SPRING SINGS & SUCH

iupui

Four music-making events -- from a wind ensemble to Broadway songs and dances -- are on the IUPUI agenda this month.

The opener will be the Purdue University Wind Ensemble which will perform at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Union Building cafeteria. The 50-member group of students, faculty and staff will present a program ranging from a Sousa march to Khachaturian dances. Directed by Lawrence R. Mallett, assistant director of the Purdue University Bands, the program costs $1 for adults and 50¢ for students and children.

Merging Traffic, an Indianapolis-based professional jazz group, will present the second program at 8:30 p.m. next Sunday (April 11) in the Union Cafeteria. General admission price is $2.50.

The 30-voice IUPUI Chamber Singers are featured in the third April presentation -- a recital on April 13 in the faculty lounge of Cavanaugh Hall (Room 507). Highlight of the 8 p.m. free program will be soloist Dr. J. Edgar Webb, assistant professor of speech and theater, who will perform works by Ruah Suer of the IUPUI Mathematics Department and Wendy Miner, a secretary in the Theater Department.

The final presentation, on April 25, will be the New York Street Singers whose no-admission program will begin at 8 p.m. in the Union cafeteria. Popular music and selections from Broadway shows, plus a combo, plus choreography by Susan Michos, will spark the performance by the 70-member group.

The first two programs are sponsored by the IUPUI Lectures and Convocations Committee. The last two programs, directed by Charles Manning, IUPUI director of music, are sponsored by the School of Liberal Arts.

X TERRILL RESIGNS HOSPITAL POST

Robert C. Terrill has resigned as director of the Indiana University Hospitals and has been succeeded by Ralph Kletzien, who will serve as acting director in the administration of University, Riley, and Long Hospitals.

Dean of Medicine Steven C. Beerling said that Terrill served as director through a difficult and demanding era in the development of the University Hospitals.

Under Terrill's administration, Phase II of the University Hospital was completed and brought into service. These responsibilities included the transfer of the obstetrics and gynecology units from Coleman to University, the opening of the new mental health unit, the expansion of the clinical and anatomical pathology departments. Terrill also supervised the opening of the new Radiation Therapy Building and transfer of the detention unit to Wishard Memorial Hospital.

Dean Beering said, "We owe a lot to Mr. Terrill and his leadership in achieving the formidable tasks which confronted us during the last four years."

Terrill plans to complete his work toward a doctorate in the administration of higher education on the Bloomington campus and he will continue his association with the School of Medicine through an appointment to the health administration faculty of the Division of Allied Health Sciences.

Terrill indicated that he announced his resignation at this time because he has completed budget preparation for the 1976-77 fiscal year and because he has concluded most of the programs he had initiated during his four-year tenure as director.
