'TIS THE SEASON. . .

Feasts, carols, merriment, pomp and pageantry are on the Yuletide calendar at IUPUI.

The series of three Madrigal Dinners starts Friday at the Union Building, starring the IUPUI Chamber Singers in rich costumes at the high table in a setting reminiscent of the 16th Century. A procession ushers in the Wassail Bowl, special fanfare announces the Boar's Head and Flaming Plum Pudding. Minstrels, carolers and Elizabethan madrigals highlight the annual program.

The doors open at 7 p.m. each night (Friday, Saturday and Sunday) and guests should be seated before the 7:30 p.m. procession. Tickets are $5.25 per for IUPUI students and $6.75 for the public. Tickets may be purchased by mail, or at the Union Building Director's Office, or by calling Ext. 7685.

A second holiday dinner and concert called "The Sounds of Christmas" will be held next Monday (December 12) at the Union Building.

The buffet-style dinner in the cafeteria starts at 6 p.m. with a traditional menu of turkey and dressing, cranberry salad, sweet potatoes and pumpkin pie. Dinner is $2 per person.

At 8 p.m. a program of carols and readings will be presented by the New York Street Singers, the IUPUI Chamber Singers and the Indianapolis Philharmonic Orchestra (directed by Charles Manning) and the IUPUI Listener's Theater (directed by Bruce Wagener). There is no admission charge for the concert part of the program.

The program is being sponsored by the IUPUI Student Association, the Union Building, School of Liberal Arts and the Lectures and Convocations Committee.

SPEAKING UP

How to live with stress and crisis, what solar energy means, how to establish and protect your credit -- these are among more than 200 speeches offered by 83 members of the faculty and staff of IUPUI.

The topics are listed in the new edition of the IUPUI Speakers Service, one of the state's largest sources for diversified program topics. The booklet is now available to clubs and organizations which are searching for a program speaker. Free copies can be obtained by calling the Information Services and Publications Office, Ext. 2101.

The speeches are offered as a public service to bring the expertise of the university to the community. There is no fee for most speakers.

Among topics are those dealing with business-industry-economics, current affairs, dentistry, education, engineering and technology, family living, the future, health sciences, history, international topics, literature, management, personal living, political science, religion, science and sports.

The speakers are mostly IUPUI faculty members who have speeches drawn from their specialties or from special interests and experiences.

An added feature is the availability of student speakers from the University Forum. This is a project of the IUPUI Department of Speech-Theater-Communications. Students will debate the national debate topic involving the freedom of law enforcement agencies to investigate or prosecute felony crimes. Dr. David Burns is co-ordinator of the student project and can be contacted at Ext. 7389.

HOW WELFARE IS FARING

A Welfare Reform Forum to explain current legislation before the U.S. Congress, its potential impact and its chances of being enacted will be held this week.

Sponsored by the I.U. School of Social Service and the Indiana Chapter of the National Association of Social Workers, the program will be held Monday (December 5) at 1:30 p.m. in the auditorium of the School of Nursing.

The session is open to the community and has been designed to provide the social service community and the general public with an analysis of the content of the welfare reform legislation, the impact of the legislation on Indiana, and the attitude of Congress toward the act.

Program participants will be Dr. Leonard Schneiderman, dean of the I.U. School of Social Service; Wayne Stanton, administrator, Indiana Department of Public Welfare, and Fred Williams, legislative assistant to U.S. Senator Birch Bayh.
