt Center for American Studies in the Netherlands in the fall of 2008.

"I am incredibly excited about this opportunity to represent our country in the Netherlands," Magliocca said. "By interacting with European scholars interested in American studies, this Fulbright Award will enrich my scholarship on constitutional law and allow me to make friends and memories that will last a lifetime."

Magliocca is one of approximately 800 U.S. faculty and professionals who will travel abroad through the Fulbright Scholar Program. Established in 1946 under legislation introduced by the late Sen. J. William Fulbright of Arkansas, the program’s purpose is to build mutual understanding between the people of the United States and the rest of the world. Recipients of Fulbright awards are selected on the basis of academic or professional achievement, as well as demonstrated leadership potential in their fields.

Magliocca, who joined the faculty following two years as an associate with Covington & Burling and one year as a clerk for Judge Guido Calabresi on the Second Circuit, received the Best New Professor Award from the student body in 2004 and the Black Cane (Most Outstanding Professor) Award in 2006. His research interests focus on constitutional law, legal history and intellectual property.

The Fulbright program, America’s flagship international educational exchange program, is sponsored by the United States Department of State, Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs. The program operates in more than 150 countries worldwide.

Judge William Lawrence Appointed Federal District Judge

U.S. MAGISTRATE JUDGE WILLIAM T. LAWRENCE, ’73, was unanimously approved by the Senate Judiciary Committee to be a federal district judge for the Southern District of Indiana, and has been confirmed by the full Senate. President Bush selected Lawrence in February of this year to take the seat vacated by Judge John D. Tinder who now sits on the United States Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit.

While introducing Lawrence at the Senate Judiciary Committee nomination hearing, Senator Richard Lugar praised Judge Lawrence for his “high energy, resolute integrity, and remarkable dedication to public service.”

Judge Lawrence has served as a public defender in Marion County and as a Master Commissioner of the Marion County Circuit Court. He was elected to the Marion County Circuit Court in 1996, and appointed to the Federal bench in 2002. Judge Lawrence has experience as a Public Defender in the Marion County Criminal Court and in private practice. Other community contributions have included his appointment as Executive Director of Indiana’s first Merit Selection Commission on Federal Judicial Appointments (1980); service on the Indianapolis Fire Department Civilian Merit Board (1983-1989); and Chairmanship of the Indianapolis Bar Association’s Continuing Legal Education Commission (1997-2003).

Todd Vare, '94 and Paul Jefferson, '02 Argue Successfully Before the U.S. Supreme Court

ALUMNUS TODD VARE, '94, a partner at Barnes & Thornburg in Indianapolis, argued for the defense in U.S. v. Santos, a case the United States Supreme Court recently decided in the defense’s favor. Vare was assisted in this pro bono work by Paul Jefferson, '02, also an attorney at Barnes & Thornburg.

On June 2, in a split decision the Supreme Court issued an opinion authored by Justice Antonin Scalia, holding that money laundering requires proof of the use of “profits,” not merely “gross receipts.”

In his opinion, Justice Scalia wrote that the term “proceeds” is ambiguous and, therefore, the more narrow meaning as “profits” must be adopted. Because the money laundering conviction of Santos was based on merely paying gambling winners and “collectors” who collected bets—transactions paid out of gross receipts, not profits—Santos and his co-defendant did not engage in transactions involving profits.

“We are very pleased with the result in this case. The Court acknowledged the fundamental problems with the money laundering statute—especially as applied to our case—and the opinion of Justice Scalia, and even the dissenting opinions of Justices Breyer and Alito, reflect various ways to try to alleviate those problems,” Vare said.

It is a rare opportunity to argue before the U.S. Supreme Court. Of the 7,000 or so certiorari petitions filed each year, the Supreme Court agrees to hear about 100 cases.

Linda Pence, '74 Candidate for Indiana Attorney General

AT THEIR STATE CONVENTION IN JUNE, Indiana Democrats chose Linda Pence, '74, as their party’s candidate for Attorney General of Indiana for the Fall 2008 general election. She will face Republican Greg Zoeller, Deputy Attorney General of Indiana, in the general election this November.

Following graduation from the law school’s evening program, Pence began her legal career with the U.S. Department of Justice (DOJ), investigating corporations for bribery, embezzlement and tax fraud. She also worked as an instructor at the FBI Academy and the Federal Law Enforcement Training Center. She attained notoriety in 2001 when she helped the state of Indiana win a record settlement of more than $14 million against Guide Corporation for illegally releasing toxic chemicals that killed tons of fish in the White River.

After returning to Indiana from Washington, D.C., Pence started her own law firm and has worked at several other prominent Indianapolis firms. Currently a partner with Taft Stettinius & Hollister LLP, she was recently recognized as an Indiana Super Lawyer by Law and Politics Media, and also was listed in Chambers USA Guide: America’s Leading Lawyers for Business. An experienced litigator, she works on both prosecution and defense of white collar crimes and civil litigation matters.

Alumni Weekend Honorees Include Kennedy, Neale and Rucker

The 2008 Alumni Weekend and Class Reunion activities took place at the law school on Friday, May 16, 2008. The events kicked off with the Alumna of the Year Award presentation to Sheila Suess Kennedy, '75. The annual Classes Without Quizzes CLE Program featured Michael J. Pitts, Associate Professor and Dean's Fellow, who lectured on "The Voting Rights Act and the Era of Maintenance," and Linda Kelly Hill, M. Dale Palmer Professor of Law, who addressed "The Poetic Justice of Immigration." The CLE program was followed by the All-Class Reception, which took place in the reading room of the Ruth Lilly Law Library.

AT 6:30 P.M., THE ALUMNI CELEBRATION Banquet took place in the Conour Atrium at the law school. Law Alumni Association president Nathan Feltman, '94, served as emcee for the evening's festivities. The Distinguished Alumni Award was presented to William R. Neale, '73. Neale, a partner at Kreig DeVault, LLP, in Indianapolis, is the chair of the firm's Business Practice Group. He is also Chairman of the Board of United Student Aid Funds, the nation's largest student loan guarantor, and is a director of the Greater Indianapolis Chamber of Commerce. In 1992, he was appointed by President George Bush to a three-year term on the Council of the Administrative Conference of the U.S., a government agency which advised the Executive Branch, the Congress and the Courts on ways to improve the federal administrative law process. Neale has also been a member of the Federal Judicial Merit Selection Commission and the Presidential Merit Rank Awards Board.

His exemplary service to the law school includes serving on the Board of Visitors since 1989, and serving as chair of that group from 1990-1993. A veteran of numerous volunteer efforts for fundraising on behalf of the school, Neale received the IUPUI Spirit of Philanthropy Award in 2003. Neale has also received the Kiwanis Club of Indianapolis Civic Award, and has been designated an Indiana Super Lawyer. Additionally, he serves on numerous boards and his community involvement spans a wide range of causes including cultural, political, and business-oriented organizations.

Neale was introduced prior to the award presentation by law school Dean Emeritus, Norman Lefstein.

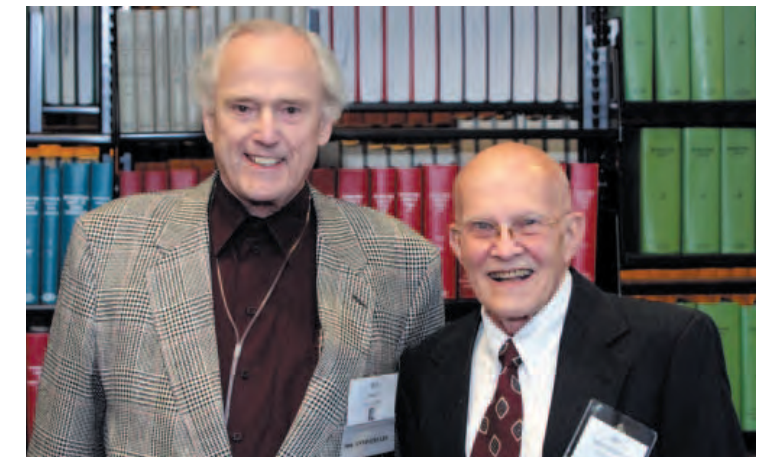

Robyn M. Rucker, '02, was the inaugural recipient of the law school's Early Career Achievement Award. Rucker serves as the Coordinator of the Indiana CLEO Program. In his recommendation letter for Robyn, alumnus Jimmie McMillian, '02, wrote: "From administering the State of Indiana's Victims Assistance Program as a Deputy Attorney General to recruiting, supporting and mentoring minority students in the ICLEO program, Robyn has made outstanding contributions."

Simply put, Robyn is passionate about people. She is committed to the idea of service as a means of providing opportunities to those individuals who are less fortunate.”

Rucker served as treasurer of the Marion County Bar Association, where she also was mentor in its “Girls Rites of Passage Program,” an all-day program designed to introduce 60 African American elementary, middle and high school girls to the legal field. She also assisted with the implementation of an annual MCBA Scholarship Soiree fundraiser to raise funds for MCBA scholarships for deserving students. In addition, Rucker has conducted mock interviews for law students attempting to improve their legal skills, participated as a bar exam mentor for students struggling to pass the bar exam and assisted the Black Law Students Association with event planning and fundraising. She also organized the inaugural ICLEO Family Reunion Banquet in 2007 that brought together all of the students who have benefited from the ICLEO program and honored the program’s founders. Rucker was introduced at alumni weekend by law school classmate Jimmie McMillian. ■

SHEILA SUESS KENNEDY, '75, NAMED OUTSTANDING ALUMNA OF THE YEAR

FELLOW ALUMNI, MEMBERS OF THE JUDICIARY, past and present law school deans, and many others were on hand to honor Sheila Suess Kennedy, '75, who received the Alumnae Network’s Outstanding Alumna of the Year award on May 16th in Inlow Hall. Kennedy is the 9th recipient of the award.

The Chief Justice of the Indiana Supreme Court, Hon. Randall T. Shepard, gave a special tribute to his friend and colleague, Sheila Kennedy. After acknowledging her distinguished career as a teacher, practitioner, consultant, and advisor to mayors, governors and senators, he commended her “determination to build a decent and prosperous society,” based on a “commitment to public dialogue.” He lauded her devotion to good writing, as evidenced not only in her many books and chapters of books, but in her newspaper column in The Indianapolis Star. Knowing Sheila has been, he said, “a great gift in my life.”

Kennedy, who called herself a “recovering lawyer,” thanked everyone for the honor of the award. “I have never regretted my decision to attend this law school. The education I received here prepared me for far more than a career—it gave me a framework and tools for further study, for the exercise of a more informed citizenship, and for a deeper understanding of the quintessentially American values I hope to pass on to my children and grandchildren. Law school was the start of a grand intellectual adventure—and I am grateful every day that I was fortunate enough to begin that adventure here.”

Kennedy is Associate Professor in the Indiana University School of Public and Environmental Affairs (SPEA) on the IUPUI Campus, where she joined the faculty in 1998. A cum laude graduate of the law school, Kennedy served as executive director of the Indiana Civil Liberties Union from 1992 to 1998. She has also worked as president of Kennedy Development Services, partner in Mears Crawford Kennedy & Eichholtz, Corporate Counsel of the City of Indianapolis, and associate attorney at Baker & Daniels. Kennedy also ran as a Republican candidate for the 11th Congressional District in 1980.

She a member of the Indiana State Bar Association, Indiana Leadership Celebration, American Political Science Association, Midwest Political Science Association, Academy of Political Science, American Society for Public Administration, Indiana Society for Public Administration, Law & Society Association, Society of Professional Journalists, Association for Public Policy Analysis and Management, Association for Research on Nonprofit Organizations and Voluntary Action, Standing Panel on Social Equity, and the National Academy of Public Administration.

Her fields of expertise include charitable choice, civil liberties/civil rights, religion and public policy, and nonprofit organizations. She is the author of numerous books and chapters, including her most recent work, God and Country: America in Red and Blue (Baylor University Press, 2007). ■

Inaugural Environmental Law Symposium Held in April

ON APRIL 8, 2008, the newly-formed Environmental Policy Forum held its first Environmental Law Symposium. The half-day event offered a career panel on jobs in environmental law for current students, a CLE program on climate change for alumni as well as students, and a networking reception for alumni, students and faculty interested in environmental law, natural resources law, and energy law. The event was co-sponsored by the Environmental Law Society; the IU Law Alumni Association; the Environmental Law Alumni Steering Committee; Baker & Daniels, LLP; Bose McKinney & Evans, LLP; Krieg DeVault, LLP, and Richard F. Bulger, '93.

The Environmental Policy Forum is a new law school research and educational initiative to examine legal and institutional frameworks for the environment, and support leaders in government, business, and the non-profit sector in their efforts to reform and strengthen those frameworks. Research emphasizes innovative and collaborative approaches to complex environmental challenges such as climate change, energy policy, and development impact. Public dialogue (through workshops, roundtables, and symposia) will draw on this research and engage scholars across disciplines with decision-makers at local, state, national, and international levels to analyze and debate policy alternatives. This deliberative process will provide a neutral ground to seek compromise and advance cooperative solutions to public environmental concerns. The publication of white papers, policy briefs, and legislative guides will also stimulate wider discussion of environmental policy alternatives.

Professor Eric Dannenmaier is the Forum's chair and Professors Dan Cole and Andrew Klein are affiliated with the project. The initiative will raise the law school's profile as a place for vital policy deliberation at the same time that it provides learning opportunities through direct student involvement in legislative and regulatory processes.

