WOMEN'S RIGHTS REVISITED

The roles of women in higher education -- and the roles which women believe they ought to have -- will bring national leaders in the women's rights movement to Indianapolis Thursday and Friday for a conference on Women, Higher Education and the Law.

The conference will be presented by the Continuing Education Office of IUPUI to discuss patterns of sex discrimination in higher education and the present legal remedies for reversing those patterns.

Among the speakers will be Ms. Ann Scott of Baltimore, legislative vice-president of the National Organization for Women; Ms. Cyrena N. Pondrom, special assistant to the chancellor of the University of Wisconsin at Madison, and Ms. Odessa Fellows, chief of the Federal Contract Compliance Branch of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Chicago division.

The conference will also be addressed by Indianapolis Mayor Richard G. Lugar; Dr. Sylvia Bowman, I.U. chancellor for regional campuses; Ms. Agnes Brown, associate professor at the Indianapolis Law School; Dr. Elizabeth Greenleaf of I.U., past president of the National Association of Women Deans and Counselor; Ms. Nora Kinzer of the Purdue University North Central Campus, president of the Purdue Women's Caucus; Ms. Margaret Jean Peterson of I.U., author of a survey on sex discrimination in Indiana universities and colleges; Ms. Frances Dodson Rhome of IUPUI, chairman of the IUPUI commission of the status of women, and Ms. Osma Spurlock, district director of the Federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

The conference will be held at Stouffer's Indianapolis Inn. Thursday's sessions start with a 1 p.m. registration and the Friday program begins at 9 a.m. The Continuing Education Office, 1201 East 38th Street, is accepting reservations for attendance. IUPUI faculty and staff are urged to attend for a half-price fee: $10 which includes materials and a Friday luncheon.

PLAN AHEAD FOR NEXT SUMMER

Through the Office of the Vice-President for Research and Advanced Studies, I.U. will again be offering fellowships for next summer for the support of regular faculty members who won't be teaching and who wish to devote full time to their research or creative work in the arts.

These fellowships will be primarily for persons holding the lower professorial ranks. They may not be awarded for research leading to a dissertation. Recipients must not hold any teaching or other service-rendering appointments at any time throughout the summer and they must be planning to continue at I.U. through 1973-74.

The stipends will be $1,200 for an instructor or assistant professor, $1,400 for an associate professor and $1,600 for a professor. For fellows who are granted supplemental income from other sources, the award payments may be adjusted to furnish total payments of $2,000.

Application forms may be obtained from the Office of Sponsored Programs in the Chancellor's Building and should be returned no later than November 22. Each application should be supported by a letter from the departmental chairman. It is expected that the awards will be announced beginning December 15. For further information, call Ext. 8287.

IDEAS NEEDED

Faculty members and all IUPUI units are invited to contribute ideas for the work of a new economic development council to operate in and for developing countries of the world.

The Midwest Universities Consortium for International Activities (MUCIA) is considering the formation of a Development Economic Council, with two I.U. faculty members appointed as all-university representatives. They are Dr. William Siffin, director of the International Development Research Center, Bloomington, and Dr. John T. Liell, executive director of the Consortium For Urban Education and director of the Office of Metropolitan Studies at IUPUI.

The council aims to promote economic development in less economically-advanced nations; to improve cooperation among educational, governmental and industrial institutions in these nations; to establish links between educational institutions in these countries and with universities with similar interests in the U.S., and to promote training of qualified technical personnel in the developing countries.

MUCIA is attempting to assess the interest of faculty and their availability to undertake projects in less developed countries in the general areas of urban development, manpower, housing, transportation, environment, human services, and macro-development policy. If you have suggestions, questions, or comments, please send them to Dr. John Liell, M102A, 264-3756.

FRIDAY IS DEADLINE FOR SPEAKERS

Deadline for compiling the list of faculty members who wish to be included in the IUPUI Speakers' Service booklet, which is to be sent to about 1,000 Hoosier clubs, organizations, etc., is Friday (October 20).

Response to the formation of a speakers' service for all IUPUI faculty has been excellent, according to Noel Duerden, director of Information Services which is spearheading the effort.

Plans are to compile the names, titles, addresses, and speech topics of faculty members, and mail them to program directors of organizations in Indiana. The service will be a brokerage type of activity--to bring speaker and organization together.

Faculty who wish to be included may obtain forms from the Information Services Office, 38th Street Campus, phone 612-321.

NEWS 'N' NOTES FROM HERE 'N' THERE

International Week -- Her Excellency Angie Brooks, president of the 24th United Nations General Assembly, will headline a list of diplomats who will play key roles in International Emphasis Week at IUPUI this week. Miss Brooks will be the honored guest at a dinner meeting Wednesday in the Union Building, followed by an 8 p.m. speech in Lecture Hall 101. Other international guests will include Victor Taylor, Nigerian deputy consul general at New York, and Ademola Jaems, cultural affairs officer. On Monday they will address a luncheon meeting of the Indianapolis chapter of the Council on World Affairs and sit in on a political science class taught by Dr. Richard A. Fredlund. On Tuesday at 1 p.m. they will be at the student lounge at the 38th Street Campus for talks, films and discussion. Also visiting on Monday will be Hodo Nakayama, assistant consul for cultural affairs at the Japanese consulate at Chicago. A reception for the Nigerian and Japanese guests will be held Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the Union. International Emphasis Week is an activity of the IUPUI Chancellor's Convocation Committee. Arrangements have been made by Paul Lane and Steven Sax, student representatives on the committee.

Give -- United Fund cards and literature have been sent to members of the IUPUI faculty and staff. Please consider the payroll deduction option and get your card and contribution to your division chairman within the next few days. (Chairmen were announced in the last Green Sheet. Add two more: Gloria Washington in Social Service and Frank Blaudow in Building Services.) The IUPUI goal is $50,000, on behalf of 120 local health, help and character-building services.

Chancellor's Activities -- Chancellor Maynard K. Hine spent last Saturday morning speaking at Riley Red Rose Day, a ceremony honoring the Hoosier poet, then met with the Visiting Committee of the Indianapolis Law School to discuss program and plans for IUPUI and the school. Last Wednesday evening, he addressed the First District Dental Society in Evansville.

Hearings -- A state-wide series of public hearings on the future of higher education in Indiana has been scheduled for October and early November. The Indiana Commission for Higher Education is seeking reaction to a preliminary draft of a long-range plan for post-secondary education in the state. James B. Kessler, commissioner for higher education, urges all interested citizens to attend. The Indianapolis hearing will be Tuesday at 7 p.m., in Lecture Hall 101. If you can't attend, write your opinion to the commission office at 215 North Senate Avenue (46202).

Playtime -- Recreational facilities, including billiards and Ping Pong, are available in the Union Building. For information, ask at the front desk.

WAT's Going On -- "Today's Medicine: Factors Influential in Postoperative Wound Infections" will be presented on WAT 21 Tuesday at 11 a.m. The use of laminar air flow will be included in the discussion by Dr. Merrill Ritter, assistant professor of orthopaedics; Dr. Morris French, assistant professor of clinical pathology, and Dr. Jack Hart, assistant professor of mechanical engineering. Telephone talkback at the viewing area, Medical Science 119, is provided.

Union Art -- Everyone is encouraged to stop by the newly renovated display cases on the ground floor of the Union to see the special art exhibit of works by Dr. Rolando de Castro and his daughter, Evangeline. The display features landscapes, acrylics, plus paintings of Chancellor Hine and Dental School Dean Ralph E. McDonald. The father-daughter show will last all month.
