GROUP PICS MONDAY

A picture of all delegates, counsellors and staff members will be taken on Monday at 8:00 in the morning.

Conference director Jim Sweeny said that Achievers should note that this time for the group picture is a change from the scheduled time printed in the "Official Delegate Manual".

Achievers are directed to assemble by group number for the picture. Group counsellors will direct the assembly of Achievers for the picture.

All delegates, counsellors, staff members and visitors are expected to be on hand for the picture since it is the official conference photograph.

Copies of the picture will be given to everyone attending the conference before they leave on Friday.

INDIVIDUAL PICTURES

Delegates who did not attach a photo to their application cards should report to the Information Office in Rabb Hall of Teter Quadrangle as soon as possible after their arrival.

COCA-COLA COMPLIMENTS OF BOTTLER

Once again, the Coca-Cola Company is supplying fountain coke free (yes, free) to delegates. A large tent, the Coke Tent, is located in the rear of Teter and contains several coke fountains. Help Yourself.

NEARLY 1400 TO REGISTER

Record numbers of nearly 1400 delegates, counsellors, staff and visitors are expected to register today for the twenty-first annual National Junior Achievers Conference. Pre-registration figures show that this year's meeting will be the largest yet.

Registration began at 10 this morning for the seventh time at Indiana University. About 75 counsellors arrived on Saturday for the group picture. Group numbers for the picture are Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and Junior Achievers.

A picture for the annual picture is a change from the honorary delegates from other youth groups.

Included in registration will be some honorary delegates from other youth groups. Among those who will be represented will be the 4-H club, Future Farmers of America, Distributive Education Clubs of America, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and Junior Achievement of Mexico.

In the past, either the Teter Quadrangle or Wright Quadrangle was sufficient to house the conference. This year, due to its continuing growth from 15 delegates at the first national conference, both quadrangles were needed to house delegates, staff and visitors. Male delegates are housed in buildings A and B of Teter Quad and units 11-15 of Wright Quad. The girls are housed in buildings C, D and E of Teter. Delegates are reminded to stay out of the dorms restricted to members of the other sex.

Church services will be conducted today (continued on back page)
SOUVENIRS ON SALE

A wide variety of souvenirs of the National Junior Achievers Conference go on sale today in the main lobby of Rabb Hall. Souvenirs will be sold throughout the week.

Display of the items for sale is in Rabb Hall. Items range from pencils costing five cents to flocked sweatshirts in two colors costing $3.00.

NEWSPAPER PUBLISHED DAILY

The National Junior Achievers Conference News will be published daily to keep achievers informed of all the happenings going on at the conference. The newspaper will be distributed during the noon lunch at the end of the cafeteria lines. Be sure to read your copy of the paper to be informed of everything that's going on.

PRESIDENT DANZ WELCOMES DELEGATES

"It looks like a great conference," exclaimed Steve Danz, national conference president. Steve is a hard working and enthusiastic achiever from Seattle, Wash.

Steve says that with over 1250 delegates expected this will be the largest meeting in Junior Achievement's history and "from the caliber of these achievers," he says, "the best".

Steve feels that a conference of this size is a great way to demonstrate, to achievers as well as businessmen, the great scope of J.A.

"Of course," he says, "the conference could only be made a reality by the almost superhuman efforts of Mr. Jim Sweeney, the conference director, and his staff and a list of graduate achiever counsellors reading like a page out of Who's Who." Preparations, Steve pointed out, began at the close of the 1963 conference with the selection of the site. Since then, the four year achiever said, the work involved in preparing for the conference concerned the officers, too.

"Tabulating and replying to many questionnaires, writing over 4,000 letters during the year, keeping in touch with achievers everywhere and with representative of many other youth organizations are all part of the officer's job in helping with the conference," Steve explained. He said that the four officers have travelled over 50,000 miles during the past year.

As president, Steve has spoken to groups in Atlantic City, N.J., St. Louis, Mo., Calgary, Portland, Tacoma, Vancouver, Maine, New York and California.