In addition to the Symposium, the Forum also sponsored an Environmental Law and Energy Policy roundtable with environmental advisors for Senator Barack Obama at IUPUI in late April. ■

Terry Hall, '00, a partner at Baker & Daniels, spoke on the topic "Climate Change: Recent Developments and their Relevance for Indiana and the Midwest," for the CLE portion of the inaugural Environmental Law Spring Symposium. Professor Dan Cole, R. Bruce Townsend Professor of Law, was also a presenter at the program.

Professor Eric Dannenmaier, right, chats with alumni Vicki Wright, '98, a partner at Krieg DeVault, LLP, and Matthew Klein, '01, an associate at Bose McKinney & Evans, LLP, at the inaugural Environmental Law Spring Symposium. Wright and Klein were instrumental in forming the environmental law alumni group.

GRATEFUL ALUMNUS OFFERS GIFT—AND A CHALLENGE

by Alicia Dean Carlson

GRATITUDE.

That's what Reed S. Oslan, '87, says he feels toward the IU School of Law-Indianapolis, and it's why he's pledged $100,000 over the next 10 years and issued a challenge to other alumni to contribute to the school.

"But for the law school, I wouldn't be where I am today," says Oslan.

Where he is: a partner in the Chicago office of the law firm Kirkland & Ellis LLP; a successful litigation attorney who handles commercial, transactional and international disputes, especially in venture capital-related disputes and in the context of bankruptcy proceedings.

In recent years, he's represented clients in international arbitrations and in state and federal courts around the country—including Indiana, where he has represented Consecro Inc. in its litigation against former executives.

But it's the law school on which Oslan reflects when asked about his career.

A self-described "late bloomer" when it came to academics, Oslan left his hometown of Munster, Indiana for the University of Colorado at Boulder. He was uncommitted to a major—or even an area of interest—until forced by an academic advisor to admit that he might want to go to law school eventually.

"It was a purely uninformed decision," he says.

After graduating with a degree in political science in 1984, Oslan returned to Indiana. His family wondered whether Oslan would be up to the rigor of law school, but he surprised everyone—including himself—when he flourished at the IU School of Law-Indianapolis.

"I had never really fully committed myself in an educational setting, but I was scared enough about law school to do so and I ended up doing really well," Oslan says. "It was a fabulous experience."

During law school, he clerked for the Honorable James E. Noland, Chief Judge of the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Indiana, and worked as a summer associate at the Indianapolis firms of Harrison & Moberly and Ice Miller. After graduating magna cum laude, and as associate editor of the INDIANA LAW REVIEW, Oslan went to work for Ice Miller.

His mother's death in 1988 prompted Oslan to consider employment options near his father and brother, so he decided to accept an offer at Kirkland & Ellis.

Among others, Oslan credits Professor Lawrence A. Jegen and his fearsome tax class with sparking his interest in the types of financial cases he handles for clients today.

"I really didn't have a finance or tax background," Oslan says. "Professor Jegen's classes were difficult and he made you learn it. It was super effective. I thought I would be a tax lawyer as a result. Although I did not pursue a career in tax law, my cases often involve finance, tax and valuation issues. What I learned in his classes is in my arsenal today."

Oslan, in turn, hopes his gift can make a difference in the law school's arsenal.

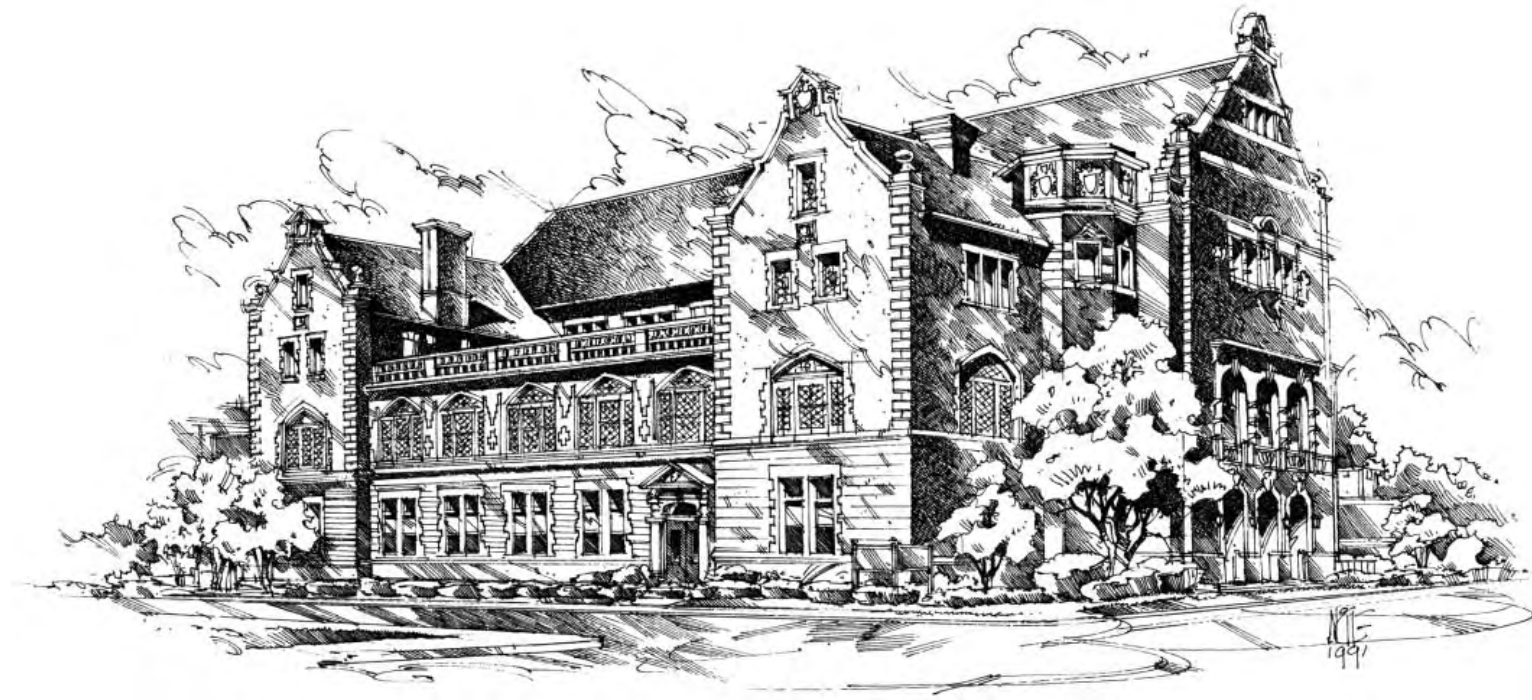

"I really do feel so grateful for my education," he says. "Our law school produces top lawyers, but doesn't have the resources it needs to expand its programs. I really do believe that people who have succeeded as a result of the law school have a duty to give back." ■

$100,000

Amount pledged by Reed S. Oslan over 10 years to motivate other alumni to give to the school. The Oslan Challenge: To get 25 new annual donors to the Partners in Progress (PIP) unrestricted giving level of $1,000 or more. Oslan will match each new PIP donor's gift with $1,000 for a total of $25,000. Why: "I hope to use my involvement to get others involved. For me, personally, I feel like I can make a difference."

Reed Oslan, '87, a partner at the Chicago office of Kirkland & Ellis, LLP, pledged a gift of $100,000 to the law school to spur giving by his fellow law alumni.

MAENNERCHOR CELEBRATION

More than 150 graduates of the law school and their guests gathered on May 13 in Inlow Hall to celebrate the Maennerchor era. Alumni and faculty who attended or taught classes in the historic building greeted old friends, exchanged stories and toasted the law school and the Maennerchor building.

SHORTLY AFTER THE INDIANA LAW SCHOOL became part of Indiana University in 1944, the new IU School of Law – Indianapolis evening division moved into the Maennerchor building. The Maennerchor was a striking landmark built in 1907 for the male vocalist group of German heritage known as the maennerchor. It had many quirks and a lot of character, including a marble lobby and staircase, ornate wooden carvings and beautiful stained glass windows. Students from that era have many fond memories of those days, including the students who lived in the building’s basement known as “The Hole.”

After the law school moved to the “new” building at 735 West New York Street in 1970, Indiana University sold the Maennerchor building and it was torn down a few years later. A few pieces of the Maennerchor building are preserved in Inlow Hall, including a carved wooden fireplace mantel located in the Woodard Room in the Ruth Lilly Law Library, as well as several panels of stained glass which hang in the hallway and in the Elisabeth M. Daily Lounge on the third floor. ■

Professors Grove and Karlson Retire

On March 29, Dean Gary R. Roberts and Vice Dean Paul N. Cox welcomed current and emeriti faculty and their spouses to a retirement celebration for Professors Jeffrey W. Grove and Henry C. Karlson. The celebration was held in the Conour Atrium and both retiring faculty members were presented with wooden chairs engraved with the Indiana University seal and an inscription commemorating their retirement. Because both Grove and Karlson spent the greater part of their careers in the law school's old building located at 735 West New York Street, they were also presented with souvenir bricks from that building, mounted and inscribed.

PROFESSOR GROVE RETIRES AFTER 36 YEARS AT THE LAW SCHOOL

Professor Jeffrey W. Grove retired in December of 2007 after 36 years on the IU School of Law – Indianapolis faculty. For more than 15 years, Professor Grove directed the law school's Chinese Law Summer Program, launched in 1987 at East China University of Political Science & Law in Shanghai, PRC, and relocated to Renmin (People's) University of China

School of Law, Beijing, in 1998. Professor Grove traveled to China many times, visited law schools and lectured to students, law faculties, judges and lawyers throughout China. He was on sabbatical leave in China during the spring and summer of 1994. He is also an Honorary Professor of Renmin University.

Following his graduation with honors from law school at the George Washington University, where he was notes editor of their law review, Professor Grove served for two years as law clerk for the Honorable Ruggero J. Aldisert, United States Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit, and assisted Judge Aldisert in teaching the Federal Jurisdiction course at the University of Pittsburgh School of Law.

After joining the IU School of Law-Indianapolis faculty in 1971, he served as Associate Dean for Academic Affairs (1981-86) and Acting Dean (1986-spring 1988).

When Professor Jeff Grove retired in December, he was presented with a formal portrait to be displayed on the second floor of Inlow Hall with the portraits of all of the school's former deans. Professor Grove served as interim dean from 1986-88. He is shown here with other individuals who have served as dean or interim dean of the school. From left: William F. Harvey, Susanah M. Mead, Jeffrey W. Grove, Gary R. Roberts and Gerald L. Bepko. The portrait was painted by noted Indianapolis artist, Rob Day.

Combined number of years that Professors Grove and Karlson were on the law school faculty.

He later served as Associate Dean for Graduate Studies and was responsible for establishing and overseeing the law school's graduate law degree programs: the Master of Laws (LL.M.) and the Doctor of Juridical Science (S.J.D.).

He served as faculty advisor for the LL.M. track in American Law for Foreign Lawyers, Chair of the Board of Faculty Advisors of the INDIANA INTERNATIONAL & COMPARATIVE LAW REVIEW, member of the Board of Directors of the law school's Center for International & Comparative Law, and a member of the Board of Visitors of the University of Pittsburgh School of Law. He is an elected member of the American Law Institute (ALI). He was Visiting Professor of Law at the University of Illinois College of Law (fall 1990) and the University of Idaho College of Law (1979-80 and spring 1988). Professor Grove has published articles in legal periodicals in both the United States and China.

PROFESSOR KARLSON'S LAW SCHOOL CAREER SPANS 31 YEARS

Professor Henry C. Karlson joined the IU School of Law – Indianapolis faculty in 1977. Prior to that time he served for eight years in the United States Army where he was appointed a trial judge as a member of the U.S. Army Trial Judiciary, which included service as a trial judge in Vietnam. Professor Karlson also taught at the University of Illinois College of Law.

Karlson's areas of expertise include criminal law, evidence, trial practice, and child abuse. He is often consulted by the media on legal matters and is frequently quoted in print media as well as in television interviews.

In addition to co-authoring a book on child abuse, articles written by Professor Karlson have appeared in the APSAC Handbook on Child Maltreatment, the INDIANA LAW REVIEW, the JOURNAL OF Professor Henry Karlson joined the faculty in 1977.

CHILD ABUSE AND NEGLECT, the Annals of Emergency Medicine and the DEFENSE LAW JOURNAL. In addition, he has delivered papers at more than one hundred continuing legal education programs.

Professor Karlson has been qualified as an expert witness on the issue of the proper methods for questioning very young children, and on the issue of lawyer competency. He is a member of the Association of Counsel for Children, the American Professional Society on the Abuse of Children, the Association of Trial Lawyers of America, the Order of the Coif and a former member of the Indiana Supreme Court Committee on Rules of Evidence and the Board of Examiners of the National Board of Trial Advocacy. ■

JAMES P. WHITE LECTURE ON LEGAL EDUCATION

ANTONIO GARCÍA-PADILLA, President of the University of Puerto Rico, delivered the 2008 James P. White Lecture on Legal Education on Tuesday, March 4. His talk was entitled, “The Internationalization of Legal Education.”

