

green sheet

volume nineteen, number twenty-one

8P3
may 28, 1989

RELIGION WORKSHOP FOCUSES ON FOURTH ESTATE

Kenneth L. Woodward of Newsweek and Martin Marty of Christian Century are among the "headliners" participating in a special presentation on campus, "Religion in America: A Media Workshop and Open News Forum" June 2 in University Place. Intended for journalists who cover religion, the workshop is open to everyone and there is no charge. Other writers and scholars who specialize in many denominations and fields of American religion also will participate. They will pay particular attention to the problem journalists have in American culture of dealing with religion without offending anyone--in spite of knowing that controversy is the heart of news. Other presenters, and the areas they represent, include Wade Clark Roof and Henry Bowden (Mainline Protestantism), Jay Dolan and Bob Orsi (Roman Catholicism), Deborah Dash Moore and Jonanthan Sarna (American Judaism), C. Eric Lincoln and Larry Jones (Black Religion), George Marsden and Joel Carpenter (Evangelicals and Fundamentalists), Ed Harrell (Electronic Church), and Richard Bushman and Jan Shipps (Latter-day Saints). Registration is required for the morning session featuring Marty and Woodward focusing on developing news stories. Registration is not required for the afternoon session which begins at 2 p.m. and features Marty moderating a two-part open news forum, "Developments and Reconfigurations Since the Sixties," and "Recent Changes in the Study of American Religion." A reception follows at 4 p.m. The gathering of religious scholars and writers is being arranged by the IUPUI Center for American Studies, directed by Jan Shipps, with funding provided by the Indiana Humanities Council. To register, call the IUPUI News Bureau, 4-7711.-G. Wolfram

SUMMERTIME GREEN SHEET AND CALENDAR June through August the Green Sheet will be published bimonthly--the first and third Sundays. Deadline for submitting news items is still Tuesday at 5 p.m. before the date of publication. For more info, call 4-7711. The Campus Calendar done by Publications, will be inserted in the Green Sheet once a month. For calendar info, call 4-5488.

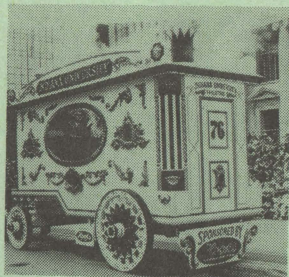

NADER HEADLINES SECOND SYMPOSIUM ON PHILANTHROPY

Consumer activist Ralph Nader from the Center for Responsive Law, will speak during the second annual symposium on philanthropy "The Responsibilities of Wealth," June 7-9 in University Place. The event marks the centennial of the publication of Andrew Carnegie's "The Gospel of Wealth," which was to become the most famous philanthropic declaration ever written by a person of great wealth. At the same time, Jane Addams founded Hull House, the United Way got its roots, and John D. Rockefeller made his first donation to fund the University of Chicago. To reflect on and celebrate 100 years of philanthropy in America, the symposium will also feature many other practitioners and scholars of philanthropy. June 7 there will be a reception, dinner and a free public lecture at 7:30 p.m. by Barry D. Karl, Norman and Edna Freehling Professor of History, University of Chicago. On June 8 there will be a series of sessions between scholars and practitioners, a reception, dinner and the premiere of a new film about 100 years of philanthropy. On June 9 events begin at 8:30 a.m. with focus group meetings and the luncheon with Nader speaking. The entire symposium is $75. Fees for separate events are $25 for the dinner June 7; $35 for the dinner and film June 8, and $40 for the June 9 activities including the lunch with Nader. For a brochure and registration, call the sponsor, the I.U. Center on Philanthropy, 4-4200.

DRS. PETERS AND MOORES AMONG MEDICINE'S HONOREES

Dr. Paul C. Peters, M.D., ('53) and Dr. William B. (Joe) Moores, M.D., ('63) were named co-winners of the 1989 distinguished alumni award, bestowed during the annual meeting of the I.U. School of Medicine Alumni Association on campus May 20. Dr. Peters has an international reputation for his distinguished research in kidney and urologic disease. Dr. Moores has a successful dermatology practice in Indianapolis, lectures in dermatology in the School of Medicine and serves on the school's admissions committee. He recently spearheaded fund-raising to equip and name the Victor C. Hackney Dermatopathology Laboratory in the new Medical Research and Library Building, which was dedicated the same day. Other awards and honorary degrees were given during ceremonies throughout the day. Dr. Arthur L. Norins, M.D., chairman of the Dept. of Dermatology, was named 1989 distinguished faculty member. The 71st annual Ravdin Award for the outstanding medical student went to David L. Winger, and the Golden Apple Award for an outstanding faculty member went to David W. Crabb, M.D., associate professor of medicine and biochemistry. In a message to physicians and researchers attending the ceremonies, Walter J. Daly, M.D., dean of the School of Medicine, asked them to support all areas of medicine, but especially the care of the indigent. He also noted the critical importance of biomedical research on human health, and asked colleagues to continue their research and support in this area. At the dedication, I.U. President Thomas Ehrlich presented honorary degrees to Omer H. Foust, executive director of the James Whitcomb Riley Memorial Association; Elson B. Helwig, M.D., chairman of the Dept. of Gastrointestinal Pathology of the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology and registrar of the American Registry of Gastrointestinal Pathology, and Clyde G. Culbertson, M.D., clinical professor emeritus of anatomic pathology, I.U. School of Medicine.

