RILEY RENOVATION APPROVED

A $1,253,400 renovation program at Riley Hospital for Children, including the creation of three new units, was approved Wednesday by the Riley Memorial Association.

At the annual meeting, Perry W. Lesh resigned after serving 28 years as president of the association's board of governors and was succeeded by Otto N. Frenzel III. Lesh, who will continue to serve on the 21-member board, was the association's second president since its founding 54 years ago.

The renovation program will create three additions at the hospital, including a Center for Handicapped Infants, to treat babies with congenital anomalies or birth defects. A major emphasis of the unit will be parent education.

Dr. Morris Green, Riley's physician-in-chief, said, "This new unit, which will be the first of its kind in the United States, will have a major impact on the hospital care of children. We believe this program will make a major contribution to the care of handicapped children in Indiana, to the strengthening and comfort of families and to professional education."

The second unit in the project will provide research facilities for newborn care, pediatric surgery and pediatric infectious diseases. A floor in the Riley Research Building will be renovated for the research.

The third unit is a new ambulatory center at the hospital which will enable the hospital to expand its pace-setting service in providing ambulatory outpatient care for children, minimizing hospitalization of children whenever possible. Also, space now used for some outpatient clinics will be converted to a 24-bed pediatric intensive-care unit.

In other action, two women -- Mrs. Otis R. Bowen, wife of the Governor, and Mrs. Richard D. Wood -- were appointed to fill vacancies on the board. They are the first women to serve on the board. Women were first invited to membership in the association this year, with 36 applications being accepted. Membership is limited to 400 Indiana residents.

The board also received a check for $75,000, which completed a $125,000 pledge to the hospital from the Kiwanis Rehabilitation Medical Society.

HOOK-UP AT BLAKE STREET

With the installation of an Ohio College Library Center (OCLC) terminal this month, the Blake Street Library joined more than 450 libraries throughout the country already participating in the OCLC on-line computerized bibliographic network.

The terminal consists of a TV screen and typewriter-like keyboard. The OCLC data base contains more than 1.5 million bibliographic records for books and periodicals which represent cataloguing provided by the Library of Congress and participating libraries. The data base grows at a rate of 2,000 records a day.

The system will enable the library to order catalogue cards, printed and ready to file. Equally important is the capacity to verify hard-to-find books for inter-library loan. One statistic is that OCLC produces more than 500,000 catalogue cards per week for its members.