President García-Padilla, a native of Coamo, Puerto Rico, received his B.B.A. degree in 1974 and his J.D. in 1978 from the University of Puerto Rico. He received his LL.M. from Yale Law School in 1981. García-Padilla served as law clerk to Judge Angel M. Martin of the Supreme Court of Puerto Rico, and to current United States Supreme Court Justice Stephen G. Breyer, then a judge on the United States Court of Appeals for the First Circuit. He returned to work as an Assistant Professor at the University of Puerto Rico Law School and as an assistant to the Chief Justice of Puerto Rico. He also served as Assistant for Federal Affairs to the Governor of the Commonwealth. He was named Associate Dean of the law school in 1983, and Dean in 1986. He has taught courses on civil procedure and commercial law, as well as general introduction to law. During his tenure at the law school, he created exchange programs, oversaw a thorough curricular revision, and oversaw the modernization of the library. In 1998, he was elected to the Council of the American Law Institute. From 1999 to 2001 he was a member of the University of Puerto Rico’s Centennial Commission. He is currently a member of the Editorial Board of In-forma, a new architectural magazine that has already won two prizes for design. He was appointed the eighth President of the University of Puerto Rico in November 2001.

The James P. White Lecture on Legal Education was created upon the occasion of Professor White’s retirement as Consultant on Legal Education to the American Bar Association (ABA) in 2000. He held the Consultant’s position with the ABA for more than 25 years. Members of the ABA’s Section of Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar and other friends contributed to the establishment of an annual lecture in his honor at the law school, where he has served on the faculty since 1966. ■

Indiana Supreme Court Lecture: Anatomy of Freedom: John Adams on a Global Scale

delivered the annual Indiana Supreme Court Lecture on Tuesday, March 25 in the Wynne Courtroom at Inlow Hall.

Honorable Margaret H. Marshall delivered the 2008 Indiana Supreme Court Lecture at the law school.

Indiana Supreme Court Chief Justice Randall Shepard introduced Chief Justice Marshall at the annual lecture sponsored by the Indiana Supreme Court.

A large crowd of students and alumni attended Chief Justice Marshall’s lecture in the Wynne Courtroom in March.

Appointed to her position in 1999, Chief Justice Marshall is the first woman to serve as Chief Justice, and the second woman appointed to serve as an Associate Justice of that court. Born and raised in South Africa, Chief Justice Marshall obtained her B.A. in 1966 from the University of the Witwatersrand in Johannesburg. While an undergraduate, she was elected president of the National Union of South African Students, at the time a leading anti-apartheid organization. She came to the United States to pursue her master’s degree at Harvard. Later, she was unable to return to South Africa because of her activities opposing apartheid.

She received a master’s degree in education from Harvard in 1969 and a J.D. from Yale Law School in 1976. Following graduation, she practiced law for sixteen years in Boston, becoming a partner in the Boston firm of Choate, Hall & Stewart. She became a U.S. citizen in 1978, and in 1992 was the first woman to be appointed Vice President and General Counsel of Harvard University. She was first appointed to the bench in 1996.

Chief Justice Marshall serves on the Boards of the Conference of Chief Justices and the National Center for State Courts. Before her appointment to the Supreme Judicial Court, she served as President of the Boston Bar Association and was a member of the Lawyers’ Committee for Civil Rights Under Law, both in Massachusetts and nationally. She was a trustee of The Africa Fund, a member of the board of Africa News, and serves as a trustee of Southern Africa Legal Services Foundation. In 1999, Chief Justice Marshall was elected to the Council of the American Law Institute. She has served on numerous other civic and charitable boards. ■

News from Bert Owens in Iraq...Point the Way!

The following are excerpts from updates sent by Lt. Col. Bert Owens, '02, an Indianapolis attorney and a member of the Indiana National Guard who was mobilized last January for service in Iraq. These excerpts have been edited and are just highlights of much longer messages Owens has sent home to friends, family and colleagues in the U.S. (Note: Because of space constraints, these excerpts do not include a truly entertaining story about Lt. Col. Owens' encounter with a giant spider in the barracks at Fort Stewart, Georgia. Because the story is too great not to share, you can find it on our school's website, www.indylaw.indiana.edu in the Class Notes section.)

Bert Owens, '02.

From Update One (2/6/2008):

Greetings and salutations from Fort Stewart, GA. Home of the 3rd Infantry Division (ID), the spearhead of Iraq freedom. It was the 3rd ID that led the charge across the desert from Kuwait to Baghdad. "Point the Way," is our Brigade (BDE) motto. It exemplifies the spirit and motivation that we live by, and that I will try to maintain during this year-long mobilization.

HERE WE GO BY WAY OF THE DOME

Our mobilization started in earnest on January 2nd. The State of Indiana and the Indianapolis Colts gave us a send off that I will always remember at the RCA Dome. It felt great to walk onto that field with over three thousand of my brothers and sisters in arms—three thousand "Hooahs," (a name we call our troops, along with "Joe," a term of endearment), all in one place....After all the fanfare, we shifted into army time. "Army Time" is hurry up and wait. We did not leave the dome for our buses until 5:00 p.m. (after having arrived at the dome at 11:00 a.m.). We left Indianapolis at 5:30 p.m. and I said goodbye to home, as I headed for another year across the pond.

HOME SWEET HOME

Our base in Georgia is called Camp Anaconda, just like the Logistical Support Area (LSA) that we will occupy in Iraq. Our barracks were very old and had not been used for years. There were dead American Cockroaches on the floor. I went to look for a broom—none to be found. I looked for a mop—none to be found. We were tired and had a whole day of work to do so I gave up on the barracks, and started directing my Task Force. We had to draw vehicles, weapons and get Small Pox shots.

The vehicle draw was dangerous, with soldiers and equipment moving in concert. We were really watching to ensure we did not run over someone or get soldiers trapped between vehicles....We had the pleasure of eating at the new mess hall on Anaconda. It was the worst meal that I have ever eaten at any mess hall in the military, and that was a fatal mistake by the folks at Fort Stewart. There is an old saying in the military, "troops can take bugs, dirt, discomfort, weather and long days, but mess with their food or mail and you are in trouble."

FEED THE TROOPS

The problem with chow was two-fold: first, they have us eating standing up. This was no surprise because we knew this coming in. The First Army Commanding General thought it was a good idea to have us stand up to eat so that we would not waste time in the chow hall, the idea being to maximize training time. (The General just retired a couple of weeks ago.) So we stand at tall tables to eat with our body armor on. My body armor weighs approximately 45 pounds. I also have my M-4 rifle hanging around my neck. Here is the problem: all of our lives, our parents taught us to sit at the table to eat, and now I am standing at a four-foot table, with my six-foot-three frame, eating a meal, with gear hanging all over me. In the words of the two brew masters from Guinness, "BRILLIANT." Our command has fought this issue to no avail and so has every other command that has mobilized in the First Army area in the last year.

The second problem with the food, initially, was that it did not taste good and there was not enough to eat. They actually ran out of food. The Hooahs went crazy, the CSMs went nuts and all three COLs, especially the boss, exploded....The three star general at 1st Army [reacted] on a level that I had not seen in my 29 years of service....I watched our mess hall change within three days to one of the best that I have ever eaten in....The lesson learned was simple--don't mess with Joe's food. Now, if I could just get them to give us chairs.

From Update Two (3/4/2008):

(Note: Lt. Col. Owens uses initials to identify some of the soldiers he refers to in this segment.)

Hello from Fort Stewart, Georgia (FSGA), this is update number two from my long journey... My focus of this update will be more serious as I take you through the intense training that we went through here at FSGA. My job is to train my battalion for combat. I will close the update by explaining about an incident that occurred several weeks ago to one of my companies.

WARLOCK 11

A few weeks ago my unit was conducting some additional training to cross-train crew members. I had authorized this training because, as I mentioned, my job is to train my personnel to survive in combat.

Warlock 11 was one of four HUMVEEs that started to execute its maneuver to move to the right, and Gunner W released her turret lock to rotate her gun from the front to the right side. However, Warlock 11 was too far to the right and the right front wheel started to leave the road. The race to survive was on.

Gunner W had released her weapon and it started down. Gunner W is 22 years old. If she does not clear the turret, her life will end at 22. She is executing roll over procedures, her adrenaline is flowing, she is physically fit, and she is moving at a speed that you would see as a blur.

Inside the HUMVEE, the Vehicle Commander and Squad Sergeant V realize what is happening and months of training take over. The crew yelled, "Roll over, roll over, roll over!" SSG V grabbed W to pull her down from the turret. By the third scream, the vehicle was rolling.

W had to stay in the vehicle as it rolled; she had no time to lock the turret, which would free spin as the vehicle rolled over. If her arm or any part of her went out of the turret, the results could be devastating.

We knew that. V knew that. Fight, never quit, survive, do not go back into the turret.

When the vehicle stopped, W was suspended in the air on the high side of the vehicle, momentarily, and then dropped to the right side, and to the ground, with a thud. Then Vehicle Commander C, called for a status, "One up," (the driver) "Two up," (the VC), "Three up," (SSG V) and W said "Four up." My soldier was alive.

CLOSING

When you get this, I will be headed to Iraq. Warlock 11 simply stresses the danger of our business and why we have trained so hard. My Battalion is ready for combat and so am I. As I close this update, I want to share this with you: I work with the best young people in the world. Yesterday I saw a young soldier that I served with in Afghanistan. We went on many missions together, bounced on the same roads, ate the same dust. We spoke very briefly. Then as we parted, I hugged him and said "Let's go do this again." His reply sums up my beliefs as a Battalion Commander in the greatest army in the world. He said "With Strength and Honor, Sir." To all of you, God bless, with Strength and Honor, we go to war, POINT THE WAY

From Update Three (4/19/2008):

Greetings and salutations from the land of Woe. I call Iraq the land of Woe or the land of Whoa. Both names apply to this place. This is the desert; it is also the cradle of civilization. I have been in country since March 14th, so let's get to it, update number three.

STAYING LEFT OF THE BOOM!

Iraq is a dangerous place and the greatest threat to our survival is the IED (Improvised Explosive Device). These homemade bombs are made in various ways. Some use homemade explosives, some military grade explosives, some artillery rounds, some mines, some propane, and the list goes on. If you hit the wrong IED, you are gone in a flash or horribly injured. The ideal is to find them before they find you and we called that "staying left of the boom."

By now you know that several of our units have already hit IEDs since getting here in April. We have injured soldiers but we have not lost any yet. Three weeks ago we were running normal operations out of the Base Defense Operations Center (BDOC).... I went to the BDOC to observe one of our patrols receiving their brief. I had planned to watch them conduct the patrol on the Aerostat to observe their techniques. The Aerostat is a surveillance blimp nicknamed "Death Star." The battle captain (CPT) told me they had just seen some individuals acting suspiciously within our area of operation. The battle CPT thought they might have emplaced an IED. He further informed me that they followed the suspects from the sight of emplacement to a village on the opposite side of the base several miles away. A counter rocket patrol was supposed to go out at 2300 hours so we changed them to a counter IED patrol. We spun up the Intel for the area, briefed the patrol on the change of mission, conducted our rehearsal and launched them. We saw the IED go in at 2030 and had the patrol out by 2130. We had eyes on the exact spot where we believed the device was planted. The patrol reached the area at 2200. These times are important because at 2300 curfew starts. After curfew the only folks on the highway are U.S. convoys. IEDs normally have timers and arm at a certain time, therefore we needed to beat the timer.

Once our patrol arrived, the really dangerous part started. There are two ways to find the device: stay mounted and try to spot it from the gun turret, or dismount. If you are mounted and it goes off, you might survive; on foot you are probably in deep trouble. The problem with doing it mounted is that you might not see it, and if we don't find it, one of our units is going to hit it later that night. We saw exactly where they dug the hole, so I ordered a dismounted search and watched my two Hooahs move toward the target. My heart was beating at a

SHAKESPEARE IN THE COURTROOM

PROFESSOR ROBERT A. KATZ organized and moderated a panel exploring William Shakespeare's The Merchant of Venice from the perspectives of law, humanities, theology, and the history of anti-Semitism and Jewish-Christian relations. Professors Mary Harter Mitchell and R. George Wright also spoke and participated on the panel, along with professors of English and theology at IUPUI, and Alan Goldstein, '69, a partner at Ice Miller, LLP, and a leader of the Indianapolis Jewish community.

The event took place in the law school's Wynne Courtroom on February 26, following the performance of the courtroom scene from The Merchant of Venice, performed by actors from the American Shakespeare Center as part of their "Piercing Eloquence Tour." The event was co-sponsored by the Jewish Law Society and IUPUI's Department of English. ■

Judge Zore '68 Receives Hine Medal

LAW SCHOOL ALUMNUS, THE HONORABLE GERALD S. ZORE, '68 of the Marion County Superior Court, was a recipient of one of this year's Maynard K. Hine medals, recognizing individuals for their significant contributions to the IUPUI campus. The award ceremony took place on February 28, 2008. Judge Zore has been a member of the IU School of Law-Indianapolis Alumni Association Board of Directors since 1994, serving as President in 1999-2000. He is currently in his fifth term on the board. He also serves as the Executive Council Representative for the IU School of Law-Indianapolis Constituency for the Indiana University Alumni Association.

Judge Zore has been involved in numerous civic organizations, including the advisory board of Big Sisters of Greater Indianapolis, Inc.; the board of directors of Cathedral High School; past president and board of directors of the Flanner House of Indianapolis, Inc., and the advisory board of Noble of Indiana. The Hine Medal is named in memory of IUPUI's first chancellor and former dean of the IU School of Dentistry, Maynard Hine. This is the highest honor bestowed by the Alumni Association on the IUPUI campus and was first awarded in 1974.

