Author Umberto Eco is one of five honorary degree recipients set to join 3,847 graduates in the university's 24th commencement May 9 at the Hoosier Dome. Chancellor Gerald L. Bepko will preside, while IU President Thomas Ehrlich and Purdue President Steven C. Beering will confer the degrees. Eco is author of the book The Name of the Rose and is a philosopher, historian and scholar.

Other IU honorary degree recipients include: Vernice Ferguson, director of the Department of Veterans Affairs Nursing Service; labor lawyer Alan Nolan, founder of the Indiana Civil Liberties Union; and Sir Martin Roth, who laid the foundations for the study of psychiatry of old age and anxiety disorders. Walter Washington, president of Alcorn State University, will receive an honorary degree from Purdue.

In addition, 17 schools and divisions plan to recognize their graduates at separate ceremonies. Commencement is free, open to the public, and begins at 3 p.m.

Nursing Conference to Focus on Violence

Chancellor Bepko, School of Nursing Dean Angela Barron McBride and Indianapolis Mayor Steve Goldsmith are among the featured speakers headlining the May 12-14 "Violence Health & Community" conference at the University Place Conference Center. The event is sponsored in part by the nursing school and will focus on the impact of violence in American society. Subjects include violence against children, women, gays and lesbians and the elderly. For more, call 4-7779.

ADA Group Seeking Help in Campus-Wide Inventory

Your help is needed to identify practical accommodations for persons with disabilities across the campus. The university's ADA (Americans with Disabilities Act) technology subcommittee is compiling an inventory of technology devices and furniture already in use to help those with disabilities. Any information you have is needed by May 14 and can be turned in by voice mail (at 278-3838) or by email (at ADATECH@INDYCMS).

Bowen Research Center Enjoying New Home at Long Hospital

The old Health Services Research Center is gone, but the SPEA faculty and staff who were part of it are thriving with a new name (the Bowen Research Center) and a new home (Long Hospital). Although "Bowen Center" has been used unofficially in the past, the name change became permanent this January when the Center left the BS building for Long Hospital. The Center is a joint venture between SPEA and the Department of Family Medicine. Created by Center director Deborah Freund and Deborah Allen, chair of family medicine, the Bowen Research Center focuses on health-related problems ranging from individual behavior to health-care funding.
CREDIT UNION MEMBERSHIP DRIVE HITS HIGH GEAR

Indiana Federal Credit Union representatives are gearing up for their spring membership drive, called "The Race Is On," with several events in May. Kicking off the activities are a pair of enrollment sessions, May 4-5, outside the hospital cafeteria. Credit union employees will sign up qualified participants from 11 a.m.-2 p.m. each of those days. The credit union also has lower-than-usual lending rates for new- and used-car loans to offer, and is staging a new car sale May 7-8 in Greenwood, one mile south of Main Street on U.S. 31. The sale will include 11 southside auto dealers. For more call 636-8479.

MINI-MARATHON'S NEW COURSE CUTS THROUGH CAMPUS

Indiana's best runners -- trailed by some less-than-the-best runners -- will invade the campus May 7 along the new route for the famed Indianapolis Life "500" Mini-Marathon between 9 a.m. and noon. The 14,000 or so runners who annually take part in the event are expected to hit the east edge of the campus on Michigan Street about 9:15 a.m., with the last competitors likely to leave shortly before noon. Two lanes of Michigan Street will be kept open for west-bound traffic at all times, but plans call for no traffic to cross Michigan during the race. For more, 4-7971.

HUDNUT MAYORAL YEARS HEADLINE NEXT URBAN AGENDA

Two years after he left the mayor's office, William Hudnut's tenure as the head man of Indianapolis will be evaluated by associate dean of SPEA Mark Rosentraub during the May 12 Urban Agenda brown-bag luncheon. Rosentraub will discuss "Indianapolis During the Hudnut Years: An Appraisal," followed by comments from Hudnut himself. As always, the Urban Agenda session will be held in conference room A of the Associated Group headquarters, 120 Monument Circle, from noon until 1 p.m. The sessions are free and open to the public.

VOLUNTARIsm EXPERT FEATURED AT 'SPIRIt OF PHILANTHROPY' CELEBRATION

Commitment to voluntarism and philanthropy is increasingly common among college students, a trend honored recently at the fifth annual Spirit of Philanthropy Celebration. The growing involvement among students was noted by featured speaker Frank Newman, a founder of Campus Compact, which links nearly 300 U.S. colleges and universities (including IUPUI) in efforts to develop opportunities for students to put those beliefs into action. Schools and units on campus recognized honorees who have donated service and gifts to IUPUI. — Sandy Matthys Roob

NEW LAW SCHOOL PROGRAM FOCUSED ON PRO BONO WORK

Law students are being encouraged to develop a lifelong habit of helping others in the School of Law's new pro bono program. The program director, George Dremonas, encourages students to volunteer for placement through his office with public service agencies and public interest organizations to provide both legal assistance and more general volunteer work in the community. The new program has been helped by the recent reinforcement of the value of pro bono work by the American and state bar associations. — Alicia Dean Carlson

If you could have 39¢ more for every dollar you save, would you take it today?

With a VALIC Tax-Deferred Annuity (TDA), you can save more and have the same spendable income. Let’s say you put $1.00 in a conventional savings account. You actually need to earn $1.39 to net $1.00, assuming a 28% tax bracket ($1.39 - 28% in taxes = $1.00). With a VALIC TDA, your contribution could be $1.39, or $39 more, because dollars you would have normally paid in taxes can be contributed to your account. And it’s important to note: the earnings on these contributions won’t be taxed until withdrawn, usually at retirement.

An Elective Benefit for Employees of I.U.P.U.I.
An Important Supplement to Your Pension

VALIC can show you how to save more for your retirement with:
- Two guaranteed fixed-rate accounts
- A wide variety of investment options
- Investment flexibility
- Reduction of your current taxable income
- Tax-free loans
- Personal local service
