Library Morning Hours Extended

You may have noticed a change to the library's schedule this semester -- the law library is now opening at 7:30 a.m. on weekday mornings, in an effort to provide more accessible law library hours and to better accommodate our early morning users. We hope these extended hours make it easier for students and faculty to use the library's resources and services.

Bloomberg Law Now Available to All Law School Faculty And Students

Bloomberg Law is now available to all students and faculty in the law school. Bloomberg Law is a comprehensive online legal research platform that provides access to primary legal content like cases, statutes, and regulations, as well as practical transactional and litigation resources, news and secondary source materials.

Students can use their Bloomberg Law password for the entire time they are a law student, including over the summers and wherever they work. Students also have free access for 6 months after graduation to help with bar prep, career research and new jobs.

You can obtain a user ID and password by visiting www.bloomberglaw.com and clicking on "Request a Law School Account," and then "Get Started Now." Once you reach the Registration Page, you will need to fill out the form in full, but ignore the blue Activation Code bar. Please also be sure to use your law school email address when filling out the form.

Once the form is complete, hit submit and you'll receive a confirmation email. After your registration is processed, you'll receive a second email with your user name and temporary password. You can then follow the instructions provided to set a new password.

If you have any questions, please contact our Bloomberg Law Relationship Manager, Noelle Petruzelli-Marino, Esq., at npetruzellim@bloomberg.net.

Law Faculty Research Assistant Program Completes First Semester

The library's Faculty Research Assistant Program, begun in the fall of 2012, will continue in 2013. Catherine Lemmer, Head of Information Services and administrator of the program, reported that 27 faculty research projects totaling 450 hours of research were completed in the first semester of the program. The faculty research projects varied from family law to international piracy to sports law issues. The work is completed by three research assistants, Cliff Robinson '12, Lisa Bonine '13 and Rose Shingledecker '13, under the supervision of the administrator of the program.

A number of new projects are now under way for the spring semester. If faculty members have research needs that could be fulfilled by this program or if they have questions about how the program works, Catherine Lemmer can be reached at calemmer@iupui.edu or by calling (317) 278-6165. Students interested in becoming research assistants in the summer or fall of 2013 should send a resume and cover letter to Ms. Lemmer.

Library Research Guides Now Available

The library is now offering online research guides. So far, we have two published: Environmental Law & Natural Resources and Bankruptcy. You can find these and future research guides at <http://iupui.campusguides.com/RLLLhome>. These guides are an easy way to link to relevant statutes, leading cases, journals, newsletters, study guides, and more. In addition to direct links, they contain search tips along with database and website suggestions. Other topics are coming soon: Antitrust, Illicit Markets, Intellectual Property, Housing Discrimination, Health Care, and more. We'll keep you posted.

Introduction

Environmental law combines federal, state, and local laws and regulations with policy, economic, science, and health concerns. It is a dynamic field where experts can easily disagree and policy can change quickly. There are many subgenres of environmental law as well – hazardous waste, water, energy, toxic torts, animals, conservation, sustainable development, and so on.

This guide will help you find many different resources for your environmental law research. Use the tabs above or the links people to navigate this guide. Also, as with most research, it is often a good idea to start with background reading in books and articles. Then move on to primary sources such as the statutes, regulations, and cases that govern environmental law. The Current News page is particularly important in environmental law because of the rapid changes in the area. The databases listed there are great tools for keeping up-to-date in the field, locating hot topics, and preparing a job search or for a job interview.

IUCAT is a new and improved way to find out what is available in the Indiana University library system. It features a simple search box, just like Google, and brings the items most relevant to your search to the top of the retrieval list, also just like Google. Even better, IUCAT Beta gives you many ways to focus your search. The options on the left side of the screen allow you to search for items in a particular format, like books, or videos, or online resources. You can also use the options to do things like narrow your search to an individual library (like the Ruth Lilly Law Library), discover items on a specific subject, or find resources published in a certain year. IUCAT Beta also features nice extras like book covers and easy ways to create citations.

The screenshot shows the IUCAT Beta interface. At the top, it says "INDIANA UNIVERSITY IUCAT" with a "change location" link. A navigation bar includes "My Account | Ask A Librarian | Selected Items (0) | Search History". A yellow banner reads "Welcome to the new IUCAT interface beta release". On the left, a "Limit your search" section has a "Format" dropdown menu with options: Book (4,293,877), Online Resource (1,482,885), Microfilm (296,270), Serial (146,794), Sound Recording (132,220), Musical Score (131,679), Microfilm (123,157), Map (57,618), Videocassette (45,350), and Videotape (28,684). Below this are filters for "Publication Year", "Author", "Subject", "Language", "Call Number", "Campus", and "Library". On the right, a search bar contains "All Fields" and a "search" button. Below the search bar, a "Welcome to IUCAT Beta!" message states: "This is our first public release. Please let us know what you think using our feedback form." It also provides links for "Access IUCAT Classic" and "Class Reserves". A "Search tips" section lists:

- Use quotation marks to search as a phrase.
- Use "*" before a term to make it required. (Otherwise results matching only some of your terms may be included).
- Use "-" before a word or phrase to exclude.
- Use "OR", "AND", and "NOT" to create complex boolean logic.
- Truncation and wildcards are not supported - word-stemming is done automatically.