Previous law school alumni recipients of the Hine medal include Patrick Shoulders, '78; Lisa Stone, '80; John Holt, '56; Hon. Margret G. Robb, '78; Robert Everitt, '65; Hon. Robert Staton, '55; John Maley, '88; Eugene Henn, '60; Martha Hollingsworth, '72; Mary Ann Tucker, '73; and Lante Earnest, '73. Chancellor Emeritus and former Dean of the law school, Gerald L. Bepko, is also a past recipient. ■

AMAKER RETREAT FOCUS IS SOCIAL CHANGE

Law school alumna Emily Benfer, '05, and Professor Florence Wagman Roisman spoke at the retreat.

THE ANNUAL NORMAN AMAKER RETREAT took place February 22-24 at Bradford Woods in Martinsville, Indiana. This year's topic was Re-Commitment to Social Change: Where You Were, Where You Are, Where You Are Going.

The retreat is sponsored by the Society of American Law Teachers and the Indiana University School of Law – Indianapolis, and brings together public interest law students, faculty, and practicing lawyers for a weekend dedicated to discussion and exploration of social justice issues. ■

SEEMA SHAH, '06 WORKING IN YAP

While in law school SEEMA SHAH, '06 was a Program in International Human Rights Law intern in Accra, Ghana. For the past year she has been living in Yap in the Federated States of Micronesia (FSM) in the Pacific. Shah works as Legal Counsel for the State Court.

Shah writes, "After law school, I had a fantastic clerkship with Justice Boehm at the Indiana Supreme Court. I wanted to somehow combine that experience with being abroad, and I found out that there are many opportunities for American lawyers in the Pacific. The FSM was part of the Trust Territory of Pacific Islands, and its system is modeled after the U.S. system. Because of the lack of FSM lawyers, it recruits American lawyers. I ended up sending my application materials to any addresses I could find - in Palau, FSM, Commonwealth of the North Mariana, Guam, etc. - and Yap State of the FSM worked out the best for me.

The highlight for me so far has been being able to attend the Chief Executives Council meeting in Yap. The FSM President and four governors, along with other important government leaders, meet to discuss issues facing the nation. I was on a team of lawyers helping draft resolutions related to climate change, renewable energy, the energy crisis, mobilization of infrastructure grants, and disaster preparedness. I was able to work closely with the President, and I know I would not have had that sort of responsibility at this young of an age in the States.

Finally, on a daily basis, I do legal research and opinion and order drafting for the justices. I am working on a few big projects - development of a probate code and creating a digest of court decisions (Yap State does not have either of these yet)."

Shah reports that she has recruited a former classmate from the law school to the courts in Yap. Bill Martin, '06 is now an

Seema Shah, '06, lives and works in Yap.

Assistant Attorney General in Yap. Shah's position ends in September 2009 and she does not yet know where she will go next. She says leaving the beautiful setting and the people of Yap will be difficult. ■

PRO BONO PROGRAM AND CLINIC HONOR STUDENTS

ON THE EVENING OF TUESDAY, APRIL 22, the law school's Pro Bono and Clinical Programs honored student participants at a reception in the Conour Atrium. The keynote speaker for the evening was the Honorable Gerald S. Zore, '68. No stranger to public service, Judge Zore has been involved in numerous civic organizations, including the advisory board of Big Sisters of Greater Indianapolis, Inc.; the board of directors of Cathedral High School; past president and board of directors of the Flanner House of Indianapolis, Inc., and the advisory board of Noble of Indiana. He is a recent recipient of the Maynard K. Hine Medal, the highest honor given by the IU Alumni Association.

Crystal Sanders was named Outstanding Clinic Student.

The John Paul Berlon Award for outstanding pro bono contributions was presented to Jennifer Bonesteel, '07. She was selected for her outstanding contributions to the Student Hurricane Network Project. Beginning with her first year winter break, Jennifer spent most of every break during her law school career in New Orleans working with attorneys assisting individuals impacted by Hurricane Katrina. She plans to join the Peace Corps.

In total, the class of 2008 contributed 11,511 pro bono hours while in law school. The Pro Bono Program is under the direction of LaWanda Ward, '03, and is housed within the school's Office of Professional Development, directed by Assistant Dean Chasity Thompson, '02.

The law school's clinical programs also honored students at the reception. All clinic students received a certificate of completion and the Outstanding Clinic Student for 2007-08 was Crystal Sanders. The law school clinic is under the direction of Professor Mary Wolf. Faculty include Professors Fran Watson, Joanne Orr, Novella Nedeff and Bob Lancaster. The reception this year was funded through generous financial support from Baker and Daniels, LLP. ■

Symposium Examines U.S. Trade Agreements

Professor Gregory Bowman, Director, International Law Center, Mississippi College of Law, gave a lecture entitled “A Comparative Analysis of U.S. and EU Regional Trade Agreements: Implications for Future U.S. Trade Policy.” His talk was the keynote address at the INDIANA INTERNATIONAL AND COMPARATIVE LAW REVIEW Symposium.

The INDIANA INTERNATIONAL AND COMPARATIVE LAW REVIEW hosted a symposium on February 21-22 at the law school. Entitled “Assessing the Impact of Existing Bilateral and Multilateral U.S. Trade Agreements and Attempting Policy Recommendations for the Future,” the symposium featured scholars from throughout the United States. Speakers included Professor Elizabeth Trujillo from the Suffolk University Law School; Professor Gregory Bowman, Director of the International Law Center, Mississippi College of Law; Professor Kevin Kennedy, Michigan State University College of Law; Professor Cherie Taylor, South Texas College of Law and Professor Sungjoon Cho, Chicago-Kent College of Law. Third-year student Edythe T. Taylor was the executive symposium editor for the IICLR and was instrumental in organizing the symposium. ■

MCDONALD MERRILL KETCHAM LECTURE AND INDIANA HEALTH LAW REVIEW SYMPOSIUM

Professor George J. Annas of Boston University received the McDonald Merrill Ketcham Award.

THE ANNUAL MCDONALD MERRILL KETCHAM LECTURE and INDIANA HEALTH LAW REVIEW Symposium took place on Wednesday, March 19 in the Wynne Courtroom. The topic of the day was “Health Reform in America: Getting Beyond Ideology to True Reform.” The keynote speaker and recipient of the McDonald Merrill Ketcham Award was Professor George J. Annas, Edward Utley Professor and Chair, Department of Health Law, Bioethics & Human Rights, Boston University School of Public Health. His topic was “‘Best in the World’: Reforming (and Reframing) Health Care in America.”

Professor Linda Kelly Hill Delivers Palmer Professorship Lecture

ON THURSDAY, MARCH 27, Professor Linda Kelly Hill, the M. Dale Palmer Professor at the law school, delivered the M. Dale Palmer Professorship Lecture to an audience of students and faculty in the Wynne Courtroom. Her topic was “The Poetic Justice of Immigration Law.” Professor Kelly Hill joined the faculty in the fall of 2002, following seven years as a faculty member at St. Thomas University School of Law in Miami, Florida. Professor Kelly Hill has written extensively on issues surrounding immigration law as well as domestic violence and the treatment of domestic violence in immigration law.

She worked as a staff attorney for the Haitian Refugee Center in Miami from 1992-95 and has served as a staff attorney for the Family Legal Services and Domestic Violence Unit of the Seventeenth Judicial Circuit in and for Broward County, Florida. She received her B.A. in 1988 and J.D. in 1992 from the University of Virginia. She teaches family law, immigration law, trusts and estates, conflict of laws, and oversees the law school’s Immigration Clinic.

The M. Dale Palmer Professorship is named for Mr. Palmer, a 1961 graduate of the law school. A respected attorney and businessman, Mr. Palmer made a generous gift to the school in 1997 to establish the professorship that bears his name. ■

Health Law Society Awards

The Indianapolis Bar Association’s Health Law Section held its annual social in conjunction with the law school’s Health Law Society on April 15 at the Columbia Club. Tom Donohoe, ’08 received the Outstanding Health Law Student Award and the Annual Student Health Law Award from the American Society of Law Medicine and Ethics. Roseanne Hall, daughter of the late William S. “Bill” Hall, ’51, was also in attendance. Pictured above: Roseanne Hall, Tom Donohoe, Dean Gary Roberts, Professor Eleanor Kinney.

Azar Speaks to Health Law Audience

On February 19, 2008, the Health Law Society (HLS) hosted Alex Azar, Senior Vice President of Corporate Affairs and Communications at Eli Lilly and Co., and former Deputy Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services. Azar addressed the crowd of law students, medical students, and area attorneys about the different problems facing the United States’ health care system. The event was a joint venture between the HLS and the Health Economics Law and Social Interests Group at the Indiana University School of Medicine.

JUDGE TINDER ADDRESSES GRADUATES

On Saturday, May 10, the Honorable John D. Tinder, U.S. Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit, delivered the commencement address to the class of 2008. Three hundred students received J.D. degrees and 54 students received LL.M. degrees at the afternoon ceremony that took place at the Sagamore Ballroom of the Indiana Convention Center.

Judge Tinder served for twenty years on the Federal bench for the Southern District of Indiana prior his appointment to the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals by President George W. Bush. He was confirmed by the U.S. Senate in a unanimous vote on December 18, 2007. During his long and distinguished legal career, he also served as U.S. Attorney for the Southern District of Indiana. Since 1975, Judge Tinder has been a member of the Bars of the Supreme Court of Indiana, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the seventh Circuit, and the U.S. District Court, Southern District of Indiana. In 1978, he was admitted to the bar of the United States Supreme Court. He is an active member of the Indiana State Bar Association, the Indianapolis Bar Association, the American Bar Association, the Federal Bar Association, and the Bar Association of the Seventh Federal Circuit. He is also a member of the Sagamore Inn of Court.

Judge Tinder works on global legal education initiatives in England and the former Yugoslavia. He has also hosted judges and lawyers from China, Japan, Liberia, Russia and the former Soviet Republics, Taiwan, and South Korea. A 1975 graduate of the IU School of Law-Bloomington, Judge Tinder served as an adjunct Professor at the IU School of Law-Indianapolis from 1980 to 1990. He has also served on the law school's Cale J. Holder Scholarship Committee since 1992. In 2007, he received the Silver Gavel Professionalism Award from the Indianapolis Bar Association.

Prior to Judge Tinder's remarks, Vice Dean Paul Cox presented the faculty prize to Keith Berlin, and students representing each class spoke to their classmates. Ricardo Santos Garcia represented the LL.M. division, Marcus Selig represented the full-time J.D. division and Mark Nicholson represented the part-time J.D. division. Professors Jennifer A. Drobac and Cynthia M. Adams performed the hooding ceremony for the LL.M. graduates, while Professors Lawrence W. Wilkins and Jeffrey O. Cooper hooded the J.D. graduates. Law School Marshals were Professor Drobac and Professor R. George Wright. ■

Inaugural Class Action Campaign Raises Funding and Awareness

IN 2008, FOR THE FIRST TIME EVER, all students at the law school were asked for a philanthropic gift in support of the school. The Class Action Campaign is an initiative to increase the participation, awareness and knowledge about the importance of private financial support for the law school. Leading the charge in this ground breaking campaign were the Student Ambassadors from each class. This year the campaign was expanded to include all students, not just the graduating class.

The primary focus of the campaign was to foster a culture of giving back.

While the amount students were asked to donate was relatively small, $10, it was designed to make a strong statement to alumni and others.

Dean Gary Roberts and several former deans of the law school also provided a dollar for dollar matching gift challenge to help encourage the overall participation of the student body.

This year's campaign successfully raised a total of $3,687.54 (not including the matching funds), with 17% of the students participating. The 1L Class had the highest participation rate with 74 students contributing to the campaign.

Over the course of the campaign, all law school students – day, evening, LL.M and SJD programs – were asked to make a small gift. Additionally, the 2008 Graduating Class was asked to make a five-year pledge to support the school after graduation.

The law school is very grateful to all of the student volunteers and donors who helped to make this campaign a success. Dean Roberts said, “We hope to build on this strong start to the Annual Class Action Campaign with even greater student participation next year. Our culture of giving has begun.” ■

LAW SCHOOL'S LEGAL WRITING PROGRAM RANKED ONE OF THE BEST

THE LAW SCHOOL'S LEGAL WRITING PROGRAM, known as Legal Analysis, Research and Communications (LARC), was ranked 11th in the nation by U.S. News & World Report in 2008.

Ruth Anne Robbins, Clinical Professor of Law at Rutgers School of Law-Camden and incoming President of the Legal Writing Institute, praised the program, calling it “one of the best” and a “model of excellence.” U.S. News & World Report added legal writing programs to its annual rankings of special law school programs in 2005. The rankings are based on a survey submitted to those law professors across the nation teaching in their schools' legal writing programs. Since 2006 the legal writing program at IU-Indianapolis has ranked in the top 15, steadily moving upward to its present 11th placement. The IU Law School-Indianapolis legal writing program has gained national attention in several ways: writing faculty members have given multiple presentations at regional, national, and international conferences, taken on board memberships and chairmanships with national and international committees, published articles and books in the field, and brought the spotlight to the law school by hosting conferences.

The 13th Biennial Legal Writing Institute Conference, “Racing Toward Excellence,” took place at the law school, July 15-17, attracting approximately 600 participants from across the nation and around the world, including Africa, Canada, Ukraine, and Mexico. Coverage of the conference will be included in the winter issue of IU

Legal writing faculty: Professors Joel Schumm,'98, Allison Martin, Joan Ruhtenberg, Ken Chestek, Deborah McGregor, Cynthia Adams and Jim Dimitri.