--M. Maxwell

THE CALLIOPE ALL READY TO BLOW For the 13th consecutive year, Larry MacPherson, calliopist/organist, will play the I.U. Calliope as it steams its way to summer appearances all over the state. The authentic antique steam calliope was first played in 1923 and will play next in the Memorial Day Parade in New Castle May 29. Housed in a colorful 10-ton circus wagon, the calliope is the only one of its kind in the U.S. to tour and play regularly. Originally built as a bicentennial project by students, staff and alumni at IUPUI, it remains attached to and is operated by this campus-M. Morris

NEWS 'N' NOTES FROM HERE 'N' THERE

Decoration Day--Many campus offices will close as picnic baskets open to celebrate Memorial Day, May 29. First observed at Waterloo in 1865, its a day to remember our war dead, to think of peace and to take the city streets back from the race fans.

Two for Microbiology/Immunology--Dr. Edward F. Scrou, Div. of Hematology/Oncology, Dept. of Medicine, School of Medicine, presents "CD3 Positive-CD5 Negative-T-Lymphocytes and T-Cell Receptor-Gamma Delta Positive-T-Lymphocytes are Phenotypically and Functionally Related" June 1. Dr. David H. Martin, Div. of Infectious Disease, Dept. of Medicine, Louisiana State U., presents "Chlamydia Infections in Pregnancy and in Asymptomatic Men" June 8. Both at 4 p.m. in MS 326; refreshments at 3:30 p.m. All welcome.

Open Again--Faculty, staff and students can use the reopened drop box for the Bursar Office in the Union Building in the first floor hallway, across from the cafeteria. There also is a drop box in the first floor lobby of Cavanaugh Hall.

Videoconference--Everyone is welcome to the videoconference, "Innovation and Collaboration in Distance Education" May 30, 10:45 a.m.-1 p.m., LH 104. Designed for educators who expect to use electronic classrooms to meet their missions, the conference is free and will include discussion with people involved in the latest technologies.

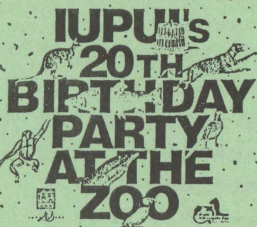

NORM BROWN READY FOR ST. LOUIS AND THE U.S. NATIONAL SENIOR OLYMPICS Fifty-seven-year-old Norman Brown, assistant director of admissions at IUPUI, has two races to run before he competes in the national senior olympics at St. Louis June 19-24, but he's fit and ready and thinks he can win. Brown, who has always been "fairly active," began his personal fitness routine of running 12 miles or so a week after he broke an ankle and could no longer officiate for college intramural and high school basketball and softball games. "Generally very healthy, and watching cholesterol" Norm will compete in his class in the 100- and 200-meter events. He qualified last summer to run in the nationals this year, and for the last three months he has stepped up his fitness regimen to prepare for the speed and endurance he will need. Every day he sprints, runs, jogs, swims and/or works out on Nautilus equipment. His oldest daughter April, 27, a former I.U. track athlete and power lifter, set up Norm's fitness program, and he gets encouragement from his daughter Angela, 19; his son Paris, 32, and his wife Anne Marie. Before the big event, Norm is scheduled to run in the city of St. Louis senior olympics May 29-June 1, which will give him some experience on the track there, and he will race again in the Indy Senior Classics June 10 on the track at IUPUI. Norm has helped thousands of students enroll at IUPUI since he came here 15 years ago, following 20-years' service in the U.S. Air Force.