In the coming months, IUCAT Beta will become the primary catalog for the IU library system, but in the meantime you can get comfortable with its new look and feel.

Study Aids and Course Supplements

The library has recently expanded its collection of study aids and course supplements. These materials include items in the Examples & Explanations series, Questions & Answers series, Problems & Answers, and other course supplements, test preparation guides, and other study aids. This newly-expanded collection has been moved to reserves at the circulation desk, but the materials are not tied to a particular class or professor and are available to anyone. The materials will circulate for one day.

You may search for these materials in the IUCAT class reserves module found under the header "More IUCat Searches."

The screenshot shows the IUCAT search interface. At the top, it says "INDIANA UNIVERSITY Libraries IUCAT" with the subtitle "Indiana University's Online Library Catalog". A navigation bar includes "IUCAT Home | My Account | Interlibrary Loan/Document Delivery/Recall | Ask | Exit/Logout". Below this are links for "Go Back | Help | Permalink | My Lists". The main search area is titled "Basic Search" and includes fields for "title", "author", and "keywords anywhere", each with a dropdown menu and an "And" button. There are "Search" and "Reset" buttons. Below these are filters for "set by" (None), "library" (Indpls - Ruth Lilly Law Library (I-LAW)), "location" (ANY), "publication years" (with examples: 1981, 1965-1970, >1970, <2000), "format" (ANY), "language" (ANY), and "collection" (ANY). On the right, a sidebar titled "More IUCAT Searches" lists:

- Advanced Keyword Search
- Periodical Title Search
- DVD/Video Search
- Sound Recording Search
- E-book Search
- Class Reserves (highlighted with a red box)
- Call Number Search
- Begins With (Browse)

 At the bottom, there are links for "Go Back | Help | Permalink | My Lists" and a footer with "Copyright © 2011 The Trustees of Indiana University | Powered by InDyca | Libraries Privacy Policy | E-Resources Use Policy".

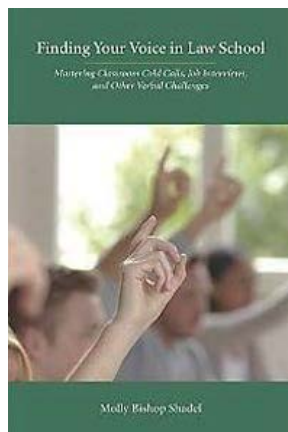

Treatises, hornbooks, and other materials remain in the open reserves collection on the first floor of the library and are also available for checkout. Don't hesitate to check with a reference librarian if you need assistance in locating these materials.

New Title Useful for Students

The library has just purchased 2 copies of Finding Your Voice in Law School by Molly Bishop Shadel, professor of oral advocacy at the University of Virginia School of Law. Drawing from interviews with law students and with attorneys from leading law firms, Ms Bishop presents successful communication strategies for excelling in law school and life beyond.

The text provides step-by-step methods to overcome the most challenging tasks law students face, from mastering the Socratic Method, preparing for moot court competitions and mock trials and leading student organizations, to speaking informally with professors and colleagues. Ms. Shadel, a former Justice Department attorney and Columbia law graduate, also explains how to use excellent speaking skills to help establish a firm foundation for building a stellar professional reputation.

Ms. Shadel believes that effective communication, whether with faculty, in social settings, or with supervisors and colleagues during summer employment, will have lasting impact on your legal career.

Ben Keele, Research and Instruction Librarian, Joins Law Library Faculty

Benjamin Keele joined the library faculty in December 2012. Previously Ben was a Reference Librarian and Adjunct Professor of Law at the Wolf Law Library of the William & Mary Law School. He taught legal research courses and served as liaison librarian to William & Mary's law journals. He is vice chair of the AALL/LexisNexis Call for Papers Committee, co-editor of a book review column in Law Library Journal, and has presented at professional association meetings. Ben's research interests include copyright, scholarly publishing, and privacy law. He has written numerous articles and co-authored a book, The Librarian's Copyright Companion 2nd Edition, with James S. Heller and Paul Hellyer. Ben earned his JD (magna cum laude) from Indiana University Maurer School of Law, where he served as Editor-in-Chief of the Indiana Journal of Global Legal Studies. He earned his MLS from Indiana University.