Law Indianapolis.

Clinical Professor of Law, Joan Ruhtenberg, director of the LARC program, said, “The legal writing profession has made remarkable strides during the past twenty-five years, and I am grateful that our school is recognized as a part of that progression. We have come a long way since I became director of our program in 1982, and I hope that we continue on the path toward excellence.” ■

In February, CYNTHIA ADAMS presented “International Arbitration and Mediation: Negotiating and Drafting Terms for Resolving Disputes,” at the Facultad Libre de Derecho de Monterrey, Mexico, Global Legal Skills Conference. In May, Professor Adams published The International Lawyer’s Guide to Legal Analysis and Communication in the United States (co-authored), by Aspen Publishers, Inc. Also in May 2008, she presented “Beyond a Discussion of Cabbages and Kings: Designing a Relevant U.S. Contracts Course for International Students,” at the Second National Contract Drafting Conference at Emory University School of Law, Atlanta, Georgia. Professor Adams is currently Chair-Elect of the American Association of Law School’s (AALS) Section on Graduate Programs for Foreign Lawyers, and a member of the Executive Committee of the AALS Section on Foreign Exchange Programs.

JUDITH ANSPACH served on an ABA site evaluation team for Howard Law School, April 6-9, 2008, and also that month attended the Washington State Bar Association’s 6th Annual Animal Law Conference and CLE program.

Chancellor Emeritus GERALD L. BEPKO served as Chair of the Western Association of Schools and Colleges’ accreditation visit for Humboldt State University in Arcada, California, on February 6-9, 2008. On February 28th, Chancellor Bepko presented law alumnus Judge Gerald Zore, ’68, with the Maynard Hine Medal at the Annual Hine dinner on the IUPUI campus. In March, Chancellor Bepko was appointed Secretary of the Showalter Trust Selection Committee which administers a fund of more than $40 million for research at IU, Purdue, and Clarian Methodist Hospital. He has been a member of the committee since 2005.

Chancellor Bepko serves as a member of the Indiana Commission for Higher Education and co-chair of its Strategic Directions Committee. The report of the committee, titled “Reaching Higher: Strategic Directions for Higher Education in Indiana,” was the subject of the ICHE’s annual Weldon Conference for university trustees, higher education and business leaders, and legislators, held at University Place on April 16. Governor Mitch Daniels spoke at the Weldon Conference and, using the report as a reference, announced a new vision for college affordability in Indiana.

On May 11, Chancellor Bepko spoke on the subject of “Higher Education’s Challenges in Promoting Social Justice” to a class on “Faith in Action” at the Second Presbyterian Church. On May 20, Chancellor Bepko was one of the speakers, along with IU President Michael McRobbie, at the 10th Anniversary Celebration of the Indiana University Information Technology Strategic Plan launched in 1998. The celebration took place in Bloomington. University Information Technology Services offers the Gerald L. Bepko Internship Program for students interested in working on information technology projects at IUPUI and IUB.

The IUPUI Senior Academy presents the Bepko Medal for contributions to the involvement of the University in the community. This year’s award was presented, on June 5, by Chancellor Bepko to William M. Plater, Executive Vice Chancellor Emeritus and Chancellor’s Professor. Also on June 5, NUVO Newsweekly presented its Lifetime Achievement Award to Chancellor Bepko as part of its annual cultural vision awards program. At Alumni Weekend in Bloomington, June 13-15, Chancellor Bepko served as host and presenter for Sallie Rowland, a recipient of the Indiana University Distinguished Alumna Award.

Effective January 2008, Chancellor Bepko was appointed to the Indiana Regional Advisory Board of M&I Bank. He also began serving as an Honorary Co-Chair of a Keep Indianapolis Beautiful project called NeighborWoods, an environmentally conscious effort to plant 100,000 trees in Indianapolis in the next ten years, with an emphasis on inner city neighborhoods.

KAREN E. BRAVO presented her work on labor liberalization as a potential solution to the modern trafficking in human beings at several academic gatherings during the Spring semester: In January 2008, she presented “Toward a Labor Liberalization Solution to the Modern Traffic in Humans” at the Association of American Law Schools’ Annual Meeting, in New York City. On February 8, 2008, she discussed “Toward a Labor Liberalization Solution to the Modern Traffic in Humans” at the Junior Faculty Exchange held at Case Western Reserve School of Law in Cleveland, Ohio. On February 25, she made a presentation on “Free Labor!? Toward a Labor Liberalization Solution to the Modern Traffic in Humans” at the Junior Faculty Regional Workshop held at Washington University at the St. Louis School of Law in St. Louis, Missouri.

On April 4, Professor Bravo gave a presentation of her work on labor liberalization in the context of regional trading arrangements titled “Regional Trade Agreements and Labor Liberalization: (Lost) Opportunities for Experimentation?” at the St. Louis University School of Law Public Law Review’s Symposium, The Changing Tide of Trade: The Social, Political and Environmental Implications of Regional Trade Agreements in St. Louis, Missouri. She discussed “Toward a Labor Liberalization Solution to Modern Trafficking in Humans” at the American Society of International Law’s 102nd Annual Meeting, April 9-12, Washington, D.C. On May 29, Professor Bravo again discussed this subject as a panel member at the joint 2008 Annual Meeting of the U.S. and Canadian Law and Society Associations in Montreal, Canada.

Professor Bravo contributed a chapter “International Economic Law in U.S. Law Schools: Evaluating Its Pedagogy and Identifying Future Challenges” to International Economic Law - The State & Future of the Discipline (Colin Picker, Douglas Arner & Isabella Bunn, editors) (Hart Publishing 2008). Her article, “Exploring the Analogy between Modern Trafficking in Humans and the Trans-Atlantic Slave Trade,” 25 B.U. INT’L L. J. 207 (2007) was published as the lead article in the BOSTON UNIVERSITY INTERNATIONAL LAW JOURNAL’s Fall 2007 issue.

The book review coauthored by Professor Bravo and Professor María Pabón López, Crisis Meets Reality: A Bold Proposal for Immigration Reform, 61 SMU L. REV. 191 (2008) (reviewing OPENING THE FLOODGATES: WHY AMERICA NEEDS TO RETHINK ITS BORDERS AND IMMIGRATION LAWS, by Kevin R. Johnson, New York: New York University Press, Critical America Series, 2007) was published by the SOUTHERN METHODIST UNIVERSITY LAW REVIEW.

In her capacity as Chair of the Association of American Law Schools Committee on the Recruitment and Retention of Minority Law Teachers, Professor Bravo chaired the committee’s meeting in January in New York City during the Association’s Annual Meeting and in March at the Association’s office in Washington, D.C.

Professor Bravo has been named a Dean’s Fellow and has been awarded a John S. Grimes Fellowship for further research on her project on labor liberalization in the context of regional trading arrangements. She was selected for an Indiana University Trustees Award for excellence in teaching.

Professor KEN CHESTEK presented his forthcoming article “The Plot Thickens: The Appellate Brief as Story” to the Rocky Mountain Legal Writing Conference in Salt Lake City, Utah in March.

29TH ANNUAL LABOR MANAGEMENT RELATIONS SEMINAR

THE 29TH ANNUAL LABOR MANAGEMENT RELATIONS SEMINAR, co-sponsored by the law school and the NLRB Region 25, took place at the law school on Friday, May 9. Entitled “Making the Law Work For You,” the seminar featured an opening plenary session on “How Arbitrators Decide Cases.” The annual seminar funds scholarships for law students interested in pursuing careers in labor law. This year, Professor Robert Brookins presented scholarships to Elizabeth Ellis and Matthew Ehinger. (Ehinger is shown at right with Professor Brookins). ■ in International Forums, appears in the OXFORD YEARBOOK OF INTERNATIONAL ENVIRONMENTAL LAW, Oxford University Press (2007). His article, Beyond Indigenous Property Rights: The Distinctive Connection of the Dispossessed will appear in volume 86 of the WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY LAW REVIEW. Professor Dannenmaier presented “Democratic Models in International Environmental Institutions – A Case for International Citizen Advisory Commissions,” at the UNITAR-Yale Conference on Environmental Governance and Democracy in New Haven, Connecticut in May. His accompanying paper, Democratic Models for International Environmental Institutions: Challenges, Taxonomies, and Citizen Advisory Groups, Proceedings, UNITAR/Yale Conference on Environmental Governance and Democracy, is forthcoming in 2008.

JIM DIMITRI’S “Writing Engaging, Realistic, and Balanced Appellate Advocacy Problems,” was recently published as the lead article in the Winter 2008 edition of PERSPECTIVES: TEACHING LEGAL RESEARCH AND WRITING. The article, which is featured on the cover, can be found at 16 PERSPS. 93 (No. 2, Winter 2008). On March 22, 2008, he gave a presentation at the Rocky Mountain Legal Writing Conference, which took place at the S.J. Quinney College of Law at the University of Utah. In his presentation, “Speaking to Millennials: Giving Feedback to the Latest Generation of Law Students,” he discussed the learning styles of the latest generation of law students, who are often called the “Millennial Generation.” He also discussed how law professors should tailor their feedback methods and substance to accommodate Millennial Generation learning styles. His article, “Stepping Up to the Podium with Confidence: A Primer for Law Students on Preparing and Delivering an Appellate Oral Argument,” was accepted for publication by the STETSON LAW REVIEW, and will appear in Volume 38.

JENNIFER DROBAC, is serving as director of the law school’s Central & Eastern European Law Program in Dubrovnik, Croatia. She was the organizing host of the inaugural Midwest Family Law Conference, Jazzing Up Family Law, and she continues to serve as vice chair and trustee of The Henry J. Kaiser Family Foundation Board of Trustees, Menlo Park, California.

On December 18, GEORGE E. EDWARDS delivered a lecture in La Plata, Argentina, at Universidad Nacional de La Plata, Instituto de Derechos Humanos. His presentation, entitled “Experiences de litigo en Derechos Humanos – Experiences in Litigating Human Rights,” detailed how he incorporates concrete clinical work into the curriculum at the IU School of Law–Indianapolis.

On February 26, Professor Edwards gave a video-linked presentation to students in Indianapolis and Tehran, drawing on his experiences working on the defense for two detainees in U.S. Military Commission proceedings at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba. Professor Edwards’ presentation was entitled “International Law, Military Commissions, and U.S. Foreign Policy: Guantanamo Bay Through Speckled Lenses,” and was offered as part of a course on U.S. Foreign Policy being co-taught by faculty at the University of Tehran and the IUPUI campus. The class was conducted by Dr. Ian McIntosh and Dr. Dawn Whitehead in Indianapolis and Dr. Mousavi in Tehran.

On March 31, Professor Edwards was featured in an article that appeared in the Arabic-language newspaper Al Jarida, published in Kuwait. In the article, he discussed a range of international human rights and other legal issues in Kuwait and the United States. He commented on the continued detention of Kuwaitis in Guantanamo Bay, an “Article 98 Agreement” by which Kuwait agreed not to surrender any U.S. soldiers to the International Criminal Court, the Kuwait government’s new legislation banning any person from dressing like a person of the opposite sex, and issues the U.S. State Department raised in its annual Human Rights Report on human rights conditions in Kuwait. The same day, Professor Edwards gave a lecture at the University of Kuwait Faculty of Law entitled “International Law and Torture: From the Anti-Terrorism Ticking Bomb Scenario to Abuse of Domestic Helpers in Kuwait.” This is the second invited lecture given by Professor Edwards at Kuwait University, with the first being in 2003.

Professor Edwards founded the law school’s Program in International Human Rights Law in 1997, and has since then engaged J.D. and LL.M. students in a wide range of advocacy work. For example, since 2003, the Program has been involved in Guantanamo Bay, Cuba advocacy. Professor Edwards was asked to serve as International Human Rights Law advisor and expert witness on the case of David Hicks, the Australian whose case ended in a plea bargain last year. He is currently working on the case of Omar Khadr, the Canadian who was fifteen years of age when taken to Guantanamo Bay. Professor Edwards worked on the defense case of Slobodan Milosevic, the former President of Yugoslavia who was being tried for war crimes in The Hague, until Mr. Milosevic died. Professor Edwards’ students have worked on the cases of Hicks, Khadr, and other detainees. Edwards and students also have submitted reports to the United Nations detailing human rights violations in countries as diverse as Zambia, Chile, and the United States, and have traveled to the UN in New York and Geneva to make oral presentations on these pressing issues.

Professor Edwards also has been appointed co-chair of a newly-created Graduate Affairs Committee and designated executive chair of the graduate program at the law school.

FRANK EMMERT, the John S. Grimes Professor of Law and Director of the Center for International and Comparative Law, continued his support for many of the international activities of the law school, in particular the European summer programs, the LL.M. track in international and comparative law, and the cooperation with a number of international partner schools. Specifically, Professor Emmert continues to be a Soros Fellow and faculty advisor at American University Central Asia (AUCA) in Bishkek, Kyrgyzsta and co-director of the certificate program in American and international commercial law at Vilnius University in Lithuania. In addition to his courses in Indianapolis, Professor Emmert taught at AUCA, at Universidad de Guadalajara, Mexico, and at Universidad Rey Juan Carlos III, Madrid, and gave lectures at the Diplomatic School of the Spanish Government, at Fordham University, and at conferences in Alyushta, Ukraine; Tbilisi, Georgia, and Alexandria, Egypt.