IUPUI HAS GUESTS FROM JAPAN, YUGOSLAVIA, ETHIOPIA AND ELSEWHERE To help meet the goals of mutual understanding, increased professional knowledge and the shared responsibility for the conditions of all people, we will play host to 10 foreign guests in the 11th annual IUPUI-Council of International Programs (CIP). They are already at work in local agencies, hospitals or churches in jobs and duties that compare to what they do in their own countries--working with the elderly, drug addiction, law enforcement, health, youth and family planning. Our 10 guests are among the 210 nationwide involved in the cultural/educational/professional exchange program. On Aug. 9 they will all meet for a week of meetings in Washington, D.C. David Metzger, associate professor and director of IUPUI-CIP, School of Social Work, has been involved for many years in the program and arranges for them to stay with IUPUI and other area families while they are here, "a venture that enriches everyone involved," he said. -M. Hopper

OPEN GOLF TOURNEY TO BENEFIT US BY WAY OF THE KIDNEY FOUNDATION Through research, services, education, grants and even new kidneys, our renal patients in University Hospitals and their families benefit greatly from the National Kidney Foundation. Because he works closely with the foundation, as do others on campus, Kurt Kuppler, administrator of Renal Transplant Services, invites everyone to play in the Glenlivet Scotch Scramble open golf tourney at the Broadmoor Country Club June 8. This is the largest corporate-sponsored tourney with 36 foursomes. The entry fee is $1,000 per foursome and all monies raised will go to the Kidney Foundation. You'll have lunch, a cocktail party, attend an awards banquet and win prizes. If you win, you can advance to sectional playoffs and a national championship tourney at Miami's Doral Country Club next December. For more information, or to sign-up, call Kurt, 4-3436.

"BRAIN RACE" AUTHOR TO SPEAK IN EDUCATION PROGRAM Dennis Doyle, author of the controversial book, "Winning the Brain Race," and senior research fellow in the Hudson Institute, is among the speakers in a program June 2, "The Education-Business Connection," sponsored by the Indiana Clearinghouse for Educational Technology at IUPUI, the Indiana Corporation for Science and Technology and the Indiana Department of Education. Educators and employers will have the opportunity to examine the implications of education and training of the workforce in the changing workplace. Lunch speaker will be Andrew Hahn from the Center for Human Resources at Brandeis University. Other specialists from business and industry will discuss technological, economic and sociological changes in the global market. There will be panel discussions and exhibits. Set for the Indiana Convention Center, the program opens at 8:15 a.m. with a welcome from H. Dean Evans, superintendent of public instruction. Registration fee, if received before June 3, is $35 per person, with reduced rates of $30 for each additional person from the same organization. For more call 4-8001.

THE $1 TICKETS TO OUR BIRTHDAY PARTY AT THE ZOO ARE ON SALE NOW-JUNE 12
All faculty, staff, students and up to eight family members are invited to IUPUI's 20th Birthday Party at the Zoo, June 21, 6-11 p.m. You can buy tickets now until June 20 at the natatorium; May 30 until June 9 at all the bookstores on campus; June 5-8 at University Hospitals, and June 9 and June 12 in the "quick line" of University Hospital cafeteria and Riley Hospital. You have to sign for the tickets that are only $1 each. Zoo memberships cannot be honored on our special night.

CHILD CARE AVAILABLE FOR SCHOOL FOR WOMEN WORKERS

Women from a wide variety of work and trade union backgrounds will meet in Indianapolis July 23-28 for the 14th annual Midwest School for Women Workers, hosted by the I.U. Division of Labor Studies. "Union Women: Leadership Roles for the '90s" is the title of this year's program that will focus on building basic union skills, understanding and resolving problems and issues facing working women and the development of a broad knowledge of the labor movement. Faculty will be from universities and unions. Child care is available for an extra fee. For costs and registration, call Jean Troutman-Poole, IU Kokomo, 317-453-4636.

Reminder to Researchers

HUMAN RESEARCH CONFERENCE SET FOR CAMPUS JUNE 1-2

Faculty, staff and students involved or interested in issues surrounding the conduct of research involving human subjects are invited to attend the symposium, "Protection from Research Risks: Whom are We Protecting?" June 1-2 in University Place. Questions of accountability, protection and much more will be addressed by specialists and practitioners. To register call Harriet Rodenberg, 4-4364. For more information, call Roxanne Loomis, director of Research Risk Administration, Research and Sponsored Programs, 4-8289.

FINALLY...

...you can picnic outside or in with a $3.95 box lunch from Morrison Custom Management. "Lunch on the Lawn" offers a choice of sandwich, toppings, fruit, a dessert and a drink. Condiments are included. To order, call 4-7566 before 10 a.m. on the day you want lunch.

...last in the OB/GYN spring series on Women's Health Awareness is Dr. Patricia Treadwell, M.D., presenting "Skin Care through the Years" June 1, noon-1 p.m., UH C261.

...a note from Mayor Hudnut's office reminds citizens who pay for solid waste services in the City that they will receive trash collection on Memorial Day, May 29.

...Beth Jeglum, director of the IUPUI Day Care Center, and her willing helpers were still smiling last week after taking their 45 little race fans to the 500-Mile track for a totally traditional Hoosier outing this time of year.

green sheet

*News Bureau
Indiana University-Purdue University
at Indianapolis
355 Lansing Street
Indianapolis, Indiana 46202

