PLAY SLATED FOR M BUILDING PERFORMANCES

The play "Mean to be Free" will be performed the next two weekends by the Speech and Theater Department of IUPUI.

Written by Joanna Halpert Kaus, the play concerns the activities of the Underground Railroad before the Civil War and is geared for an audience from 8-year-olds to adults.

The drama will be directed by Barbara Harrell. Leading players are Wilma Greene as Moses, Brenda Greene as Hedy, Clark Long as Tom, Martin Rynard as Thomas Garrett, Geraldine Brooks as Linda and Steven Jones as Joe.

The performances will be given August 3-5 and August 9-11. Friday performances will be at 8 p.m. and the Saturday and Sunday matinees will be presented at 2:30 p.m.

Site for the performances is the M Building, 902 North Meridian Street. Admission is $1.50 for adults and $1 for children. Group rates also are available by calling Barbara Harrell at 255-9386.

FROM COMPUTERS TO PSYCHOLOGY

Computers are getting smarter, according to a Wall Street Journal (June 28) story. Before long, they will be running assembly lines, making medical diagnoses, forecasting the weather, reading books and storing the information. A Carnegie-Mellon computer scientist says the intuitive, thinking machine is here and may soon outsmart its creator. Meanwhile, the computers are talking and listeners are advised not to be fooled by the drunken manner of speech affected by some machines. . . The search for self-understanding is thought to be the major force in the campus psychology boom, Psychology departments in graduate schools are turning applicants away by the hundreds. The American Psychological Association approved new doctoral programs in 16 state universities last year. Undergraduate programs are expanding, taking the play away from sociology, the in-course of the '60s. Newsweek (May 21) has a wrapup. (From Education Abstracts, July 1973).

MRS. SEIFERT APPOINTED

Mrs. Adeline C. Seifert has been appointed half-time as acting director of the Educational Computer Center, effective August 1.

Mrs. Seifert, a long-time employee of IUPUI, will continue her duties as chief of user services at the Research Computer Center. She will be assisted in that capacity by L. Craig Brown who has recently joined the RCC staff from the Tumor Registry.

Under the direction of Professor Edward M. Solinski, recently named director of computing services at IUPUI, the user services group of the RCC will continue to expand its functions to meet the requirements of the DECsystem-10 to be installed soon.

FIGHT FIRE WITH KNOWLEDGE

The Safety Department of IUPUI has arranged with the Indianapolis Fire Department for a demonstration of fire equipment, extinguishing small fires by using hand extinguishers and removing persons from upper floors.

The demonstration will be Wednesday, August 8, in the parking lot north of the Medical Science Building. There will be two demonstrations, one at 9:30 a.m. and the second at 3 p.m.

Please arrange for your personnel to attend one of these demonstrations. This has been planned in the interest of fire safety for all IUPUI personnel.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT AND EATING

Here's another culinary wonder coming to you from the Dietetic Department -- this time it's Warm Fresh Peach Cobbler with Hard Sauce. The recipe yields six yummy servings.

Cobbler

|                           |               |
|---------------------------|---------------|
| Cake Flour                | 2 tablespoons |
| Nutmeg                    | 1/8 teaspoon  |
| Sugar                     | 1/2 cup       |
| Very Ripe Peaches, Sliced | 3 cups        |
| Butter or Margarine       | 2 tablespoons |

Mix flour and nutmeg with sugar and fresh peaches. Cook and stir until thick. Add butter (or margarine). Measure into baking pan. Top with regular pastry. Bake at 400 degrees for 20 minutes. Serve warm with Hard Sauce to gradually melt atop each serving.

Hard Sauce

|   |               |
|---|---------------|
| Butter or Margarine                       | 3 tablespoons |
| Powdered Sugar                            | 1/2 cup       |
| Fresh Lemon Juice ( not flavoring) | 1/2 teaspoon  |
| Vanilla                                   | 1/2 teaspoon  |

Cream butter until light and fluffy. Add powdered sugar gradually. Add lemon juice gradually. Beat until very smooth. Add vanilla gradually.