Since the summer of 2007, Professor Emmert has served as the director and principal investigator of a large grant-funded project the law school is implementing in cooperation with the Faculty of Law of Alexandria University, Egypt and the Faculty of Law of Cairo University, Egypt. The United States Agency for International Development (USAID) is financing this project, which involves the delivery of the International and Comparative Law track of the law school’s LL.M. Program at both partner schools in Egypt, and the training of junior faculty members from Egypt in the United States. Since January 2008, the program has a total of 44 Egyptian LL.M. students enrolled and has offered a full semester of courses. Marketing efforts for the enrollment of the next class of students are currently underway.

Dean Gary Roberts spoke at an event in Cairo, Egypt on March 16, celebrating the launch of the law school’s LL.M. program at Cairo University. Those in attendance included Cairo University faculty members, USAID representatives, and the US Ambassador to Egypt. The USAID-funded program is under the direction of Professor Frank Emmert.

Additionally, Professor Emmert published an article on “Market Economy, Democracy and Rule of Law” in the Liber Amicorum for Roland Bieber and co-authored “Trouble Counting Votes? Comparing Voting Mechanisms in the United States and Selected Other Countries,” (Emmert, Page & Page), 41 CREIGHTON LAW REVIEW 3 (2007). Professor Emmert continues to be the Editor-in-Chief of the EUROPEAN JOURNAL OF LAW REFORM and the Faculty Advisor for the INDIANA INTERNATIONAL AND COMPARATIVE LAW REVIEW. His casebook on European Union Law was reprinted recently by Eleven International Publishing, Utrecht, the Netherlands, and the Documents volume is forthcoming.

Professor Emeritus, and former Associate Dean for Graduate Studies, JEFF GROVE, was voted emeritus status in January 2008. On April 23 he moderated the Open Forum and provided Closing Remarks at the Summit on the Global Economy and the Rule of Law sponsored by the Indiana State Bar Association (ISBA), the IU Center on Philanthropy, and the Indiana Chamber of Commerce. He has been invited to serve as Visiting Professor at the University of Notre Dame Law School during spring term 2009. He continues as a Commissioner on the Indiana Lobby Registration Commission; a Senior Fellow at the IU Research Center on Chinese Law and Business; a member of the University of Pittsburgh School of Law Board of Visitors; and Honorary Professor of Renmin (People’s) University of China School of Law.

At the annual conference of the Association of American Law Schools, held in New York City in January 2008, ROB KATZ organized a roundtable on nonprofit and philanthropy law scholarship for the Section on Nonprofit and Philanthropy Law, for which he serves as treasurer. Also in January, Professor Katz presented a paper entitled “Paging Dr. Shylock!': Jewish Hospitals and the Prudent Re-investment of Jewish Philanthropy,” at a meeting organized by the Lake Institute on Faith & Giving (part of the Center on Philanthropy at IU). This paper will be published as a chapter in Giving: For the Love of God (Indiana University Press, forthcoming 2009). (The paper may be accessed at http://papers.ssrn.com/sol3/papers.cfm?abstract_id=1115472.) On February 26, Professor Katz organized and moderated a panel exploring William Shakespeare’s The Merchant of Venice from the perspectives of law, humanities, theology, and the history of anti-Semitism and Jewish-Christian relations. The event took place in the law school’s Wynne Courtroom on February 26 following the performance of the courtroom scene from The Merchant of Venice, performed by actors on tour from the American Shakespeare Center. (An article on the event appeared in The Indiana Lawyer entitled “The play’s the thing: Shakespeare at law school sparks conversation.”) This spring, he became a contributing editor to the Nonprofit Law Prof Blog: <http://lawprofessors.typepad.com/> nonprofit/. Professor Katz was selected to be a Research Fellow, in fall 2008, of the Consortium for Health Policy, Law & Bioethics, a signature center and joint project of the Hall Center for Law and Health, the IU Center for Bioethics, and the Center for Health Policy at the School of Public and Environmental Affairs. He will pursue research on legal and ethical issues involved tissue donated to biobanks for predictive health research.

ELEANOR DeARMAN KINNEY has published “Recognition of the International Human Right to Health and Health Care in the United States,” 60 RUTGERS LAW REVIEW 337 (2008). She served as a panelist on “State & Local Emergency Preparedness — National Response Framework: Will We Be Prepared the Next Time?” at the 3rd Annual Homeland Security Institute, of the ABA Administrative Law & Regulatory Practice Section in Washington, DC in January. In March, she served on a panel covering the topic, “A Comparison Between Public Health Insurance Programs and the Regulation of Private Health Insurance in the US, Mexico and Canada: Could the European Union Serve as a Model for Integration?” at the WISCONSIN INTERNATIONAL LAW JOURNAL Symposium on Cross-Border Health Care in Madison, Wisconsin.

In April, Professor Kinney was the keynote speaker for the Frank C. Woodside III Speakers Series. Her talk was entitled “Health as a Human Right: How Our Legal Community Can Help Improve the Health and Well-Being of the Underserved,” at The Ohio State University Michael E. Moritz College of Law, in Columbus, Ohio. Also in April, she was a presenter on “The International Human Right to Health,” at the Charles Warren Fairbanks Center for Medical Ethics, Methodist Hospital of Indiana, in Indianapolis. Later that month, she delivered a lecture on “Health Care Reform in the United States: Lessons from Mexico, Canada and the World,” as part of the IUPUI Cutting-Edge Lecture Series. In May, she gave a presentation entitled, “Envision Health Care in Indiana in 2030: The Indiana University Health Reform Study Group,” as part of the IUPUI Scholarship at Lunch Time (SALT) Series, in Indianapolis. She taught a course entitled “Comparative EU and US Regulation of Pharmaceuticals and Medical Technology” as part of an educational program funded through a Jean Monnet grant. Professor Kinney has been appointed co-director of the Consortium for Health Policy, Law and Bioethics, an IUPUI Signature Center, and she serves as co-director of the Indiana University Health Care Reform Faculty Work Group.

During December 2007, Professor and Dean Emeritus, NORMAN LEFSTEIN, served as an expert witness in a case in Kingman, Arizona, in which the county's public defender successfully challenged the size of his caseload because it required his lawyers to violate their ethical duties in representing their clients. Professor Lefstein's opinion supported the position of the public defender, who was successful in his challenge. He also was an expert witness, via satellite, in a case in Helena, Montana, in which the state's disciplinary counsel brought charges against a defense attorney for accepting temporary custody of physical evidence that may have implicated his client in a crime. In addition, during December, on behalf of the American Bar Association, he appeared before the Nevada Supreme Court in Las Vegas to discuss proposed administrative rules dealing with public defense representation in that state. In March, he delivered remarks on "Perspectives on Criminal Defense in the United States," at the symposium dedication program of the Equal Justice Library at the Georgetown University Law Center in Washington, D.C. And, also during March, Professor Lefstein spoke at a symposium on Indigent Criminal Defense in Louisiana sponsored by the JOURNAL OF PUBLIC INTEREST LAW of Loyola University School of Law in New Orleans. In May, he met in Washington, D.C. with the advisory committee for his project on excessive public defender caseloads that he has undertaken on behalf of the American Bar Association Standing Committee on Legal Aid and Indigent Defendants.

Indiana Chief Justice Randall T. Shepard named Professor MARÍA PABÓN LÓPEZ to the State Board of Law Examiners, effective December 1, 2007. The Board "is responsible for the admission of attorneys, the certification of legal interns and the formation and renewal of professional corporations, limited liability companies and limited liability partnerships for the legal profession" in Indiana. She is the only academic in the ten-member board. Professor López was a panelist at the American Association of Law Schools' annual meeting held in New York City on January 5. The topic discussed was "Best Practices for the Recruitment of Minority Law Professors." Professor López was a moderator of two panels at the biennial Immigration Law Teachers Workshop held in Miami, Florida on May 2. Professor López has also published "The Future of Women in the Legal Profession: Recognizing the Challenges Ahead by Reviewing Current Trends," 19 HASTINGS WOMEN'S L.J. 53 (2008) and "Crisis Meets Reality: Review of OPENING THE FLOODGATES: WHY AMERICA NEEDS TO RETHINK ITS BORDERS AND IMMIGRATION LAWS, by Kevin R. Johnson, 61 S.M.U. L. REV. 191 (2008) (with Karen E. Bravo). The HARVARD LATINO LAW REVIEW published Professor López's essay "A Tale of Two Systems: The Differing Treatment of Noncitizen Families in State Family Law Systems and Under the Immigration Law System" also in Spring, 2008.

GERARD MAGLIOCCA was awarded the Fulbright-Dow Distinguished Chair at the Roosevelt Center for American Studies in Middelburg, the Netherlands. He published two essays, "Indians and Invaders: the Citizenship Clause and Illegal Aliens," 10 U. PA. J. CONST. L. 409 (2008); and "The Chief Justice on Capitol Hill: Extending the Humphrey-Hawkins Model," 41 IND. L. REV. 299 (2008). Professor Magliocca also gave a talk on his book, ANDREW JACKSON AND THE CONSTITUTION: THE RISE AND FALL OF GENERATIONAL REGIMES at the Southern Kentucky Book Fest in Bowling Green, Kentucky.

ALLISON MARTIN published a short essay this spring in PERSPECTIVES, a newsletter for Legal Research and Writing professors, published by West, "Lessons From the Other Side – What I Learned About Teaching Legal Writing by Teaching Professional Responsibility," 15 PERSP. 157 (No. 3, Spring 2007).

In December, DEBORAH MCGREGOR was invited to Kiev, Ukraine, to participate in a conference, Seminar on Methodology of Teaching Law: Legal Research, Writing, and Advocacy Seminar for Law Professors, sponsored by the American Bar Association Rule of Law Initiative – Ukraine. Professor McGregor and her colleague, Professor Cynthia M. Adams, completed their text, THE INTERNATIONAL LAWYER'S GUIDE TO LEGAL ANALYSIS AND COMMUNICATION IN THE UNITED STATES. The text, published by Aspen Publishers, became available in May 2008.

JIM NEHF recently published two book chapters, one on "Misleading and Unfair Advertising" in the INTERNATIONAL HANDBOOK OF CONSUMER LAW, and a chapter on "Second Lien Financing" in SECURED TRANSACTIONS UNDER THE UNIFORM COMMERCIAL CODE (J. B. McDonnell, ed.), a leading treatise on the subject of secured financing. He also was asked to write a response to an article on mobile phone privacy for the FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS LAW JOURNAL. The response, entitled "Direct Marketing, Mobile Phones and Consumer Privacy," may be found at 60 FED. COMM. L. J.F. 53 (2008). In May, Professor Nehf taught a course on EU trade law in Cairo as part of the law school's LL.M. program for lawyers in Egypt. He continues to provide contract drafting assistance to the Streamlined Sales Tax Governing Board, an association of states that is implementing a simplified tax system to coordinate the collection of sales and use taxes on Internet and other off-site transactions. Professor Nehf also writes "Expert Commentaries" and provides advice on consumer and commercial law subjects to the LEXIS legal research network. He remains active in the International Association of Consumer Law and serves on its Executive Board. He is currently editing a book on "The Future of Consumer Credit Regulation."

ANTONY PAGE'S article, "Taking Stock of the First Amendment's Application to Securities Regulation," appeared in a symposium issue of the SOUTH CAROLINA LAW REVIEW, 58 S.C. L. REV. 789 and his article, "Trouble Counting the Votes? Comparing Voting Mechanisms in the United States and Selected Other Countries," (with Frank Emmert & Chris Page) appeared in an election law issue of the CREIGHTON LAW REVIEW, 41 CREIGHTON L.

REV. 3 (2007). Professor Page has also been quoted frequently in the media—including the Wall Street Journal, Bloomberg News, the New York Post, the Indianapolis Star, the Guardian, the Tennessean, and Dow Jones Wire Services—commenting on failed mergers, private equity and the credit crunch. In May, he was interviewed on the BBC. Professor Page taught an introductory course to graduate students at the University of Vilnius in Lithuania as part of a certificate program covering the fundamentals of U.S. and international commercial law.

In November of 2007, MICHAEL PITTS presented his forthcoming article, "The Voting Rights Act and the Era of Maintenance," at the University of Illinois College of Law. Also in November 2007, he presented a preview of the Indiana voter identification litigation decided by the United States Supreme Court (Crawford v. Marion County Election Board) for a group of state legislators at a National Conference of State Legislatures meeting in Aspen, Colorado. In January of 2008, Election Law @ Moritz (an academic web site devoted entirely to election law issues) published Professor Pitts' five-thousand word analysis of the thirty-nine amicus briefs filed in the voter identification litigation. In addition, he moderated a panel on the oral arguments in the voter identification case for the American Constitution Society and did several radio, print, and television interviews related to those oral arguments. In February, Professor Pitts moderated a panel on current topics in election law for the Norman Amaker Public Interest and Social Justice Retreat. Finally, at the 2008 Barrister's Ball, Professor Pitts was awarded the Red Cane Award as the Best New Professor.

