CONTINUING EDUCATION ADDS COURSES

Some 34 new courses have been added to this fall's schedule of continuing education offerings at IUPUI.

Joining the roster of more than 125 non-credit courses are selections like Meatless Menus, Middle Life Crisis, News Reporting, Basketball Officiating for Women, 20th-Century Art Appreciation, Fun with the Guitar, The Symphony Orchestra, Women and the Law and the ever-popular Transactional Analysis for the Helping Professions.

The courses at the 38th Street Campus are offered in the categories of communication skills, cultural enrichment, personal enrichment, human relations, women's courses, business and vocational and personal interests.

For more information, call Ext. 4501. (N.B. Full-time IUPUI staff and faculty--but not spouses--may enroll for half-price.)

PERSONNEL SHUFFLE

New assignments in employment, employee relations, and wage and salary administration have been made in the Personnel Division, according to Thomas E. Duane, director.

Assistant Director Clifford F. Robinson heads employment, which includes the recruitment, referral and internal transfer activities for IUPUI. The post also involves developing applicant resources through community agencies, schools and employment centers.

James C. Mathews Jr., in the new position of employee relations manager, will deal with grievances, unemployment compensation claims and the administration of labor agreements.

Robert L. Heid, wage and salary manager, will supervise the job description-evaluation program, wage survey activities and records maintenance.

G. Elaine Bradley, an employment interviewer since 1974, has been named job analyst. William P. Schilk Jr., a junior in the IUPUI School of Business and a Vietnam veteran, is working part-time in the recruitment and placement of veteran applicants.
