Other Question(s)

1. If you had to implement a budget reduction of 3-5% in your base general fund budget. a) what would be your budget priorities and b) what strategies would you employ to walk the fine line of maintaining critical operations and investing in your future? Please describe how faculty and other stakeholders will be involved in the decision making process.

a) Those areas that we intend to protect during FY 2010 budget development are positions within the Police Department and Environmental Health & Safety; Finance and Administration (F&A) in fact needs to invest in more police officers, address how “rent” for the Police departments is covered and Environmental Health and Safety and the Police Department need to be exempted from any reductions that Finance and Administration receives. We also hope to protect any ability that we have to invest in energy management as we see this as an important opportunity to generate future dividends. Any sustainability projects that ultimately save money will be a high priority to protect. With this context when we arrive at a final number for departmental reductions we will apply differential targets for reductions.

b) We take seriously our responsibility to hold down costs and to provide relevant and effective services. Given the areas that we have identified as our highest priorities we will have to make difficult decisions about how reductions will be absorbed by the remaining units. To walk the fine line of maintaining critical operations and investing in the future the first step to our approach involves looking across the division to determine if there are areas for collaboration that allows leveraging of resources. Initial areas identified for further review include: Managing Information Technology, Providing Training, Collections and Accounts Receivables, and Marketing activities. We are willing to participate in a campus wide discussion along these lines if others feel it is worthwhile. Additionally, each F&A unit head has been asked to respond to varying scenarios of reductions. We will review these submissions as a leadership team in the context of our stated priorities. It is our hope that leveraging opportunities mitigates what we will need to use from the submissions. As far as collecting stakeholder input, we are considering a customer service survey to get a better prospective on the services that F&A offers. We would hope to find out more about what services are most valued by our customers and if we are doing them well or need to improve. Campus Facility Services (CFS) have sought input from frontline staff as to how it can operate more efficiently.

2. Please describe current commitments or plans that require multiple year funding, including the amount of funding required and the length of time the initiative’s funding is required.

There are no commitments or plans that fall into this category. CFS has been tasked with developing a comprehensive list of energy management projects that F&A would later bring back to campus leadership for consideration.

3. How do you intend to use your reserves over the next four years? Please provide the information by fiscal year.

Given the potential instability of our economic environment the majority of reserves will be used to protect against any impending reductions to allow time to make thoughtful and strategic decisions. Additionally this may be one source used for lower cost energy management programs.

4. How do you define return on investment for diversity efforts in your unit (e.g., numbers of faculty/staff/students recruited and retained, grants received for special studies, new teaching methods or courses, placement of graduates, program reputation)? What are you doing to improve your ROI?

Unfortunately we have not collected data in a method that allows us to respond to the question as asked. The division has prepared a Diversity Plan prior to the arrival of the new Vice Chancellor. It will be reviewed and updated over the next year. Diversity has been incorporated in the new F&A guiding principles and is in the new divisional goals. It is our responsibility to set an example in all of our units and to provide campus leadership through our Human Resource functions and through the Vice Chancellor’s office.