FLORENCE WAGMAN ROISMAN chaired the Faculty Recruitment Committee throughout the 2007-08 academic year. Three new professors were hired; they are profiled on page 40 of this alumni magazine. Professor Roisman also worked with the staff of the INDIANA LAW REVIEW in organizing its symposium on April 3-4, marking the 40th anniversary of the federal Fair Housing Act and the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Professor Roisman spoke at the symposium and wrote the introduction to the symposium issue of the law review. Professor Roisman's recent publications include "The Right to Remain: Common Law Protections for Security of Tenure," 86 N.C.L. REV. 817 (2008); "End Residential Racial Segregation: Build Communities that Look Like America," Harvard Law & Policy Review Online (2008) (<http://www.hlpronline.com/>); and "Comments, Transformative Visions Group, in Symposium on Strategies to End Poverty and Inequality," 10 U.D.C. L. REV. 155 (2007). In January, Professor Roisman spoke to the staff of Legal Services of New York in New York City; and also talked about Mahatma Gandhi at our law school for a program sponsored by the Committee on Diversity Initiatives and the International Law Students Association to mark the 60th anniversary of the assassination of the Mahatma.

In March, Professor Roisman was a panelist at the Society of American Law Teachers (SALT) Teaching Conference, Teaching for Social Change, at the University of California School of Law in Berkeley, California; her topic was "Teaching About Human Rights in the First Year Property Course." In April, Professor Roisman was the keynote speaker at the biennial statewide conference of Legal Aid of North Carolina; her topic was "Abolitionist Advocacy for the 21st Century."

JOEL SCHUMM was promoted to the rank of Clinical Professor of Law. In addition, he recently published an article, "No Names, Please: The Virtual Victimization of Children, Crime Victims, the Mentally Ill, and Others in Appellate Court Opinions," 42 GA. L. REV. 471 (2008).

In December, JAMES P. WHITE, Professor Emeritus, spoke at Baccasher University, Turkey, on the topic of "Global Legal Education," and also served on a panel on "Global Terrorism." In December and January, he served as the Trustee Member of the Butler University Provost Search. At the ABA Midyear Meeting in February, Professor White chaired the meeting of the International Legal Education Committee. In April, Professor White conducted a site review of Columbia Law School's University of Amsterdam Joint Degree Program. Also in April, he participated in the Berlin Conference, Law Schools Without Borders? The Case of Transatlantic Cooperation in Law Education, and presented a paper on "Legal Education in a Globalized World." Later that month, Professor White spoke at the Indiana State Bar Summit on "The Global Economy, The Rule of Law and Their Effects on Indiana." In May, Professor White was re-elected as secretary of the Butler University Board of Trustees. He also serves as Chair of the Academic Affairs Committee. At the end of May he participated in the inaugural meeting of the International Association of Law Schools in Montreal, Canada. Additionally, he currently serves as a U.S. Commissioner on the China-United States Commission on Legal Education. He continues to serve on the Council of Advisors of the California Western School of Law and on the board of the Atlanta John Marshall Law School.

LAWRENCE P. WILKINS has been appointed co-chair of a newly-created Graduate Affairs Committee and designated Administrative Faculty Director of the Graduate Program at the law school.

LLOYD T. "TOM" WILSON taught a four-day course, December 2-5, on comparative contract and commercial law at the Vilnius University Faculty of Law in Vilnius, Lithuania. On January 5 at the AALS Annual Meeting in New York City, Professor Wilson was elected Chair-Elect of the Real Estate Transactions Section. From May 14-17, he taught a four-day course on commercial litigation at the Vilnius University Faculty of Law in Vilnius, Lithuania. Additionally, Professor Wilson was appointed co-director of the law school's Chinese Law Summer Program at Renmin University of China School of Law in Beijing, China.

WELCOME TO OUR NEW FACULTY

THE LAW SCHOOL IS VERY HAPPY TO INTRODUCE THREE NEW FACULTY MEMBERS who will be joining our ranks this summer and will begin teaching in the fall semester of 2008. We invite all of our alumni to extend a warm welcome to Professors Boyne, Huffman and Morris.

SHAWN BOYNE joins the faculty as associate professor of law, teaching evidence, criminal law, and criminal procedure. Prior to joining IU, she was a DAAD Post-doctoral fellow at the Max Planck Institute of Foreign and International Criminal Law in Freiburg, Germany, as well as a graduate fellow with the Institute for Legal Studies at the University of Wisconsin Law School. She has also been a visiting fellow with the Berlin Program for Advanced German and European Studies.

Early in her career, Professor Boyne served as a senior trial prosecutor for the State of New Mexico, specializing in the prosecution of child sexual abuse and domestic violence cases. She worked for several years as a defense attorney and served on the boards of several non-profit organizations dedicated to protecting the rights of children. As a law student, she served on the staff of the SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA LAW REVIEW and was the co-founder of the SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA REVIEW OF LAW AND WOMEN'S STUDIES. She received the Warren J. Ferguson Award for the best essay on social justice for her early research that examined the conditions of incarceration of HIV-positive women in the California prison system.

Professor Boyne's research interests span the intersection of the fields of criminal law, politics, and culture. Her recent scholarship examines the tension between civil rights and national security in Germany and Europe. During the past five years, she has presented papers at the University of Virginia School of Law, Temple University's Beasley School of Law, and also at conferences in the United States, Germany and Austria. She is currently working on a book project that uses ethnographic research to probe the degree of prosecutorial discretion in Germany.

Professor Boyne holds a B.A. (cum laude) from Cornell University, an M.B.A. from the University of Minnesota, a J.D. from the University of Southern California's Gould School of Law, a Ph.D. in Political Science from the University of Wisconsin, and an LL.M. from Justus-Liebig-Universität in Giessen, Germany.

MAX HUFFMAN is joining the faculty as an associate professor, after teaching at the law colleges at the University of Cincinnati and West Virginia University. He teaches antitrust, bankruptcy, and other consumer and commercial law subjects. His scholarly interests lie primarily in the areas of competition and consumer law.

Before returning to the academy, Professor Huffman was affiliated with the Washington, D.C. litigation boutique Robbins, Russell, Englert, Orseck, Untereiner & Sauber LLP, where he represented clients before the U.S. Supreme Court, other federal and state appellate courts, and economic regulatory agencies. He also served as a trial attorney at the Antitrust Division of the U.S. Department of Justice and as a Special Assistant United States Attorney. Professor Huffman clerked for Judge Stephen Trott on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit and was an extern to Judge Nathaniel Jones on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit.

An Order of the Coif graduate of the University of Cincinnati College of Law, Professor Huffman recently was selected as the 2008 recipient of UC College of Law's Nicholas Longworth Award for alumni excellence. He earned his undergraduate degree in mathematics at Cornell University.

EMILY MICHIKO MORRIS will teach patent law, copyright law, and intellectual property survey courses. Before joining the Indiana University faculty, Professor Morris was a visiting associate professor at Chicago-Kent College of Law, where she taught both patent law and patent litigation. She earned her A.B. (magna cum laude) from Harvard University and her J.D. from the University of Michigan Law School (magna cum laude), where she was an articles editor on the MICHIGAN LAW REVIEW. After law school, Professor Morris clerked for the Honorable Bruce M. Selya on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the First Circuit, and then worked for three years as an associate in the Issues & Appeals section of the Washington, D.C. office of Jones Day. She also served as an adjunct assistant professor and Humphrey Fellow in Law and Economic Policy at the John M. Olin Center for Law and Economics, University of Michigan Law School.

Professor Morris's research and teaching interests include patent law, health law and bioethics, Japanese law, and law and economic analysis. Her current work focuses on economic analysis of various patent law issues, including the effects of patent claim construction and scope on incentives and innovation. She is the co-author with Mark D. West of "The Tragedy of the Condominiums: Legal Responses to Collective Action Problems after the Kobe Earthquake," 51 AM. J. COMP. L. 903 (2003), which received the Hessel Yntema Prize from the American Society of Comparative Law. ■

LAW SCHOOL WELCOMES NEW ADMINISTRATION AND LIBRARY FACULTY

Library Hires New Head of Information Services

SUSAN BOLAND joined the law library as the Head of Information Services in 2008. She teaches legal research and offers reference and research support services to all law library users. Prior to joining the law library faculty, she was the Research & Instructional Services librarian at Northern Illinois University College of Law. She has also held positions at a public library and community college library and served as a judicial clerk for the Iowa District Court for the Fifth Judicial District. She is a member of various professional associations, both regionally and nationally, and served as Chair of the Computing Services Special Interest Section of the American Association of Law Libraries. She has presented at various regional and national conferences. Her publications include annotated bibliographies on the death penalty and election law, as well as newsletter articles on technology and teaching. Boland holds a B.A. from Monmouth College, an M.S. from University of Illinois, and a J.D. from Northern Illinois University College of Law. ■

Sonja Rice Works With Egypt Program

SONJA RICE joined the staff at the law school as the Egypt Program Coordinator in October 2007. Sonja received her J.D. from Indiana University School of Law – Indianapolis in 2007, and is a member of the Indiana Bar. She received her bachelor's degree in psychology from Purdue University in 1994.

Prior to attending law school, Sonja spent close to ten years working in both the private and public sectors. She started her career working for the Indiana Family and Social Services Administration in various positions, most recently as a Family Development Specialist for the Housing and Community Services Section. Following that, she worked as Director of Financial Services for The Derrickson Financial Group of The Northwestern Mutual Financial Network. In her current position, Sonja manages the law school's Egypt program, made possible by a grant from USAID, whereby the law school's International and Comparative Law track of its Master of Laws degree is offered on-site at both Cairo University and Alexandria University in Egypt. ■

Matthew Banker Named Assistant Dean for Student Affairs

MATTHEW BANKER joined the law school administration as assistant dean for student affairs on July 14. Most recently, he was the associate director of academic reviews at the NCAA Eligibility Center. He also served as associate director of membership services and as compliance assistant for the NCAA. He earned a B.A. in Journalism from the University of St. Thomas in St. Paul, Minnesota, and the

J.D. from Marquette University Law School, where he was a student editor of the Federation and Insurance Corporate Counsel Quarterly. His community involvement includes serving on the board of the Boys & Girls Club of Indianapolis, and serving in a volunteer capacity for the Make-a-Wish Foundation. As assistant dean for student affairs, he will be overseeing and assisting student organizations, developing student programming, and applying and enforcing policies governing student conduct. ■

DEAN ESPADA RECEIVES AWARDS

ANGELA M. ESPADA, Associate Dean for Student Services and Admissions, was selected by her alma mater, the University of Indianapolis, as a Distinguished Alumni Award recipient. Dean Espada received A.A. and B.A. degrees from U of I in 1983. She also holds an M.A. from Indiana University (1986) and a J.D. from Indiana University School of Law – Bloomington (1987).

Espada joined the law school in August of 1990. Prior to coming to the law school, she held the position of staff attorney for the Indiana Supreme Court, Division of State Court Administration, and staff attorney for the legislatively-created Indiana Public Defender Commission. Her other professional experience includes practicing law as a deputy prosecuting attorney and teaching law-related courses at the undergraduate level at Indiana University-Bloomington and at the University of Indianapolis.

Dean Espada has also been selected as an American Council on Education (ACE) Fellow for the 2008-2009 academic year. The ACE Fellow program, established in 1965, is designed to mentor emerging leaders in higher education. ACE Fellows spend an extended period of time on another campus, working directly with college presidents, or other high-ranking administrators. ■

Legacy Society

THE LEGACY SOCIETY honors individuals who seek to advance legal education at the IU School of Law – Indianapolis by investing in its future. The society enrolls benefactors who confirm planned or deferred gift arrangements benefiting the law school. When alumni and friends let us know that they have included the school in their estate plans, they are invited to join the Legacy Society.

If you have included our school in your estate plans, please let us know. Doing so will ensure that we understand your wishes and can use your gift exactly as you intend. It also allows the school to make note of your gift as we plan for the future – and finally, and most importantly, it allows us to thank you, honor you, and show our appreciation for your generosity.

For more information about the Legacy Society, contact Joyce Hertko, Director of Major Gifts, in the school's Office of Institutional Advancement at 317-278-9736 or via email at jhertko@iupui.edu.

STULL, '02, WORKS AT UK EMBASSY IN PAKISTAN

ANGELA STULL, '02, has been working as a Consular Immigration Liaison for the British Embassy in Islamabad, Pakistan since 2005. She works in the visa section of the embassy and deals with victims of forced marriage, reluctant sponsors, vulnerable adults and abandoned spouses.

Stull writes of her experience in Pakistan: “In this culture, arranged marriages are still predominant. Many of them work out fine. However, the problems come about when you have a boy or girl that was born and raised in the UK and is being forced by their parents to marry someone from Pakistan, often a first cousin. The two people have virtually nothing in common but out of duty and respect for the parents, the boy and girl will marry. The usual scenario is the person is brought to Pakistan under the auspices of visiting relatives only to find that a wedding has been arranged. If a person is adamant that the marriage not take place, he or she will contact the Consular department and try to arrange a rescue. More often, however, they will go ahead with the marriage and then contact us afterward to help keep the person out of the country. We receive information from the victim or sometimes a third party. It can be a matter of life and death for the boy or girl because they will not tell the family out of fear of being killed or ostracized. We have procedures in place for helping the victim without exposing their reluctance and I cannot disclose that information. We have over 1,600 cases on the books and have anywhere from 300 to 400 live cases.

It is interesting to note that forced marriages are not only of the girls but of boys, too. We have witnessed a significant increase in the number of boys coming forward to tell us of a forced marriage and we treat them with the same level of care that we do the girls. The UK government has tried to raise awareness of the issue and work with those communities where the practice continues. There are NGO’s that are very active in raising awareness and providing shelter for those that have been forced to leave home. It is a very culturally sensitive issue and one must employ tact and understanding. The government continues to employ open and continuing dialog in order to bring about change. For the moment, however, our case load continues to grow.

My legal training has been invaluable, really. I work with highly sensitive material and the importance of confidentiality and non disclosure is quite important to the people we assist. I liaise with various entities within the immigration service of the UK, so the kind of information we handle has to be protected. While I may not be in the role of attorney/client, there is a confidential relationship that exists between you and the applicant and your duty of care to the government. It can be a slippery slope at times. While I have a code of conduct from the UK government, Angela Stull, '02 outside of a hospital in Islamabad, Pakistan after the earthquake in 2006.

I still refer to my legal ethics text.

I was also asked to write appeal statements, in addition to my other duties, because of my legal writing background. Unlike in the U.S., the U.K. gives just about every person who is denied a visa the right of appeal. We have a tremendous backlog of appeals, so I was asked to help out when possible. I have written over 100 thus far. My task was to address each refusal point and make a sound, well-thought out argument supported by UK immigration rules and case law. It has been a great experience for me and provided the opportunity to utilize my skills.”

Stull is married to a Pakistani national and they are awaiting his visa approval to come to the United States, where Stull plans to practice immigration law. ■

Journal's “Forty Under 40” list for 2008. He practices primarily on product liability claims, personal injury lawsuits, contract disputes and criminal defense matters. McMillian is a certified civil mediator and is president of the Marion County Bar Association. In 2006, he was one of 25 attorneys selected for the Indianapolis Bar Association’s Bar Leader Series. He was recently appointed deputy chief of staff of the National Bar Association. He is active in Reach for Youth, Inc.’s Teen Court Program and serves on its board.

ELIZABETH B. HOWARD, '02, an associate in the Construction Group at Rogers Towers, P.A.in Jacksonville, Florida where she concentrates her practice on complex construction litigation, has been inducted as an associate member of the Chester Bedell American Inn of Court. She is also a member of the Board of Governors for the Jacksonville Bar Association’s young lawyers section.

SCALES OF JUSTICE

By Julie Slaymaker

Lawyers at Riley Bennett & Egloff, LLP, march to the sound of their own drummer: Bryce Bennett, Jr. With law partners John Egloff, Don Smith and Ray Seach on guitar, the law firm’s band “took it from the top” of their firm’s five-story, building in November. Office workers in nearby buildings peered through binoculars, assuming it was Keith Urban who was in town for a concert.

“OUR BAND IS CALLED ‘ATTRACTIVE NUISANCE,’ says Bennett. Formed in 1991, the band has performed at office parties and social functions. With a little help from his friends, jam sessions are held in the firm’s basement band room.

“We were invited to play at The Indianapolis Press Club but declined because we didn’t want to ruin our professional reputations,” quips Bennett.

Two years after “Attractive Nuisance” was formed, Bennett also joined fellow North Central High School alumni Steve Marra, Dave Deer and Wayne Midkiff in a band named by one of Marra’s children, “Dad’s Weird Friends.”

The Jackson, Michigan native also plays for “The Players” and at the Sylvan Beach Resort in Whitehall, Michigan where his family has a cottage.

Bennett became enamored with drums the night he saw Ringo Starr playing with The Beatles on The Ed Sullivan Show in February, 1964. When his parents, Betty and Bryce Bennett, Sr., didn’t share his enthusiasm, the 12-year-old built his own drum set. The bass drums were made from Allied Van Lines moving boxes. “I made a high-hat out of my mother’s pie pans and used a music stand and springs for the foot pedals,” says the personable percussionist. A parental percussion discussion resulted in an expensive drum set sitting under the tree on Christmas morning.

The self-taught drummer took up the trombone at Eastwood Junior High when the family moved to Indianapolis in 1966. At North Central High School, he ran track, pole vaulted, and was a tumbling and trampoline gymnast on the team that won the state championship in 1971.

In 1978, he graduated magna cum laude from Indiana University School of Law-Indianapolis where he was Associate Editor of the INDIANA LAW REVIEW. Riley Bennett & Egloff, LLP was established the following year by the three attorneys. ■

AGNES B. BARRETT, '64

Agnes Brown Barrett, Professor Emeritus, passed away Friday, June 20, 2008 at St. Vincent Hospice. She was born in Indianapolis on November 11, 1920 to the late Jane Egan Brown and Clarence A. Brown of Brown Brothers Packing Inc. Her husband, Clark J Barrett, survives her.

After spending a year at Barnard College on scholarship, she completed her education at Indiana University. After graduation, she served as assistant secretary for American States Insurance Co. and while working there received her law degree from IU School of Law-Indianapolis. When she graduated, Dean Cleon Foust asked and encouraged her to join the law school faculty. Professor Barrett was the first female Professor of Law at the IU School of Law-Indianapolis, where she taught corporate law. She was a member of the American Bar Association, Indiana State Bar Association, the National Association of Legal Secretaries, Pi Beta Phi Fraternity, and a 50-year member of the DAR.

Professor Barrett was active locally and nationally. She was appointed by Senator (Mayor) Richard Lugar to the Blue Ribbon Committee and Police Merit Board of Indianapolis in March of 1974. She served as regional vice-president of the American Association of University Women and President of the Indianapolis branch. She was president of Women’s Rotary Club, the St. Thomas More Society, and the Indianapolis Propylaeum. Professor Barrett was a member of St. Luke Catholic Church. ■

Katz, Sapper & Miller Establishes Tax Award in Memory of Patrick J. Burns, '78

The certified public accounting firm of Katz, Sapper & Miller, LLP, announced this spring its $100,000 gift to establish the Patrick J. Burns Excellence In Tax Award as a way to honor, posthumously, former Senior Partner Patrick J. Burns, '78. Jay Benjamin, '88, a partner at the firm and fellow alumnus, says, “Through this gift, Katz, Sapper & Miller wishes to honor a great man, further Indiana University’s mission, and encourage others to give to the university.”

Professor Lawrence A. Jegen, III, said “I knew Pat very well while he was in law school and I knew him even better throughout his very distinguished tax career. I will miss him as one of the finest professional individuals whom I have known and I will miss him as a friend.”

Katz, Sapper and Miller is the second-largest accounting firm in Indianapolis. Burns, who started working at the firm in 1980, was a Senior Partner and a Partner-in-Charge of the firm’s Tax Department and Litigation Support Group. While working at the firm, he was listed in Money magazine as one of Indianapolis’ top five tax advisors.

The J. Patrick Burns Excellence in Tax Award is open to students from the Indiana University School of Law-Indianapolis or the Indiana University Kelley School of Business who have excelled in at least two tax courses in the law school and have shown an interest in practicing in the tax area at an accounting firm. Recipients must be pursuing a law degree, accounting degree, and/or an MBA from Indiana University.

Burns graduated from Indiana University with a B.S. degree in accounting, and a J.D. from Indiana University School of Law-Indianapolis. Mr. Burns died on June 7, 2007.

He was a member of the American Bar Association (member of taxation section and real property, probate and trust law section), the Indiana State Bar Association (member of House of Delegates and member of taxation section), the Indianapolis Bar Association (former chairman of executive council, and member of taxation section), the American Association of Attorney-CPAs, the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants (member of tax division), the Indiana CPA Society, as well as a director of the Indiana Continuing Legal Education Forum (ICLEF). Burns served on the boards of several charities including Hook’s Discovery and Learning Center (Vice President, Treasurer, Director, Finance Committee Chair, Executive Committee Member), Ovar’coming Together (Treasurer, Director) and Little Star Center (Co-Chairman of the Board).

The law school is grateful that Patrick Burns’ legacy will live on at the school, thanks to the generosity of Katz, Sapper and Miller, LLP. ■

Manaloor, '03, Participates in Habitat Project

JACOB MANALOOR, '03, the law school’s Assistant Director for Grant Administration, was a part of an interfaith and intergenerational group that traveled to Jordan, the West Bank (Palestine) and Israel from June 13-27, to serve the needy and to build and foster relations.

While in Jordan, the group of 15 individuals from the Indianapolis community, participated in a five-day Habitat for Humanity International project involving the construction of a traditional cinderblock home for the Abu Zour family in the village of Mobis, located just north of the Jordanian capital of Amman. Over the course of the week, they also took time to meet with several groups of Iraqi refugees and listened to their accounts of life in Jordan as a result of the continuing war in Iraq.

During their visit to Israel and Palestine, the group visited several of the prominent religious sites and met with representatives from the Jerusalem International YMCA, Rabbis for Human Rights, and several other groups, including Palestinian refugees, to gain a better understanding and greater appreciation for the situation facing those living in the region on a daily basis. Through these meetings the team members gained insight into the legal issues facing refugees who live within the region, particularly issues related to the areas of international law, human rights law and immigration law.

“The group hopes that this initial building project and visit will provide a foundation for future interfaith projects within Palestine and Israel,” Manaloor said. He also indicated that they hope it will foster continued opportunities to assist local groups within the region with their ongoing humanitarian efforts. ■

To receive a replacement, you will need to provide your name as you wish it to appear on the diploma, your graduation year and your social security number.

tremendous pace because I knew if the IED exploded, I was going to see my soldiers disintegrate right in front of my eyes. The soldiers got closer. Then one of them signaled his battle buddy to stop. He continued forward with his flashlight pointed in front of him. Suddenly, he froze, bent over, and signaled his battle buddy to go back to the truck. His battle buddy ran straight to the patrol Sergeant who walked forward to the lead soldier. They talked, and the Sergeant moved forward and popped open a chemlight, placing it on the ground. All soldiers returned to their vehicles.

The patrol called in and reported a passive infrared device with a wire coming from it. I gave them the command to move back and cordon off the area. I immediately requested an explosive ordnance detachment (EOD) team be sent to the location. I then called the patrol and ordered them to set up a hasty ambush in case the IED emplacements came back to turn on the device or had not completed the emplacement. I called the 3rd Armored Cavalry Regiment (ACR) and told them we had tracked the bad guys to four homes within a village on the opposite side of the Forward Operating Base. The battle captain at the ACR Tactical Operations Center woke up their Executive Officer and it was on. They spun up their Quick Reaction Force and in 40 minutes they were sitting outside the village. The ACR shifted command and control of their ground unit to my BDOC, brought up our live feed on their computer and watched the show. By that time, EOD arrived and confirmed it was a killer IED. They decided to blow it in place.

They set it off. "Kaboom!" It shook the base. We knew the bad guys were happy...because they thought they had just blown a bunch of us up. They were wrong. It was a perfect night. No sooner had the IED exploded, the 3rd ACR reported to me "Sir, on station, ready to conduct cordon in search of the first target." The bad guys did not know that the infidels were right outside. I confirmed that his location was at the right house and said "Execute." We scanned the area while they executed, reporting movement and watching for any hasty attack by the bad guys under the cover of darkness....We conducted searches of eight houses that night and finished the raid at 0400. The bounty was four bad guys, all with bomb residue on their hands. One of them was a main IED maker who had also been running some sniper teams in our AO. The ACR had been looking for him for months.

It was a great night. We stayed left of the boom, kept other soldiers left of the boom, caught the bad guys, and best of all, my Hoohas and the 3rd ACR Hoohas came out of the dark, back onto the FOB without a scratch.

Well I am about to go... I have done eight missions with my Hoohas thus far, so I figure at this rate I will be able to have a solid mixture of Afghan and Iraq sand in my lungs by the time I get home.

From Update Four (6/16/08):

Hello, from Iraq. As most of you know by now, our Brigade lost a soldier last week. The soldier was killed during operations when his Armored Security Vehicle (ASV) rolled over. The soldier had one child and was married right before we deployed. When I deployed to this country I prayed that we would all return, but I knew that was a lot to ask with so many of us going down range together. I will tell you, as a military officer, that it sucks the life out of you every time you hear that a military person has been killed. You seem to lose more of your spirit when you lose people in your unit and it is devastating if you lose someone within your command. When I wake up in the middle of the night, I see the faces of the men and women that I have served with, that were with us one minute and gone the next. I accept it as God's will, grieve and move on, but I will tell you it is very painful to think about, to talk about and to write about.

NON-LETHAL ENGAGEMENTS

Non-lethal engagements are what you would typically call humanitarian missions. We conduct these missions to gain the trust of the villages around our FOB. We normally pass out school supplies, clothes and personal hygiene items. These are feel-good missions because you are normally going to interact with many children. I will tell you that children are the same in Iraq as they are in America. They are cute and full of energy. They are innocent of the sins of their fathers. I consider both ends of the spectrum when deciding in which villages we will do these non-lethal engagements. In other words, I select friendly villages that share intelligence with us and bad villages where IED strikes have been launched.

Why we support the good villages is obvious. The bad villages are supported in order to put a face in the mind of the person who is trying to kill us. I want them to see me, not some tan Humvee, with unknown people inside, when they set that explosive device. I want wives to put pressure on their husbands because we are taking care of their children. We also want to shape the minds of the young people so that they don't grow up hating Americans. We take Iraq Army soldiers with us and let them take the lead. We have done four of these missions so far and will be doing another one this week.

NEW PROBLEM

We stopped the bad guys in one place and they moved to another. The success of the ACR counter attack lead to the bad guys shifting their operations south, right into my battle space. During the last few weeks we have found one IED and had two IED and one Vehicle Born IED explode on units in my battle space. We had an IED hit another Engineer unit right outside of our FOB a couple of weeks ago....Nationwide it was a good month for U.S. personnel in Iraq. Our casualties were low but they still existed. Remember if you are the one hurt, it was still a bad month for you and your family....We are still doing well here and hopefully we will have continued success.

That completes this update so until next time, take care and God bless. ■
